GENERAL STATEMENT

This publication is a compilation of the circulars and regulations of the General Land Office which are of the greatest importance at the present time. The regulations necessarily must be considered as of the dates under which they were issued, and must be construed in the light of subsequent regulations, decisions, and practice. Regulations which have been amended by subsequent regulations have been noted to show that fact and regulations published in the land decisions have been noted to show the volume and page where they appear.

The regulations have been grouped under appropriate classifications, arranged in alphabetical order, and listed and indexed, as shown in the table of contents on pages III and IV.

To avoid duplication, regulations which have been entirely superseded by later regulations, or which have been entirely or in substance incorporated as parts of later instructions, have been omitted from this publication. In some cases regulations under which rights can not be acquired at the present time are carried for reference purposes in connection with pending applications which were presented at a time when the regulations were effective. Circulars not containing present governing instructions or not of present general value for reference purposes are not included herein.

Acts of Congress and forms have not been reproduced except where they were made essential parts of the original regulations. Where they were carried as parts of the original regulations but have been omitted in this publication, that fact is shown by the words "Acts omitted," or "Forms omitted," or similar notation, immediately following the particular regulations.

ABANDONED MILITARY RESERVATIONS—PAYMENTS

INSTRUCTIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, April 9, 1895.

Secretary Smith to the Commissioner of the General Land Office:

I am in receipt of your letter of the 25th ultimo transmitting for my approval instructions to the proper local officers for the disposal of the lands in the Fort Rice, N. Dak., and Fort Bridger, Wyo., abandoned military reservations.

You call my attention to the variance in departmental letters of February 9, 1895, and February 18, 1895, directing how the payments shall be made for the lands in these reservations respectively and the interest to be charged entrymen on deferred payments.

The act of August 23, 1894 (28 Stat. 491), authorizes entries for these lands. So much of said act as is applicable to the question presented by you is found in the proviso to the first section thereof, which is as follows:

> That persons who enter under the homestead law shall pay for such lands not less than the value heretofore or hereafter determined by appraisement, nor less than the price of the land at the time of the entry, and such payment may, at the option of the purchaser, be made in five equal installments, at times and at rates of interest to be fixed by the Secretary of the Interior.

For obvious reasons, the time for the payments in installments authorized by said act, and the interest thereon, should be uniform for the lands in all reservations opened to settlement by virtue thereof.

I have to direct therefore that you prepare all instructions to local officers under said act so as to conform to departmental letter of February 18, 1895, as follows:

> That the homsteader be given the option in making payment upon his entry of these lands, of making his payments in five equal payments to date from the time of the acceptance of his proof tendered on his entry, and that the rate of interest upon deferred payments be charged at the rate of 4 per cent per anum.

It follows that the instructions to the local officers, at Bismarck, N. Dak., must be amended to conform to the above directions; and the same are returned for that purpose.

The instructions to the local officers at Evanston, Wyo., are herewith returned approved.

CIRCULAR NO. 677

OPENING OF ABANDONED DATE CREEK MILITARY RESERVATION, ARIZ., UNDER ACT OF AUGUST 23, 1894

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, March 27, 1920.

REGISTER AND RECEIVER,
United States Land Office, Phoenix, Ariz.

SIRS: Date Creek Military Reservation in T. 10 N., R. 7 W.; T. 11 N., R. 6 W.; and T. 11 N., R. 7 W., G and S. R. M., was abandoned and was relinquished and turned over to the Department of the Interior December 7, 1874, under the act of June 22, 1874 (18 Stat. 201). The resurvey of said reservation was approved August 9, 1918, and an appraisement of the lands therein has been approved. A copy of the appraisement schedule is hereto attached for your use and files.

The total area of the reservation is 6,370.83 acres, of which 840 acres have been heretofore patented and 1,082.09 acres are within "school" sections 2, 32, and 36, for which the State has not taken indemnity. The question of the right of the State of Arizona, to the unappropriated lands in said sections 2, 32, and 36, will be governed by departmental decision of January 19, 1900 (29 L. D. 418), and in the absence of valid settlement rights, the State's rights under its land grant will be recognized.

The area of the reservation being more than 5,000 acres, the agricultural lands therein will be disposed of under the provisions of the act of August 23, 1894 (28 Stat. 491). The lands being restored which are not State lands or appropriated by valid settlement established prior to approval hereof, will be subject to a preference right of homestead entry for 60 days prior to June 12, 1920, by—> officers, soldiers, sailors or marines who have served in the Army or Navy of the United States in the war with Germany and been honorably discharged therefrom or placed in the Regular Army or Naval Reserve * * * Provided, That the rights and benefits conferred by this act shall not extend to any person who, having been drafted for service under the provisions of the selective service act, shall have refused to render such service or to wear the uniform of such service of the United States, under the provisions of House Joint Resolution No. 20, approved February 14, 1920.

You will not allow any homestead application for lands hereby restored prior to June 12, 1920, except those of bona fide settlers prior to approval hereof who will be required to accompany their applications by affidavits showing the date of settlement and the kind and value of the improvements; or those filed under the provisions of the said joint resolution which applicants will be required to accompany their applications by an affidavit showing that the tracts applied for are not occupied by a bona fide settler entitled to a preference right of entry, and also proof of such military or naval service as well as a statement, under oath, that the applicant did not refuse "to render such service or to wear the uniform of such service of the United States." On June 12, 1920, the unappropriated lands hereby restored will be subject to settlement and entry as in said act of August 23, 1894, provided, by any one possessing the requisite qualifications.

Homestead entrymen will be required to make payment for the lands entered, at the appraised price, which may be cash in full at the date of the acceptance of proof upon their entries, or, at the option of the entryman, payment may be made in five equal installments, the first payment to be made one year after the acceptance of his final proof and the subsequent payments to be made annually thereafter, with interest at the rate of 4 per cent per annum, from date of acceptance of such proof. They will be allowed, however, to pay one or more even installments at any time, with interest to date of such payment. If commutation proof is submitted, payment must be made in full at time of acceptance of proof, when a certificate of entry may be issued. Upon acceptance of 3-year proof, a final certificate may be issued only in case full payment is made; otherwise, the certificate will not be issued until the final payment has been made.

Publicity will be given this restoration by giving a copy of these regulations to newspapers for publication, if desired, as an item of news, without incurring expense to the Government. You will also post a copy in your office for a period of at least 60 days prior to June 12, 1920, and will transmit a copy to the postmaster nearest the land for posting in his office. Also transmit a copy to the State land commission.

Very respectfully,
Clay Tallman, Commissioner.

Approved March 27, 1920.

First Assistant Secretary.

OPENING OF LANDS IN THE ABANDONED FORT ASSINNIBOINE MILITARY RESERVATION, MONTANA

By the President of the United States

A PROCLAMATION

I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the act of Congress approved February 11, 1915 (38 Stat. 807), do hereby prescribe, proclaim, and make known that all the unreserved lands in the abandoned Fort Assinniboine Military Reservation, in the State of Montana, which have been surveyed and classified under said act of Congress into agricultural lands and coal lands (no timber lands or mineral lands having been found therein), shall be opened to settlement and entry under the homestead laws of the United States, but not to entry or location under sections 2306 and 2307, United States Revised Statutes, and be settled upon, occupied, and entered in the following manner, and not otherwise:

1. Units.—To prevent confusion and more readily to dispose of conflicts during the period of simultaneous applications mentioned in paragraph No. 2, the lands, both agricultural and coal, shall, so far as practicable, be arranged in units of approximately 160 acres each, and during said period all applications for these lands shall be filed for a unit or part of a unit, as thus arranged. An application filed during said period for lands embraced in more than one unit shall be rejected.

2. Simultaneous applications.—All persons qualified to make a homestead entry for said lands may file one application for a unit or part of a unit, at the district land office at Havre, Mont., between 9 o'clock a. m., standard time, Wednesday, October 25, 1916, and 12 o'clock noon, on Wednesday, November 15, 1916. All applications filed during said period will be treated as filed simultaneously. Any person having only an additional homestead right for less than 160 acres may file an application for such portion of a unit as he may be entitled to enter, the land to be described according to legal subdivisions.

3. Disposition of applications.—The register of said land office will note on all applications received at or prior to 12 o'clock noon, on November 15, 1916, the date and hour of receipt and whether the land applied for is subject to disposition, according to the land-office records. There shall also be appropriately indicated on a map of the reservation posted for public inspection the tracts for which applications have been filed. Where there is no conflict, such applications, if in proper form and accompanied by the required payments, will be allowed immediately after the close of the period mentioned in paragraph 2. Where there are such conflicting applications, conflicting in whole or in part, the right of the several applicants will be determined by a public drawing, at the United States land office at Havre, Mont., beginning at 10 o'clock a. m., standard time, on Saturday, November 18, 1916, or as soon thereafter as practicable. The names of the conflicting applicants will be written on cards and each of these cards shall be placed in an envelope upon which there is no distinctive or identifying mark. These envelopes shall be thoroughly and impartially mixed, and then drawn, one at a time, by some disinterested person. As the envelopes are drawn, the cards shall be numbered, beginning with No. 1, and fastened to the applications of the respective persons, which shall be the order in which the applications shall be acted upon. If an applicant fails to secure any of the land applied for, his application shall be rejected. If he obtains part but not all of the land applied for, he shall be allowed 30 days from receipt of notice within which to notify the register and receiver whether to allow his application for the part obtained or to reject it in its entirety. If he does not notify the register and receiver within the time allowed, the application will be rejected.

4. Subsequent applications.—After the period mentioned in paragraph 2 has expired, applicants may disregard said units in making their applications, and the applications will be disposed of by the register and receiver in the usual way in the order in which they are filed in the district land office.

5. Execution and presentation of applications.—Applications to enter may be executed before the register or the receiver of the United States land office for the district in which the land is situated, or before a United States commissioner, or a judge or a clerk of a court of record residing in the county in which the land is situated, or before any such officer who resides outside the county and in the land district and is nearest and most accessible to the land. All applications must be presented, with the required payment, to the register and receiver in person, by mail, or otherwise.

6. Payments.—Each person presenting an application to enter must accompany such application with the required first payment and the land-office fee and commissions. The payment must be made in cash, by a certified check on a national or state bank or trust company which can be cashed without cost to the Government, or by a post-office money order, made payable to the receiver of the land office. No other form of payment will be accepted. If an application is rejected, the money paid will be returned. If an application is allowed in part, the money paid in excess of the required amount will be returned.

7. Price of land.—For lands entered during the first six months subsequent to the date of opening, entrymen shall, in addition to the regular land-office fees and commissions, pay the sum of $2.50 per acre for said land, 50 cents per acre at the time of making entry and 50 cents per acre each and every year thereafter until the full sum of $2.50 per acre, shall have been paid. For lands entered subsequent to said period of six months, the entryman will be required to pay $1.25 per acre for the land, in addition to the regular fee and commissions, 25 cents per acre at the time of making entry and 25 cents per acre each and every year thereafter until the full sum of $1.25 shall have been paid.

8. Fee and commissions.—The regular land-office fee and commissions required on entries of these lands for 40 acres is $6.50; on entries for 80 acres, $8; on entries for 120 acres, $14.50; and on entries for 160 acres, $16.

9. Coal lands.—The schedule indicates that certain lands have been classified as coal lands. These lands are subject to disposition under the homestead laws, but the homestead applicant must agree to a reservation to the United States of the coal deposits therein and of the right in the United States, or those claiming through the United States, to prospect for, mine, and remove the same. The coal deposits shall be subject to disposal by the United States under the coal laws applicable thereto.

10. Enlarged homesteads.—The enlarged homestead act, approved February 19, 1909 (35 Stat. 639), shall not apply to these lands until six months after the lands have been opened to settlement and entry, and not then unless the lands have been designated under the act.

11. Settlement before entry.—No right can be acquired under the provisions of this proclamation by settlement before entry, until after the expiration of the period for filing simultaneous applications, mentioned in paragraph 2, and no right can be acquired by settlement to more than 160 acres, until after the expiration of six months from the date the lands become subject to entry, and until the lands have been designated under the enlarged homestead act.

12. Completion of title.—Title to these lands may be acquired by complying with the three year homestead law, or commutation proof may be submitted on all homestead entries, except entries made under the enlarged homestead act, which are not subject to commutation. In case of commutation of a homestead entry, however, the entryman will be required to pay in addition to the price fixed for entry, the sum of $1.25 per acre as consideration for the privilege of commutation.

13. Forfeiture for nonpayment and reentry of lands.—In case any entryman fails to make the annual payments, or any of them when due, all right in and to the lands covered by his entry shall cease; and any payments theretofore made shall be forfeited and the entry canceled. In the event of the cancellation of an entry for any cause, the land shall be again subject to entry under the provisions of the homestead law at the price fixed therefor by the former entry; but in all cases the full amount of purchase money must be paid on or before the offer of final proof.

14. Forms, rules and regulations.—The Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized to make any necessary additional regulations to carry the provisions of this proclamation and the act of February 11, 1915 (38 Stat. 807) into full force and effect.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington this second day of October, in the year of our Lord 1916, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and forty-first.

[SEAL.] WOODROW WILSON.

By the President:
ROBERT LANSING,
Secretary of State.

CIRCULAR NO. 954

EXTENSION OF TIME TO MAKE PAYMENT—FORT ASSINNIBOINE ABANDONED MILITARY RESERVATION

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, July 22, 1924.

REGISTER AND RECEIVER,
Havre, Mont.

GENTLEMEN: Public Resolution No. 29, entitled "Joint resolution providing an extension of time for payment by entrymen of lands on the Fort Assinniboine abandoned military reservation, in the State of Montana," which was approved June 7, 1924 (43 Stat. 666), reads as follows:

> That the act of January 6, 1921 (Forty-first Statutes at Large, page 1086), providing additional time for the payment of purchase money under homestead entries within the former Fort Assinniboine Military Reservation, in Montana, be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to authorize extensions of time from year to year for the payment of all unpaid principal upon the payment of interest thereon in advance at the rate specified in the said act, for not to exceed 10 years from date of entry.

The said act applies to the lands in the Fort Assinniboine abandoned military reservation, which was opened to entry on November 15, 1916, under the act of February 11, 1915 (38 Stat. 807).

The act of January 6, 1921 (41 Stat. 1086), and regulations thereunder, Circular 739 (48 L. D. 35) provided for an extension of time to make payment for one year by paying interest at 5 per cent per annum on the unpaid installments due before the date of the act. The unpaid installment due within the year subsequent to the date of the act could be extended for one year by paying interest thereon as above. The installments above extended could be further extended for a period of one year in like manner in the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior.

Circular No. 899 suspended action on the meritorious cases where entrymen were unable to make payment for not exceeding one year, pending action by Congress, and Circular 914, issued February 8, 1924, allowed extensions of time to make payment of installments due until December 31, 1924. The circulars required that the entrymen file affidavits corroborated by two other persons showing the reason why payment was not made. Interest was not required to be paid in the case of extensions of time to make payment granted under the said circulars.

The above act of January 6, 1921, and Circular 739 were amended by this act so that the extensions may be granted from year to year, though not for more than one year at a time, and extensions are limited to 10 years from the date of entry. Entrymen desiring an extension of time under this act should apply therefor and accompany the application with the required amount of interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum, on the unpaid installments. You will grant the extensions when the interest required is paid, and note on the records period of extension and that the interest was paid in conformity with this act. Forward the application to this office. Interest will be collected on any installment for the period it was extended under the above circulars Nos. 899 and 914.

Very respectfully, WILLIAM SPRY, Commissioner.

Approved July 22, 1924.
E. C. FINNEY,
First Assistant Secretary.

FORT BRIDGER (EVANSTON LAND DISTRICT), FORT SANDERS, FORT LARAMIE (POST) MILITARY RESERVATIONS, AND FORT LARAMIE WOOD RESERVATION (CHEYENNE LAND DISTRICT)—RIGHT TO PURCHASE PASTURE AND GRAZING LAND THEREIN. HOMESTEAD LAW EXTENDED TO FORT LARAMIE WOOD RESERVATION

INSTRUCTIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., September 8, 1902.[2]

REGISTERS AND RECEIVERS,
Cheyenne and Evanston, Wyo.

SIRS: Your attention is called to the act of May 31, 1902 (32 Stat. 283), entitled:

> An act granting homesteaders on the abandoned Fort Bridger, Fort Sanders, and Fort Laramie military reservations and Fort Laramie Wood Reservation, in Wyoming, the right to purchase one quarter section of public land on said reservations as pasture or grazing land, and for other purposes, a copy of which is hereto attached.

The act extends the homestead law to the abandoned Fort Laramie Wood Reservation.

Lands in the Fort Bridger (post) Reservation were made subject to disposal under the provisions of the homestead law by act of August 23, 1894 (28 Stat. 491), and in Fort Laramie (post) and Fort Sanders under the homestead law by act of July 10, 1890 (26 Stat. 227).

You will be guided by the following instructions in your disposition of applications to purchase under this act:

1. The right of purchase is limited to persons who are residing on said reservations and who have made or who shall make homestead entries therein, and to persons who are residents and owners in fee of 160 acres thereon by purchase.

2. Persons desiring to avail themselves of the provisions of said act will be required to file an application describing the lands sought to be purchased, and to publish notice of their intention to submit proof in support of such application, as required by the act of March 3, 1879, in preemption and homestead cases. The application to purchase must, in every instance, show (a) that the applicant has exercised the right of homestead entry on land within the same reservation, the number and date of such entry, the description of the land covered thereby, and that such entry is still subsisting, or that he is a resident and the legal owner of 160 acres therein prior to May 31, 1902; (b) that the land applied for is not settled upon, occupied, or improved, and is not valuable for coal or mineral, and that it is nonsaline in character; that the land is suitable for pasture and grazing purposes; its location relative to sources of water supply, and the causes which it is claimed render it unfit for cultivation and homestead, and that the land sought to be purchased, with the land on which the applicant so exercised the right of homestead entry or the right of purchase, does not, in the aggregate, exceed 320 acres.

3. Should any adverse claimant appear or protest be filed against the applicant's right to purchase, the proceedings thereon will be conducted in accordance with the Rules of Practice in similar cases.

4. On the submission of such proof you will forward the same to this office for consideration, after having made due notation on your records. If the entryman has heretofore submitted final proof on his original homestead entry showing due compliance with law, or the applicant by purchase is shown satisfactorily to be the owner in fee of 160 acres, and the proof submitted under the application to purchase is found satisfactory, you will then be directed to permit the applicant to make payment for the land involved, and upon his making payment you will issue to him cash certificate and receipt of current number and date, noting thereon and upon the abstracts that the purchase is allowed under and in accordance with the provisions of the act of May 31, 1902.

If, however, it be found by this office, upon an examination of the application for the right to purchase, that the entryman has not yet submitted final proof on his homestead, said application will be held to await the completion of the original homestead entry. If it then be found that the said applicant has shown due compliance with law under the said homestead entry and his application is otherwise satisfactory, he will be allowed to complete his purchase by making payment for the land.

Very respectfully,

W. A. Richards,
Acting Commissioner.

Approved.

Thos. Ryan,
Acting Secretary.

REGULATIONS FOR THE OPENING TO ENTRY OF LANDS IN NEW MEXICO (FORMERLY RESERVED FOR MILITARY PURPOSES, NEAR DEMING, N. MEX.), PORTION OF LAND IN FORT CUMMINGS ABANDONED MILITARY RESERVATION

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, February 14, 1922.

Register and Receiver,
Las Cruces, N. Mex.

Sirs: By Executive Order No. 2772, dated December 12, 1917, all the public lands in T. 22 S., R. 9 W., N. M. P. M., the title to which had not passed out of the United States, were temporarily withdrawn from settlement, filing, selection, entry, or sale, and reserved for military purposes.

By Executive Order No. 2879 dated June 6, 1918, all the public lands in T. 20 S., R. 9 W., T. 21 S., Rs. 8, 9, and 10 W.; and T. 22 S., Rs. 8 and 10 W., N. M. P. M., were temporarily withdrawn from settlement, entry, sale, or other forms of disposal, and reserved for military purposes for occupation and use for artillery practice.

Executive Order No. 3078, dated April 22, 1919, placed all lands in T. 21 S., Rs. 8 and 9 W., N. M. P. M., which had been reserved by Executive Order No. 2879, for military purposes, for occupancy and use for artillery practice, under the control of the Secretary of the Interior, for disposition, as provided by the act of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. 103), "or as may be otherwise provided by law." August 25, 1919, said lands were opened to entry in accordance with departmental regulations of May 17, 1917 (46 L. D. 121), and citing departmental decision of May 6, 1919, in the case of ex parte Petronilo Garcia (47 L. D. 141).

By Executive Order No. 3402, dated February 11, 1921, the remaining lands reserved by the foregoing Executive Orders Nos. 2772 and 2879, having become useless for military purposes, were placed under the control of the Secretary of the Interior for disposition under section 1 of the act of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. 103), "or as may be otherwise provided by law." Under date of April 1, 1921, copies of said Executive Order No. 3402 were sent to your office and you were informed that you would be later advised of the disposition to be made of said lands.

Following the decision of May 6, 1919, was the opening to entry, under date of April 8, 1920, of certain lands in your district, withdrawn by Executive Order No. 1927, May 2, 1914, and No. 1954 of June 6, 1914, for the Fort Bayard military road, New Mexico, which was restored by Executive Order No. 2393, June 15, 1916.

The lands to be now open to entry are T. 20 S., R. 9 W., T. 21 S., R. 10 W., and T. 22, Rs. 8, 9, and 10 W., containing approximately 55,178.48 acres, and are situated a few miles north of the town of Deming, N. Mex., and will be disposed of under the following regulations:

In the absence of other withdrawals or valid adverse claims, all of the vacant, unappropriated public land therein will become subject to entry under the homestead and desert land laws (the latter only in the event same is properly subject to such class of entry), with a preference right to qualified ex-service men of the war with Germany who have been honorably discharged or separated from the service, under the provisions of the act of February 14, 1920 (41 Stat. 434), as amended by the act of January 21, 1922 (42 Stat. 358).

PREFERENCE TO EX-SERVICE MEN

1. From April 10, 1922, to July 8, 1922, both dates inclusive, the lands may be entered only under the homestead laws and only by ex-service men of the war with Germany who have been honorably discharged or separated from the service or placed in the regular Army or Naval Reserve, provided, that from March 20, 1922, to April 8, 1922, both dates inclusive, applications may be presented by such persons under said laws, such applications to be treated as simultaneously filed and disposed of before action is taken on other preference applications.

GENERAL DISPOSITION

2. The lands, if any, not disposed of during said preference period will become subject to appropriation under any applicable land laws, including settlement under the homestead law in advance of entry, by any qualified persons, on July 24, 1922, and not before then, provided, that from July 10, 1922, to July 22, 1922, both dates inclusive, any qualified persons may present applications for the land under the homestead laws only, such applications to be treated as simultaneously filed and disposed of before action is taken on other nonpreference applications.

Part of sections 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, T., 22 S., R. 8 W., N. M. P. M., containing 1,939.09 acres, were formerly a part of the Fort Cummings abandoned military reservation. The lands therein were appraised at $1.25 per acre and opened to entry in 1896.

Homestead entrymen will be required, in addition to complying with the usual requirements, to make payment for the land formerly embraced in this abandoned military reservation, at the appraised price of $1.25 per acre, which may be paid in full at the date of the acceptance of proof upon their entries, or at the option of the entrymen, payment may be made in five equal installments, the first payment to be made one year after the acceptance of the final proof, the subsequent payments to be made annually thereafter, with interest at the rate of 4 per cent per annum from date of acceptance of such proof. They will be allowed, however, to pay one or more even annual installments at any time, with interest to date of such payment. Upon acceptance of 3-year proof and payment in full, a final certificate may be issued, otherwise the certificate will not be issued until the final payment has been made.

The preference rights above provided for are subject to valid settlement rights or equitable claims recognized by existing laws, but such claims should be asserted during the 20-day period provided in paragraph 1.

In the event conflicts appear between applications treated as simultaneously filed, as herein provided, drawings will be held to determine the order in which the conflicting applications will be taken up for consideration.

Acknowledge receipt of these regulations, giving them all the publicity possible without expense to the Government by furnishing copies thereof for publication as an item of news to the various newspapers in your district. You will also post a copy of same in your office and transmit a copy to the postmaster nearest the land for posting in his office.

Very respectfully,

DISPOSAL OF LANDS IN FORT LOWELL ABANDONED MILITARY RESERVATION

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., March 14, 1904.

Register and Receiver,
Tucson, Ariz.

Gentlemen: That portion of the Fort Lowell abandoned military reservation situated in T. 14 S., Rs. 15 and 16 E., Gila and Salt River meridian, having been surveyed and appraised, and the appraisal thereof having been approved by the Secretary of the Interior, you will allow entries of these lands under act of August 23, 1894 (28 Stat. 491), which provides, among other things:

> That persons who enter under the homestead law shall pay for such lands at not less than the value heretofore or hereafter determined by appraisement, nor less than the price of the land at the time of the entry, and such payment may, at the option of the purchaser, be made in five equal installments, at times and at rates of interest to be fixed by the Secretary of the Interior.

In regard to such payments, departmental instructions of April 9, 1895 (20 L. D. 303), provide:

> That the homesteader be given the option in making payment upon his entry of these lands, of making his payments in five equal payments to date from the time of the acceptance of his proof tendered on his entry, and that the rate of interest upon deferred payments be charged at the rate of four per cent per annum.

In allowing entries of these lands, you will in each case indorse on the application "Fort Lowell Reservation, act August 23, 1894," and make the same note on the abstract of homestead entries.

Under the homestead law, an entryman has the rights either to commute his entry after 14 months' residence on and cultivation of the land, or to make final proof under section 2291 Revised Statutes, after five years' residence and cultivation.

If commutation proof is submitted, it must be accompanied with full payment for the land in cash or other legal consideration; but if ordinary 5-year proof is submitted, the entryman may make the payment in installments as above indicated.

Where full payment is made at time of offering proof, you will, if no objection appears, issue final papers as in other cases; but when payments are made in installments you will issue receipts only for so much of the principal and interest as may be paid, reporting the same in a special column of the abstracts of homesteads receipts.

When an entryman offers final proof and elects to pay for the lands in installments, you will examine the proof and, if found satisfactory, approve the same, make the proper notes on your records to show the facts, and forward the proof to this office in a special letter, for filing with the entry, as no final papers can issue until full payment is made.

Your attention is called to departmental decision of January 19, 1900, in the case of The State of Utah (29 L. D. 418), and you will be governed thereby in regard to section 16 or 36 of the above reservation.

Very respectfully,

J. H. Fimple,
Acting Commissioner.

Circular No. 1038

FORT MAGINNIS ABANDONED MILITARY RESERVATION—INSTRUCTIONS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, October 30, 1925.

Register, Billings Mont.

Sir: Fort Maginnis Military Reservation, Mont., was turned over to the Department of the Interior for disposition under the act of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. 103), or as may be otherwise provided by law, on August 6, 1890. The reservation exceeded 5,000 acres and was mostly opened to homestead settlement and entry under the act of August 23, 1894 (28 Stat. 491), and the regulations approved September 22, 1897 (25 L. D. 260).

The unsurveyed portions of Tps. 16 and 17 N., R. 20 E., were subject to settlement but were not opened to entry at that time. Such portion of T. 16 was surveyed and the plat thereof approved April 24, 1914, and filed in the local land office at Lewistown, Mont., May 19, 1915. Such portion of T. 17 is shown to be surveyed by a plat approved December 19, 1907, filed March 27, 1908, and plat of mineral segregation survey of August 9, 1919, accepted December 4, 1920, and supplemental plat of November 24, 1922.

The appraisers have appraised the remaining lands on this reservation at from 75 cents to $12 per acre. The Secretary of the Interior has approved the appraisal of the lands appraised at $1.25 or more per acre and has fixed a minimum price of $1.25 per acre for lands appraised at less than $1.25 per acre.

Except lots 1 and 2, sec. 20, T. 16 N., R. 20 E., P. M.; lots 5, 6, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 22, and 23, sec. 22; lots 10, 11, and 12, sec. 23; lots 1, 2, and 3, NW. ¼ NE. ¼ sec. 27, and lots 1, 2, 3, and 4, sec. 33, T. 17 N., R. 20 E., P. M., all the land has been reported as prospectively valuable for gold and silver. Furthermore, it is reported by the appraisers that there are mining locations on various parts of the land. If these locations are valid and based on a sufficient discovery maintained in accordance with law, the locators have vested rights not only to the minerals but to the surface within their locations and such tracts can not be otherwise disposed of, but must eventually be segregated.

Applications for lots 1 and 2, sec. 20, T. 16 N., R. 20 E., P. M. (classified as coal land), must be made subject to the provisions and reservations of the act of June 22, 1910 (36 Stat. 583), or of the stock-raising homestead act.

Except as to the land covered by valid mining locations, the subdivisions which have been reported as prospectively valuable for gold and silver may be entered under the stock-raising homestead act if and when designated as subject to entry thereunder.

However, except in so far as covered by valid mining locations, such subdivisions may be entered under the general homestead law, or under the enlarged homestead act, if designated thereunder, if it is shown by the affidavits of at least two experts or practical miners that the land is not in fact valuable for gold or silver, this in addition to the usual nonmineral affidavit.

Lands containing metalliferous minerals are subject to disposition under the mining laws.

Subject to the foregoing limitations, all of the lands described in the appraised list will become subject to entry under the homestead law and as provided in the act of August 23, 1894 (28 Stat. 491), at not less than the appraised price thereof by ex-service men of the war with Germany, under the terms and conditions of Public Resolution No. 29 of February 14, 1920 (41 Stat. 434), as amended by Public Resolution No. 36, approved January 21, 1922 (42 Stat. 358), Circular No. 822, for a period of 91 days, beginning with the twenty-eighth day from the date hereof. Thereafter any of said land remaining unentered will be subject to settlement and homestead entry by the general public.

Subsequent to the approval of these regulations and prior to the date of restoration to general disposition as herein provided for, no rights may be acquired to said land by settlement in advance of entry, or otherwise, except strictly in accordance herewith.

Persons having valid existing rights or equitable claims may avoid confusion by asserting such rights during the 20 days preceding the soldier's preference-right period.

Ex-service men should file certified copies of their certificates of discharge with their applications, and persons claiming other preference rights should file affidavits supporting such claims with their applications.

Entries under the enlarged homestead act, the stock raising act and entries subject to the act of June 22, 1910, supra, may not be commuted. However, as to entries made under the general homestead law, entryman may at his option commute after 14 months from the date of settlement, with full payment in cash. In all cases where the 3-year proof is submitted and after its acceptance entryman may pay for the land the full amount of the appraised value thereof, without interest or he may make payment in five equal installments, the first payment to be made one year after the acceptance of his final proof, and the subsequent payments to be made annually thereafter, interest to be charged at the rate of 4 per cent per annum from the date of the acceptance of final proof until all payments are made.

In case the full amount is paid after 14 months from date of settlement you will, if the proof is satisfactory, issue cash certificate and receipt; and in the event that regular final proof is made and the full amount then paid, you will issue final certificate and receipt; but when partial payments are made you will issue a receipt only for the amount of the principal and the interest paid, and at the time last payment is made you will issue the final papers as in ordinary homestead entries.

In issuing final papers you will make the proper annotations thereon, as well as on the applications and abstracts, to show that the entry covers land in Fort Maginnis Reservation.

Where, upon submitting final proofs the entrymen elect to make payment for the lands entered in five annual installments, you are authorized to make the usual charges for reducing the testimony to writing, but as the final certificate and receipt can not be issued until the last payment is made, you can not charge the final commissions until said certificate and receipt are issued. Therefore, if the proofs submitted are acceptable, you will make proper notes on your records showing that satisfactory proofs have been made and the dates upon which the partial payments must be made, and then transmit said proofs to this office for filing with the original entries.

Lots 7 and 10, sec. 3, and lots 1, 2, 3, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, and 11, sec. 17, T. 16 N., R. 20 E., have been patented for more than six years and, although such tracts have been appraised and entered on said appraisement list, they are not subject to disposal under this appraisal. See the act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 1093). Lots 1, 8, and 9, sec. 30, T. 16 N., R. 20 E., are claimed by William F. Sherman, who has made stock-raising additional homestead entry Lewistown 039072 for same, while lot 4, NE. ¼ NE. ¼, SW. ¼ NE. ¼ sec. 27, T. 17

N., R. 20 E., are included in the additional homestead entry of Edward Fields, Billings 027032 formerly Lewistown 034720 and the SW. ¼ NE. ¼, W. ½ SE. ¼ sec. 28, lots 1, 2, 3, and 4, NE. ¼ NW. ¼ sec. 33, T. 17 N., R. 20 E., are covered by stock-raising additional homestead entry Lewistown 040382 made by Reginald J. Meller. These entries will form the subject of further communications.

It is reported that William Swank has three mining locations on lot 15, sec. 5, T. 16 N., R. 20 E.; that William Vine has mining locations on lots 8 and 15, sec. 19, T. 16 N., R. 20 E., and that Henry Willard has two mining locations on the SE. ¼ NW. ¼, SW. ¼ NW. ¼, sec. 33, T. 17 N., R. 20 E., and has a cabin on the NE. ¼ SW. ¼ said sec. 33.

You will upon receipt hereof make the proper notations of this order upon your records, post a copy hereof in your office, and give as much publicity as possible to the opening as a matter of news without expense to the Government, by forwarding a copy of the order to the post office nearest the land for posting therein for the information of the public and by transmitting copies of such order or an item concerning the opening to the newspapers published nearest the land, being careful not to send such notice or items without calling particular attention to the fact that the same is sent as news and that the Government will not be responsible for the cost of any publication thereof.

Promptly report your compliance with the instructions herein contained.

Very respectfully,

D. K. Parrott,
Acting Assistant Commissioner.

CIRCULAR NO. 896

DISPOSAL OF VASHON ISLAND ABANDONED MILITARY RESERVATION, WASHINGTON

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, June 1, 1923.

REGISTER AND RECEIVER,
Seattle, Wash.

GENTLEMEN: Under date of July 15, 1921, Congress passed an act (42 Stat. 142), a copy of which is hereto attached, providing for the appraisal and sale of the Vashon Island Military Reservation in the State of Washington, in secs. 1, 2, and 3, T. 21 N., R. 2 E., W. M.

The above act authorized the Secretary of the Interior to survey and subdivide the lands into tracts and lots to conform as far as practicable to the tracts and lots lawfully occupied by the tenants thereon as lessees or sublessees on May 1, 1920. The act then states that where actual settlement thereon was made in good faith under the terms of a certain lease held of the War Department by one James Batchelor, or a sublease thereunder, or anyone who has since said date succeeded to the occupation and interest of any such prior settler, his heirs or assigns, they shall be entitled to purchase for the appraised value one of such surveyed tracts so occupied, no right of purchase extending beyond the tract actually occupied and improved by a lawful lessee or sublessee on May 1, 1920, and in no case exceeding 20 acres in a body, upon the payment to the Government of a sum of money as required by the said act.

The plat of survey of the lands was accepted by this office on March 14, 1923. The total area of the lands embraced within the reservation is 474.20 acres, and this area has been subdivided into 46 separate tracts or lots, with the appraisement prices ranging from $50 to $185 per tract or lot, the total appraisement being $4,791.75.

On April 30, 1923, the plat of survey was forwarded to you and the plat will be treated as officially filed in your office on June 15, 1923. All persons desiring to assert a claim under the provisions of this act must on or before September 12, 1923, file in your office their application for same, together with a sum of money equal to at least one-tenth of the appraised price of the tract or lot, describing the lands to which their claims are asserted and setting forth fully all the facts as to occupancy and any and all facts which may be material in determining the rights of the parties. This application must be under oath and corroborated by two witnesses. The applications must show the source of title as well as all the recorded transfers or other instruments where same can be furnished. The applications when received should be assigned a current serial number.

Purchasers under this act are required to make payment of the appraised price which may be made in one sum, or at the option of the purchaser one-tenth in cash at the time of filing of the application and the balance in nine equal annual installments with interest at 5 per cent per annum, payable annually as the purchaser may elect.

Any land in this abandoned military reservation which is not covered by an application filed on or before September 12, 1923, will be disposed of under the act of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. 103), subject to the privileges within a period to be fixed by the Secretary of the Interior to remove from the tracts or lots any buildings placed thereon by the occupants or claimants of the land.

A copy of this circular will be mailed (registered) by you to all parties whose names are of record as having an interest in the tracts or lots. On the plat of survey will be found the names of parties who have buildings or homes located on the lands. Transmit a copy of said circular to the postmaster nearest the land for posting in his office, and transmit a copy of the circular to the register of the State land office. You may also give as much publicity to these regulations as possible by the furnishing of a copy of same to the newspapers as a matter of news and without expense to the Government. Acknowledge receipt of these regulations and post a copy of same in your office.

Very respectfully,

CIRCULAR INSTRUCTIONS RELATIVE TO DEPOSITS BY INDIVIDUALS FOR THE SURVEY OF PUBLIC LANDS UNDER SECTION 2401, REVISED STATUTES, AS AMENDED BY THE ACT OF AUGUST 20, 1894

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., August 7, 1895.[1]

To United States Surveyors-General and Registers and Receivers of United States District Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: The circular of this office dated June 24, 1885, relative to surveys under the provisions of section 2401, Revised Statutes of the United States, and the acceptance by receivers of public moneys of certificates issued for deposits made under the provisions of said section is hereby revoked, and the following substituted therefor:

1. The provisions of law governing such surveys and the issue and application of certificates of deposit on account thereof are sections 2401, 2402, and 2403, as amended by the act of August 20, 1894.

SEC. 2401 (as amended by act of August 20, 1894). When the settlers in any township not mineral or reserved by the Government, or persons and associations lawfully possessed of coal lands and otherwise qualified to make entry thereof, or when the owners or grantees of public lands of the United States under any law thereof, desire a survey made of the same under the authority of the surveyor-general, and shall file an application therefor in writing and shall deposit in a proper United States depository to the credit of the United States a sum sufficient to pay for such survey, together with all expenditures incident thereto without cost or claim for indemnity on the United States, it shall be lawful for the surveyor-general, under such instructions as may be given him by the Commissioner of the General Land Office and in accordance with law, to survey such township or such public lands owned by said grantees of the Government and make return thereof to the general and proper local land office: Provided, That no application shall be granted unless the township so proposed to be surveyed is within the range of the regular progress of the public surveys embraced by existing standard lines or bases for township and subdivisional surveys.

SEC. 2402. The deposit of moneys in a proper United States depository under the provisions of the preceding section, shall be deemed an appropriation of the sum so deposited for the objects contemplated by that section, and the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to cause the sums so deposited to be placed to the credit of the proper appropriation for the surveying service, but any excesses over and above the actual cost of the surveys, comprising all expenses incident thereto for which they were severally deposited shall be repaid to the depositors respectively.

SEC. 2403 (as amended by the act of August 20, 1894). Where settlers or owners or grantees of public lands make deposits in accordance with the provisions of section twenty-four hundred and one, as hereby amended, certificates shall be issued for such deposits which may be used by settlers in part payment for the lands settled upon by them, the survey of which is paid for out of such deposits, or said certificates may be assigned by indorsement and may be received by the Government in payment for any public lands of the United States in the States where the surveys were made, entered or to be entered, under the laws thereof.

APPLICATIONS FOR SURVEYS

2. The amended law authorizes applications for surveys by settlers or by persons and associations lawfully possessed of coal lands and otherwise qualified to make entry thereof, or by the owners or grantees of public land of the United States under any law thereof.

SETTLERS' APPLICATIONS

3. The law contemplates bona fide surveys upon bona fide applications by actual settlers. Settlers are persons who have attached themselves permanently to the soil. Nomadic persons and persons employed by others to make applications for surveys or to make alleged settlements for the purpose of acquiring a title to lands to be transferred to others are not settlers within the meaning of the law and are not lawful applicants under the provisions allowing settlers to make deposit for public land surveys.

4. In the case of applications for surveys by settlers the body of such settlers in the township, the survey of which is desired, must join in the application. There must also be a sufficient number of settlers to show good faith and to indicate that the survey is honestly desired for the benefit of existing actual settlements as contemplated by law.

5. Applications for surveys must be made in writing, and must designate, as nearly as practicable, the township to be surveyed, and state that the applicants are well acquainted with the character and condition of the land included in said township, and that the same is not mineral or reserved by the Government. Such applications must also particularly describe the land sought to be surveyed, stating whether the same is cultivable, grazing, timber, desert, swamp, mountainous, rocky, etc., and the reasons why it is claimed to be nonmineral, and must state the number of settlers in the township, the character and duration of their inhabitancy of the land, the extent and value of their improvements, the uses made of the land, and the quantity under cultivation. The situation of the township in respect to lines of public communication, and the progress of the settlement of the country should be described, and all facts and circumstances stated which will enable an intelligent judgment to be formed in respect to the propriety of making the survey applied for. These statements must be verified by affidavit, and applicants must also declare that their applications are made in good faith and not for the purpose of enabling a surveying contract to be obtained nor at the instance or in the interest or for the benefit of any other person.

6. Townships within known mineral belts or known to contain mineral lands or lands reserved by the Government are not surveyable under this system.

7. Surveys under the deposit system are authorized only where "the township so proposed to be surveyed is within the range of the regular progress of the public surveys embraced by existing standard lines or bases for the township and subdivisional surveys." Under-this provision of the law it will be held that only township exteriors and subdivisional lines are surveyable and that the deposit system is not applicable to the survey of standard lines or bases.

8. Retracements, or the resurvey of lines previously surveyed, will not be deemed authorized under the deposit system.

9. Surveyors general will critically examine all applications for survey, testing the accuracy and reliability of the statements made by their knowledge of persons and lands and the best information they can obtain. They will reject all applications not believed by them to be made in good faith, and upon truthful statements of facts.

10. When an application for survey is approved by the surveyor general, he will transmit the same to this office with the required proofs and his report upon the same, giving his reasons in full for the recommendation made. It is not believed that fictitious applications, or applications procured at the instance of surveyors or of operators in contract surveys, or applications designed to open unsettled townships to fraudulent entry can successfully be imposed upon vigilant and faithful officers. Surveyors general will therefore be held to strict accountability for their recommendation of applications or contracts hereafter found to be fictitious, fraudulent, or speculative.

11. If the application is approved by this office it will be returned to the surveyor general with authority to furnish the necessary estimate to applicants, and, upon proper deposit being made to enter into contract for the execution of the survey.

12. The surveyor general will furnish applicants with two separate estimates, one for the field work and one for office expenses. He will estimate adequate sums, and the practice of requiring additional deposit to cover excess costs will be discontinued except when expressly authorized by this office.

13. Upon receiving such estimates applicants may deposit in a proper United States depository (which should be in the land district in which the township to be surveyed is situated) to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States on account of surveying the public lands and expenses incident thereto, the sum so estimated as the total cost of the survey including field and office work. If there be no public depository in the land district in which the lands are situated, the deposit may be made in an adjacent land district.

14. Surveyors general will not, under any circumstances, accept, for the purpose of making the deposit, moneys from applicants for surveys, either field or office work, but will instruct the applicants to deposit the amount in accordance with the instructions contained in the preceding paragraph.

15. For convenience in the use and application of certificates the deposit should be made in such sums as that no certificate shall bear a face value of more than $200.

16. Applicants must be instructed fully as to the necessity of immediately transmitting the original certificate to the Secretary of the Treasury, the duplicate to the surveyor general, and the retention of the triplicate.

17. When evidence of the required deposit is furnished in accordance with the foregoing regulations the surveyor general will invite proposals for the survey by notice posted in his office for a period of 30 days, specifying the survey to be made, and stating that the contract will be let to the lowest responsible bidder (being a practical and reliable surveyor) at rates not exceeding those established by law for surveying the public lands. A copy of such notice will also be transmitted by the surveyor general to the register and receiver of the land district in which the township to be surveyed is situated, and it shall be the duty of registers and receivers to post such notices conspicuously in their office.

18. The surveyor general will prepare a contract with the accepted bidder, and transmit the same to this office for approval in the usual manner.

19. Triplicate certificates of deposit are receivable from the settlers making the deposits in part payment for the lands settled upon by them, the surveying of which is paid for out of such deposits.

20. The triplicate certificates may be assigned by indorsement, and when so assigned may be received in payment for any public lands of the United States entered or to be entered under the laws thereof in the States in which the lands surveyed for which the deposit was made are situated.

21.[2] Such certificates hereafter issued will not be regarded as assignable or receivable, until the township for the survey of which the deposit was made has been surveyed, and the plat thereof filed in the district land office.

22. Where the amount of a certificate or certificates is less than the value of the lands taken, the balance must be paid in cash.

23. Where the certificate is for an amount greater than the cost of the land, but is surrendered in full payment for such land, the receiver will indorse on the triplicate certificate the amount for which it is received, and will charge the United States with that amount only.

24. There is no provision of law authorizing the issue of duplicate certificates for certificates lost or destroyed.

EXCESS REPAYMENTS

25. Where the amount of the deposit is greater than the cost of the survey, including field and office work, the excess is repayable upon an account to be stated by the surveyor general.

26. The surveyor general will, in all cases, be careful to express upon the register's township plat the amount deposited by each individual, the cost of survey in the field and office work, and the amount to be refunded in each case.

27. Before transmitting accounts for refunding excesses the surveyor general will indorse on the back of the triplicate certificate the following, "$—— refunded to —— ——, by account transmitted to the General Land Office with letter dated ——," and will state in the account that he has made such indorsement. Where the whole amount deposited is to be refunded the surveyor general will require the depositor to surrender the triplicate certificate, and will transmit it to this office with the account.

28. No provision of law exists for refunding to other than the depositor, nor otherwise than as referred to in the preceding sections.

ASSIGNMENTS

29. Certificates "may be assigned by indorsement." The indorsement required is that the person in whose name the deposit is made shall write his name on the back of the triplicate certificate.

30. When there are several parties to, or assignees of, one certificate, the register and receiver will make the proper indorsement on the triplicate certificate showing the satisfaction of the pro rata share of each party interested. They will make the same notes on the register's certificate of purchase and the receiver's original and duplicate receipts.

31. When the entire amount of a certificate is not satisfied at the same time, the triplicate should be retained by the receiver until satisfied. But such certificate should, as far as practicable, be satisfied during the current quarter.

32. Certificates are not receivable in payment of fees and commissions chargeable by registers and receivers under section 2238, Revised Statutes of the United States.

REGISTERS' AND RECEIVERS' RETURNS

33. In their monthly cash abstracts the register and receiver will designate the entries in which certificates of deposit are used and the balance paid in cash, if any, noting on the certificates of purchase and receipt the manner of payment. The receiver in his monthly account-current will debit the United States with the amount of such certificates, and in his quarterly accounts will specifiy each entry with these certificates, giving number, date, amount for which received, by whom and with whom the deposit was made, and debit the United States with the same.

34. The receiver must write across the face of each accepted certificate the date of its receipt in payment of land, the number of the entry, and description of the tracts sold.

35. Certificates received in payment for lands sold must be forwarded once a month to this office, with letter of transmittal and abstract. (Form 4–543.)

36. Surveyors general are directed to instruct their deputies that they must designate in the field notes and plats of their surveys the location of each and every settlement within a township surveyed, whether permanent in character or not, together with the names of such settlers and their improvements if any.

37. When no settlers are found in a township, the field notes of survey must expressly so state, and any omission to describe the settlements and improvements, or the absence of one or both in the field notes and plat, will be deemed a sufficient cause to infer fraud, and the accounts of the deputy will be suspended until such omission shall have been supplied. A suspension of the commission of the deputy will, in the meantime, take place, and all the facts will be reported to this office for consideration and action.

38. In every case of a contract heretofore or hereafter approved, which the surveyor general has reason to believe was fraudulently procured, such contracts and the accounts thereunder must be immediately suspended and the facts reported to this office.

CERTIFICATES ISSUED PRIOR TO AUGUST 20, 1894

39. Receivers of public moneys in accepting in payment for public lands, certificates issued for deposits made under the provisions of section 2401 (prior to the amendments of said section by the act of August 20, 1894), are guided by the following instructions:

40. The triplicate certificates representing such deposits are receivable from the settlers making the deposits in part payment for their lands entered under the preemption and homestead laws and situated in the township, the surveying of which was paid for out of such deposits.

41. The said triplicate certificates may be assigned by indorsements, and when so assigned be received in payment for lands "entered by settlers under the preemption and homestead laws" of the United States in accordance with the provisions contained in the following paragraphs:

42. Triplicate certificates issued prior to the act of March 3, 1879, can be used only in payment for lands situated in the township, the surveying of which was paid for out of such deposits.

43. Triplicate certificates issued subsequent to the act of March 3, 1879, and prior to the act of August 7, 1882, can be used in payment for lands in any land district.

44. Triplicate certificates issued on and after August 7, 1882, and prior to August 20, 1894, can be used in payment for lands only in the land district in which the surveyed township is situated, except when issued for additional deposits upon contracts entered into prior to August 7, 1882.

45. Triplicate certificates issued subsequent to the act of August 20, 1894, for additional deposits to cover cost of surveys under contracts entered into prior to August 20, 1894, can be used only in payment for lands "entered by settlers under the preemption and homestead laws" of the United States, and in conformity to existing law at the date such contract was made.

COAL CLAIMANTS' APPLICATIONS

In addition to the rights of settlers, referred to in the foregoing portions of this circular, sections 2401, 2402, and 2403 United States Revised Statutes, as amended by the act of August 20, 1894, embrace provisions in favor of "persons and associations lawfully possessed of coal lands and otherwise qualified to make entry thereof."

The coal land laws contained in sections 2347 to 2352, United States Revised Statutes, provide methods by which persons properly qualified may become lawfully possessed of coal lands even before the survey of the lands, and be entitled to enter the same after survey. For particular information in regard thereto, reference is made to Departmental circular of July 31, 1882,[a] entitled "Coal Land Laws and Regulations Thereunder." Such parties, in cases where the tracts of which they are lawfully possessed are still unsurveyed, may, under said sections 2401, 2402, and 2403, as amended by act of August 20, 1894, apply to the surveyor general for the surveying district in which the lands are included, for a survey of the township or townships including the land according to the provisions of said sections. Such an application must be accompanied by the affidavit of the applicant or applicants substantially as prescribed for declaratory statements on page 7 of the said circular of July 31, 1882, corroborated by the testimony of two or more witnesses, in which the qualifications of the applicants, the character and location of the land indicating the township or townships in which it is included as nearly as practicable, and other essential facts must be so set forth as to satisfy the surveyor general that the case comes properly within the provisions of the law as above given. He will, thereupon, if he approves the application, transmit the same to this office, with the required proofs and his report. Subsequent proceedings will be governed by the regulations as hereinbefore given under the head of "Settlers' Applications."

OWNERS' OR GRANTEES' APPLICATIONS

The same rights accorded to settlers, and to persons and associations lawfully possessed of coal lands and otherwise qualified to make entry thereof, are extended also to "the owners or grantees of public lands of the United States under any law thereof," and substantially the same instructions will apply to the last mentioned class of cases as those above expressed with regard to the other classes of cases. The applicants must produce with their applications proof of their ownership of the land, to consist of their own affidavits, corroborated by witnesses, and such other proof as may be available to satisfy the surveyor general of the essential facts, including a showing of the location of the land, in what township or townships situated, as nearly as practicable, the statute making the grant, or other source of title, as well as the identity of the applicants with the true owners or grantees.

The surveyor general, if he approve the application, will transmit the same to this office, with the proofs and his report, as provided for in the other classes of cases. In regard to subsequent proceedings, the instructions given under the head of "Settlers' Applications" will generally apply.

CIRCULAR RELATING TO DEPOSITS BY RAILROAD COMPANIES FOR THE SURVEY OF PUBLIC LANDS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., April 8, 1899.

To United States Surveyors General and Registers and Receivers of United States District Land Offices.

Gentlemen: Your attention is invited to the act of Congress approved February 27, 1899, entitled "An act to authorize the Commissioner of the General Land Office to cause public lands to be surveyed in certain cases." The act reads as follows:

> Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That when any railroad company claiming a grant of land under any act of Congress, desiring to secure the survey of any unsurveyed lands within the limits of its grant, shall file an application therefor in writing with the surveyor-general of the State in which the lands sought to be surveyed are situated, and deposit in a proper United States depository to the credit of the United States a sum sufficient to pay for such survey and for the examination thereof pursuant to law and the rules and regulations of the Department of the Interior under the direction of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, it shall thereupon be the duty of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, or the Director of the Geological Survey, as the case may be, to cause said lands to be surveyed.

For any deposits made by any railroad company hereunder, certificates shall be issued, which may be used by such railroad company, its successors or assigns, to the same extent as cash is now allowed in payment of entries of public lands under existing law and regulations for any public lands of the United States in the States where the surveys were made, or for any survey or office fees due the United States from such railroad company on account of surveys of lands within its grant. The Secretary of the Interior shall provide such rules and regulations as may be necessary for carrying out the foregoing provisions.

The provisions of law heretofore governing the survey (under the deposit system) of unsurveyed lands within the limits of a railroad land grant are contained in the act of August 20, 1894 (28 Stats. 423), amending sections 2401, 2402, and 2403 of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

The rules and regulations as heretofore prescribed by this department as necessary for carrying out the provisions of said act of August 20, 1894, are contained in the circular of this office dated August 7, 1895, and you are advised that said rules and regulations are applicable to the act of February 27, 1899, quoted above, and now in effect.

The surveyors general, however, in furnishing the applicants with an estimate as to the cost of the surveys desired, including the cost of both the field and office work (as heretofore required by paragraph 12, page 3, of said instructions), will hereafter include in their estimate the cost of the examination of such surveys as may be applied for by said railroad companies.

The triplicate of the set of certificates issued in the name of a railroad company for amounts deposited on account of such surveys will not only be receivable from such railroad company, its successors or assigns, by the receivers of public moneys for the several United States district land offices, in accordance with paragraph 20 of said circular of instructions dated August 7, 1895, but said certificates may also be surrendered to the Commissioner of the General Land Office by such railroad company, its successors or assigns, in payment for any survey or office fees due the United States from such railroad company on account of surveys of lands within its grant.

Very respectfully,

BINGER HERMANN, Commissioner.

Approved.

E. A. HITCHCOCK, Secretary.

CIRCULAR No. 121 [3]

ACCOUNTS—COST KEEPING

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, June 1, 1912.

United States Surveyors General.

SIRS: In order that a statement may be submitted with each township plat sent to this office showing the cost of surveying such township, you will, beginning with the receipt of these instructions, keep a record of the cost of surveying each township or part of township surveyed in your State from and after December 31, 1911.

Such cost will be taken up under two general heads, namely, "Overhead Expense" and "Operating Expense."

Overhead expense will include such expenses as are connected with the general administration and supervision of the work in the field and in the office—the salaries of the surveyor general, chief clerk, chief draftsman while engaged on work that can not be definitely charged to any particular township, official stenographer, finance clerk, messenger, janitor, assistant supervisor of surveys while engaged on supervisory work, and of all others whose time can not be definitely charged to any particular township; traveling expenses (including per diem in lieu of subsistence) of the assistant supervisor of surveys in connection with supervision; office rent; and depreciation on furniture and fixtures.

Operating expense will include such expenses as are incurred in connection with the actual survey in the field, writing up the field notes, and the work in the office in connection with the field notes, such as transcribing, computing, drafting, typewriting, and comparing.

Overhead expense and operating expense will each have two subheads, "Office" and "Field," having reference, of course, to the work done in the office and in the field, respectively.

The office overhead expense will be ascertained as follows: First, determine what part of the overhead expense of the office is chargeable to the survey of the public lands. Some offices have estimated that one-third is so chargeable. This, of course, each office will have to determine for itself. After this is determined divide the annual overhead expense so chargeable by the actual number of working days in the year and thus find the expense in connection with each work day. In arriving at the overhead expense in connection with a given township multiply the daily overhead expense by the number of days that that part of the office force engaged on work in connection with the survey of the public lands has spent on the township under consideration. If the whole of such force has not been working on that particular township, ascertain the number of days' work of the whole force the time spent is equivalent to. Say there are six men in the office engaged on this class of work; that one of them works 3 days on the township, one 4 days, one 5 days, and one 6 days, equivalent to one man for 18 days or the whole force for 3 days, the daily " Overhead expense " multiplied by three will give the overhead expense in connection with the township.

The field overhead expense consists of the salary, per diem and expenses of the assistant supervisor of surveys, which can be definitely ascertained in connection with a particular group from the assistant supervisor's weekly reports and vouchers for services and traveling and other expenses. Such expense should be apportioned to the different townships in the group in accordance with the apportionment of the field operating expense.

The field operating expense in connection with any particular township will be found in the following manner: After ascertaining the total expense in connection with the group, which will consist of all the expenses incident to the field work—salaries, transportation, subsistence, etc.; iron posts and freight on same; the wear and tear on the equipment owned by the Government, such as surveying instruments, horses, wagons, harness, tents, etc.; and the cost of writing up field notes—divide it by the total number of days spent on the line within the group. This will give the average cost of each day on the line, which multiplied by the actual number of days on the line in any particular township (to be ascertained from the progress reports) will give the cost of the survey of that township. By the words " actual number of days on the line " is meant the actual number of full days that the party has actually worked on the line within the group. Days on which no work is done on the line will not be counted at all and where the party is engaged on the line a part of a day only the fractional part will be counted. In connection with salaries, it will be necessary to add the expense to the Government of the annual leave taken. This should be done after the annual leave is taken, so there will be certainty as to the amount of leave the group is chargeable with. Of course, if the person talking leave has worked the entire season on the one group, all of his annual leave is chargeable to it. If he has worked on more than one group, the cost of leave should be apportioned according to the time spent on the different groups. The cost of running standard parallel and meridian lines will be treated the same as any other expense in connection with the group; that is, it will be apportioned to the various townships in the group according to the time spent on the line within the group. The time spent in the running of these standard parallel and meridian lines will not come within the meaning of the term above used, " actual number of days on the line," but the cost will be treated as expense incidental to the survey, the same as, for instance, transportation to the field.

The office operating expense in connection with any particular township will be ascertained as follows: Multiply the cost per day of each employee engaged on the township by the number of days that his time book shows that he worked on such township, and to the amounts thus obtained add the cost of stationary, depreciation on equipment, typewriters, drafting instruments, etc., and any other expense not included in overhead expense. The stationery, wear and tear on typewriters, drafting instruments, etc., will, of course, have to be estimated and prorated in the same manner as the overhead expense of the office.

In arriving at the cost of a day's work of an employee the days in a year on which no actual services are rendered shall not be counted, namely, Sundays, holidays, annual leave, and sick leave, the latter to be averaged. For instance, an employee drawing $1,200 a year is paid for 360 days, but in fact works 365 days, less the following: Sunday, 52; holiday, 7; Saturday half-holidays during the summer months, 6; annual leave, 30; and sick leave, say 4 days, a total of 99 days on which no services are rendered. Subtracting the 99 days from the 365 days leaves but 266 actual work. Dividing the $1,200 by 266 we have $4.51 for the rate per day instead of $3.33 as shown by the salary table. This also applies to the daily overhead expense in the office.

As the transportation secured on transportation requests and Government bills of lading is not paid for by the surveyors general, you will be advised of the cost of such transportation to the Government by means of the transportation request coupons and memorandum bills of lading, which you will instruct all employees working out of your office to send to you for transmittal to this office. The employee using the transportation request or bill of lading will note on the coupon or memorandum bill of lading the group to which chargeable, and on the face of the latter, in the last column, they will also note what the freight charges will be. This information, which has always been noted on the transportation request coupons, can be secured from the railroad company's agent at the shipping point. In order that this office may know that the coupons and memorandum bills of lading have been noted in the surveyor general's office, you will have noted in red across the face of each one, "Noted in S. G's office," with the initials of the person making the notation.

The cost of iron posts to the Government is as follows: Small size, $0.80; medium size, $1.10; and large size, $1.42. You will be advised of the freight charges on these iron posts from the place of manufacture to their destination as the railroad companies submit their bills to this office. You will also be advised by this office of all other direct settlements chargeable to surveys within your State.

Blank forms are being sent you under separate cover to enable you to properly carry out the instructions contained herein.

Form No. 4–380, as its heading indicates, is for the keeping of the cost of the field work by groups. On this form will first be entered in the proper column the inventory value of the equipment owned by the Government that is to be used in connection with the group. After this will be entered in their proper order all vouchers paid by you or any other special disbursing agent making disbursements in connection with surveys within your State that are chargeable to the group. These will be classified in accordance with the different headings, one line being used for each voucher, the total operating expense being carried to the first total column and the total amount of each voucher being carried to the second total column. When the bottom of the sheet is reached the columns should be totaled and carried forward to another sheet. In the direct-settlements column will be entered all amounts chargeable to the group that are paid by the chief disbursing clerk of the department or settled by the auditor direct. These amounts may be entered independent of the other entries; that is, the first amount may be entered on the first line, the second amount on the second line, and so on. When all the amounts chargeable to the group have been entered each column should be totaled, and on the line below the totals the total of the direct-settlement column should be classified, in the same manner as a voucher paid by you; that is, the amount chargeable to equipment should be entered in the equipment column, the amount chargeable to transportation in the transportation column, and so on, and the total operating expense should be carried to the first total column, the overhead expense to the column so headed, and the total to the last total column. After this classification the columns should again be totaled to show the total under each classification and under each head ("Operating expense" and "Overhead expense") and the total with which the group is chargeable irrespective of classifications and headings. To arrive at the net cost you will deduct from the total in each column all credits: First, the inventory value of the equipment owned by the Government on the completion of the field work, and if there are any provisions on hand on the completion of the group their value should also be deducted; next, any concessions that may be made by you on auditor's settlements, and any other credits that may arise in connection with the group. Credits appearing in vouchers need not be entered here as only the amount paid on a voucher should be entered in the first place.

Each office will be furnished with a rubber stamp, the imprint of which on this form after all entries have been made will indicate what is necessary to arrive at the net cost of the survey. It is considered better to have this in the form of a stamp than to have it printed on each blank, for the reason that several of these blanks will be used in connection with most groups, and, of course, the matter on the stamp, which covers several lines, will be needed on the last one only. Not to have the matter printed or stamped might result in the omission of something essential to the correct computation.

Form No. 4–380a will be used for recording the time and cost of each employee in connection with any township in the group, as well as the cost of the stationery, depreciation on office equipment, such as typewriters, drafting instruments, etc. In the column headed "Name of Employee" will be entered the name of each employee in the office engaged on any of the townships in the group whose time is chargeable to operating expense, and all other items entering into the office operating expense, such as stationery, depreciation on equipment, etc. In the second column, in connection with each employee, will be entered the rate per day, ascertained in accordance with instructions herein. The stationery and depreciation on equipment will be charged to each township in accordance with the time spent by the office force engaged on this class of work; that is, after it has been ascertained by computation what the average cost per day is under these heads in connection with survey work, multiply it by the number of days the part of the office force engaged on survey work spends on the township. The number of days should be the same as in connection with the overhead expense. The columns under the different townships, as indicated by the headings, are for the number of days the townships are chargeable with in connection with each employee, stationery, depreciation on equipment, etc., and what each amounts to in dollars and cents. The overhead expense will occupy but one line, the one immediately under the totals in connection with operating expense.

Form No. 4–380b is a recapitulation of the first two forms, and from it will be secured the information with which to report the costs of surveys to this office.

The reports will be submitted on the inclosed blanks, a separate report with each township plat. The report should be attached to the plat with a paper clip, and it will be pasted on the back of the mounted plat in this office.

Very respectfully,

FRED DENNETT, Commissioner.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., September 20, 1912.

United States Surveyors General.

GENTLEMEN: The Assistant Secretary of the Interior, under date of September 10, advised this office that supplies, such as stationery, drafting instruments, and material, etc., for use in connection with the surveys under special deposits, deposits by individuals, etc., can not be furnished by the department under a ruling by the Comptroller of the Treasury, of July 3, 1911, and requested that such directions be given as to the method which shall be adopted in procuring supplies hereafter, which the department can not supply.

Please acknowledge receipt hereof.

Very respectfully,

FRED DENNETT, Commissioner.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, February 3, 1913.

United States Surveyors General, United States Surveyors, and Others Engaged in the Survey of the Public Lands.

SIRS: In order that the United States surveyors general may have all the data necessary for their cost-keeping records, United States surveyors and others engaged in the survey of the public lands will hereafter forward the memorandum copies of all transportation requests and bills of lading used by them to the proper United States surveyors general. The surveyors general will at once, upon receipt of such memorandum copies, enter the amounts represented thereby on their cost-of-field-work sheet for the group chargeable and forward to this office.

Very respectfully,

FRED DENNETT, Commissioner.

ACCOUNTS—MILITARY BOUNTY LAND WARRANTS, FORM 4-106a

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, March 6, 1914.

Receiver of Public Moneys, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: The Auditor for the Interior Department requires certain information to be set forth on the "Abstract of Certificates of Deposits on Account of Surveys, Military Bounty Land Warrants, Scrip, and Certificates of Location, Received as Cash" (Form 4–106a), which has heretofore been added in this office.

ACCOUNTS—SURVEYING WITHIN LAND GRANTS (REIMBURSABLE)

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, July 3, 1914.

United States Surveyors General and United States Surveyors.

Sirs: The Comptroller of the Treasury in a decision dated June 17, 1914, holds that it is not necessary that payment of a railroad's portion of the cost of a survey be made direct from the funds deposited under the act of June 25, 1910 (completing surveys within railroad land grants).

Therefore, to simplify the matter of disbursing and accounting, surveyors general will hereafter make payment of all expense of surveys within railroad land grants from the appropriation "Surveying within land grants (reimbursable)," and that appropriation will be reimbursed for the railroad's portion by transfer in the Treasury Department.

And in order that the appropriation "Surveying within land grants (reimbursable)" may be reimbursed the more rapidly from money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated and from the fund arising under the operation of the act of June 25, 1910, surveyors will hereafter certify vouchers chargeable to this appropriation to the surveyors general for payment as soon as they may be perfected, and surveyors general will make payment as soon after their receipt as practicable and forward such vouchers, together with an independent abstract covering only such vouchers, to this office semimonthly, the vouchers paid from the 1st to the 15th, inclusive, to be transmitted not later than the 18th of the month and those paid from the 16th to the last day of the month, inclusive, not later than the 3d of the following month.

Strict compliance with these instructions is absolutely necessary in order to have at all times a sufficiently large working balance to meet the expense of the parties in the field, as no reimbursement or transfer may be made until the auditor is in receipt of a properly executed voucher evidencing the payment of the amount to be reimbursed to the appropriation.

This circular does not in any way affect the instructions relative to the monthly reports of disbursements and liabilities (Form 4–163), the transmittal of memorandum copies of vouchers at the end of each month, or the rendering of your quarterly accounts. The only difference will be that the vouchers under the appropriation "Surveying within land grants (reimbursable)" will not accompany your quarterly accounts, having been forwarded beforehand.

You will please deposit at once to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States your balance under the appropriation "Completing surveys within railroad land grants," except where you have authority to disburse this fund in connection with the appropriation for salaries in your office, in such case retaining enough to meet the expenses for the September quarter.

Very respectfully, Clay Tallman, Commissioner.

PETITIONS FOR DESIGNATION UNDER ENLARGED HOMESTEAD ACTS—CEDED INDIAN LANDS—SUPPLEMENTAL INSTRUCTIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, April 29, 1915.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: 1. Where an act opening ceded Indian lands to entry permits appropriation thereof under one of the enlarged homestead acts, but requires payment of part of the price at the time of entry, applications for original or additional entry, filed with petitions for designation, as provided by the act of March 4, 1915 (38 Stat. 1162), must be accompanied by deposit of said initial payment as well as of the fee and commissions.

2. The entire amount paid will be carried in the unearned money account, and will be repaid by the receiver, if the entry be not placed of record, on account of nondesignation of the land or for any other reason.

3. A person desiring to make original or additional entry for such lands, but not seeking a preference right of entry, may, without regard to the act of March 4, 1915, forward to the Secretary of the Interior, or to the Director of the United States Geological Survey, a petition for designation, so far as same is necessary, and no money need be paid in connection therewith. It is advisable to state in such petitions the reasons for forwarding them in the manner indicated.

CIRCULAR No. 419 [b]

ACCOUNTS—COMPENSATION BASED UPON CASH SALES OF INDIAN LANDS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, June 30, 1915.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: The Comptroller of the Treasury has rendered the following decision which is promulgated for your benefit:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
Washington, June 18, 1915.

The honorable the SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

SIR: I have your letter of June 12, 1915, requesting a decision as to whether registers and receivers of the United States Land Offices are entitled to commission on sales of Indian lands when the laws under which the sales are held do not provide for the payment of commissions.

[b] See Circular No. 1069, p. 145.

Registers' and receivers' duties are prescribed by act of January 27, 1898 (30 Stat 234), which amends section 2234 of the Revised Statutes, and which provides:

"SEC. 2234. There shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, a register of the land office and a receiver of public moneys for each land district established by law, who shall have charge of and attend to the sale of public and Indian lands within their respective districts, as provided by law and official regulations, and receivers shall be accountable under their official bonds for the proceeds of such sales, and for all fees, commissions, or other moneys received by them under any provision of law or official regulation."

Compensation of these officers is fixed by section 2238, Revised Statutes, which provides:

"SEC. 2238. Registers and receivers, in addition to their salaries, shall be allowed each the following fees and commissions, namely:

"Second. A commission of one per centum on all moneys received at receiver's office."

Under section 2234, Revised Statutes, as amended, it is now the duty of registers and receivers to "have charge of and attend to the sale of" Indian lands in the same manner as the sale of public lands, and, consequently, section 2238, Revised Statutes, should be considered as the basis for computing payment for their services in connection with sale of Indian lands the same as in the sale of public lands. Of course, if the act providing for the sale of Indian lands limits the amount of commissions these officers are entitled to receive, it would be controlling, but, in all cases where the act authorizing the sale of Indian lands is silent as to the rate of commissions to be allowed registers and receivers, they are entitled to the commission provided for in section 2238, Revised Statutes, not to exceed the maximum prescribed in section 2240, Revised Statutes. (See 21 Comp. Dec. 251.)

Your question is answered accordingly.

Respectfully,

GEO. E. DOWNEY, Comptroller.

Section 2240, United States Revised Statutes, noted above, provides:

SEC. 2240. The compensation of registers and receivers, including salary, fees, and commissions, shall in no case exceed in the aggregate three thousand dollars a year each; and no register or receiver shall receive for any one quarter or fractional quarter more than a pro rata allowance of such maximum

The claims of the register and receiver must be stated on Form 4–665–g, in duplicate, using one of the blank lines for the purpose under the caption "1 per cent commissions on (name) Indian cash sales, as per abstract." If there are sales of land involving more than one Indian reservation such Indian fund must be set forth as a separate voucher and not consolidated as one item.

The payment of the claims will be made by the receiver of public moneys in his account under said title and bond, and not under his title and bond as special disbursing agent.

The total amount of the claims of both officers, in case of minimum offices only, must be debited the United States under the proper Indian fund or funds on one of the blank lines of the account current (Form 4–104–a), and in making the deposits to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States, the said amount will be deducted therefrom and paid to each officer.

The vouchers must accompany the receiver of public money's account current on Form 4–104–a.

The total amount paid to the register or receiver, including salary, fees, and commissions, and the commissions on Indian lands, must not exceed $3,000 to each officer in any one fiscal year.

The total amount actually earned by each officer as compensation may be paid to him, provided, that at the date of payment it does not exceed the prorate share of the maximum amount of $3,000 per annum allowed by law.

The excess of the maximum of earnings of any month within a fiscal year may be applied to minimum of earnings of any month within the same fiscal year, but the excess of maximum earnings of one fiscal year must not be applied to the minimum earnings of another year.

The excess of earnings of one appointment must not be applied to the minimum earnings of another appointment, even though it be of the same officer, and within the same or different fiscal years.

Very respectfully,

Clay Tallman, Commissioner.

RETURNS—REPORT OF PAYMENTS, SECTION 5, ACT OF MARCH 4, 1915 (38 STAT. 1138, 1161)

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, September 28, 1915.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: Reference is had to Circular No. 399,[c] regulations governing relief of desert-land entrymen under act of March 4, 1915 (38 Stat. 1138, 1161).

Upon the allowance of an application for relief by this office under the above instructions, the payment of 50 cents per acre must be reported on the " Schedule of allowances " for the month such money is applied, by serial and receipt numbers, designated as " D L Relief 3–4–15." When reporting such payments no area should be shown on said schedule.

Upon the issuance of final certificate in connection with an entry of this character, the final entry designated as " D L (final) 3–4–15," showing area and amount of payment of 75 cents per acre only should be shown on the " Schedule of allowances " for the month final certificate issues. In the " Remarks " column of said schedule notation should be made as follows: " 50 cents p. a. earned (giving date)."

When applying the payment of 50 cents per acre the notation " D L Relief 3–4–15 " must appear on the "Abstract of moneys returned or applied " (Form 4–103a) opposite report of the item.

In all cases where applications for relief, under the above-mentioned instructions, have been allowed since June 30, 1915, and report of the payments in connection therewith have not been made to this office on Form 4–115d (" Schedule of allowances "), you will, at once, submit supplemental schedule or schedules, as the case may be, for the month or months payments were earned, reporting same.

Please acknowledge receipt hereof on inclosed card.

Very respectfully,

C. M. Bruce, Acting Commissioner.

SUPPLEMENTAL INSTRUCTIONS UNDER SECTION 5 OF ACT OF MARCH 4, 1915 (38 STAT. 1161)

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., May 9, 1916.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: The following instructions are for your guidance in disposing of cases under section 5 of the act of March 4, 1915 (38 Stat. 1161), and are to be considered as supplementing, not superseding, the regulations embodied in Circular No. 399 [d] of April 13, 1915 (44 L. D. 56).

Applications for relief should ordinarily be transmitted with your returns for the month during which filed. If the entry is involved in contest proceedings, the application for relief should be transmitted by special letter. All elections to purchase should be transmitted with your returns for the month during which filed.

If the entryman files his election to purchase under paragraph 3 of the act within the 60 days allowed by regulations contained in Circular No. 399, he must tender therewith a payment sufficient in amount to cover the purchase price of the land involved in the entry at the rate of 50 cents per acre.

If the entryman has previously made the final payment of $1 an acre in connection with a former final proof under the desert-land laws in which case the relief is sought, and the same has been deposited and accounted for as earned, he may elect to have 50 cents per acre of said former payment applied in connection with his election to purchase under paragraph 3 of the act and the remainder of 50 cents per acre credited on the payment of 75 cents per acre required at the time the final proof is filed, and pay the additional sum of 25 cents per acre in cash.

Initial payments should be reported on the "Schedule of allowances" for the months the moneys are applied, in accordance with Circular No. 438, of September 28, 1915. In cases where final proof has been offered and credit of 50 cents per acre of the amount previously covered into the Treasury is requested, the payments should be reported on the above-mentioned schedule under dates of the filing of the elections, and reference should be made on said schedule to the numbers of the receipts which issued for such payments, and in the "Remarks" column to the dates the moneys were applied. Receipt numbers and amounts involved, together with a reference to letters from this office granting relief, should be noted on elections to purchase.

Where the payment of 50 cents per acre is made at the time the election to purchase is filed, relief having been granted by this office, such payment must be applied by the receiver on the date of the filing of the election. Should an election to purchase be filed in a case where relief has not been granted and the initial payment tendered, the moneys must be held by the receiver as "unearned moneys" until action is had by this office on the application for relief, and the moneys should then be applied or returned to the applicant in accordance with the action had by this office. Should credit for moneys previously covered into the Treasury be requested before relief is granted, and relief should subsequently be granted, such payment should be reported on the "Schedule of allowances" under date of the letter from this office granting relief. In no instance should the initial payment be reported on the "Schedule of allowances" prior to the granting of relief by this office.

In cases where the applicants elect to perfect their entries in the manner required of a homestead entryman such elections should not be reported on the "Schedule of allowances." Upon issuance of final certificates in such cases the final entries, designated as "DL (final) 3–4–15 residence," showing date, serial number, and area only, should, however, be reported on the schedule in question.

When credit is allowed for final purchase money previously covered into the Treasury and the balance remaining is not sufficient to cover the final purchase money due, and an additional amount is collected to cover such deficiency, the receipt issuing for the remainder should show the number of receipt which originally issued for the final purchase money and the amount credited thereon.

The only moneys authorized to be collected in connection with final proofs offered in support of entries perfected under paragraph 2, are testimony fees in cases where the proof is taken in your office, and the purchase price where the entry is perfected under the commutation provisions of the homestead law. Where entries are perfected under paragraph 3, and the final proof depositions are taken in your office, the usual fee for transcribing the testimony may be charged, as in ordinary desert-land proofs, and, in addition, the balance (75 cents) of the purchase price should be collected. No commissions may be charged under any circumstances, and no testimony fees unless the proof is taken at your office.

Very respectfully,

Clay Tallman, Commissioner.

Approved.

Andrieus A. Jones,
First Assistant Secretary.

Circular No. 483[7]

ACCOUNTS—RECEIPTS FOR OFFICE WORK

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, June 29, 1916.

United States Surveyors General.

Sirs: Circular No. 422, "Accounts—work done in offices of surveyors general," is hereby amended to read as follows:

No clerk, draftsman, or other employee in the office of a surveyor general shall be assigned to or begin work on any transcripts of records, plats, or other like work for which the applicants are required to deposit the cost with the surveyor general, until the amount of such cost has been deposited, the receipt issued therefor, and the serial number of such receipt indorsed on the record or paper to be copied.

For each and every amount received by a surveyor general as cost of office work to be performed he shall issue a receipt (Form 4–129), making a memorandum copy by carbon process, the original to be delivered to the depositor and the memorandum copy to be forwarded to this office at the end of the quarter with the abstract of moneys received. All such moneys received must be receipted for on the day in which they come into the custody or control of the survey general and must be deposited to official credit (subject to the surveyor general's official check) as "Special deposits—unearned moneys." Such moneys may be deposited at the close of each business day or at the close of each month, but there must be absolutely no exception to the rule that every cent received by a surveyor general to cover cost of transcripts of records or other office work must be deposited with his depository to his official credit and that any amount returned to a depositor or deposited to personal credit as "Miscellaneous receipts—copies of records," shall be by official check (using regular series and form), against his "Special deposits—unearned moneys" account.

But one form of receipt blank will be used by surveyors general, namely, Form 4–129. These receipts are numbered and must be used in consecutive, numerical order, each surveyor general using first the lowest numbered receipt sent him. Any receipt blank that is mutilated or spoiled, in any manner, should be marked plainly across its face "Canceled," and be placed in proper numerical order with the copies of receipts transmitted with the "Abstracts of moneys received." Surveyors general must account for every receipt blank issued to them.

Under the act of Congress approved March 3, 1913 (37 Stat. 733), surveyors general may accept cash, currency, such certified checks drawn in their favor on National or State banks and trust companies as can be cashed without expense to the Government, and United States postal money orders made payable to the order of the surveyor general by the post office where they are issued and drawn on the post office where the surveyor general is located. Surveyors general must not accept, or issue receipts for, remittances tendered in any other form.

Whenever the work pertaining to a particular deposit is completed and delivered, or transmitted, the cost thereof will be immediately posted as "Applied," on the abstract of moneys returned or applied (or a like office record, a copy of which is to become the quarterly abstract of moneys returned or applied), and the amount, if any, by which the deposit exceeds the cost of the work will be immediately returned to the depositor by official check (using the regular form and current number), drawn against the surveyor general's account of "Special deposits—unearned moneys," on which check will be noted the depositor's receipt number.

In view of the small amounts involved it will not be necessary for the surveyor general to draw his official check each time an amount is earned, but at the end of each quarter he shall draw his official check against his account of "Special deposits—unearned moneys," for the total amount earned (or applied) during the quarter "For deposit to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States," indorsing on such check the serial number of each and every receipt on account of which the deposit is made.

At the end of each quarter the surveyor general shall submit an abstract of moneys received, in which he will show, as to the receipt of "Special deposits—unearned moneys," the date of each receipt, the number of the receipt issued, the name of the depositor, the purpose for which the deposit was made, and the amount; and will also show (as to the deposit to official credit of the cash so received) the date, number, and amount of each certificate of deposit (Form 6599) of the cash so received. The "Abstract of collections" (Form 4–106b) will serve this purpose, using the columns as indicated by their headings, except that each deposit to official credit shall be entered on the line following the receipt, or receipts, it covers, the date in the date column, the certificate of deposit number in the receipt number column, and the amount on the right-hand side of the column headed "For what purpose." Observe the following sample:

Abstract of collections

Date	Receipt number	Name	For what purpose	Amount 1916
Jan. 3	356	Morris & Morris	Field notes		$1. 50
10	357	G. H. Hummer	Plat		4. 00

27	363	C. A. Crow	do		1. 50
Mar. 31	CD22			14. 50
		Total		33. 00	33. 00

The surveyor general shall also submit at the close of each quarter an "Abstract of moneys returned or applied" (Form 4–103–d), which shall show the date the work under each deposit is completed (and the money earned), and the excess (if any), returned to the depositor; the number of the surveyor general's check issued in returning each excess (check on regular form and series), the amount of such excess returned, the amount earned and applied in connection with each deposit, and the total amount returned and applied in connection with each receipt, which of course, will in each case agree with the amount for which the receipt was issued. The abstract will also show the date, the check number and the amount of "applied" money deposited at the end of the quarter to the surveyor general's personal credit (Treasurer's Form 5252, Assistant Treasurer's Form 1709, National Bank Form 1). Observe the following example:

Abstract of moneys returned or applied

Date	Receipt	Name of depositor	Check	Returned	Applied	total
1916
Jan. 3	356	Morris & Morris	6127	$3. 00	$1. 50	$1. 50
12	357	C. H. Hummer		1. 00	1. 00	4. 00
28	358	James Taylor			7. 00	7. 00
Feb. 10	359	C. L. Stuart	6231	1. 00	5. 00	6. 00
Mar. 11	360	Clemens Map Co			. 50	. 50

					22. 50
		Total		7. 50	22. 50	29. 00

In the new form of account current, a column, following the "Total" column, and separated therefrom by a heavy line, is provided for "Special deposits—unearned moneys," and in that column there will be shown under the "Credits," the balance from the preceding quarter and the total amount received and receipted for (collections) during the quarter, and under the "Debits," the amount returned to depositors, the amount "Applied" (and by that act carried to the fund "Work done in office of surveyor general," under which head it will be entered in the "Credits" on the line "Collections, as shown by abstracts"), and the balance due depositors (or unearned or unapplied), at the close of the period.

This balance will not only be entered in its proper place on the account current, but will also be included in the analyzed balance. Supposing the actual balance due the United States as shown in the "Total" column to be $1,997.80 (of which $1.80 is cash on hand), and the balance under "Special deposits—unearned moneys" to be as indicated in the foregoing sample abstracts $4, the analysis of balance due the United States would be as follows:

ANALYSIS OF BALANCE DUE THE UNITED STATES

Deposited with the Treasurer of the United States to official credit	$2,500.00
Less outstanding checks	500.00
		$2,000.00
Cash on hand (in office safe)		1.80
Total		2,001.80
Less "Special deposits—unearned moneys"		4.00
		1,997.80

Of course all amounts of cash received must be entered on the debit side of the cash account and there need be no distinction made therein between receipts on account of "Special deposits—unearned moneys," and receipts from any other source. The receipts need not be posted as separate items, but at the end of each month the amount received during the month may be posted as "Special deposits" per abstract. The date, certificate number (Form 6599), and amount of each deposit of cash to official credit must of course be shown on the credit side of the cash account.

Very respectfully,

Clay Tallman, Commissioner.

Approved June 29, 1916.

First Assistant Secretary.

ACCOUNTS—DAILY REPORTS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, September 30, 1916.

To Detailed Clerks and Others:

On and after October 16, 1916, all detailed clerks and other employees not in the surveying force (who render weekly reports) or regular field service (who submit daily reports), will render daily reports for all periods of service outside of the District of Columbia, adapting Form 4–509 until another form is provided. These reports will show traveling expenses incurred, transportation requests or mileage used, hour of arrival at and departure from each place officially visited, and a brief synopsis of the work performed. They are to be mailed at the close of each day's work in envelopes addressed to "The Commissioner of the General Land Office." On the lower left-hand corners of these envelopes should be plainly written "Daily work report of," followed by the name and official designation of the employee.

Expense vouchers will not be approved until reports for all the days covered thereby are received in this office.

Very respectfully,

CLAY TALLMAN, Commissioner.

CIRCULAR NO. 512

NOTATIONS ON PAPERS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, October 20, 1916.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: There have been mailed to each district office two rubber stamps for use in indicating the hour and date of receipt of all papers, and two stamps for use in connection with relinquishments: "Received U. S. Land Office, Roswell, N. Mex.; date, ——; hour, ——." "Entry canceled on records, ——, register."

No stamps other than these should be used hereafter for the purposes indicated.

On all applications to make entry, an impression of the "received" stamp should be made in the upper right-hand corner, care being used not to interfere with the space left on the printed form for the insertion of the serial number. The stamp furnished with Circular No. 107,[e] to indicate moneys paid, should be impressed on the upper left-hand corner, at least 1 inch from the top.

The date and hour of the receipt of all papers must be inserted in the spaces provided in the new stamp. It will not be necessary for either officer to sign his name thereto, but in the case of relinquishments the register must sign his name below an impression of the stamp "Entry canceled on records."

The date that plats of survey are filed as well as received should be noted thereon.

Very respectfully,

C. M. BRUCE, Acting Commissioner.

CIRCULAR NO. 526 [8]

ACCOUNTS—COST KEEPING

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, February 1, 1917.

United States Surveyors General, Supervisors, and others.

SIRS: That part of the last paragraph, page 2 of Circular No. 121, dated June 1, 1912, "Accounts—costs keeping," which reads "in connection with salaries, * * * leave should be apportioned according to the time spent on the different groups," is hereby abrogated and the cost of annual and sick leave of employees connected with the field surveying service will, beginning with February 1, 1917, be charged as follows:

Salary for all periods of leave with pay will be charged to and paid from the appropriation for surveying the public land regardless of the appropriation under which the employee is working before and after the leave is taken. Such amounts will not be charged to any particular group, reservations, or other piece of work, but will be treated as a miscellaneous expense. Vouchers will be marked to show what periods are covered by leave. Sundays and legal holidays are to be charged the same as the day immediately preceding them, both when the employee is on leave of absence and when he is performing actual service.

If the special disbursing agent to whom such a voucher is presented for payment has no funds belonging to the appropriation for surveying the public lands, and anticipates no other need for such funds, the amount chargeable on account of leave should be suspended and a supplemental voucher covering same showing the number of the original voucher should be sent to the supervisor of surveys at Denver, Colo., for payment. A case of this kind will be very rare.

During the past fiscal year salary for leaves of absence with pay amounted to approximately 1.62 per cent of the total expense incident to field work under all surveying appropriations. When the total field cost under any particular piece of work is ascertained (exclusive of amounts actually paid on account of leaves of absence which are not to be charged), 1.62 per cent thereof is to be added as a flat charge on account of leave of absence. As soon as possible after July 1 and not later than August 1 of each year, the sum total charges on account of leave during the fiscal year then ended will be reported to the General Land Office. The cost cards will be totaled as of June 30 to include work in progress as well as work that has been completed. Any entries on the cost record of payments made after June 30 will not figure in the current report but in the report for the next year. Care must be exercised to see that amounts reported on incomplete work are not included in the succeeding report.

In addition to showing the total amount charged under each appropriation, these reports must show the amounts chargeable to each Indian reservation in connection with Indian surveys, and the amounts chargeable to each railroad company separately in connection with railroad deposits.

The information for these reports may be carried to a summary sheet from time to time during the fiscal year, or compiled at the end of the fiscal year, at the discretion of the officer responsible therefor. The first report will cover the period from February 1 to June 30, 1917, only.

A reimbursable voucher will be stated by the General Land Office on information furnished by these reports for settlement in the Treasury by transfer of funds, crediting the appropriation for surveying the public lands, and charging the other surveying appropriations with the amounts chargeable by the cost-keeping record with leaves of absence. In this manner, every appropriation will be charged in even proportion with the cost of leaves of absence with pay during a year. If the ratio varies materially from 1.62 during any year, a new percentage basis will be adopted for subsequent years.

Very respectfully,

CLAY TALLMAN, Commissioner.

The exception is found in act of March 3, 1901, cited above, which specifically provides that such deposits shall be charged with the rent of additional quarters.
> Depositors under sections 2401 and 2402, Revised Statutes, under section 21 of the act of July 2, 1864 (13 Stat. 365), under act of February 27, 1899 (30 Stat. 892), and under act of June 25, 1910 (36 Stat. 834), are chargeable with no overhead expense except the salary, per diem, and expenses of the assistant supervisor of surveys, but surveyors general will hereafter include on their reports of cost of survey and office work (Form 4–380c) all the overhead charges enumerated in Circular No. 121.
> This method will furnish complete data for making a comparison of the cost of surveys in different States and under different conditions, as well as the data necessary for making a charge against those depositors who are not chargeable with an office overhead expense.

Returns

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS

1. The following instructions will take effect on and after January 1, 1919.

2. All orders, circulars, and instructions in conflict herewith are hereby canceled and revoked.

SERIAL NUMBERS

3. Use only one series.—Each office will maintain but one series of numbers, and all kinds of applications, entries, selections, locations, etc., for the use, segregation, purchase, or disposition of a part of the public domain, will be numbered with this one series, such numbers to be preceded by 0. The "0" is used to prevent conflict with any number of the various series in use prior to July 1, 1908.

4. When to be used.—Each declaration, application, or other initial paper required in any entry, sale of land, selection, location, etc., will be numbered AT THE TIME AND IN THE ORDER in which it is presented or received at the district land office, without regard to whether it is subsequently allowed or rejected, as required by circular of June 10, 1908.

5. Merely for identification.—The giving of a serial number to an application, entry, selection, location, etc., does not mean that same is allowed or approved, or will be allowed or approved. It is merely an identification number of the case, as it were, by which it will always in the future be identified.

6. Fractional serial numbers are not to be used.

7. All subsequent papers bear same number.—After the initial declaration, application, or other paper required in any entry, sale of land, selection, location, etc., is once numbered, all subsequent papers filed or issued in connection therewith must bear the same number as is given the initial paper.

8. Where no money is tendered.—Applications, declarations, etc., which are not accompanied by the proper remittances in form or in amount required by law or regulations to be tendered at the same time they are filed will be assigned current serial numbers. You should note such applications, etc., on the "Serial Number Register," hereinafter referred to. Where no money is tendered, the application etc., will be rejected. On such rejection, the applicant, of course, has the right of appeal within 30 days, under the "Rules of Practice," merely against rejection of the application, however, for the reason that no money was received therewith, unless, of course, there are additional causes for rejection at the time the application is received by you. You will not in such cases, pending the receipt of the money, segregate the land, as the law and regulations are specific in that the money must be tendered with the application, and if it is not transmitted the applicant acquires no rights under the application until the money is tendered. If the applicant should transmit the money, and the land has not in the meantime been segregated, the application should retain the same serial number as was given it at the time of filing, and action thereon may be taken in accordance with the regulations. A new application need not be filed, but it must be plainly noted in the upper left-hand corner of the application that it was received without the money, and that the money was subsequently tendered. The exact time and date of the tender of the money should also be noted on the application. In the remarks column of the general "Schedule of Serial Numbers," requires under paragraph 40, opposite report of the serial number of the application, you must note "No money." However, if the money is tendered before the returns for the month in which the application is filed are transmitted, the notation "No money" need not be made on the general schedule, but the number of the receipt which issued for the money will be noted in the receipt number column of said schedule. Where any form of remittance other than those specified in paragraph 72 hereof is tendered or where an insufficient amount is tendered in any form, you will merely suspend the application, etc., and allow the party 30 days in which to tender the required amount. You will not issue receipts for remittances tendered in any form other than those mentioned in paragraph 72 hereof.

9. S. D. S. and application take same number.—Where a soldier's declaratory statement has been filed, a homestead application by the same applicant, or his widow or heirs, for the same land or any part thereof, must take the same serial number as given to the declaratory statement, without regard to whether it is subsequently allowed or rejected.

ADVERSE MINERAL CLAIMS

10. Numbering and noting on general schedule.—An adverse mineral claim must be given current number when filed, and not the same serial number as assigned to the mineral application involved. On the general Schedule of Serial Numbers, opposite report of the separate number assigned to an adverse claim, always note in the remarks column "Adv. to (giving serial number of the mineral application involved)." Such notation must also appear, under the separate number involved, on each paper pertaining to an adverse claim. If the mineral application involved is filed during the same month as the adverse claim, note "See Adv. (giving serial number)" in the remarks column, opposite report of the serial number of the mineral application.

MINERAL APPLICATIONS

11. General Land Office to be notified.—Immediately upon filing and acting upon a mineral application, you will notify the General Land Office on Form 4–024b, and immediately upon the filing of an adverse claim against a mineral application, you will notify the General Land Office on Form 4–024a.

12. To be forwarded with monthly returns.—Mineral applications against which no adverse claims are filed within the statutory period of publication will be forwarded to the General Land Office with your monthly returns for the month in which such publication ended.

13. Must be held certain period.—Mineral applications against which adverse claims are filed within the statutory period will be held until the expiration of the period of publication, and for 30 days after the last adverse claim is filed, and then forwarded to the General Land Office, together with the adverse papers, with your first monthly returns thereafter.

ASSIGNMENTS [f]

14. How to number and note on general schedule.—If all the land embraced in a desert-land or a reclamation homestead entry is assigned, the serial number of the entry will not be changed. If a part of the land is assigned, the first paper filed in connection with the partial assignment will be given current number. After a partial assignment, if the remainder of the original entry is assigned, the first paper filed in connection with the assignment of the remainder of the original entry will take the same number as given to the original entry, and not a separate number, because such assignment would be a total assignment of all the land that remained in the original entry. When reporting on the general schedule of serial numbers the separate number given to a partial assignment of a desert-land or reclamation homestead entry, always note in the remarks column "Par. assmnt. (giving serial number of the original entry)." Such notation must also appear, under the separate serial number involved, on all application and entry papers pertaining to a partial assignment.

ISOLATED TRACTS

15. How to number applications and sales, etc.—An application for sale of isolated tract is, of course, to be given current serial number when filed. Should the land involved, or part thereof, be purchased by the original applicant, the final papers which issue in connection therewith should take the same number as the original application. Should the land, or part thereof, be purchased by a bidder other than the applicant, the final papers which issue to him should be given current serial number, and not the same number as the original application, but there should be noted on each certificate which issues under the original application to any other person than the original applicant, in the upper right-hand corner, under the separate serial number assigned to such final papers, "Sold under (giving serial number of the original application)." This reference must also be shown in the remarks column of the general Schedule of Serial Numbers, opposite report of the separate number assigned to such final papers, in the remarks column of the classified "Schedule of Final Certificates Issued," required under paragraph 44, and upon the receipt which issues to such purchaser.

16. Numbering additional and second entries.—Appliccations to make additional and second homestead entries must be given current numbers, and not the same serial numbers given to the applications for the original entries.

SOLDIERS' ADDITIONAL HOMESTEAD APPLICATIONS

17. Numbering and action to be taken.—Where an application to locate soldiers' additional rights under sections 2306 and 2307, Revised Statutes, is held for rejection by the General Land Office, and the applicant accepts the holding and files a substitute soldier's additional right, such substitute right should be accompanied by a formal application (Form 4–008a) duly executed. As the substitution amounts to a waiver of all rights under the rejected application, the substituted right should be given a new serial number. Publication and posting must be made as required by the circular of February 21, 1908 (36 L. D. 278), and a copy of the notice of publication must be forwarded to the Chief of Field Division for his indorsement in accordance with the circular of April 24, 1907 (35 L. D. 681), except in Alaska, where publication and posting must be made in accordance with section 10, act of May 14, 1898 (30 Stat. 409), and instructions of January 13, 1904 (32 L. D. 424–38–42), and Circular No. 197 (41 L. D. 356). The above covers cases in which the entire right has been held to be invalid, and has no bearing whatever on the so-called "combination" cases. Where a part of a combination of rights is held to be invalid and new rights substituted therefor, a formal application (Form 4–008a) should not be filed, and a new serial number should not be assigned. Applications to locate soldiers' additional rights, whether certified or uncertified, must in no instance be considered by registers and receivers for allowance, but must be transmitted with the returns for the month in which filed. Publication and posting should be started within 20 days from the date of filing, and when completed should be transmitted by separate letter and not with the monthly returns. The register must date and sign his certificate to such applications. In every case the applicant must be designated as assignee of the soldier, or soldiers, and care observed to give the soldier's full name. Fees and commissions in connection with soldiers' additional applications are not required to be tendered at the time of filing. If tendered the receiver must, of course, issue receipts therefor.

No such application should be received by the district officers unless accompanied by evidence of the right, or by a reference to the case by land office serial number and description of the land, containing such evidence.

CAREY ACT

18. How to number and act upon applications filed.—Each application under the Carey Act must be given a separate serial number, notwithstanding that the same tracts may successively be included in the three kinds of such applications, viz: 1. An application for temporary withdrawal. 2. A segregation list. 3. A list for patent. All three classes must be transmitted by separate letters during the month, and not with the monthly returns. A list for patent shall be transmitted as soon as noted on the local records without holding for publication and without reference to the Chief of Field Division. When reporting applications under the Carey Act on the general Schedule of Serial Numbers, always distinguish between applications for temporary withdrawal, segregation lists, and lists for patent, and note the dates of transmittal in the remarks column. All subsequent papers filed in any Carey Act case will be transmitted special without holding for the monthly returns.

19. Applications under act of August 11, 1916.—An application filed by an irrigation district under the act of August 11, 1916 (39 Stat. 506), will be given a separate serial number and will be transmitted by separate letter during the month, and not with the monthly returns and in the general Schedule of Serial Numbers the date of transmittal will be noted in the remarks column. All subsequent papers filed will be transmitted special without holding for the monthly returns.

RIGHTS OF WAY

20. How to number.—Each railway map or plat for right of way, whether for a portion of the line of road or for station grounds, must be assigned a separate serial number. An amended map must also be given a separate number and not the same number assigned to the original right-of-way application to which it is an amendment.

21. Must be forwarded special.—Upon the filing of an application for right of way on or over the public lands the local officers will not hold such application for transmittal with the monthly returns, but at once make proper notations upon their records and transmit it to the General Land Office by special letter.

RESERVOIR SITES AND CANAL LOCATIONS

22. How to number.—Each application for reservoir site or canal location must be given a separate serial number. An application for an amended reservoir site or an amended canal location should be given the same number as the original application, for the reason that such application is generally based on the same water-right and other data, which accompanies the original application and is filed therewith. In this connection it should be noted that a right-of-way application for the irrigation system for a project under the Carey Act or of an irrigation district, must be given a separate serial number and not the same number given to the application under the Carey Act or the act of August 11, 1916.

AMENDED ENTRIES AND SELECTIONS

23. Retain original numbers.—Applications to amend entries and selections will take the same serial numbers as given the original entries or selections.

RAILROAD AND STATE SELECTIONS

24. Do not hold when publication is required.—All railroad and State selection lists in which publication is required should not be retained in the local office pending publication, but should be forwarded with the returns at the end of the month when filed and accepted; the publication, when received, to be transmitted by special letter.

25. When to number pending applications, etc., made prior to July 1, 1908.—Any declaratory statements, applications, selections, entries, etc., made before July 1, 1908, and which may be still pending, if not given serial numbers, will retain the numbers given them under the system of numbering in use prior to July 1, 1908, UNTIL the first letter, paper, or action of any kind or character is received or taken by YOU in connection therewith, when you will IMMEDIATELY give the case, as it were, a current serial number. When reporting the serial number on the general Schedule of Serial Numbers assigned to an application, entry, etc., which bore a number under the system of numbering in use prior to July 1, 1908, always refer to such old number in the remarks column.

REPAYMENT APPLICATIONS

26. Filed in connection with entries, etc., made prior to July 1, 1908.—If an application for repayment should be filed in connection with an application, entry, etc., made before July 1, 1908, which has not been given a serial number, or you receive any letter from this office or elsewhere, or take action of any kind or character in connection with such application for repayment, you should assign current serial number to the application or entry involved. When reporting the serial number on the general Schedule of Serial Numbers, always refer in the remarks column to the number, if any, involved under the system of numbering in use prior to July 1, 1908.

REINSTATED AND AMENDED ENTRIES

27. Canceled and patented under system used prior to July 1, 1908.—Should an application to reinstate a canceled entry or to amend a patented entry be filed, and the entry involved has not been given a new serial number, but was canceled or patented under the series of numbering in use prior to July 1, 1908, current number should be assigned thereto. Observe care to refer in the remarks column of the general schedule to the old number involved.

NEW SERIAL NUMBERS

28. Notations to be made on records.—When giving an application, entry, proof, etc., which was made prior to July 1, 1908, a new serial number, make notation, on the proper record book which was kept prior to July 1, 1908, of the new serial number given it. It is advisable to make similar notation of the new serial number on the tract books at the same time it is made on the old numerical record, such as the homestead, desert land, and cash registers. It is not necessary to copy the entire old record in the Serial Number Register, but the kind, name and address, description of the land, and all future notations (except a contest record) in regard thereto must be entered in the Serial Number Register. Such notations as are required to be made in the tract books will continue to be made there, as well as in the Serial Number Register. All that is necessary to note on the old record books is the new serial number, as "0567," the "0" signifying that it is the new number. The date it is given that number is determined from the Serial Number Register, which bears the date of the first notation made under the new number.

OLD AND NEW NUMBERS

29. To be shown in all notices in connection with entries, etc., made prior to July 1, 1908.—In all notices to be served, posted, or published in connection with applications, entries, etc., made prior to July 1, 1908, you MUST include both the old and the new numbers, as follows: "Homestead entry, No. 4137 (serial No. 056)." All notices served, posted, or published, and all notations made in connection with any declaration, application, entry, proof, etc., filed or initiated on July 1, 1908, or thereafter, will of course refer to only the new serial number which was given the initial paper, as that will be the only number given it for identification. In all notices to be served, posted, or published, the KIND of application, entry, etc., must also appear. In all correspondence with the General Land Office, AFTER the serial numbers have been reported each month, it will be sufficient to identify the case by giving the serial number only. This MUST always be given.

SERIAL NUMBERS NOT TO BE ASSIGNED

30. To transcripts of records, or plats.—Requests for transcripts of records, or plats, will not be given serial numbers, because they are not applications or papers applying for the use, segregation, purchase, or disposition of a part of the public domain.

31. To notices of restoration and applications for survey.—Notices of restoration of lands to entry and applications for survey of lands must not be assigned serial numbers. Applications to enter such lands, when filed, will of course be given separate serial numbers.

CONTESTS

32.[g] Not to be given serial numbers.—Contests must not be given serial numbers. A series of numbers for contests arising in district land offices will be maintained, entirely distinct from the series used for applications, entries, etc., and said contest numbers will not be preceded by "0." The records of contests will be kept in the "Contest Docket" (Form 4–051a). Reference must be made in the contest docket to the serial numbers of the applications or entries involved. Notation should also be made in the Serial Number Register of the initiation and close of a contest, as follows:

July 1, 1912, contest affidavit filed. (See Contest Docket, p. 261.) December 4, 1912, contest closed.

33. Which papers to be forwarded with returns.—The only papers pertaining to contests which should be transmitted with the monthly returns are those relating to cases which have abated, been dismissed for want of prosecution (after the time allowed for reinstatement), or withdrawn prior to hearing. Attached to such papers should be a short report which readily reveals the status of the case to which the papers relate. The records of cases in which decisions have been rendered should be transmitted by separate letters, using Form 4–330. If, after the record is transmitted, a relinquishment of the entry is filed, such relinquishment should be immediately transmitted by separate letter, entitled as of the case, and report made as to the disposition, if any, of the land. If a waiver of contestant's preference right is filed with the relinquishment, such waiver should be forwarded therewith. The serial number of the relinquishment must be reported on the classified "Schedule of relinquishments," required under paragraph 44, for the month transmitted, with date of transmittal in the remarks column. Rejected contest affidavits, if appealed, should be transmitted by special letters and the serial numbers thereof reported on the classified "Schedule of rejected and closed cases," required under paragraph 44, for the month when transmitted, with dates of transmittal in the remarks column.

SERIAL NUMBER REGISTER

34. Complete record required.—A record, in consecutive, numerical order of all declarations, applications, entries, purchases of land, selections, locations, etc., will be kept in the Serial Number Register (Form 4–051), and all notations in regard thereto, except a contest record thereof, will be made in the Serial Number Register under the proper number. Such notations as are required to be made in the tract books will continue to be made there, as well as in the Serial Number Register. When application or entry papers are transmitted to the General Land Office, such fact must be noted in the Serial Number Register, each notation showing the date of transmittal and whether with the monthly returns or by special letter.

35. Notations to be made therein.—Notations of all letters received from, or written to the General Land Office or elsewhere, all papers filed or issued, and all actions taken (except in a contest record), which relate in any manner to an application, entry, selection, proof, etc., will be made in the Serial Number Register under the number given to the application, proof, etc., to which it relates. This notation should always include the date, and be as brief as possible—merely sufficient to identify the letter, paper, or action.

ALPHABETICAL INDEX

36. The alphabetical index will be a card index. A separate card must be made for each person and must contain the name and address and the number and kind of the application, entry, etc., as follows:

Crawford, Samuel H.,
148 Pine Street,
The Dalles, Oregon.
05 Hd.

37. Same card for all entries, etc., by same person.—The same card should be used to note the number and kind of all applications, entries, etc., made by the same person, as follows:

Crawford, Samuel H.,
148 Pine Street,
The Dalles, Oregon.
0467 T. and S.

38. When to be made where papers were filed prior to July 1, 1908.—Cards will be made for all applicants, entrymen, purchasers, selectors, etc., whose papers were filed prior to July 1, 1908, WHEN their cases are given new serial numbers. The alphabetical index must be kept from day to day and the cards properly filed each day.

RECORD RIBBONS

39. Record ribbons should always be used when preparing schedules and abstracts herein required.

GENERAL SCHEDULE

40.[11] How to prepare.—Registers will submit, in duplicate, with monthly returns (on Form 4–115) a General Schedule of Serial Numbers, listing in numerical order all numbers assigned during the month shown at the top of such schedule, without regard to whether the application and entry papers involved are forwarded to the General Land Office. When applications, etc., are necessarily held, proper notation should be made in the remarks column, as "Suspended, held;" "Rejected, held;" etc. If transmitted with the returns for the month for which the schedule is rendered, notation of such transmittal must not be made. The date of filing in each instance must be shown in the first column.

41.[12] How to report additional homesteads.—When reporting the serial number of an application for additional homestead entry on the General Schedule of Serial Numbers, always refer in the remarks column to the serial number of the original entry involved, as "See orig. (giving number)."

SCHEDULE OF ALLOWANCES

42.[13] How to prepare.—Registers will also submit, with the returns each month, a "Schedule of Allowances" (Form 4–115d), reporting in numerical order and without regard to class all applications, declarations, selections, locations, original and final entries, etc., which are allowed, and private and public sales held, upon which final certificates have issued during the month shown at the top of the schedule. In the first column note the day of allowance of each application, declaration, original entry, etc., or issuance of final certificate in connection with each entry or sale. The second column is for the report of serial numbers. The Receipt Number column must show the numbers of all receipts issued in connection with the allowance of each application, etc. Where yearly installments are required and separate receipts issue for such payments, do not report the numbers of the receipts or the amounts involved. In the column "Kind of application, etc.," always show class of each application, etc., and the date or dates of acts of Congress under which authorized. Do not use ditto marks in this column. Use more than one line if necessary. Use the "Remarks" column only for letter references, explanatory remarks, cross references for originals and additionals, etc. Do not use this column for notation of acts. Distinguish between original, additional, stock-raising, commuted, and final homestead entries; original, second, and final desert-land entries, etc., and between indemnity school land selections and selections in satisfaction of grants in quantity for specific purposes (normal schools, etc.). Area and amount involved must in each instance be shown in the respective columns provided therefor, except entries perfected by residence under the desert-land relief act of March 4, 1915, and timber and stone applications reported same month with the final entry. Circular 471 directs the proper manner of reporting entries completed in the manner required of a homestead entryman. Timber and stone applications will be reported month the final proof is submitted and under date fee is applied. In all such cases where final certificates issue same month the $10 fee is earned, do not report area in connection with the applications. Soldiers' additional homestead applications should not be reported on this schedule. Upon issuanace of final certificate in connection with applications of this character report thereof, designated as "Sol. addl. (final)," should appear on the schedule, showing area, and in one item the total of the fee, original and final commissions. Do not report final or commuted proofs or sales hereon unless final certificates issue in connection therewith, or applications, etc., unless allowed during the month. In other words, this schedule must include all applications, adverse mineral claims, declarations, entries, etc., allowed during the month, whether the papers pertaining thereto are held in the district land office, transmitted with the returns for the month, or have been forwarded by special letters.

All application and entry papers must be transmitted with the monthly returns, unless specific authorization is given to forward special. When transmitted by special letters (such as Carey Act segregation lists), report thereof should, of course, be made, with the necessary data as to dates of allowance, etc., and dates of special transmittal. Upon the amendment of an entry by this office, where additional fee and commissions, or commissions, are required, the amended entry must be reported on this schedule under date such money is applied, designated by kind and act or acts of Congress involved. If additional area is also involved the same must be shown. The totals of amended entries, segregated by kind and act or acts must be shown in separate items of the " Summary." Additional payments required by this office must also be shown on this schedule, designated as " Addl. payt." showing kind of entry, act or acts involved and additional area, if any, etc., as above directed for amended entries. In each instance when reporting amended entries and additional payments, show only the area affected by amendment or involved in the additional payment. At the bottom of this schedule there must appear a summary showing the total of each class of applications, entries, etc., allowed during the month, together with the area and amount involved. The body of this schedule must be totaled as to number of applications, entries, etc., area and amount. The items in the " Summary " must also be totaled as to number, area and amount, which totals must of course agree with the grand totals of the items reported in the body of the schedule.

All moneys earned in connection with the allowance of an application, entry, etc., except excess purchase money and cancellation fees in the case of originals, and interest payments and testimony fees in connection with finals, must be shown on this schedule. Purchase money must always be listed separately from fees and commissions.

43.[14] Clerks who prepare schedules of serial numbers and schedules of allowances must place their initials in the upper left-hand corner thereof.

CLASSIFIED SCHEDULES

44.[15] Separate classified schedules of serial numbers are required, in duplicate, covering in numerical order the following classes of papers:

(a) Rejected applications, proofs, etc. (on Form 4–115), which are appealed or unappealed; withdrawn or otherwise closed applications, etc.; notices of intention to make proof where proof is not made within the time prescribed; withdrawn and closed contest cases, etc. When a withdrawn application, etc., and withdrawal thereof are transmitted during the same month, such papers should be assembled together, and notation made in the remarks column "Withdrawn." If a withdrawal alone is transmitted, the application, etc., involved having been previously forwarded, observe care to note "withdrawal" in the remarks column when reporting such withdrawal on the schedule. That is, the column Kind of Application or Entry must show the kind, and the Remarks Column must specifically show the status of the paper transmitted.

(b) Desert-land yearly proofs (on Form 4–115). Distinguish between first, second, and third year.

(c) Applications for sale of isolated tracts, showing names of applicants (on Form 4–115). If an application is not returned by the Chief of Field Division in time to be forwarded with the returns for the month during which filed, note "To C. F. D. (giving date)" in the Remarks Column of the general Schedule of Serial Numbers and forward a report on Form 4–030 with your returns for that month, observing care to show all the information called for by the form.

(d) Relinquishments (on Form 4–115) including, in numerical order, all classes of applications, entries, etc., on the same schedule showing names of entrymen in the remarks column. Partial relinquishments must be so designated. Should a withdrawal in the form of a relinquishment be filed in connection with an application, etc., which has not been allowed, notation must be made upon the paper that the same is intended as a withdrawal. Withdrawals must not be included hereon, but reported on the classified schedule of Rejected and Closed Cases (a).

(e) Indian allotment applications, fourth section, act February 8, 1887 (24 Stat. 388), as amended (on Form 4–115).

(g) Applications to amend entries (on Form 4–115).

(h)[16] Proofs protested by Forest Service and Chief of Field Division (on Form 4–115). In the remarks column distinguish between protests by forest and field service.

(i) Final certificates issued (on Form 4–115) including, in numerical order, all classes of entries, on the same schedule.

45.[17] Proper dates to be shown in first columns.—The date shown in the first column of the above classified schedules of serial numbers, required under paragraph 44, except (i) must, in each instance, be the date the paper reported thereon was filed in the district land office. The date in the first column of (i) to be the date of issuance of the certificate. Observe care to show in the first column of (a) date of the last action taken or paper filed; also instructions contained in paragraph 47 when preparing this schedule.

46. Papers to be reported.—Items must not be reported on the above classified schedules of serial numbers, required under paragraph 44, unless the papers pertaining thereto are transmitted with the monthly returns, or have been forwarded special during the month. When transmitted special the date of transmittal must always be noted in the remarks column.

47.[18] Rejected applications, etc., should in certain instances be reported on more than one schedule.—Whenever a rejected application, etc., is transmitted for which a separate classified schedule of serial numbers is required always report such application on the separate schedule provided therefor, with notation "Rejected," as well as on the classified schedule of rejected and closed cases; that is, a rejected application for sale of isolated tract, when transmitted, must be reported on the classified schedule of applications for sale of isolated tracts, and on the classified schedule of rejected and closed cases, etc.

48.[19] Serials to be reported in numerical order, except on schedule furnished foresters.—Serial numbers must be reported on all schedules in numerical order, except the classified schedule reporting change of status of entries within National Forests, required under paragraph 52. On the classified schedules of serial numbers, when reporting papers transmitted in connection with an original homestead entry and on an additional thereto, after report of the original entry note "See add'l (giving number)," and report the serial number of the additional entry, in its numerical order, with notation "See orig. (giving number)."

49.[20] How to arrange schedules.—The original schedules of serial numbers must be arranged in the order listed in paragraphs 40, 42, and 44; the duplicates must be arranged in similar order separately from the originals. The blank spaces at the top of each sheet of the schedules must have the name of the land office and the month and year inserted. Each sheet of the classified schedules (required under paragraph 44) must be properly designated at the top, as "Rejected and closed cases," "Desert Land Yearly Proofs," "Applications for sale of isolated tracts," etc.

50.[21] Numbers must not be abbreviated; sheets to be numbered.—Do not abbreviate serial and receipt numbers on abstracts and schedules of serial numbers. If a schedule or abstract consists of more than one sheet the sheets must be numbered at the bottom.

51.[22] Schedules to be sent to C. F. D.—At the same time the returns are forwarded to this office, each month, you will transmit to the Chief of Field Division copies of the classified schedules of rejected and closed cases and relinquishments.

DISTRICT FORESTERS

52.[23] [24] Schedule to be furnished.—A classified Schedule of Serial Numbers (on Form 4–115), reporting in chronological order all applications, final certificates, relinquishments, and cancellations of entries within the limits of National Forests must be forwarded direct each month to The District Foresters. Such schedule should not be furnished the General Land Office, or the Forester, Forest Service, Washington, D. C. On request the district foresters should be furnished the status of unperfected entries as may be called for by them on forms to accompany their requests. When any excessive amount of data is required by the Forest Service, that bureau will detail a clerk to obtain the information and relieve the local land office of any burdensome requirement. Prompt attention should be given to all requests from The District Foresters.

CERTAIN PAPERS TO BE TRANSMITTED SPECIAL

53.[25] The following, for which separate classified Schedules of Serial Numbers are not required, must be transmitted special during the month, and not with the returns:

[24] See Circulars Nos. 410, p. 1005, and 417, p. 1006.

[25] See amendment, p. 134.

(b) Suspended cases of special nature, concerning the action on which the local officers are in doubt, which may be submitted to the General Land Office for consideration. There must be attached to each case so transmitted a note of explanation briefly setting forth the facts. The date of transmittal must be noted opposite report of the serial number involved in each instance on the classified Schedule of Serial Numbers, if a classified schedule is provided; or, if the application, etc., involved was assigned its serial number during the month when the paper is transmitted, the date of transmittal must be noted in the remarks column of the general Schedule of Serial Numbers.

(c) Applications to contest and protests against State, railroad, forest reserve, and individual claimant's selections.

(d) Copy of each application to contest allowed by the local officers with the words "For G. L. O. files" plainly written in the margin.

54. Letters, reports, etc., must not accompany accounts and returns.—Letters relating to accounts and returns must always be sent separately from the accounts and returns, in order that they may receive prompt attention and not become lost or overlooked among the entry or other papers. Additional evidence, reports, etc., called for by the General Land Office must be transmitted by special letters when received in the district land office, and proper notation made on your records. Care must be observed to give the serial number of the application or entry involved in all such special transmittal of evidence and reports. With every such special transmittal, either a formal letter report, provided in particular cases, or, in special instances, a short letter report should accompany the same.

TIMBER AND STONE APPLICATIONS

55. Method of transmitting and reporting.—One copy of each timber and stone application must be transmitted with the returns for the month during which the same is accepted, with the status plainly shown thereon. The other copy should be forwarded to the Chief of Field Division for appraisal, after complete notation on the Serial Number Register, which will suffice for the record thereof until return of the appraisement made by the Chief of Field Division, with which appraisement the duplicate copy should be retransmitted to the district land office and acted on in accordance with the regulations of November 30, 1908, as revised January 2, 1914. Where applicants to purchase under the timber and stone law fail to make proof and payment within the time provided therefor under the law and regulations, there should be forwarded to the General Land Office, with the returns for the month within which the time for making payment or filing of proof expires, all papers relating to the application, with a short letter report attached thereto of the fact that no proof or payment has been made thereon, observing paragraph 63. Notation should be made on the Serial Number Register and on the Tract Book "(date) payment not made, closed," or "(date) no proof filed, closed." On the Serial Number Register should appear the additional notation "all papers forwarded to G. L. O. (date of transmittal and month's returns)." A line should be drawn through the notation on the plats. The serial number of the closed timber and stone application must be reported on the classified Schedule of Rejected and Closed Cases, for the month transmitted, with notation in the remarks column "Payment not made, closed," or "No proof filed. closed." Upon suspension or rejection of a timber and stone application, both copies thereof should be retained in the district land office during the period allowed for perfection of same or for appeal. If appeal is filed or the application is finally rejected, both copies should be transmitted with the returns for the month during which appealed or finally rejected.

NOTICE OF ALLOWANCE

56. Must be given promptly.—Every applicant and entryman shall be given prompt and due notice of the allowance of an application, entry, proof, etc., as required by circular of August 7, 1908 (37 L. D. 60). In the case of original applications, there is a form letter provided (Form 4–279) which must be immediately delivered or mailed to the applicant upon the allowance of the application in order that there may be no justifiable excuse for failure to comply with the law as to the establishing of residence, etc. The receipt issued is not in any case to be treated as a notice of allowance of the application, entry, proof, etc. In the case of a final entry, the notice of allowance is a duplicate of the register's certificate, which duplicate copy must be plainly marked across its face "Duplicate."

FINAL CERTIFICATES

57. Must show all receipt numbers.—Final certificates in connection with all entries must show the numbers of all receipts issued in connection with the entries beginning with the receipt in connection with the original application to enter, in the upper right-hand corner, in numerical order. These numbers can readily be obtained from the Serial Number Register, which, of course, should show the numbers of all receipts issued in connection with an entry.

58. One certificate covering two or more applications or proofs.—In the case of an original and additional homestead entry by the same person on which one final proof covers both entries, separate final certificates must not be issued. One final certificate should be issued, showing thereon both serial numbers, with the abbreviations "Orig." and "Addl." after the respective numbers. Likewise, in cases where an applicant for an isolated tract sale purchases noncontiguous tracts, the sale of which was made under one application, one certificate should issue covering all the tracts purchased by the same person, showing thereon the same serial number as the application, if the applicant is the purchaser. If purchased by one other than the applicant, current number should be given the certificate as directed by paragraph 15.

REJECTED APPLICATIONS, ETC.

59. Final disposition must be noted.—Rejected applications, proofs, etc., must be held for appeal, and transmitted to the General Land Office with the returns for the month during which the appeal is filed, or for the month in which the time allowed for appeal expires.

There must be attached to each rejected application, proof, etc., a "rejection slip" (Form 4–659), or copy of notice of rejection, and the final disposition must be plainly noted on such rejection slip, or copy of notice of rejection, before the papers are transmitted with the monthly returns.

RELINQUISHMENTS

60. Notations by register.—The register will note on each relinquishment, over his signature, the day and hour of its receipt, and will write the words "Canceled by relinquishment" (giving date) opposite the record of the entry in the serial number register and tract book and draw a line through the notation on the township plat. Whenever a relinquishment is filed on any other form except the relinquishment blank (Form 4–621) the register will immediately attach such instrument to the regular blank form either by staples or paste, preferably the latter, in order to enable persons handling same to readily recognize nature of the paper.

ENTRY PAPERS AND ABSTRACTS

61. Must not be folded.—All application and entry papers and all abstracts and accounts, with the monthly returns, must be transmitted FLAT, not folded.

ENTRY PAPERS

62. Must not be transmitted with accounts.—Application or entry papers, with the monthly returns, must be transmitted FLAT, in a separate package or packages from the receiver's accounts. Where the returns consist of more than one package, registers will note on each package the number of packages transmitted, and the number of each particular package, as "5 packages, No. 2." Such information will enable this office to determine without examining the returns when same have been received complete. The name of the local office should, of course, be shown on all envelopes and packages forwarded. The general Schedule of Serial Numbers and the classified schedules of serial numbers must accompany the application or entry papers. Observe care to arrange such schedules as directed in paragraph 49.

63. Must be fastened together at the top.—All papers belonging to the same application, entry, proof, etc., EXCEPT THE CARBON COPIES OF RECEIPTS, sent with your monthly returns, must be fastened together with the stapling machine provided therefor. (Adjust guide on machine so that the papers will be fastened not more than one-fourth inch from the top.) All papers must be fastened at the top, in the center. Do not use more than one staple.

ARRANGEMENT OF PAPERS

64. Must be arranged numerically.—Arrange all applications and entry papers submitted with your monthly returns numerically, without regard to the kind or class of application or entry. There is no objection to arranging leaves of absence under the acts of June 6, 1912, and December 20, 1917 (farm labor), in separate packages with your returns.

65. Arrange the papers in each case according to their dates, with the latest dated, or issued, paper on the top. Arrange papers with the top and left edges even.

NOTATIONS ON PAPERS

66. Exact time of receipt must be shown.—Application and entry papers should not be briefed. The date and hour of receipt of ALL papers must be noted in the upper RIGHT-hand corner. Observe instructions contained in circular 512.

67. Serial, receipt, and old numbers.—The serial and receipt numbers must always appear on the upper RIGHT-hand corner of EACH application or entry paper. If a number under the series of numbering in use prior to July 1, 1908, is involved, such old number and KIND of application or entry must be noted under the serial number, as "HE 3926," "DLE 4630," etc.

68. Acts of Congress and area.—The date, or dates, of any acts under which an application, entry, etc., is made must be noted on such papers, together with the area embraced thereby. Type and type holders have been furnished the local offices for this purpose.

69. Additional entries should always bear the notation of the serial number of the original entry in the space provided therefor on the application blank.

70. Moneys earned to be shown on papers.—Receivers have been furnished hand stamps for stamping on papers the amount of money "earned" in connection therewith. This notation should be made in the upper LEFT-hand corner of the paper. It is of utmost importance that the stamp should be used in all cases and that the amounts be accurately noted, as the triplicate abstracts have been dispensed with and the receipts are forwarded to the Auditor for the Interior Department with the accounts of receivers.

71. Dates moneys are applied to be shown on papers.—Excepting only the initial and any intermediate payments which may be shown on final certificates, you will indicate on all applications, selections, etc., and final certificates immediately beneath or following the receipt number, or numbers, shown thereon, date the amounts represented by them were applied. This notation may be made either by pencil or band dater. Original fees, commissions, first payments, etc., and final commissions, coal-land purchase money, etc., must, of course, be applied upon allowance of applications and issuance of final certificates, respectively.

RECEIVERS' ACCOUNTS

72.[26] Forms of remittances.—Receivers of public moneys may accept cash, currency, and certified checks when drawn in favor of the receiver on national and State banks and trust companies located in the same city as the depository with which the deposits are to be made, and such "out of town" certified checks as can be cashed by them without cost to the Government. United States postal money orders may be received and accounted for as cash when they are made payable to the order of the receiver by the post office where they are issued and drawn on the post office where the receiver is located.

[26] See amendment, p. 140.

Receivers must not accept, or issue receipts for, remittances tendered in any other form. (Treasury Cir. No. 11, Mar. 27, 1913.)

RECEIPTS

73. Form of.—Receivers of public moneys will use form of receipt blank, Form 4–131, for all moneys collected by them, and for all certificates of deposit on account of surveys, military bounty land warrants, certificates of location, etc., which, under any act of Congress, may be received as cash in payment for lands. When the warrants or certificates of location are not tendered as cash receivers will issue receipt only for the fees paid in connection with the "locating" thereof.

74. When to issue.—Receivers must issue receipts for the full amount of money tendered at the time the money is tendered and must not have any money in their custody or control beyond the day of its receipt for which receipts have not issued.

75. Significance of.—The issuance of a receipt by a receiver of public moneys does not mean that the application, entry, proof, etc., in connection with which it is issued, is allowed or approved, or will be allowed or approved. It merely means that the receiver has received the money and that it is in his custody or control until it is applied or returned.

76. How to issue.—Receipts must be issued in consecutive numerical order. Each receiver must use the lowest numbered receipt furnished him first. Receipts must always show the serial number of any application, entry, etc., in connection with which they are issued, and the area, price, etc.

77. Alterations not to be made.—Any receipt that needs correction before delivery, or is mutilated or spoiled in any manner, should be marked plainly across its face "Canceled," and be placed in proper numerical order with the copies of receipts transmitted with the receiver's accounts and another receipt issued. After delivery, where receipts are returned to receivers or recalled by them for correction, the receiver will indorse the correction across the face of the receipt and certify to same.

78. Allowances not to be indicated.—The word "Entry" must never appear upon receipts; the words "Application," "Proof," etc., should be used. Receipts must not indicate the action taken on the paper in connection with which issued, due notice of which will be given. (See 37 L. D. 60.)

79. Carbon copies.—The carbon copy of the receipt must show the signature of the receiver, preferably in carbon, as evidence that both original and copy were signed simultaneously. The original will be delivered to the payor. Carbon copies of receipts must be transmitted monthly in consecutive numerical order, with the lowest numbered receipt on top, with the receiver's accounts.

80. Receipt for coal lands.—A memorandum copy of each receipt issued in connection with coal-land declaratory statements, applications, and entries must be forwarded direct to the Director of the Geological Survey, which memorandum shall be prepared by means of carbon paper on a blank sheet at the time the original receipt is prepared. The description of the land involved should be shown on the copy furnished the Geological Survey, which must contain all data and insertions of the original receipt, including the receipt number.

DISPOSITION OF MONEYS

81. Deposit to official credit.—Receivers must deposit all moneys received to their official credit as "Trust funds—Unearned moneys" and forward copies of certificates of deposit, Form 6599, to the General Land Office.

82. Surplus amounts.—Surplus amounts in excess of legal requirements should, in the event that final action can not be taken immediately upon the paper in connection with which tendered, be returned with a notice of the action taken; otherwise surplus amounts should be retained by the receiver as "trust funds" (which will hereafter be alluded to as "Unearned moneys") until final action on the paper is had.

83. Expenses of depositing public moneys.—Registers and receivers making shipments by express of moneys to their depositaries should see that the express receipts or waybills indicate the amount of each kind of money contained in each package shipped. If this information is not stated on the express receipt or waybill, forming a subvoucher to the express voucher, the amount must be shown on the voucher of the express company where receivers make payment for such shipments.

84.[27] When to deposit.—Treasury regulations require receivers of public moneys living in the same city or town with the Treasurer or Assistant Treasurer of the United States, a Federal reserve bank, or a national bank depositary, to deposit their receipts at the close of each day to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States. Officers at such a distance from a depositary that daily deposits are impracticable must forward their receipts as often as they amount to $500, and at the end of each month without regard to the amount then accumulated. (Treasury Circular No. 105a, 1917.)

UNEARNED MONEYS

85.[28] The following class of money may be held by receivers of public moneys with unapproved applications, proofs, etc., as "unearned moneys" and returned:

(a) The five and ten dollar payment and commissions, together with any excess purchase money tendered in connection with homestead applications.

(c) Commuted homestead purchase money.

(f) Testimony fees in connection with desert land final proofs, when the testimony is not reduced to writing in the local land office.

(g) Moneys received for transcripts of records and plats when the condition of the local land office will not permit of the work being done therein and the applicant desires the work done by others.

(h) Railroad and State selection fees.

(i) Moneys tendered under any special act of Congress, or decision or regulation of the department, which specifically provides for the return of such moneys by the receiver in the event of rejection or disallowance of the paper in connection with which tendered.

[28] See amendment, p. 154.

(j) Money tendered with applications where the land applied for is not subject to entry.

(k) Moneys tendered with applications which show on their face that the applicant is not entitled to make entry.

(l) Timber and stone purchase moneys tendered in advance of submission of proof.

(n) Moneys tendered with any application to make entry or proof where a withdrawal as a transmission line is made under the act of June 25, 1910 (36 Stat. 847), and the land withdrawn is to be excluded from the patent pending computation in the General Land Office of the area for which deduction of fee, commissions, or purchase price (if any) is to be made.

(o) Fees tendered with timber and stone applications, to be returned to the applicant where, for any reason other than fraud, the sworn statement is rejected prior to the submission of proof. Upon the submission of proof the fee together with the purchase money tendered will be applied.

(p) Coal-land purchase money tendered prior to completion of proof as permitted in paragraph 18, Circular 557. Such payments must, of course, be applied upon issuance of final certificate.

(q) Moneys tendered with applications for amendment, pending receipt of notice from this office of allowance or rejection of same, when they should be earned or returned.

(r) Purchase moneys tendered with applications, pending allowance or rejection of same, when they should be earned or returned.

86. How to apply and earn moneys.—All moneys will be applied by the receiver, drawing his official check therefor in favor of the Treasurer of the United States against his account of "Unearned moneys." The disposition of all moneys will be evidenced by the official checks of receivers, and they must note on all checks the numbers of the receipts and serial numbers which issued for the money covered thereby. Checks so drawn should be deposited to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States on account of the particular fund for which drawn, and in the event that any receiver's designated depositary will not accept checks so drawn the General Land Office should be immediately advised and the matter will be taken up with the Treasury Department for appropriate instructions to the depositary.

OFFICIAL RECORDS OF RECEIVERS OF PUBLIC MONEYS

87. For moneys received and deposited to official credit.—The receiver will use Form 4–103, making notations as indicated by the column headings of this form. No space is provided for the addresses of parties, and in those cases where such addresses are not to be found on the Serial Number Registers, for example, where moneys are tendered in connection with requests for plats, the address should be noted on Form 4–103, using a separate line therefor. Receivers must observe especial care in noting the date and disposition of moneys on this form in the column entitled "Date applied or returned," using "A" or "R" as appropriate. The receiver may use a separate line of this form for surplus amounts or for any portion of the amount received that is to be applied separately from the remaining portion. Testimony fees should always be entered on a separate line. Certificates of deposit, Form 6599, should be noted on Form 4–103 in proper chronological order, immediately under the receipts covered thereby. Accounts should not be held in the local office beyond the period allowed by law awaiting receipt of certificates of deposit, but forwarded promptly to this office and the amount reported as in transit but not covered by certificate of deposit.

88. For moneys returned or applied.—Receivers will use for their records as to the disposition of moneys Forms 4–103a, 4–103b, and 4–103f. As these forms do not have any space for the name of the depositor great care must be observed to note the correct receipt and serial number, if the latter be involved.

89. For moneys deposited with Treasurer.—The receiver will make notations on Form 4–106, "Abstract of Treasury deposits," of all certificates of deposit issued to him, as indicated by the column headings of the abstract.

90. Filing.—One binder should be maintained for Form 4–103, and one binder for Forms 4–103a, 4–103b, 4–103f, and 4–106. In this way the receiver will have one record book showing all moneys received and another record book showing the disposition of such moneys.

91. Return of moneys.—Moneys must be returned by the official check of the receiver and in no other manner, with notation on such check showing receipt and serial numbers involved.

92. The receiver must hold moneys as unearned until the period for appeal has expired, unless waiver of appeal is filed. If an appeal is taken, the money must be held as unearned until the same is disposed of, when, according to the final action taken, the money should be applied or returned. Observe in this connection paragraph 85.

93. Checks not to issue less than 50 cents.—Following the ruling in 2 L. D., 200, that excess payments less than $1 will not be insisted upon, and for the administrative reason that the return of small amounts by the official checks of receivers has tended to increase the amount of outstanding checks—as checks for a few cents are frequently never cashed—receivers will not issue official checks for the return of an amount less than 50 cents. In all transactions where the amounts are tendered over the counter, the receiver will, of course, make change and issue receipts for the amount of money retained by them. The small surplus should be earned with the balance of the remittance.

ACCOUNTS OF RECEIVERS OF PUBLIC MONEYS

94.[h] Annual outstanding list of unearned items.—Receivers at land offices located in Alabama, Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Kansas, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, and Montana will prepare, in triplicate, on the typewriter, an itemized list on Form 4–103 of all "Unearned moneys," that were in their custody or control at the close of business on March 31 of each year. Receivers at land offices located in Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington, Wisconsin, and Wyoming will prepare a similar list at the close of business on September 30 of each year. All copies of this list must be forwarded to the General

[h] See amendment, p. 164.

Land Office with the receiver's accounts for the months of March or September of each year, as the case may be. One copy of this list, after verification in the General Land Office, will be returned to the receiver.

95. When to apply moneys.—When an item is to be applied, it must be reported upon the proper abstract of moneys returned or applied, as indicated by the column heading thereof. The date reported on the abstract of moneys returned or applied must be the date the money is applied or returned, and should coincide with the date of the certificate of allowance, if any.

96. Forms to be used.—Receivers must render the following monthly, in duplicate, showing the month and year at bottom of each page, which should be numbered:

(b) 4–103a. "Abstract of moneys returned or applied." On this abstract must be reported chronologically, as "Returned" or "Applied," the following:

All items returned by the official check of the receiver, the check number to be inserted in the column indicated.

All payments to contest clerks, with number of voucher therefor; the oath on the reverse of this abstract should be executed by the receiver when payments to contest clerks are reported thereon, which should also show that the words have been counted and found correct.

All moneys credited the United States, as homestead fees, homestead commissions (both original and final), and commissions and other fees from whatever source.

All moneys credited the United States as "Sales of public lands."

Checks drawn for moneys earned should be properly shown in column provided therefor.

(c) 4–103b. "Abstract of moneys applied." This abstract will be used only in those offices where moneys from sales of town sites or Indian lands are received. The date of the act involved should be inserted in the blank space at the heading of the columns provided therefor, together with the name of the town site or reservation, using a separate column for each town site or reservation.

(d) 4–103f. "Abstracts of moneys applied or paid to appraisers." This abstract will be used for reporting moneys credited the United States on account of sales of Government property, and for payment to appraisers for reappraisement of timber and stone lands under the instructions of November 30, 1908 (37 L. D. 294), with the voucher number therefor inserted in the column indicated.

(g) 4–104a. "Receiver's account current." This form is to be used for both the monthly and quarterly "account current." A monthly "account current" for each of the first two months only in a quarter is required. A quarterly "account current" covering all three months of a quarter, to be rendered in duplicate, is required. Monthly "accounts current" should not be rendered in duplicate.

97. How to state accounts.—Form 4–103 should first be prepared from the record copy of the same, and its total carried to the credit side of the "account current" (Form 4–104a) on the line of "Collections as shown by abstracts," in the column "Trust funds—Unearned moneys."

98. Form 4–103a should then be prepared from the record copy of this abstract. The total of the column "Returned to depositors" should be carried to the debit side of the "account current" (Form 4–104a) on the line "Returned to depositors as shown by abstracts," in the column "Trust funds—Unearned moneys." The total of the column " Fees and commissions," including the subcolumns " Homestead fees," " Cancellation fees," and " Commissions and other fees " should be carried to the credit side of the "Account current " on the line "Applied as shown by abstracts," in the column " Fees and commissions." The total of the column " Sales of public lands " should be carried to the " account current " on the line "Applied as shown by abstracts," in the column " Sales of public lands."

99. The total of each column of Form 4–103b should be carried to the credit side of the " account current " on the line "Applied as shown by abstracts," in the columns of the " account current " corresponding to the columns of the abstract.

100.[29] A copy of Form 4–106 will be mailed by the receiver to the Director of the Reclamation Service. The totals of the columns of this abstract will be carried to the debit side of the " account current," on the line " Treasury deposits as shown by abstracts," and distributed through the various columns of the " account current," corresponding to the columns of the "Abstract of Treasury deposits." Cash in transit to depository on the last day of a quarter must be included in the balance on hand and shown in the analysis of balance on the face of the " account current." Credit therefor should be claimed in the month and quarter shown by the date of the certificate of deposit covering such cash.

101. Form 4–106a will be used for reporting the papers indicated thereon received as cash and will be carried to the debit side of the " account current " on the line " Military bounty land warrants, scrip, certificates of location, etc., received as cash, as shown by abstracts," distributed over the various columns of the " account current " according to the purpose for which the paper was received as cash, and the fund to which, if cash had been received, the same would have been deposited. This abstract performs the same functions as the "Abstract of Treasury deposits," Form 4–106, in enabling the receiver to obtain credit for items debited to himself on the various abstracts of moneys and the various abstracts where the cash equivalent of such papers was reported as cash.

102. Recapitulations.—Add to the totals of columns on the last page of an abstract for the last month of each quarter the totals of the columns of the corresponding abstract for the two previous months of the quarter.

103. Account current.—The preparation of the " account current " (Form 4–104a) has been explained in the preceding paragraphs, except as to line "Applied, as shown by abstracts," on the debit side. This line should show in the column " Trust funds—Unearned moneys " the amount shown in the total column on the corresponding line of the credit side of the " account current." Receivers, in every case, must sign the certificate on the face of the " account current," and also the first indorsement thereon. The register, in every case, must sign the certificate on the "account current " as to the examination of moneys in the hands of the receiver. As to the rendition of accounts current, see Comptroller's Decisions, vol. 19, page 103.

TRANSMITTAL OF ACCOUNTS

104. Monthly accounts must be mailed within 10 days after the date of the expiration of the period for which rendered.

Quarterly and other accounts must be mailed within 20 days after the expiration of the period for which rendered. When accounts are not rendered within the statutory period (28 Stat. 209), an explanation of the cause of delinquency must be furnished in order that proper steps may be taken with the Treasury Department to have the bar to advances of funds waived.

105. All papers constituting receiver's accounts must be transmitted flat—not folded—and arranged in the following order:

(b) "Abstract of moneys received." (Form 4–103.)
(c) "Abstract of moneys returned or applied." (Form 4–103a.)
(d) "Abstract of moneys applied." (Form 4–103b.)
(e) "Abstract of moneys applied or paid to appraisers." (Form 4–103f.)
(f) "Abstract of Treasury deposits." (Form 4–106.)
(g) "Abstract of military bounty land warrants, etc." (Form 4–106a.)
(h) "Receiver's account current." (Form 4–104a.)

Arrange the duplicate forms in like manner.

HOW TO FIND BALANCE OF UNEARNED MONEYS

106. Monthly accounts.—(1) Total the "Abstract of moneys received" (Form 4–103), which would be the aggregate amount of money received for the month or other period for which rendered. (2) Add to this total the balance brought forward from the preceding month. (3) Deduct from this total (a) the total amount of moneys returned during the month, (b) the total amount paid contest clerk during the month, (c) the total amount paid to appraisers during the month, (d) the total amount deposited to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States during the month, (e) the amount paid register and receiver in abatement of receipts when authorized.

The difference thus ascertained will be the total balance with which the receiver is chargeable. The total amount on deposit with his designated depository or depositories, together with the cash on hand in office safe, may exceed this balance. Therefore the aggregate amount of all outstanding checks should be deducted therefrom. This difference should equal the amount of the receiver's true balance.

107. Quarterly accounts.—Follow the same procedure as set forth with reference to monthly accounts, except that the balance brought forward should be that on hand at the end of the last month of the prior quarter, and the totals will be for the entire quarter.

108. How to determine whether amount of cash on hand in office safe is correct.—Strike a balance as directed in paragraph relating to monthly accounts, including receipts for the current day; deduct from this total all deposits of "unearned moneys."

COMPENSATION OF REGISTERS AND RECEIVERS

109.[30] Registers and receivers are allowed a salary of $500 a year without regard to the character or amount of work done by them (sec.

[30] See Circular No. 1152, p. 154.

2237, Revised Statutes), except in Alaska. In addition to this salary they are entitled, under section 2238, Revised Statutes, and other laws, to commissions on moneys received at the receiver's office and to certain fees for specific services rendered by them.

Sec. 2240, Revised Statutes, provides:

> The compensation of registers and receivers, including salary, fees, and commissions, shall in no case exceed in the aggregate $3,000 a year each; and no register or receiver shall receive for any one quarter or fractional quarter more than a pro rata allowance of such maximum.

The term "year" as used in this section relates to the fiscal year beginning July 1 and ending June 30. (Sweet v. United States, 34 Ct. Cl. 377; 3 Comp. Dec. 606.)

Section 2241, Revised Statutes, provides that compensation received in any land office in excess of the maximum allowed by law to the register and receiver shall be paid into the Treasury as other public moneys.

Under the decision of the Comptroller of the Treasury dated June 18, 1915, registers and receivers are each entitled to 1 per cent commissions on cash sales of Indian land (unless such commissions are designated or restricted by the act of Congress authorizing the sales), not to exceed the maximum compensation provided by section 2240, Revised Statutes.

In computing the compensation of the local land officers the following order will be observed:

(a) Salary.
(b) Cancellation fees (earned by the register only).
(c) 1 per cent each on sales of public land.
(d) 1 per cent each on sales of Indian land.
(e) Commissions and other fees.

The excess of the maximum earnings of any month within a fiscal year may be applied to minimum of earnings of any month within the same fiscal year, but the excess of maximum earnings of one fiscal year must not be applied to the minimum earnings of another year.

The excess of earnings of one appointment must not be applied to the minimum earnings of another appointment, even though it be of the same officer, and within the same fiscal year. (13 Comp. Dec. 313.)

Ex-officio registers and receivers at Fairbanks and Nome, Alaska, are allowed only such fees and commissions as are provided by law, not to exceed $1,500, as their maximum earnings, whereas registers and receivers of other land districts except Juneau, Alaska, where a salary of $1,500 per annum is allowed, are allowed a maximum of $2,500 on account of fees and commissions.

110. Vacancy in office.—A vacancy in the office of register or receiver disqualifies the remaining incumbent from taking official action upon papers requiring the joint action of said officers until the vacancy has been filled and the new officer enters upon his duties. (9 L. D. 365; 12 L. D. 297; 14 L. D. 133; 20 L. D. 276; and 22 L. D. 704.)

FEES AND COMMISSIONS

111. In Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming the following fees and commissions are chargeable by law, to be collected by registers and receivers and which enter into the computation of their compensation, except the homestead fee.

112. Declaratory statements.—

Preemption declaratory statement	$3.00
Soldiers and sailors' homestead declaratory statement	3.00
Coal land declaratory statement	3.00
Reservoir declaratory statement (act of Jan. 13, 1897)	3.00

113. Mineral applications and adverse claims.—

For filing and acting upon each application for a patent	$10.00
For filing and acting upon each adverse claim	10.00

Fees in connection with mineral land applications and adverse claims are earned irrespective of the action taken on the application or adverse claim. Coal applications must be accompanied by a fee of $10, as they are held to be "mineral applications" by comptroller's decision of July 25, 1911. (Appeal No. 20295.)

114. Timber and stone applications.—

For filing and acting upon each application to purchase timber and stone lands	$10.00

See Circular No. 576.

For 80 acres, at $1.25 per acre:

		11.00
For 40 acres, at $2.50 per acre:

		8.00

Fees and commissions in connection with homestead applications are not earned unless the application is allowed.

NOTE.—A fee of $10, with proper commissions, will be collected in connection with homestead applications where the area involved is 81 acres or more. (See Circular Nov. 14, 1914, 43 L. D. 449.) Proper commissions, original and final, are based upon the area involved unless restricted by special act of Congress.

116. Final homestead commissions.—

For 160 acres, at $1.25 per acre	$6.00
For 80 acres, at $1.25 per acre	3.00
For 40 acres, at $1.25 per acre	1.50
For 160 acres, at $2.50 per acre	12.00
For 80 acres, at $2.50 per acre	6.00
For 40 acres, at $2.50 per acre	3.00

NOTE.—The commissions must be tendered with the homestead proof, together with testimony fees at 22½ cents per 100 words. The commissions are not earned unless the proof is approved.

117. Military bounty land warrants.—

For locating a 160-acre warrant	$4.00
For locating a 120-acre warrant	3.00
For locating a 80-acre warrant	2.00
For locating a 60-acre warrant	1.50
For locating a 40-acre warrant	1.00

The moneys are earned irrespective of the action taken.

No fees are chargeable on warrants issued prior to February 11, 1847.

Revolutionary bounty-land scrip is received and accounted for as cash, and no fee is chargeable to parties presenting such scrip.

Receipts must issue for the military bounty land warrant tendered, indicating thereon the cash value of same and the date of issuance of warrant, number thereon, serial number of case involved, act of Congress under which issued, name of party to whom issued, last assignee, area of land granted under the warrant, and the description of the land and the area thereon for which the warrant is accepted in payment. The receipts should show as a separate item any cash that may be tendered with the warrant.

The warrant should be accounted for on Form 4–103 as a separate item with a full description thereon, as shown by the receipt.

If the item is "earned" it should be accounted for on Form 4–103a under the heading of "Sales of public lands," and in the place of the check number should be set forth "M. B. L. W. No. ———," accounted for on Form 4–106a in accordance with the instructions contained in Circular 304 and debited the United States in the account current under "Sales of public lands" on the line of military bounty land warrant, scrip, and certificates of location received as cash, as shown by abstracts.

Before returning a warrant to the applicant the receiver should first obtain a receipt therefor, which should set forth the same data as that indicated at the time of tender, and file same with the Form 4–103a, in which the item is set forth in the "Returned to the depositor" column as "M. B. L. W. No. ———, see voucher." The warrant must not be set forth on the abstract of certificates of deposits for earned moneys deposited to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States.

118. Porterfield warrants (act of Apr. 11, 1860).—For locating these warrants the same fees are chargeable as are allowed for military bounty land warrants. The moneys are earned irrespective of the action taken.

119. Sales of public lands.—The commissions of registers and receivers on cash sales of the public lands are paid by the United States, and no fees or commissions on such sales are chargeable to the purchasers, except in cases of homestead entries on ceded Indian reservations affected by the act of May 17, 1900 (31 Stat. 179), and commuted under the provisions of the act of January 26, 1901 (31 Stat. 740), in which cases the entryman is required to pay a commission of 2 per cent on the cash price of the land (31 L. D. 106). In cases of timber sales in Alaska, the Comptroller of the Treasury has held that the sale of timber is a sale of lands and that the register and receiver are entitled to 1 per cent each commissions on sales of such timber. In cases of sales of Indian lands appropriate instructions will be given as to the collection of commissions, and when the commissions are collected from the entryman, in addition to the purchase price for the Indian lands, the commissions are not earned unless the proof is approved, although the purchase money in many instances may be earned irrespective of the action taken upon the proof.

120. State selections.—

For each final location of 160 acres (or fraction thereof) under any grant of Congress to States (except for agricultural colleges)	$2.00

No fees are chargeable on State swamp-land selections, but a fee of $2 is to be collected on each location of 160 acres, or fraction thereof, made with swamp-land indemnity certificates.

NOTE.—(a) This money is not earned unless the selection is approved. For method of computing State selection fees see paragraph No. 121.

(b) The enabling act (36 Stat. p. 557) provides that the fees to be paid to the register and receiver in the States of Arizona and New Mexico for each final location or selection of 160 acres made thereunder shall be $1.

121. Railroad selections.—

For each final location of 160 acres (or fraction thereof) by railroad or other corporations	$2.00

In computing the amount of fees payable on a list of State or railroad selections, the receiver will divide the total area by 160; the quotient will be the number of 160-acre selections on which a fee of $2 each is chargeable. Should the quotient consist of a fraction over a whole number, the legal fee of $2 will be collected for such fraction.

NOTE.—The moneys are not earned unless the selection is approved.

122. Agricultural college scrip.—

For each piece of agricultural college scrip located	$4.00

NOTE.—This money is earned irrespective of the action taken.

123. Private land scrip, Valentine scrip.—

For each piece of scrip filed on unsurveyed lands	$1.00
For each location of scrip	1.00

NOTE.—The moneys are earned irrespective of the action taken.

124. Supreme Court scrip.—No fees or commissions are allowed on the location of Supreme Court scrip, nor on the location of Indian scrip, or other private land scrip, except as specifically provided for by law.

125. Reducing testimony to writing.—Fees for reducing testimony to writing are allowed at the rate of 22½ cents for each 100 words, in the following cases:

(1) Making final proof in preemption cases when the writing is done in the local land office.

(2) Making final proof in commuted and noncommuted homestead and timber culture cases, irrespective of the fact whether or not the writing is done in the local land office, as the fees are allowed for "examining and approving the proof."

(3) In establishing claims to mineral lands. However, at present there is no proof in mineral lands which would be reduced to writing in the local land office and entitling the collection of testimony fees. (Sec. 12, act May 10, 1872.)

(4) In establishing claims to timber and stone lands, when the testimony is reduced to writing in the local office.

(5)[31] In hearings before registers and receivers in contest cases.

Registers and receivers of the United States land offices will employ clerks for reducing testimony to writing in contest cases when such clerical assistance is required in their offices. No specific authorization for the employment of such clerks will be required, nor will such clerks be required to file an oath of office. However, these clerks must attach a certificate, signed by them, to the testimony transcribed in each case, to the effect that such testimony is a true and literal transcription of the verbatim report taken at the hearing. Clerks employed for this work should be qualified as competent stenographers and typewriters and must furnish their own supplies.

The compensation to be paid such clerks will be not to exceed 15 cents per 100 words in the following States, where the amount to be collected from the contesting parties is 22½ cents per folio: Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming.

The compensation to be paid such clerks will be not to exceed 10 cents per 100 words in the following States, where the amount to be collected from the contesting parties is 15 cents per folio: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Kansas, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, and Wisconsin.

Contest clerks are allowed 5 cents a page for copies of testimony furnished either party. (38 L. D. 615.)

When the reducing to writing, in a contest case, is done by regularly appointed employees of local land offices, the total amount received must be deposited to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States.

No compensation will be allowed contest clerks for docketing. Docketing of contest cases and all other notations on the contest docket will be done by the registers or receivers or by the regular salaried employees of the local land offices.

The estimated cost of reducing to writing all the testimony to be taken before the register and receiver in a contest case shall be collected in advance from the contesting parties on the date of the hearing before the hearing has begun, or, under rule 57 of Practice, the party liable thereto may be required to give security in advance of the trial by deposit in a reasonable sum or sums, for payment of the cost of transcribing the testimony. Receipts (Form 4–131) will issue for the amounts collected and must show the number of words and the rate per hundred. If any additional amounts above the estimated cost are collected, additional receipts will issue therefor and the amounts deposited to the official credit of the receiver as hereinafter directed. Moneys so receipted for will be deposited to the official credit of the receiver of public moneys as "Unearned moneys" and so held until the complete record in the case, in connection with which deposited, has been transcribed and filed in the local land office, and payment will then be made to the contest clerk, after securing proper voucher therefor, and the net balance, exclusive of such payment, deposited to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States, and any excess amount returned to the proper parties.

[31] See Circular No. 904, p. 136.

Report will then be made of such collections and expenditures on Form 4–103 and Form 4–103a. (See par. 53 et seq. of Rules of Practice.)

(6) In making final proof on desert-land claims, when the testimony is reduced to writing in the local land offices. (See 36 L. D. 481.)

In computing the fees for reducing testimony to writing, only the words actually written must be charged for and no charge should be made for the printed words. (See pars. 10, 11, and 12, sec. 2238, U. S. Rev. Stats.) The words written must be counted and the charge made in accordance with the result of such count. Registers and receivers must not have a uniform fee of a specific sum in every case of the same class of proofs.

126. Transcripts from records.—Registers and receivers are entitled to charge at the rate of 10 cents per 100 words for making transcripts of their records for individuals. (Act of Congress of Mar. 22, 1904.)

A transcript is a literal copy of the words, letters, and figures which make the record. The correctness of the transcript may or may not be certified to, but it is nevertheless a transcript.

Registers and receivers of consolidated land districts only are entitled to charge, for furnishing any other record information, such fees as are properly authorized by the tariff existing in the local courts of their district.

Record information is held to be any official statement of the facts appearing of record, a certificate, and for which they are entitled to charge the fee as above authorized.

In the absence of the State fee bill, providing for such fee, registers and receivers will be entitled to charge the fee allowed clerks of courts for furnishing certificates of their records, and in the receipt for the amounts so collected will cite the section and page of the State statute or other authority for such charge.

While it may often be desirable for any register and receiver to furnish record information, there is no authority for others than officers of consolidated land districts to collect a fee therefor.

The fees allowed to public officers are matters of strict law, depending upon the very provisions of the statute, and are not subject to discretionary action on the part of officials.

Consolidated districts are those districts into which one or more previously existing districts have been merged.[1]

(See Cir. 315, dated Apr. 24, 1914, 43 L. D. 226.)

127. Plats and diagrams.—Under the second section of the act of March 3, 1883, authorizing a charge to be made for plats, diagrams, etc., the fees for the same are hereby fixed as follows:

For a diagram showing entries only	$1.00
For a township plat showing entries, names of claimants, and character of entry	2.00
For a township plat showing entries, names of claimants, character of entry, and number	3.00
For a township plat showing entries, names of claimants, character of entry, number and date of filing or entry, together with topography, etc	4.00

[1] The instructions contained in Circular No. 315 have been substantially restated in paragraph 126, supra. Circular No. 315 has been omitted from this publication.

The plat or diagram must be of standard size (Form 4–590b), and it must be a correct and complete delineation of the particular township. There is no legal authority under said statute for registers and receivers to furnish a plat of a section or subdivision, or any other fraction of a township, and to charge or receive therefor a proportionate part of the authorized fee.

128. Lists for taxation purposes.—For lists of lands sold, which are construed to mean lists of final certificates furnished State or Territorial authorities for the purposes of taxation, 10 cents per entry. The receipts must show number of final entries and rate per entry.

129. Cancellation fees.—

For giving notice to contestants of the cancellation of any homestead, preemption, or timber-culture entry	$1.00

Officers charging or receiving illegal fees, compensations, or gratuity are subject to summary dismissal from office, in addition to the penalties provided in title "Crimes," chapter "Official misconduct," United States Revised Statutes. Illegal fees received by clerks, employees, or agents are received by the land officers within the meaning and prohibitions of the law, and registers and receivers will be held personally and officially responsible therefor.

CHECKS

150.[32] Checks returned unclaimed.—Where checks issued by receivers for return of unearned moneys have been returned as unclaimed they should be retained in the possession of the receiver, to be delivered to the payee when applied for. After the expiration of five years from the date the moneys covered thereby were originally received by the receiver, such checks should be transmitted with the return of outstanding checks (hereinafter provided for), in which they are included, to this office, which will forward them to the Secretary of the Treasury, who will place the amounts thereof to the credit of the appropriation "Outstanding liabilities" and the personal credit of the payee, as provided by the act of March 2, 1907. (See 34 Stat. 1245.)

151. Outstanding checks—Return required.—Receivers of public moneys should not deposit to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States on account of "Outstanding liabilities" the amount of unearned moneys on hand for five years or more that are represented by checks issued by them for the refund of such moneys to applicants which remain outstanding, but they should make a return, in duplicate, of such checks to this office at the end of each quarter and they will be forwarded to the Secretary of the Treasury.

152. Outstanding checks—Return when receiver retires.—Whenever any receiver of public moneys shall cease to act in that capacity, he should at once inform the Secretary of the Treasury what checks, if any, drawn by him are still outstanding and unpaid. If the checks are in his possession, he should transmit them to this office with a schedule thereof, in duplicate, for reference to the Auditor for the Interior Department for file with his schedule to await claim of payees for delivery to them.

153. Outstanding checks—Amounts to be determined.—As it is necessary for the receiver in order to balance his account to know the amount of outstanding checks, he should carefully examine and compare with his records of checks issued, the monthly statements of paid checks from the Treasurer of the United States, making notations on stubs of checks of the payment or cancellation thereof.

MISCELLANEOUS

154. Moneys tendered for lands in other districts.—A tender of money in connection with an application for lands not situate in the receiver's land district must be receipted for by him and the amount thereof deposited as "Unearned moneys" and immediately returned to the party tendering same by the receiver's official check, together with the application with which tendered, after giving the latter current serial number and making proper notations thereof upon the serial register. Due report of the receipt and the return of the money must, of course, be made in the receiver's accounts and of the application thereof in connection with which tendered, upon the "General schedule of serial numbers," with notation in the "Remarks" column. For example, "Application returned, lands in Seattle district."

In returning such moneys the receiver will advise the party remitting same of the reason therefor, and that he may immediately forward his application, together with the check returning his remittance, properly indorsed, to the receiver for the land district in which the lands desired are located. In this connection, however, applicants must be advised by receivers that checks issued by receivers of public moneys will in no case be accepted as a form of remittance in connection with any other application than that of the original remitter, as more than one indorsement on such checks will prohibit their acceptance by receivers of public moneys. If any checks of this character should be forwarded to a receiver in connection with applications for lands in his district, which applications were originally presented to another land office, the receiver will issue receipts therefor and account for the amounts thereof under existing regulations.

155. Reappraisement of timber and stone lands.—The money deposited to cover the cost of reappraisement of timberlands under the circular of November 30, 1908, as revised to August 22, 1911, should be retained by the receiver as " Unearned moneys " pending reappraisement. The appraisement will be made by party designated by the chief of field division, and before making payment in accordance with paragraph 24 of said circular the receiver should secure a voucher (Form 4–152), signed by the appraiser, and certified by the chief of field division who employed him. This voucher should be forwarded with memorandum copy thereof with the receiver's "Abstract of moneys applied or paid to appraisers." (Form 4–103f.)

156. Sales of Government property.—Moneys received at land offices from proceeds of sales of any property should be deposited as "Unearned moneys," recorded on Forms 4–103 and 4–103f, and received and applied in the same manner as other moneys. Such moneys should be deposited to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States as "Miscellaneous receipts, proceeds of Government property." Certificates issuing therefor must show on the back thereof, in detail, what property was sold and a copy of the letter of the General Land Office authorizing the sale must be furnished and attached to the abstract. (Form 4–103f.)

OUTSTANDING LIABILITIES

157. Act of March 2, 1907 (34 Stat. 1245).—At the end of each quarter receivers will prepare, in triplicate, on Form 4–103, an itemized list of all unearned moneys which have been on hand for five years or more, giving thereon the date each item was originally received, the receipt number, if any issued therefor, the name and address of the remitter thereof, and the purposes of its tender, which list shall bear the certificate of the register and receiver that the same is correct; that the amounts are due and payable; that due diligence has been exercised to the return of same; and that the sums specified have remained unclaimed for a period of five years or more. (35 L. D. 568.)

Where amounts appear on receiver's records, and the remitter can not be identified, a separate list upon Form 4–103 shall be made thereof, in triplicate, showing the amount, and, if possible, the date of receipt of each item and whatever other information is available for identification, which list shall bear the certificate of the register and receiver, that after careful investigation the ownership of such moneys could not be determined, and that they have been reported in the unearned account for five years or more.

The total of each list above provided for will be separately deposited to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States as "Outstanding liabilities," lands, act of March 2, 1907 (34 Stat. 1245).

158. Repayment of outstanding liabilities.—Application for the return of unearned moneys that have been transferred to the Treasury under the act of March 2, 1907, should be stated by the applicant in the following form:

BONDS

159. Receiver's new bonds—Balances.—As to receiver's accounts, it is required that the receiver transfer to his accounts under his new bond (or to his successor when he has not been reappointed) all moneys which constitute his balance of "unearned moneys" at the close of business on the last day for which he is to render accounts under his old bond. The balance due the United States embraces both "unearned" moneys and "earned" moneys. If the depositary is not in the same town with the receiver, the account should be extended to include the date of the last certificate of deposit, and same should be included in the "Abstract of Treasury deposits."

160. Rendition of accounts time.—Final accounts under any bond must be rendered within 20 days from the date preceding the date of the approval of the new bond.

161. Balance from United States.—The balance due FROM the United States embraces the balance due to the receiver because of overdeposits, credit differences, etc.

162. Certificate of deposit.—All receivers of public moneys must secure SEPARATE certificates of deposit (Form 1A) for moneys or balances deposited as receiver and as special disbursing agent, and the proper funds, appropriations, etc., must appear upon all certificates of deposit. The certificates of deposit must also clearly show that they are moneys or balances deposited "Under bond dated --."

163. Closing accounts when relinquishing office.—When relinquishing his office, the receiver will prepare, in TRIPLICATE (Form 4–103), a list of all "unearned moneys" in his possession at the time of relinquishing such office, all copies of which the receiver will forward to the General Land Office with his final accounts. The triplicate copy will, after it has been checked with the records of the General Land Office, be transmitted to his successor. The outgoing receiver should transfer by his official check the amount of such list to his successor as soon as he has been officially notified that his successor has entered on duty and his bonds approved.

164. Deposits on relinquishing office.—The receiver of public moneys must deposit to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States on account of various funds—"Sales of public lands," "Fees and commissions," etc.—all moneys which are earned at the time of relinquishing his office, and he should deposit to his official credit, as receiver of public moneys, all "unearned moneys" on hand at that time.

165. Fractional accounts.—The receiver must render fractional quarterly account when necessary up to and including his last day in office.

166. Death of receiver.—In case of vacancy caused by death of the receiver his final accounts should be prepared and certified to by the register as shown by the records.

167. Disbursements.—No payments will be made by the receiver as special disbursing agent of the land office for any salaries or expenses that may have accrued for a fractional month, except semimonthly payments to clerks on the 15th, but he will deposit all balances of moneys advanced him as such officer less outstanding checks to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States on account of the various appropriations from which advanced. Care should be observed that the certificates of deposit issuing for such deposits clearly show the appropriations. Unpaid claims should be forwarded to the General Land Office for settlement.

168. Entrance on duty and instructions.—When a receiver is notified that his bonds have been approved he is authorized to receive, when he enters on duty, all "unearned moneys" which the outgoing receiver has been directed to transfer to him by his official check, and which, when received, he must immediately place to his credit as receiver of public moneys as "unearned moneys" with his official designated depositary.

The new receiver must not return or apply any of this money until the list thereof, which his predecessor will forward with his final accounts, has been approved by the General Land Office, when it will be transmitted to him, and he will be duly notified as to its approval or any discrepancies therein and authorized as to the return or application of the amount covered thereby.

The incoming receiver should receipt to the outgoing receiver, in duplicate, for receipt blanks, by numbers, one copy of which should be forwarded with the final accounts of the outgoing receiver.

Special Disbursing Agents

ACCOUNT CONSISTS OF WHAT

169. The account of a disbursing officer consists of a complete, continuous, itemized record of his receipts and disbursements (the latter term being herein used to include expenditures and deposits to personal credit), as shown by his bond, requisitions, abstracts of collections, checks, vouchers, subvouchers, cash receipts, abstracts of expenditures, accounts current, and cash account, which will be considered in the order named, and the account for any specific period should include only such fiscal transactions as are completed within that period, as evidenced by the dates appearing on checks, cash receipts, accountable warrants, and certificates of deposit.

ACCOUNT BEGINS WHEN

170. A disbursing officer's account under any bond must begin from the date of approval of such bond by the Secretary, without reference to the date on which funds may be advanced thereunder, except that in cases where a bond given in connection with a particular appointment is approved prior to the date on which such appointment becomes effective, the account should begin on the date the appointment is to take effect.

RECEIPTS

ADVANCES

171. Authority for.—Advances of public money to disbursing officers are authorized by section 3648, Revised Statutes.

172. Conditions precedent.—Before an advance of public funds can be made to any officer or employee of this bureau he must execute a bond for the careful discharge of his duties and the faithful disbursement of and an honest accounting for all moneys, public funds, and property coming into his hands, and such bonds must be approved by the Secretary of the Interior. And if funds are already in hand under a former bond he must deposit such balance and close his account.

173.[33] Requisitions.—When a disbursing officer has filed a proper bond and with it the three cards showing his autograph signature, he may make requisition for an advance of public funds. This requisition must always be made on Form 4–531, must be mailed without other inclosure except in cases where a letter of explanation is necessary, and must show the following facts:

(b) The balance under each appropriation on the date the requisition is transmitted.

[33] See Circular No. 1106, p. 149.

(c) The total balance on hand.

174. Requisitions, special cases.—Special disbursing agents who make requisition for funds from the appropriation for "Deposits by individuals for surveying public lands" should show the specific amounts to be used in connection with mineral or agricultural surveys and in connection with railroad surveys, giving the initials of the railroad company in connection with the latter. And whenever the terms of a general appropriation allow the use of not to exceed a maximum named for some specific purpose requisitions for any amounts to be used for the specific purpose must indicate the amount requisitioned for such specific purpose. A failure to enter the balance on hand under each and all appropriations, or to give any other information hereinabove required, will result in a delay in the advance of funds.

175. Requisitions, funds of other bureaus.—If requisitions include a request for funds of some other bureau set aside for use by this office, two memorandum copies should be furnished, but if a separate request is made for funds of the other bureau one memorandum copy only is required. Requisitions for Indian moneys should cite the Indian Office authority, as, for example (Land—Allotments, C. E. F., 32191–15, March 26, 1915).

176. Requisitions made special.—All requests for funds are made special by this office and are promptly forwarded through the Secretary of the Interior to the Treasury Department for the issuance of warrant.

177. Notice of advance.—A copy of the requisition made by this office is in each case forwarded to the disbursing officer as notice to him of the fact that the original of such requisition has been forwarded to the Treasury Department.

178. Make requisition early.—As there will necessarily be some delay in view of the large number of requisitions received in the Treasury Department each quarter, disbursing officers should mail their requests in sufficient time to permit of their reaching this office at least 10 days before the funds are needed.

179.[34] Funds not to exceed bond.—Funds can not be advanced in excess of the amount of the disbursing officer's bond, and he should in no case make requisition for an amount which, added to the total of the balance on hand from all appropriations, would exceed the amount of his bond.

180. Appropriation titles.—Treasury regulations require that the titles of appropriations, as shown in all estimates, disbursements, accounts, and vouchers, shall be exactly as such titles appear on the books of the Treasury. These titles are correctly shown on the memorandum copy of the requisition mailed to the disbursing officer, and he should use such memorandum copy in posting the amounts to the several appropriations, being very careful to credit the United States with amounts under the exact titles as reported to him.

181. Fiscal year an important part of title.—The fiscal year is an important part of the title of annual appropriations and should in no case be omitted. Appropriations are ordinarily made for a specific fiscal year, ending in each case with June 30, and the appropriation is available for payment of expenses incurred or services rendered during the fiscal year ending with June 30 of the year shown in the title. For example, "Protecting public lands, timber, etc., 1918," indicates that the appropriation was made for the payment of services rendered or articles purchased in accomplishing the object indicated during the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1917, and ending June 30, 1918.

While the same quantity of supplies may be purchased in June as would under the same needs of the service be purchased in any other month, notwithstanding the fact that such supplies may not all be consumed during that month, no additional quantity should be purchased for the purpose of using an unexpended balance of annual appropriations. (Sec. 3690, R. S.; 6 Comp. Dec. 818; 7 Comp. Dec. 793.)

182. Fiscal year—When title includes two.—The use of two years as a part of the title of an appropriation indicates that the appropriation is available from the date of the approval of the act to the end of the succeeding year. For example, the appropriation for "Classification of lands involved in Oregon & California Railroad forfeiture suit, 1917 and 1918," was available from April 17, 1917, the date of the passage of the act, till June 30, 1918.

183. Check books.—Requisition in duplicate on Forms 1231 and 1231a for a supply of checks sufficient in each case to last six months should be made on the Secretary of the Treasury, allowing six weeks for printing and delivery in normal times.

184. Depositary.—All funds advanced to disbursing officers are placed to their official credit with the Treasurer of the United States, on whom all checks should be drawn and with whom all public funds should be deposited, deposits being made through convenient designated United States depositaries.

185. Embezzlement.—Every officer or agent of the United States who deposits, converts, loans, withdraws, transfers, or applies public money in any manner, except as authorized by law, is deemed guilty of embezzlement, and is liable to a heavy fine and imprisonment. (Secs. 5488, 5491, and 5492 Revised Statutes.)

186. Official credit defined.—Whenever funds are placed or deposited with the United States Treasurer to the credit of a disbursing officer, and subject to his official check as such, the deposit is said to be to his official credit. Any amount collected or conceded pertaining to a current appropriation should be deposited to official credit (Form 6599) in accordance with section 3620, Revised Statutes, Treasury Circular No. 102, 1906, and Treasury Circular of January 18, 1913. Credit for such deposits should not be claimed in the account current.

187. Personal credit defined.—Whenever a special disbursing agent deposits an amount to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States on Form 1A, not subject to his official check, the deposit is said to be to personal credit. Any amount collected or conceded pertaining to an appropriation not then current or belonging to "Miscellaneous receipts" should be deposited to personal credit. Certificates of deposit for "Miscellaneous receipts, proceeds of Government property," should have indorsed on the back a detailed list of the property sold. Credit for deposits to personal credit only should be claimed in the account current.

COLLECTIONS

188. In addition to the amounts advanced by Treasury warrant, special disbursing agents may occasionally receive funds from other sources, such as for the sale of Government property (collections from which should be deposited to personal credit on account of "Miscellaneous receipts, proceeds of Government property"), refund on mileage or scrip books (which should be deposited to official credit if the appropriation is current, and to personal credit if it is not current, on account of the appropriation from which the books were originally purchased).

189. Amounts recovered or withheld from carriers.—Moneys recovered from common carriers, whether in cash or by deduction, for value of lost or damaged property, should be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts on account of "Proceeds of Government property." (Secs. 3617 and 3618 Revised Statutes; 22 Comp. Dec. 379, 703.)

190. Expense of sale to be deducted.—Whenever the sale of Government property is authorized and there is an expense in connection with such sale the expense, supported by proper subvouchers, should be deducted from the gross receipts and the net proceeds only should be deposited to personal credit under "Miscellaneous receipts, proceeds of Government property." The officer conducting the sale or receiving the proceeds thereof should furnish the following certificate:

> I hereby certify that the above statement is true and correct, and represents the actual amount received and expended.

(Treasury Circular 6, Jan. 9, 1897.)

191. Abstracts of collection.—For any collection made by a disbursing agent "Abstracts of collection" (Form 4–106b) must be rendered in duplicate, on which should be shown the date of receipt, the name of the party from whom received, the amount, and the appropriation or fund to be credited. Collections from different funds should be kept distinct.

192. Receipts for office work.—Moneys received by the United States surveyors general for work to be done in their offices should be accounted for in accordance with Circular No. 483, dated June 29, 1916.

DISBURSEMENTS

EXPENDITURES

193. Advance decisions by comptroller.—Section 8 of the act of Congress approved July 31, 1894 (28 Stat. 208), provides:

> Disbursing officers, or the head of any executive department, or other establishment not under any of the executive departments, may apply for and the Comptroller of the Treasury shall render his decision upon any question involving a payment to be made by them or under them, which decision, when rendered, shall govern the Auditor and the Comptroller of the Treasury in passing upon the account containing said disbursement.

All requests for decisions by the comptroller must be submitted through the Secretary of the Interior.

194. Conditions precedent to.—The conditions necessary before a disbursing officer may pay any claim are that he shall have filed a bond; that the bond shall have been approved by the Secretary; that he shall have made requisition on this office for an advance of funds; that this office shall have requested the Treasury Department to make such advance; that the necessary amount from the particular appropriation shall have been placed to his official credit with the United States Treasurer; that he shall have knowledge of the funds being so placed; and that a voucher made up in the prescribed form shall have been presented to him for payment. (Secs. 3623 and 3678 Revised Statutes; 4 Comp. Dec. 317, 568; Comp. Dec. Sept. 23, 1908.)

CHECKS

195. In general.—Payments should be made by check unless it is impracticable to make payment in that manner; the checks to be numbered in the order in which they are drawn, beginning with No. 1 for the first check and continuing in one series so long as the officer or employee continues as a disbursing officer (checks are numbered when printed in accordance with officer's requisition—Form 1231); each check should bear the date on which it is drawn; should be in favor of the party, by name, to whom the payment is to be made (except when drawn for cash under paragraph 301); should agree in amount with the voucher in payment of which it is drawn; must show on the face or back "the object or purpose to which the avails are to be applied," the purpose being clearly but briefly indicated in some such form as "Pay," "Pay roll," "Purchase of subsistence," "Purchase of supplies," "Pay and expenses," etc.; and must be identified with the voucher upon which it is issued in payment by having noted thereon the number of the voucher. (For outstanding see par. 312.)

196. Check stubs.—The title of the appropriation should be noted on the check stub, together with the date, name of payee, and voucher number, but it is not necessary that the appropriation should be shown on the check.

197. Issuing duplicate checks.—Immediately upon the loss of a check, the owner, to better protect his interest, should, in writing, notify the office or bank on which it was drawn of the fact of such loss, stating the name of the disbursing officer or agent by whom it was drawn, describing the check—giving, if possible, its date, number, and amount—and requesting that payment of the same be stopped. The disbursing officer or agent who issued the original check should also be notified. The necessary instructions relative to the issuance of duplicate checks (Treasury Circular Form 1343, Apr. 14, 1916) and blank indemnity bond may be obtained on application to this office. (Secs. 3646—as amended and reenacted by acts of Feb. 23, 1909, and Mar. 21, 1916—and 3647, Revised Statutes.)

198. Spoiled or canceled checks.—Spoiled or canceled checks should be sent quarterly direct to the auditor for preservation and future reference.

VOUCHERS IN GENERAL

199. Forms of vouchers.—A voucher made up in the prescribed form may be a "Voucher for personal services" (Form 4–665a), a "Pay-roll voucher" (Form 4–112), a "Voucher for services and traveling and other expenses" (Form 4–152), a "Voucher for witness's services" (Form 4–665e), a "Voucher where testimony is taken by deposition" (Form 4–665d), or a "Voucher for purchases and services other than personal" (Form 4–665b). These vouchers will be discussed later in the order named.

200. To be in favor of claimant—Assignments void.—All vouchers must be stated in the name of the person, company, or corporation rendering the service, and checks drawn by disbursing officers in payment of such vouchers must be in favor of the party, by name, to whom the payment is to be made, and payable "to order," the assignment of claims upon the United States being prohibited by section 3477, Revised Statutes.

201. To be filled in before signature.—All vouchers must be completely filled in by the payee, or before signature by the payee, without alteration or erasure at any time; and all vouchers (except vouchers for personal compensation for services rendered under the personal supervision of some administrative officer and so certified by him, and vouchers for services and traveling and other expenses) must be certified by the claimants as correct and just.

202. Signature to.—Each voucher must be signed with the full name of the payee and, if signed by an agent, with the full name of his authorized agent, the relation of the agent to his principal being shown in all cases where a voucher is signed by other than the payee. When a voucher is signed in the name of a firm, company, or corporation, the name of the person writing the firm or corporate name, as well as the capacity in which he signs, must appear, and if a signature is made by mark, the mark must be witnessed by a disinterested party.

203. Certifying officer.—All vouchers, before payment by a disbursing officer, must be certified to as correct by some administrative officer, such as United States surveyor general, supervisor of surveys, assistant supervisor of surveys, United States surveyor or transitman, register or receiver of United States land office, chief of field division, special agent, mineral examiner, timber cruiser, practical miner, detailed clerk, etc.

204. Approving officer.—The commissioner is approving officer for expenditures from any appropriation under his control; surveyors general are approving officers for vouchers covering the salaries and expenses of their several offices; the supervisors of surveys and assistant supervisors are approving officers for vouchers pertaining to surveys in the field, and it is required that all such vouchers shall receive the approval of one of these officers; registers and receivers are approving officers as to the expenses of their own offices, and chiefs of field divisions are the approving officers for the expenditures in their respective divisions. Ordinarily when a voucher would be approved by the same officer that has certified to the service represented thereby his signature on the same voucher as an approving officer is not required. The approval of a voucher by a disbursing officer serves no purpose whatever; they are not approving officers. The space for approval on vouchers sent to Washington, D. C., for direct settlement must be left blank by the usual approving officers in the field, because such vouchers must be approved by the commissioner or assistant commissioner.

205. Numbering.—Vouchers should be numbered in the order in which they are paid, without reference to the character of the voucher, the period of service covered, the appropriation chargeable or whether the voucher is supplemental to one already paid. The first voucher paid by a disbursing officer during a fiscal year will be numbered 1 and the others in numerical order in a single series throughout the fiscal year. The filing of a new bond during the year in no way affects this series of numbers.

206. Appropriation to be shown on voucher.—The full and correct title of the appropriation chargeable must be indorsed in the proper place at the top of each voucher and each memorandum copy thereof, and if a voucher is chargeable to two or more appropriations the title of each appropriation must be shown, together with the specific amount chargeable to each appropriation. In the latter event the time chargeable to each or other facts controlling the division between the appropriations must be shown on the voucher or in a statement attached thereto.

VOUCHERS FOR PERSONAL SERVICES

207. For personal service, including pay rolls.—A payment to one individual for personal services should be supported by a "Voucher for personal services" (Form 4–665a), and, where several employees are paid at one time, as at the end of the month or at the close of a particular period, a "Pay-roll voucher" (Form 4–112) should be used. Services of the entire office force, or of the field party, for a particular period may be listed on a single "Pay-roll voucher," although chargeable to several appropriations, if the names are grouped according to appropriations. Whichever form of voucher is used it should not cover services in more than one month.

208. Pay-roll vouchers, etc.—Must show what.—Vouchers covering personal services must show the name (first name, middle initial, and surname, or first initial, middle name, and surname—John M. Doe or J. Marcus Doe), the dates, inclusive, of service, the rate of compensation, and the amount, and if there are any days excepted from the number included in the dates inclusive of service, the specific days excepted must be shown. Care should be taken that on the first voucher an employee's name (especially field assistants) shall be written fully, correctly, and legibly, and that on each succeeding pay roll the name shall be entered in the same manner or explanation made as to the reason for any change. Do not write John M. Doe one time, J. Marcus Doe another, or John Doe, Mark Doe, J. M. Doe—write the names uniform on all vouchers.

209. Payee's certificate omitted.—If vouchers covering personal services are rendered without the certification of the payee under paragraph 3 of the Treasury Circular No. 52, dated July 29, 1907, which provides "that vouchers for personal compensation for services rendered under the personal supervision of some administrative officer and so certified by him, need not be certified by the claimant, provided the voucher describes specifically the position, the rate of compensation, and the period covered," those conditions must be fulfilled. The term "assistant" does not describe specifically the position of an employee.

210. Personal service defined.—The comptroller, in Treasury Circular No. 36, June 21, 1911, defines personal services as "services which are personal in character—that is, which consist in acts of particular persons, performed by virtue of a contract (express or implied), or by virtue of the existence of an official relation, which places the skill or ability of the persons rendering such services under the continuous direction and control of another (employer or official superior) during the period of service * * *."

211. Computation of salaries.—The act of Congress approved June 30, 1906 (34 Stat. 763), providing for computation of annual or monthly compensation, has been construed by the comptroller under date of March 24, 1917 (23 Comp. Dec. 793), as requiring that—

> 1. Each calendar month shall consist of 30 days, and the computation of salary shall be by each month separately, one-twelfth of an annual salary constituting the compensation for each month.
> 2. One-thirtieth of a monthly installment of salary is to be allowed for each day of service from the 1st to the 30th, inclusive. The last day of February counts as three days of service for pay purposes (two days in leap years).
> 3. The 31st day of a month enters into the computation of salary only where there is one day's absence in a nonpay status on that day—that is, absence in a nonpay status did not occur also on the 30th. For such absence on the 31st one day's pay is forfeited.

212. Per diem rates of compensation.—The above method of computation applies only to annual or monthly compensation of persons in the service of the United States and not to per diem rates of compensation, rents, or livery, which are explained in paragraph 299. Except where otherwise specified, field employees at a per diem rate of compensation will be allowed payment for Sundays and legal holidays included within the period of service.

213. Rate in Alaska.—An employee who receives a higher rate of compensation or per diem in lieu of subsistence while in Alaska is not entitled to such higher rate before arrival at an Alaskan port in going nor after departure from an Alaskan port in returning, and all vouchers including the commencement or completion of a period at the higher rate must show time of arrival at or departure from Alaska.

214. Oath of office.—Section 1757, Revised Statutes, as amended by section 2 of the act of Congress approved May 13, 1884, provides that "any person elected or appointed to any office of honor or profit either in the civil, military, or naval service of the United States," shall take and subscribe the following oath:

> I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign or domestic; that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that I take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion; that I will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office on which I am about to enter. So help me God.

215. Oath to be filed before payment.—The comptroller has held (4 Comp. Dec. 95) that a person employed or appointed to any position not created by law and payable from a general appropriation is not an officer within the meaning of section 1757, Revised Statutes, and that, therefore, the taking of an oath in such cases is not a condition precedent to the right of compensation. However, as the regulations of this department require all classified employees to take an oath of office in form as above quoted, disbursing officers are not authorized to make payment to such employees until the required oath has been filed.

216. Services before taking oath.—As soon as the necessary oath has been filed payment of compensation may be made from the date of entrance on duty notwithstanding the fact that the oath may not have been taken until some time subsequent to the date of entrance on duty.

217. Expense of taking.—In no case is an employee entitled to reimbursement for the expense incident to taking the oath of office.

218. Salaries of statutory clerks.—The salaries of clerks, chiefs of divisions, etc., of this office are paid by the chief disbursing clerk of the department on a pay roll certified by the Secretary on a certificate from this office as to the changes in the office force during the month, and no other disbursing officer should pay salaries of any such employees unless he is specifically directed to do so.

VOUCHERS FOR SERVICES AND TRAVELING AND OTHER EXPENSES

219. Traveling expenses—Only actual to be allowed.—The act of Congress approved March 3, 1875 (18 Stat. 452), provides:

> That hereafter only actual traveling expenses shall be allowed to any person holding employment or appointment under the United States, except marshals, district attorneys, and clerks of the courts of the United States and their deputies; and all allowances for mileages and transportation in excess of the amount actually paid, except as above excepted, are hereby declared illegal; and no credit shall be allowed to any of the disbursing officers of the United States for payment or allowances in violation of this provision.

220. What may be reimbursed.—The Comptroller of the Treasury in a decision dated July 29, 1905 (12 Comp. Dec. 48), holds that:

> Employees are not entitled to reimbursement for expenses of the Government paid by them out of their private funds, except where such expenditures were for services engaged or articles purchased under stress of urgent and unforeseen public necessity or for personal traveling expenses.
> A field employee of the General Land Office may be reimbursed as a part of his personal traveling expenses, for expenditures made by him for guides where their services were necessary and their employment occasional and temporary.
> A field employee of the General Land Office is not entitled to reimbursment for expenditures for "assistants" unless it appears that they were employed under urgent and unforeseen public necessity, and that such employment did not continue for any considerable period of time.

221. Traveling expenses defined.—Unless otherwise provided by law, the expenses of all officers or other persons traveling on duty or other public business for or on account of this office shall be confined to actual and necessary traveling expenses as hereinafter defined.

222. Authority for.—All travel expenses shall be either authorized or approved in writing by the department, by this office, or by some subordinate officer to whom such authority has been properly delegated, and, except as provided in paragraph 223 following, the authority shall be issued prior to the incurrence of the expense; shall specify the travel to be performed as definitely as circumstances will permit, and shall be attached to the voucher for reimbursement or (if on file in the auditor's office) be referred to therein.

223. Approvals.—(a) Whenever the travel is a necessary and regular accompaniment of the office or place to which an appointment has been made and the general classes of the expense to be allowed are governed by law or are specified in the appointment, or (b) whenever the expense has been incurred on account of an emergency, the approval by this office shall be sufficient authorization. However, all vouchers for reimbursement on account of emergency travel without prior authorization must be accompanied by full and satisfactory explanation of the facts constituting the emergency.

224. Headquarters.—The selection of official stations and the assignment of temporary headquarters is placed under the control of the commissioner, subject to revision by the Secretary on his own initiatitve or upon application of an interested party. The official stations of chiefs of field divisions have been definitely established and special agents, mineral examiners, timber cruisers, practical miners, and other employees in that branch of the service are to be considered as having their official headquarters with the chiefs of their respective divisions. The official station of the supervisors of surveys is Denver; and the official stations of the assistant supervisors of surveys, surveyors, and transitmen are with the surveyors general of the States to which they may be assigned or such other quarters as may be authorized or designated within that city. Field assistants to surveyors will not be assigned headquarters.

225. Change of headquarters.—Employees may be ordered from one division or district to another from time to time and the headquarters of the division or district to which they are assigned will be their headquarters while engaged in such division or district. However, if it is known in advance that the new assignment is purely temporary and that the employee will return to his old headquarters at its termination, and his travel orders state specifically in advance that his headquarters will remain unchanged during the period of detail, his headquarters will remain the same.

226. Route.—All travel performed on official business must be by the shortest practicable route, unless otherwise authorized, and without any unusual or unnecessary delay. The route shall be carefully arranged to avoid unnecessary duplication of travel. When diversion from the shortest practicable route is permitted, the extra expense to be borne by the traveler, the charges for meals shall be limited to the meals which ordinarily would have been taken had the shortest route been traveled, and the extra time consumed shall be charged as annual leave or leave without pay.

227. Limitations and specific exceptions.—Certain limitations on, or specific exceptions to, the general rules governing travel expenses and allowances may here be noted:

Assistants such as are enumerated in paragraph 254 are entitled to sleeping car accommodations, provided the Government is not charged with more than $3.50 for one day for such accommodations and subsistence combined. The principal assistant and assistant chainman may be transported from the headquarters of the State or from their home, if within the State, to the field; other subordinate assistants may be transported from the outfitting point or from the nearest town thereto (not distant from the field more than 50 miles by rail); and those assistants who remain to the close of the season's work may be returned to the point from which they were originally transported. The two assistants first named may be transported from one group to another within the State and the other assistants may be so transported when the distance in each case is no more than 50 miles by rail. Assistants other than the first two may not be transported a distance greater than 50 miles by rail, except (a) in cases where specific and special authority is granted, and (b) in cases where such assistants are employed on one group and taken by successive stages to other groups each no more than 50 miles by rail from the next preceding and, having remained to the end of the season, are then entitled to transportation back to the point from which they were transported, without reference to the distance. If in rare instances cases arise in which it is impossible to engage assistants at the rate of compensation stated in paragraph 254 a statement of the facts in the particular case should be transmitted to this office through the proper channel (assistant supervisor and supervisor of surveys) and authority for paying a greater amount asked, and, if cases should arise in which assistants can not be employed with such travel allowance as is authorized by this paragraph, the facts should be stated by or through the assistant supervisor to the supervisor of surveys who, if the facts seem to warrant, may authorize transportation for a greater distance within the State. Should the emergency in either case be such as to preclude the possibility of securing previous authorization the nature of the emergency should be clearly set forth in writing as directed by paragraph 252.

228. Daily reports.—All detailed clerks and other employees not in the surveying force (who render weekly reports) or regular field service (who submit daily reports) will render daily reports for all periods of service outside of the District of Columbia, adapting Form 4–509, in accordance with circular of September 30, 1916.

Expense vouchers will not be approved until reports for all the days covered thereby are received in this office.

229. Travel expense—On entrance on duty.—Field employees, the nature of whose duties ordinarily require them to travel on duty, whose appointments are signed by the Secretary or the commissioner, will be allowed traveling expenses to their respective divisions or districts, and may, in the discretion of the commissioner, be allowed traveling expenses in returning from the field on separation from the service or on indefinite furlough without pay.

All other employees must place themselves at the place of official duty at their own expense, unless, when employed under lump-sum appropriations, other provision is made as to the payment of traveling expenses as a part of their compensation in their contract of employment and except as herein otherwise provided. Agreements to pay traveling expenses must be made in advance of the incurrence of the expense, and only after authority to enter into such agreements has been properly delegated.

230. Travel expense—On change of station.—A person who is away from his official station on his own business or pleasure must, at the expiration of his leave of absence, report to his station, and if during the absence the station is changed, and the expenses of travel to the new station are not greater than those of return to the former station would have been, there can be no allowance of traveling expenses to the new station. Reimbursement can be allowed for the excess only of the distance from the place of receipt by him of his order to his new station over the distance to his old station. (7 Comp. Dec. 84; 8 Comp. Dec. 190.)

A clerk detailed to temporary duty in the field while on leave of absence is entitled to reimbursement for traveling expenses from the place where he receives his instructions to travel to the place to be visited and return to the place where his instructions were received. (Comp. Dec. Jan. 18, 1915; Jan. 27, 1916.)

ALLOWABLE TRAVELING EXPENSES

TRANSPORTATION

231. Railroad, steamer, and other fares.—Fares upon railroads, stage coaches, steamers, packets, or other usual modes of conveyance. Charges for fares on steamers, packets, or other means of travel by water must show whether meals or lodging, or both, were included without increase of fare over the lowest first-class rate. (For meals on boats see par. 246; for excess fare on trains see par. 252.) Through tickets, excursion tickets, and round-trip tickets must be purchased whenever practicable and economical. (For transportation request see pars. 274–276; for mileage and scrip see pars. 276–281.

232. Excess baggage.—Charges for excess baggage, when the extra weight consists of public property or private property to be used for public purposes. Such charges must be explained. When practicable, excess baggage should be forwarded by freight or express, and if prior authority is procured may be covered by Government bill of lading. When using bill of lading a consignor must deliver shipping order to agent of receiving carrier, send original by first mail to consignee and send blue memorandum copy by first mail to this office (except such as must come through a surveyor general). Mailable articles should be forwarded by mail under penalty label by the Government officer or employee.

233.[35] Special conveyances.—Hire of special conveyances, such as taxicabs or other automobiles, livery, or boat, only when no public or regular means of transportation are available and the necessary incidental expenses connected therewith, such as feed and stabling of horses and the subsistence of driver, ferriage, and tolls. Also services of and subsistence of guide when no driver is employed. If the charges for special conveyance include feed and stabling of horses and subsistence of driver, or any such items, the principal voucher or subvoucher must so state. The advantage and economy of hiring automobiles instead of teams must be shown in connection with all charges for auto hire, and the maximum amount that may be paid by special disbursing agents without specific authorization by the commissioner is $20 a day for hire of each auto. If in rare cases it is necessary to exceed this rate, the excess amounts must not be paid until full explanation has been submitted to the commissioner and receives his approval.

234.[36] Transfer of self and baggage.—Fares on street car, transfer coach, omnibus, or other vehicle, and the transfer of baggage. A charge not to exceed 50 cents for either transfer coach or omnibus, or for the transfer of each piece of baggage, if within the customary rate, will be allowed. Payment in excess of this amount must be explained in writing, and street cars must be used when practicable.

235.[37] Checking and handling of baggage.—Charges for checking or porterage of hand baggage at hotels and stations, not exceeding 10 cents for each piece.

236.[37] Steward fees and steamer chairs.—Customary fees to stewards and others on steamers, as follows: For an ocean trip, not exceeding a total at the rate of $1 per day or fraction thereof; on coastwise steamers, not exceeding 50 cents per day; rent of steamer chair, not exceeding $2. On ocean and coastwise steamers, where meals are not included in the cost of passage, fees to dining-room stewards and dining-room waiters must be included as a part of the maximum daily allowance for subsistence. Fees to porters and cabin or deck stewards on such vessels will be deemed expenses of transportation.

237. Pullman fares and state-room accommodations.—Sleeping-car fare for one double berth, customary state-room accommodations on steamers and other vessels, and fare for one seat for each person in sleeping or parlor car. The subordinate assistants mentioned in paragraph 254 are not entitled to parlor car or seat fare and are entitled to sleeper fare, provided the Government is not charged with more than $3.50 for one day for such accommodations and subsistence combined. Pullman charges must specify whether for a seat or upper or lower berth, and whether for standard or tourist service.

238.[37] Porter fees.—Porter fees on sleepers must not exceed 25 cents per night. Porter fees on sleeping cars used in the daytime or in parlor cars or chair cars must not exceed 15 cents per trip.

SUBSISTENCE

239.[37] [38] Maximum amount allowed.—Act of Congress approved April 6, 1914, provides that:

> On and after July first, nineteen hundred and fourteen, unless otherwise expressly provided by law, no officer or employee of the United States shall be allowed or paid any sum in excess of expenses actually incurred for subsistence while traveling on duty outside of the District of Columbia and away from his designated post of duty, nor any sum for such expenses actually incurred in excess of $5 per day; nor shall any allowance or reimbursement for subsistence be paid to any officer or employee in any branch of the public service of the United States in the District of Columbia unless absent from his designated post of duty outside of the District of Columbia, and then only for the period of time actually engaged in the discharge of official duties.

Therefore, except where otherwise expressly provided by law, subsistence items hereinafter defined in paragraphs 240 to 243 may not be allowed in excess of $5 per day. While in camp surveyors and their assistants will be subsisted from Government stores; such employees in Alaska will, when going to or returning from the field, be allowed reimbursement up to this maximum in cases where a lower rate can not ordinarily be obtained; in the States the maximum for surveyors and their assistants is $3.50 per day, while going to or returning from the field. No employee is allowed subsistence, reimbursement therefor, nor a per diem in lieu thereof while at his official headquarters or at his home, unless his presence in his home town is made necessary in the performance of field duties.

[38] See amendment, p. 127. Also see orders of Oct. 13, 1928, p. 161, and Aug. 1, 1929, p. 164.

240.[37] Meals and lodging.—Meals and lodging when the detention away from headquarters is incident to or necessary for the performance of the duties for which the travel is ordered, and necessary meals en route, but for no items of refreshment other than the ordinary food provided for travelers. Charges for meals must be itemized by meal in every instance.

241.[37] Waiters' fees.—Fees to waiters at hotels or on dining cars or boats not exceeding 10 cents per meal, or 30 cents per day.

242.[37] Baths.—Charges for baths not exceeding 25 cents each while absent from designated headquarters.

243. Telegraph expenses.—Charges for telegrams reserving hotel accommodations.

244.[37] [39] Per diem in lieu of.—Supervisors of surveys, assistant supervisors of surveys, the chief of field service, chiefs of field divisions, special agents, mineral examiners, timber cruisers, and practical miners are allowed $3.50 per diem in lieu of subsistence when engaged in field work or traveling on official business outside the District of Columbia and away from their designated posts of duty, and of these, those employed under protecting public lands, timber, etc., will, while on duty in Alaska, receive $5 per diem under the same conditions. During leave of absence that may be granted no subsistence or per diem in lieu thereof will be allowed from the date that such leave begins to the day that the employee again enters upon active duty in a travel status.

245. To include what.—Per diem in lieu of subsistence is held to be in lieu of the items mentioned in paragraphs 240 to 243, and no charges for any other items of subsistence will be allowed.

246. On board boats.—No per diem in lieu of subsistence will be paid during travel on a boat when the charge for transportation includes meals and berth, but reimbursement for other authorized items of subsistence not included in the charge for transportation may be allowed.

247.[37] Fractional days.—The allowance of per diem in lieu of subsistence being dependent upon absence from official headquarters or designated posts of duty, if the traveler leaves his headquarters before 12 o'clock noon, to be absent on duty the balance of the calendar day, he will be allowed the whole per diem, and when returning to headquarters after traveling from midnight, if he arrives after 12 o'clock noon he will also be entitled to the whole per diem, but if in departing he leaves after noon or in returning arrives before noon only one-half of the per diem will be allowed.

[39] See amendments, p. 127. Also see Circulars of July 3, 1926, p. 146, and March 22, 1928 (No. 1143), p. 153, and Orders of Aug. 11, 1926, p. 146, Oct. 13, 1928, p. 161, and Aug. 1, 1929, p. 164.

If a traveler leaves headquarters any time during the day and returns thereto before midnight, only one-half of the per diem will be allowed.

Per diem will be allowed for days on which the traveler boards or departs from a boat when the charge for transportation includes meals and berth, exactly the same as if the boat were his headquarters. When the whole or half per diem is allowed, no other items of subsistence are allowable for that day.

One-fourth of the per diem allowance shall be deducted for each meal taken in a Government-maintained camp.

Travel expense vouchers shall show the hour and date of each departure from and arrival at headquarters, and each embarkation or disembarkation, and state specifically the meals taken in a Government-maintained camp during the period for which they are stated.

MISCELLANEOUS EXPENSE

248.[37] Telegraph service.—Telegrams and cablegrams on official business at Government rates. Night service should be employed when practicable. Telegrams should be sent as " paid " messages—that is, chargeable to the sender—should be signed by him, and should be marked as follows:

Official business: Government rate. Charge General Land Office. Card No. ———.

Classified employees authorized to travel on duty, as well as surveyors general, are supplied with Western Union and Postal Government rate cards, and their card numbers should be shown on the original messages. If compelled by force of circumstances to pay for the telegram, the necessity therefor should be explained in writing. Charges for telegrams and cablegrams must be accompanied by copies of messages, marked to show whether sent at day or night rate.

249. Telephone service.—Reasonable charges for the use of telephones on official business. Charges for long-distance calls should show with whom the communication was held and the points between which the service was rendered.

250. Freight and express.—Freight and express charges on shipments in connection with official duties in the field, when it is necessary to make payments from private funds, but all such charges must be supported by a statement to the effect that no Government bill of lading was used. Express and freight receipts must be furnished for all such charges, regardless of the amount, showing weight and rate.

251. Incidental expenses.—Charges for ink, mucilage, library paste, and typewriter oil (but for no other items of stationery), and charges for other miscellaneous items of expense peculiar to the exigencies of the work on which employed, such as kodak supplies, developing and printing in connection with cases under investigation. Charges for registry or post-office money-order fees when official business demands either.

252. Emergency expenditures.—Emergency expenditures not enumerated in the foregoing classes, such as payment of extra fares on limited trains when delay would injuriously affect the public interests. In connection with all emergency charges full authority for which does not previously exist the nature of the emergency must be clearly set forth in writing and must receive the approval of this office or of the subordinate officer to whom such authority may have been delegated.

253. Field party expense.—Surveyors in charge of parties are authorized to hire (under proper supervision) the assistants named in paragraph 254; to procure or otherwise arrange for their subsistence en route; to purchase the supplies, utensils, and other minor articles necessary for subsisting them in camp, for maintaining such camp, and for the proper conduct of the surveying work; and to hire the necessary transportation equipment when no Government animals or wagons are available. When such service is temporary and it is impracticable to have them paid by a disbursing officer, expenses of this character may be paid from personal funds, subvouchers to be taken therefor in accordance with paragraphs 264 to 268, inclusive. Subvouchers for subsistence supplies for camp use must show the number of persons composing the field party for the use of which the supplies were purchased. Expenditures from personal funds for items enumerated in this paragraph must be limited strictly to those obligations which it is impracticable to have paid directly by a disbursing officer.

254.[40] Rates of compensation authorized.—Compensation for the surveying service will be limited to the following rates:

Surveyor's principal assistant, teamster or packer, and cook for double party, $60 per month each; assistant chainman, $55 per month each; cook for single party, $50 per month each; all other subordinate field assistants, including axmen, cornermen, flagmen, rodmen, etc., $45 per month each. In Alaska the following rates may not be exceeded except upon special authority from this office: Packers and cooks, $105 per month when hired in Alaska, or $90 per month when hired in the States and their fares paid to Alaska; others $90 per month when hired in Alaska or $75 per month when hired in the States and their fares paid to Alaska. Existing authority to exceed temporarily the above rates of pay is not to be disturbed by this more permanent regulation.

255. Fees advanced to witnesses.—Section 2 of the act of Congress approved January 31, 1903, providing for the compulsory attendance of witnesses in land hearings, provides "that witnesses shall have the right to receive their fee for one day's attendance in advance." When, therefore, an employee of this bureau serves a subpœna on a witness under the act mentioned and the witness at that time demands his fee for one day's attendance and mileage in advance, he may advance the amount from his personal funds, taking a subvoucher therefor, and claim reimbursement in his regular voucher for services and traveling and other expenses. Such items will be listed after the regular expense items, a space being left between, and the employee will indorse in parenthesis over the double line above "date" and "subvoucher number" the amount chargeable to the appropriation for "expenses of hearings in land entries," as "(Hearings, $2.85)."

256.[37] Items not allowed.—Employees will not be allowed reimbursement for exchange paid for cashing drafts or checks received in payment of vouchers for services and traveling and other expenses, nor will they be allowed reimbursement for surgical or medical fees.

[40] See amendments, pp. 137 and 138.

257. Tax exemption.—Payments by employees for freight, express, passenger, sleeping or parlor car, telegraph, telephone, and radio service, incurred in connection with official business, are exempt from the Federal tax imposed by act of Congress approved October 3, 1917 (40 Stat. 314). In cases of transportation, exemption certificate, Form 731, issued by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue (Interior Form 1–398) should be delivered to the conductor or agent in lieu of the tax. In other cases the employee should state that the matter is official business of the United States Government. A certificate should be made on vouchers containing such taxable items, as follows: "I certify that no war revenue tax is included in the above charges."

258. Injuries to employees.—Every civil employee receiving an injury while in the performance of duty should immediately seek first-aid treatment and promptly make report of his injury to his immediate superior. Under act of September 7, 1916 (39 Stat. 742), he is entitled to receive reasonable medical, surgical, and hospital services and supplies, to be furnished by United States medical officers and hospitals where possible, and, during the period of total disability, compensation is payable at the rate of two-thirds of his monthly pay, but can not exceed $66.67 per month. Annual or sick leave, when available, may be used in preference to compensation under this act. Claims under this act are to be settled by the United States Employees' Compensation Commission, Washington, D. C

EVIDENCE OF EXPENDITURE

259. Memorandum of expenses.—Every officer or other person traveling should keep a memorandum of the expenses incurred, noting each item as soon as payment is made

260.[37] The principal voucher.—All accounts for reimbursement on account of travel expense, or other expense the reimbursement of which may be authorized, shall be submitted on the regular voucher form (4–152) approved by the Comptroller of the Treasury; shall be itemized as fully as practicable and in accordance with paragraphs 269 to 273, inclusive, following; shall be supported by subvouchers, as required by paragraphs 264 to 268, inclusive, and shall include the services rendered and expenses incurred during a particular month.

261. How verified.—All travel-expense vouchers, except as noted below, must be sworn to in the manner and form prescribed by law or approved by the Comptroller of the Treasury.

As provided by section 8 of the act of August 24, 1912, affidavits may be executed before a postmaster, an assistant postmaster, a collector of United States customs, a collector of United States internal revenue, the chief clerk of any department or bureau, or the clerk designated by him for that purpose; the superintendent, acting superintendent, custodian, or principal clerk of any national park or other Government reservation; the superintendent, acting superintendent, or principal clerk of any Indian superintendency or Indian agency; the chief of a field party, or a notary public who is in the service of the United States. The officers named are not permitted by law to make any charge for such service and no jurat fee will be allowed therefor.

[37] Modified by Standard Government Travel Regulations.

Affidavits executed before any other officer who has been authorized to administer oaths for general purposes and whose signature is attested by an official seal will be accepted, but no jurat fee will be allowed.

262. Affidavit may be omitted when.—Where the employee is far removed from an officer before whom the oath can be taken, or where, by the taking of such an affidavit, the disclosure of the fact of the presence of a Government officer, agent, or employee at the particular place where such affidavit is taken will be detrimental to the public interests, the oath may be omitted and the account certified on honor as correct, provided the employee shows on the voucher over his signature the place and date of such certification on honor and the conditions which made it impracticable to make affidavit. In cases where the affidavit is omitted the employees should strike out " I do solemnly swear " and insert in place thereof " I certify on honor," and should sign such certificate, after which, on the lines provided for the officer's jurat, he should show the place and date of certification and the reasons which made the affidavit impracticable, which statement he should also sign.

263. False accounts—Penalty.—False or fraudulent representations in connection with the rendition of reimbursement or other accounts are unlawful, and the offender is liable to a heavy fine or imprisonment under the act of Congress approved March 4, 1911 (36 Stat. 1355).

264. Subvouchers—Defined.—A subvoucher consists of two parts, in both of which it must be complete: A receipt showing that a specific amount, written therein in words, was received on the date indicated from the party claiming reimbursement, and an account showing, if for purchases, the date of purchase and character, quantity, and price of the articles, and, if for services, the character of the service or capacity in which employed, dates inclusive of service, number of days, rate per day, or per meal, as the case may be, and amount.

265. Subvouchers—To be filled in before signature.—Subvouchers, like vouchers, must be completely filled in by the payee, or before signature by payee, without alteration or erasure at any time, and must be signed with the full name of the payee or his authorized agent, the relation of the signer to his principal being shown in such cases and if a signature is by mark it must be witnessed by a disinterested party.

266. Subvouchers—When required.—Express and freight receipts will be accepted as subvouchers and must be furnished for all such charges. The weight and rate must be shown.

Copies of telegrams or of cablegrams will be accepted as subvouchers, and must be furnished in support of all such charges. The copy shall show whether the message was sent at day or night rate.

Subvouchers must also be furnished for all other charges in excess of $1, except as noted below in paragraph 267.

267. Subvouchers—When not required.—(a)[41] Subvouchers are not required for railroad or steamboat fares, sleeping or parlor car fares, taxicab fares (see pars. 233 and 234), nor for separate meals specifically named which were not taken in connection with lodging.

(b) Subvouchers will not be required when the taking thereof would disclose the identity of the traveler and the disclosure would be detrimental to the public interest, provided authority for their omission is granted by the Secretary, or by this office.

268. Subvouchers—How stated.—Subvouchers for hotel expense must state the beginning and ending of the full period of service and the rate by the day or week. The " day " shall be considered as beginning with breakfast and ending with lodging. Receipted bills on the regular billheads of the hotel are acceptable as subvouchers, provided they are properly made out to show the entire period and the services rendered.

Subvouchers for livery and other special transportation must describe the service hired, as " one horse and buggy," " two horses and wagon," " with driver; " state the quantity of service rendered, and the rate of compensation by the day, hour, or other unit, as may have been agreed. If the subsistence of driver or team is included in the cost of hire, that fact must be stated.

ITEMIZED STATEMENT OF EXPENSES

269. What shall be included in.—Every item of expense incurred during a particular month must, in every case, be included in the voucher for that month; or, if omitted therefrom or deducted before payment, must be stated in a supplemental voucher for the month to which such expenses pertain, explanation being made in connection with omitted items as to why they were not included in the original voucher.

270.[37] Manner of stating items.—The items of expense shall be stated in the order in which they are paid, the date of payment being shown in the date column and the subvoucher number in the subvoucher column; each item should be carried out separately, except in the case of subvouchers each of which should be stated as one item, and each item should show (a) date of payment, (b) number of subvoucher, if any, (c) the name and address of payee, (d) the character of the service or capacity in which employed, (e) the dates inclusive of service where time is a factor, and (f) the amount, following carefully the sample given under paragraph 273. If an item is not supported by a subvoucher the charge in the itemized statement should set forth all the facts required of subvouchers except the payee's receipt. (See pars. 264 to 268.) In writing the itemized statement the lines should be at the intervals indicated on the blank and there should be no writing between the lines.

271. When an assistant's expenses may be included.—(a) When an employee is traveling on duty with assistants he may pay their traveling expenses from his personal funds and include such expenses in his own " Voucher for services and traveling and other expenses," supported by subvouchers where necessary, and (b) when a driver or other employee is detailed to a near-by town or railroad station for provisions, supplies, mail, etc., and in that connection expends money advanced him by his principal, for subsistence of himself and keep of team, such expense may be stated in the principal's voucher as though made by him direct. Subvouchers in such cases should be taken in the name of the principal, showing payment by the detailed employee as deputy.

272. Assistants' expenses not included when.—In all other cases every assistant or subordinate employee must state in his own name, supported by subvouchers and duly sworn to, a "Voucher for services and traveling expenses" for all items of expense paid by him that should be reimbursed by the Government.

273.[37] Sample itemized statement.—In this sample no attempt is made to connect any charge with a prior one; each item must be considered as standing alone. The sample does not authorize any of the expenses represented, but when an employee has incurred an authorized expense he may refer to the sample as a guide for stating the charge in the approved form on his voucher. This warning is necessary because the sample covers items that would be proper for an employee with actual subsistence, but not for one who receives a per diem in lieu of subsistence.

Notes explanatory of foregoing sample.—Reference is herein made in each case to the number appearing in the date column. Quotation marks inclose statement of facts which should appear in the account part of subvouchers. Field employees can not be too deeply impressed with the necessity for stating their travel-expense vouchers in accordance with the sample, for by so doing all the requirements of the accounting officers will be met and the probability of suspension removed.

7. Whenever tickets are purchased for other than self, the name and titles of the extra travelers must be shown.

8. Subvoucher 1.—" Fare on stage from Myrtle Point to about 10 miles out in the country and return on July 8, 1918." When fare is not between two definite points regularly traveled a subvoucher is required the same as for hire of special transportation.

9. Subvoucher 2.—" Hire of 2 horses and buggy with driver for trip to country and return, distance traveled about 55 miles, from 8 a. m., July 8, to 7 p. m., July 9, 2 days at $5 per day, $10."

9. (a). Subvoucher 3.—" Hire of automobile with driver, expenses included, for trip to country and return, distance traveled about 160 miles, from 9 a. m. July 8, to 5 p. m., July 9, 2 days at $15 per day, $30." A letter must accompany all vouchers in which charge is made for automobile hire, explaining the necessity therefor and stating the benefit to the Government.

9. (b) Subvoucher 4.—" Hire of launch with services of boatmen, expenses included, to several points along the Tanana River, distance traveled about 25 miles, from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m., July 9, $10."

10. (a). Subvoucher 5.—" Ferriage of—(name of employee)—2 horses, buggy, and driver across Grand River, July 10, $1.50." If the service is rendered by a regularly established ferry with fixed rates, and not through accommodations of a private individual, the charge may be stated as shown in last item under July 10.

(b) When a toll road is definitely located, the name and address of the party to whom the toll charge is paid may be omitted.

14. Subvoucher 6.—"Board and lodging for—(name of employee) and assistants Miller and McDonald, July 12 breakfast to 15 lodging, 4 days at $1.50 per day each, $18."

15. Subvoucher 7.—"Board and lodging team (75) and driver (75), July 13 supper to 14 breakfast, for the period, $1.50." Whenever possible the rate per day should be shown on subvouchers.

16. Any ordinary purchase is illustrated here. When several articles are purchased and a subvoucher fully enumerating them is furnished, a brief description of them as a class only need be shown in the itemized statement of expenses as "supplies," "provisions," etc.

20. Subvoucher 8.—"Freight on 1 box of surveying instruments, Trinidad to Denver, Colo., July 20, 1918, 100 lbs. at 40 cents per cwt. (no Govt. B/L used), $0.40." A receipt is required for all express and freight charges, regardless of the amount. The weight and rate must always be shown, and there must be a statement as to the nonuse of a Government bill of lading. (See paragraphs 250 and 266.)

21. Subvoucher 9.—"Express charges on Jacobs staff, Trinidad to Walsenburg, Colo., 8 lbs. (minimum charge—no Govt. B/L used), $0.25." Instead of showing rate in this instance the statement "minimum charge" is used and is sufficient.

274. Transportation requests.—Transportation requests are provided for the use of persons traveling on official business of this office. They protect the traveler from any disallowance on account of an overcharge by the carrier. They may be procured by requisition upon this office (the requisition being made the subject of a separate communication) and may be exchanged for railroad, sleeping or parlor car, or steamer tickets. They should be used only by the party in whose name they are issued; they are not transferable. They should not be used for the payment of livery bills, meals on dining cars, nor any other expenses than those specified. Transportation requests should not be used to pay fares amounting to less than $2 unless necessary or so ordered by this office. If an excursion rate is effective and available, it should be asked for, and the transportation request tendered in exchange should be marked "excursion rate." Should the agent of the company refuse to accept the transportation request for an excursion ticket, a full-fare ticket should be secured in exchange for the transportation request and the fact should be reported to this office.

A traveler must not attempt to secure a refund from a transportation company for the unused portion of a ticket obtained in exchange for a transportation request. The unused portion of such ticket must be forwarded, with a full explanation, to this office.

275. Using requests.—When using a transportation request the necessary data, including name or initials of the transportation company, the points of travel, routing, whether upper or lower berth, standard or tourist, the cost of fare, and the names of extra travelers should be indorsed on the request (and so reproduced by carbon process on the duplicate) and the stub; the request should then be dated and delivered to the agent of the transportation company in exchange for the ticket, and the duplicate, bearing such other indorsement as is necessary (such as, for example, the name of the particular Indian reservation) should be immediately mailed to this office in accordance with the instructions on the reverse thereof. If a request is exchanged for mileage or scrip the serial number of the mileage or scrip book and the name of the employee for whose use the book is secured must be indorsed on the request and the duplicate, and, if part of an old book is exchanged (together with a transportation request for the difference) for a new book the serial number of the old book exchanged and the amount thereof unused must be indorsed on the duplicate request. It is most important that the value of transportation secured in exchange for a transportation request shall be indorsed on the duplicate thereof before mailing to this office.

276. Listing requests, mileage, and scrip in voucher.—Every travel-expense voucher must show what portion, if any, of the transportation was procured on transportation requests; what portion, if any, was procured by use of mileage or scrip books, giving the dates, points from and to, and the first and last serial number in each case of the mileage or scrip coupons pulled for the particular trip, such use of transportation requests, mileage, and scrip being shown at the end of the itemized statement as per sample under paragraph 273. If a request is issued to procure a ticket for some other traveler, the person using the ticket should be furnished the number of the request and be instructed to state on his voucher that travel between those points was procured on that particular request, giving the name of the issuing officer.

277. Mileage and scrip.—Chiefs of field divisions, supervisors of surveys, and assistant supervisors of surveys are authorized to procure mileage or scrip books in exchange for transportation requests, but their use is not recommended except when it appears probable that they will be entirely used within the period of their validity.

278. Mileage and scrip—Reporting purchase.—When such a book is procured the fact must be immediately reported to this office. The report must be made in triplicate, on the white, yellow, and blue cards (Forms 161, 161a, and 161b), and must give the number of the transportation request exchanged, the name of the railroad issuing the book, the number of miles or the value of scrip contained therein, the cost of the book, the amount and conditions of refund, and any other information necessary to enable this office to keep an accurate account of said book. The purchaser should certify on the reverse of the original (white) card the place and date of delivery and the States in which the mileage or scrip may be used, secure the receipt therefor of the traveler for whom the book was purchased, if practicable, and transmit the original and duplicate (white and yellow) cards to this office. The blue card should be filed with the purchasing officer's records.

279. Mileage and scrip—Employee chargeable with value of book.—Each mileage or scrip book will be charged to the employee in whose name it is issued. He will be held strictly accountable for its proper use and the correctness of the number of miles or the value of the scrip detached for travel between different points, and when the book is exhausted, or when no further travel is to be performed on official business with said book, or when the time limit of the book is about to expire, it should be forwarded without delay to the purchasing officer, who will promptly forward it to the disbursing officer for his particular division, district, or unit for settlement. An employee in possession of such a book at the time of his separation from the service, or upon demand of this office, must settle his accountability therefor before final payment of his salary will be made.

280. Mileage and scrip—Purchasing officers monthly report.—At the end of each calendar month each purchaser of mileage or scrip will report to this office what mileage or scrip books have been completely used, forwarded to the disbursing officer for collection, applied on the purchase of new books, or have expired during that month, and will furnish the disbursing officer for his division, district, or unit with a copy of such report.

281. Mileage and scrip—Refund on.—All collections on account of refunds in connection with or redemption of unused mileage or scrip should be made by the disbursing officer paying the vouchers of the purchasing officer.

HEARINGS IN LAND ENTRIES

282.[42] Authorizations for expenditure.—A disbursing officer is not authorized to make any payment for services of witnesses, taking depositions, or other expense chargeable to "Expenses of hearings in land entries," or any allotment from another appropriation made available for hearings expenses until a schedule of hearings (Form 4–638), including the particular hearing, has been received in triplicate at this office, the expenditure authorized, and the disbursing officer notified thereof by the return to him of the triplicate schedule approved, and a disbursing officer is not authorized to pay any hearings voucher unless it bears the initials, in the blank space under the certifying officer's title, of the chief of field division or of an employee designated by him as a hearings clerk.

283. Witnesses—Limitation on mileage of.—A witness can not be compelled under subpœna to appear outside of his own county, and if he does so appear, can claim mileage in but one county; the county where the land office is located if he appears before that office, the county of his residence if he appears before another officer.

284.[43] Witnesses—Per diem and allowances to.—Witnesses attending hearings in Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, and the States to the westward thereof are entitled (under the above limitations) to $3 per diem for time necessarily occupied in going to, returning from, and in attendance on the office or officer before whom he appears, and 15 cents for each mile necessarily traveled over any stage line, or by private conveyance, and 5 cents for each mile by any railway or steamship in going to and returning from such office. Witnesses in other States are entitled to $1.50 per day only and for such days only as they are in attendance on the officer before whom testimony is taken, and 5 cents for each mile necessarily traveled in going to and returning therefrom.

285. Witnesses—Vouchers for services.—Vouchers for witnesses' services should show whether deposition was taken, or oral testimony was given before the register and receiver, and should be specific as to the dates inclusive of service, and as to the points of travel, the county being given in connection with the initial and objective points and the residence being given by section, township, and range whenever possible.

286. Witnesses—Salaried Government employees subpœnaed.—Salaried Government employees when subpœnaed as witnesses in land hearings are entitled to reimbursement for actual and necessary traveling expenses only, payable from "Expenses of hearings in land entries" in case of hearings under this office and by the Department of Justice when called before a United States court, and those expenses should be stated on "Voucher for services and traveling and other expenses," duly itemized and sworn to in the usual manner. This does not apply to the employees of the Forest Service, who testify in connection with lands located in forest reserves, as their expenses in such cases are paid by their own bureau. Special agents and others whose official duty it is to investigate and find out the facts upon which the case is predicated, and who appear in such case in their official capacity to give evidence of such facts so acquired, should be paid salary and usual traveling expenses for the period required to attend from the appropriation regularly chargeable therewith. (16 Comp. Dec. 411.)

287[44] Depositions—Vouchers for testimony taken by.—The act of Congress approved March 3, 1915 (38 Stat. 855), and succeeding acts, in which appropriation is made for "Expenses of hearing in land entries," provide:

> That where depositions are taken for use in such hearings the fees of the officer taking them shall be 20 cents per folio for taking and certifying same and 10 cents per folio for each copy furnished to a party on request.

Where the officer takes the testimony of a witness or witnesses once and furnishes copies of that testimony for use as evidence in other cases under stipulated agreement between the interested parties, he is entitled to 10 cents per folio only for the copies furnished. (Comp. Dec. Jan. 28, 1915.)

The title of the officer taking the deposition should be shown on the voucher in every case.

288. Depositions—Costs.—When the deposition is taken in its true sense the fees of the officer taking it shall be paid by the party on whose behalf it is taken. When witnesses of both parties are assembled under authority of act of January 31, 1903, supra, and then in reality the hearing is held, each party must pay the cost of taking the direct examination of his own witnesses and the cross-examination on his behalf of other witnesses, just the same as when final hearing is held before the local land officers. The cost of noting motions, objections, and exceptions must be paid by the party on whose behalf the same are made.

PURCHASES AND SERVICES OTHER THAN PERSONAL

289. Definition.—Treasury Circular No. 36, June 21, 1911, defines services other than personal as those services:

> * * * which consist in the results of acts of persons who by contract (expressed or implied) have undertaken to accomplish such results without giving to another any right to direct or control their ability or skill—including (1) transportation of persons (service); (2) transportation of things (service); (3) subsistence and support of persons (service); (4) subsistence and care of animals and storage and care of vehicles (service); (5) communication service; (6) printing, engraving, lithographing, and binding (service); (7) advertising and publication of notices (service); (8) furnishing of heat, light, power, and electricity (service); and other classes of service not personal in character, such as (a) repairs by contract or open market order, (b) storage not incident to transportation, (c) court or other public-office service, (d) commercial reference service, (e) clipping service, (f) computation and statistical service, (g) towel service, (h) bill-posting service, (i) rubbish, ash, and garbage removal service, (k) protective, preventive, and other services not personal in character and not otherwise classified.

290. Advertising required.—Section 3709, Revised Statutes, provides:

> All purchases and contracts for supplies or services, in any of the departments of the Government, except for personal services, shall be made by advertising a sufficient time previously for proposals respecting the same, when the public exigencies do not require the immediate delivery of the articles, or performance of the service. When immediate delivery or performance is required by the public exigency, the articles or service required may be procured by open purchase or contract, at the places and in the manner in which such articles are usually bought and sold, or such services engaged, between individuals.

291. Advertising—How accomplished.—As under section 3828, Revised Statutes, and authority thereunder delegated by the Secretary, no advertising, notice, or proposal for the General Land Office or any office therewith connected may be published in any newspaper whatever, except in pursuance of a written authority for such publication from the commissioner; and no bill for any such advertising or publication shall be paid, unless there be presented, with such bill, a copy of such written authority, the only method of advertising open to purchasing officers for the divisions, districts, or units under this office that Treasury Circular No. 52, July 29, 1907, recognizes is by the sending of circular letters to two or more dealers and the posting of notices in public places.

292. Circular letter proposals.—Two forms of circular letters (being in each case a letter inviting proposals and the proposal itself) are provided for this purpose, a general form (Form 4–117a) and a form for use in advertising for provisions, supplies, etc. (Form 4–117b). Except when the public exigencies require the immediate delivery of the articles or performance of the service all purchases or services other than personal will be advertised for by mailing or otherwise sending one of these forms properly executed (or other appropriate form describing the articles or services desired and inviting bids thereon) to two or more dealers and by posting a copy thereof in as public a place as is practicable. All the proposals received from the several dealers will be forwarded to this office with the voucher for the first purchase made or services secured under the proposal. If no bids are received (or only one) the names of the dealers to whom circular letters were sent must be shown in connection with the voucher.

293. Method of or reason for absence of advertising to be shown.—Purchasing agents or certifying officers must show over their signatures on the vouchers the method of advertising, or show the reason for absence thereof, which they may do by inserting the appropriate one of the figures from 1 to 4 referring to the numbered sections on the reverse of the voucher under "Method of or absence of advertising," and by inserting the necessary additional information, if any, on the blank lines under the section so indicated. Purchasing agents should be careful to see that their certificates are in each case complete and that the exact facts are shown. If competition is solicited in any manner the voucher should set forth that fact and not, by the insertion of "3" in the blank, state that an exigency existed simply because the methods were not as formal as is contemplated or because the advertisement was not made in connection with that particular purchase.

294. Advertising and contracts should not be confused.—The sending out of circular-letter proposals constitutes advertising; the returned proposal, when accepted by the purchasing officer, becomes a contract. There may be advertising and purchase without a contract, and there may be a purchase and a contract without advertising.

295. Contracts.—Section 3744, Revised Statutes, provides:

> It shall be the duty of the Secretary of War, of the Secretary of the Navy, and of the Secretary of the Interior to cause and require every contract made by them severally on behalf of the Government, or by their officers under them appointed to make such contracts, to be reduced to writing, and signed by the contracting parties with their names at the end thereof; * * *

Contracts for services, as for rents, telephone service, etc., covering a considerable period must be executed in accordance with this statute, and a new contract should be executed at the beginning of each fiscal year.

296. Form of contract to be shown.—Purchasing agents or certifying officers must show over their signatures the character of contract entered into, which they may do by inserting in the second blank of the certificate the letters, A, B, or C, referring to the corresponding sections on the reverse of the voucher under "Form of contract," and indicating, respectively, a formal contract, an accepted proposal, or a less formal contract. The purchasing agent or certifying officer should show on the reverse of the voucher in connection with the indicated section the date of the formal contract or the character of the less formal agreement, and if an accepted proposal is filed therewith he should so state. If the accepted proposal is not filed with the particular voucher on which the indorsement appears, but with a former voucher, the disbursing officer should make specific reference on that voucher to the particular voucher with which the proposal is filed.

297. Vouchers for purchases, etc.—how stated.—Vouchers for purchases and services other than personal should show date of delivery of the article or articles, or date of termination of the service performed, the description of the article or character of the service, dates inclusive of service where time is a factor, quantity of the particular article or service or number and size of container, rate per unit, the amount of each item, and the total of the items listed. Whenever practicable bills should be listed and fully itemized on the regular voucher form, but when this is not practicable itemized statements or invoices may be attached to the standard form and the voucher stated and certified for "Provisions and supplies (or other general heading descriptive of the bill purchased) as per itemized statement (or itemized invoice)—four pages—attached hereto and made a part hereof."

298. Vouchers for freight and express.—Vouchers for freight and expressage should not ordinarily be paid by a disbursing officer, and when they are so paid (or any voucher containing freight or express charges) must be accompanied by the Government bill of lading covering the shipment or have appended thereto a certificate to the effect that no such bill of lading was used.

299. Computing rents, monthly hire, etc.—A claim for hire, keep, subsistence, etc., at monthly rates for certain days (less than a month) "inclusive" should be computed at as many 28ths, 29ths, 30ths, or 31sts (according to the number of days in the particular month) of the monthly rate as there are days from the first to the last of the dates, inclusive.

The method for computing compensations does not apply. (11 Comp. Dec. 494.)

300. Vouchers for purchase by transfer.—All vouchers for services rendered or supplies furnished by one department, bureau, or office to another must be transmitted through this office to the Auditor for the Interior Department for settlement and must not be paid by disbursing officers.

CASH

301. Cash payments.—As hereinabove stated, payments must be made by check whenever practicable. To cover cases where it is impracticable to make payment in this manner it is provided by Treasury circular No. 102, dated December 7, 1906, that any disbursing officer may draw his check in favor of himself, or "order," for such amount as may be necessary (1) to make payments of amounts not exceeding $20, (2) to make payments at a distance from a depositary, and (3) to make payments of fixed salaries due at a certain period, but in the first and last named cases the check must be drawn not more than two days before the payments become due.

302. Cash receipts.—Where payment by check is not practicable and payments are made in cash—that is, currency—the payment must be evidenced by a cash receipt (Form 4–665c) or a receipt substantially the same in form acknowledging receipt from the particular disbursing officer in whose account the voucher appears, in his official capacity (disbursing clerk, special disbursing agent, surveyor general, etc.), on a specific date, a sum therein written in words, in full payment of a definitely indicated voucher. Cash receipts must be signed by the payee in whose name the voucher is stated, or, if an officer or agent receipts for his principal, evidence of his authority to receive the money and receipt therefor must accompany the voucher or be on file with the Auditor. There is no authority for cash payments except where the delivery of the receipt is simultaneous with the payment.

ABSTRACT OF EXPENDITURES

303. Expenditures to be listed.—Every item of expenditure for which a disbursing officer claims credit must, as hereinabove indicated, be supported by a voucher properly stated and certified; and every such item must be listed in an abstract of expenditures (Form 4–104), in which, under a single series of numbers running through the entire fiscal year, vouchers will be listed in numerical order without reference to the character of service or appropriation chargeable, the voucher numbers and names of payees being shown in columns indicated and the amounts chargeable to the several appropriations distributed in the proper columns.

304. What items to include.—A distinction may here be noted between payments made by an employee from personal funds and payments made by a disbursing officer from public funds. An employee who advances personal funds for traveling and other expenses must include in his voucher for any month all expenses incurred during that month, whereas a disbursing officer should include in his abstract and carry to his account current only such amounts as are actually paid in cash during the period covered by the account or by check dated within such period, without reference to the period covered by the paid vouchers. As stated in paragraph 195, checks should bear the date on which they are drawn; they are not to be dated within a period unless they are actually drawn within that period in payment of vouchers then on hand properly stated and duly certified.

305. Appropriation titles—Abbreviating on abstracts.—As Treasury regulations require that the titles of appropriations, as shown in all estimates, disbursements, accounts, and vouchers, shall be exactly as such titles appear on the books of the Treasury (see par. 180), it is necessary that such titles be shown without abbreviation on requisitions, vouchers, and accounts current, but, on account of the limited space in which the titles of the appropriations must be shown at the top of the columns in the abstract of expenditures, such titles may be there abbreviated, provided such abbreviations are in such form as will be readily recognized by anyone familiar with the several appropriations. The following abbreviations are suggested for the appropriations more commonly used:

Contg. Mont., 1918—Contingent expenses, office of surveyor general of Montana, 1918.
Sur. Pub. Lds., 1918—Surveying the public lands, 1918.
Pro. Pub. Lds., T., etc., 1918—Protecting public lands, timber, etc., 1918.
Sur. Land Grants (R.)—Surveying within land grants (reimbursable).
Open. Ind. Res. (R.), 1918—Opening Indian reservations (reimbursable), 1918.
Comp. Sur. R. R. Grants—Completing surveys within railroad land grants.
Sal. & Com., R. & R., 1918—Salaries and commissions, registers and receivers, 1918.
Contg. Ex. L. O.'s, 1918—Contingent expenses of land offices, 1918.
Ex. Deposit. Pub. Mon., 1918—Expenses of depositing public moneys, 1918.
Hearing Ld. Entries, 1918—Expenses of hearings in land entries, 1918.
Ex. Ins. G. L. O., 1918—Expenses of inspectors, General Land Office, 1918.
A. & S. A. M. R.'s, 1918—Appraisal and sale of abandoned military reservations, 1918.

306. Extra columns—Additional abstract for.—In cases where, as may happen during the first quarter of a fiscal year, a disbursing officer expends funds under more appropriations than there are columns of the abstract of expenditures, he will state an extra abstract on which will be listed vouchers representing payments under all appropriations that there is not room for on the regular abstract (preferably those appropriations from which the lesser number of payments are to be made). On the main abstract will be listed all the voucher numbers and the corresponding names of payees in numerical order. Each voucher chargeable to an appropriation not on the main abstract will be listed as to number and name on both the main and the extra abstract, the amount appearing only on the extra abstract in the proper column, the vouchers listed on the extra abstract being in solid rank. That is, if, for example, vouchers 3, 17, 36, 49, and 65 are chargeable to appropriations not on the main abstract, those numbers with the payees' names will appear in regular numerical order with the other vouchers on the main abstract, and they will be listed in full on the first, second, third, fourth, and fifth lines, respectively, of the extra abstract.

307. Forward appropriate abstracts with all vouchers.—Whenever a regulation requires the transmission of paid original vouchers original abstracts listing all such vouchers must be forwarded with them and whenever a regulation requires the transmission of memorandum copies of paid vouchers duplicate abstracts listing the copies so transmitted must accompany them. Never forward paid vouchers or copies without appropriate abstracts.

ACCOUNTS CURRENT

308. All fiscal transactions to be carried to.—At the close of each quarter (or on closing an account under one bond on executing another, or on the termination of his services) each disbursing officer must bring all fiscal transactions completed within that quarter (or fractional period) into an account current (Form 4–103c, 4–103e, or 4–661a) in parallel columns by appropriation, showing under credits:

(a) All balances shown by the last account current to be due the United States, in the same amount in each case and under the same title;

(b) All accountable warrants dated within the period;

(c) All collections made or moneys received as disbursing officer;

(d) All debit differences found by the Auditor and conceded by the officer; and (e) Any other corrections on account of which an appropriation should be credited; and showing under debits:

(f) All expenditures made within the quarter (or fractional period) as shown by abstracts and vouchers;

(g) Such moneys received as disbursing officer as are returned to depositors during the period;

(h) All deposits to personal credit (that is, to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States—Form 1A) covered by certificates of deposit dated within the period;

(i) Any credit difference found by the Auditor and concurred in by the officer, or

(j) Any other correction on account of which an appropriation should be debited;

(k) Any balance due the disbursing officer brought forward from last account, in the same amount in each case and under the same title; and

(l) Any balance due the United States at the end of the period for which the account is rendered.

309. Totals in.—The total of the items in each line must in every case be carried to the total column and the total of debits in any column must in each case correspond with the total of credits in the corresponding column.

310. Analysis of balance.—The total net balance due the United States (ordinarily this is the "Balance due the United States" as shown on that line, but if there should be a balance due the disbursing officer under one or more appropriations, as on account of an overdeposit, the net balance will be the difference between the two "balances") at the close of the period for which an account is rendered must be analyzed as indicated in the space provided therefor at the bottom of the account current. If the depositary statement is not received in time to compute the balance therefrom and yet have time to mail the account within the period required by law, the balance must be computed from the check stubs and a statement made to the effect that the balance was so computed, and the analysis furnished in a separate communication.

311. "Salaries paid in cash and claim for credit deferred."—When pay-roll vouchers are paid by checks there is no reason why all the checks should not issue on the same date, but when payments are made in cash it may happen that one or more employees will not receive pay until the next working day. In such cases credit for the full amount of such pay-roll voucher will be claimed under date of the final payment, and, if the last payment should be in a different quarter, the amount paid thereon during the first quarter will appear only in the analysis of balance in the account current and on the credit side of the cash account, under the heading in each case of "Salaries paid in cash and claim for credit deferred." The entire amount of a partly paid pay roll should be included in the monthly report of expenditures and liabilities (Form 4–163) as an outstanding liability under "unpaid voucher on hand."

312. Outstanding checks.—Any check issued by a disbursing officer and remaining unpaid must be carried in his analysis of balance as an outstanding check for three full fiscal years, as is indicated by the following quotations from Treasury circulars and Revised Statutes:

> Any check drawn by a public disbursing officer still in the service, which shall be presented for payment within three full fiscal years from its date, will be paid in the usual manner by the officer or bank on which it is drawn, from funds to the credit of the drawer. Thus, any such draft or check issued on or after July 1, 1904, will be paid as stated above until June 30, 1908, and the same rule will apply for subsequent years.
> Every disbursing officer will, upon receipt of the statement of his disbursing account for the month of June of each year, from the office or bank in which his funds are kept, immediately make a return to the Secretary of the Treasury of all checks drawn by him which have been outstanding and unpaid for three full fiscal years on the 30th day of June of that year, as also required by section 310 (R. S.), stating the number of each check, its date, amount, in whose favor, on what office or bank, and for what purpose drawn, the number of the voucher in payment for which it was drawn, and, if known, the residence of the payee, and inclose in said return all checks described therein which may be in his possession. (Treasury Circular 42, 1907.)
> At the termination of each fiscal year all amounts of moneys that are represented by * * * checks, issued * * * by any disbursing officer of any department of the Government, upon the Treasurer or any assistant treasurer, or designated depositary of the United States * * * and which shall be represented on the books of either of such offices as standing to the credit of any disbursing officer, and which were issued to facilitate the payment of warrants, or for any other purpose in liquidation of a debt due from the United States, and which have for three years or more remained outstanding, unsatisfied, and unpaid, shall be deposited by the Treasurer, to be covered into the Treasury by warrant, and to be carried to the credit of the parties in whose favor such * * * checks were * * * issued, or to the persons who are entitled to receive pay therefor and into an appropriation account to be denominated "outstanding liabilities." (306 R. S.)

313. Cash account.—If during any period for which an account is rendered a disbursing officer has cash in hand he must render a cash account, for which space and form is provided on the reverse of the account current. The cash account is subsidiary to the regular account and must include on the debit side:

(a) The cash on hand as shown by his last cash account:
(b) The checks drawn for cash under authority of Treasury Circular No. 102, to make payments in cash;
(c) Total collections (posted from abstract) and all cash receipts except on account of concessions, and (d) Debit differences conceded (itemized);

and must show on the credit side:

(e) The total vouchered expenditures paid in cash during the period;
(f) Cash deposits made to personal credit (that is, to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States), or (g) To official credit (that is, subject to his official check),
(h) Credit differences concurred in (itemized), and (i) The cash on hand at the end of the period for which the account is rendered.

The cash on hand must agree with the amount of cash shown in the analysis of balance.

314. Dates on account current.—It is important that certain dates always be shown on accounts current, and they shall always be shown correctly:

(a) The first and last date of the period covered by the account shall be shown at the top of the account current and in the brief on the first fold of the reverse thereof;
(b) The date of the bond (which is shown on all copies of requisitions sent to disbursing officers as notice that advance of funds has been requested of the Treasury) shall be shown at the top of each account current;
(c) The date to which the account is rendered shall appear in the proper place under "debits";
(d) The date to which the next preceding account was rendered shall appear in the proper place under "credits";
(e) The date immediately above the disbursing officer's certificate must show the date on which the account is certified; and
(f) The date over the "first indorsement" on the reverse thereof must be that on which the account is forwarded to this office.

DUPLICATE, TRIPLICATE, AND OTHER MEMORANDUM COPIES

315. What copies should be furnished.—Accounts current, abstracts of expenditures, and abstracts of collections must be stated in triplicate; the triplicate will be retained by the disbursing officer, the duplicate will be forwarded to this office to become a part of the office files, and the original will, of course, be forwarded to this office for administrative action and forwarding to the Auditor for the Interior Department. Two memorandum copies must be made of all vouchers for which a disbursing officer claims credit, the second memorandum copy for the disbursing officer, the first memorandum for this office, and the original for the auditor. Disbursing agents of this office who disburse funds for or on account of another bureau will furnish additional copies of all the above-mentioned papers for the files of this office, it being necessary to forward the duplicate accounts current and abstracts and the memorandum copy of vouchers to the bureau whose funds are disbursed.

316. Memorandum vouchers shall show what.—Memorandum copies must show the same facts as the original vouchers, even as to name of certifying officer, and be as carefully itemized. On the memorandum vouchers the notation of check payment, etc. (showing voucher number, name of disbursing officer in whose accounts said voucher appears, check number, and date of payment) will be at the lower left-hand corner, and in form as follows:

Voucher 98. John Doe (name of disbursing officer, not name of payee).
Check 234, July 10, 1918.

For this purpose a rubber stamp will be used, in form as follows:

Voucher--John Doe

and the disbursing officers are authorized to purchase such stamp from the appropriation applicable in each case.

317. No copies of subvouchers.—No duplicate or memorandum copies of subvouchers need be taken; in fact, duplicate subvouchers should never be taken.

318.[45] Memorandum copies and monthly report.—Within three days (Sundays and holidays excepted) after the close of each and every calendar month each disbursing office will transmit (without other inclosure than the papers here named) memorandum copies of all vouchers paid during the month just closed, together with a duplicate copy of the abstract of expenditures in which the several vouchers are listed, and a monthly report of expenditures, balances, and liabilities (Form 4–163), on the face of which shall be shown the period covered and the numbers of the first and last vouchers of which copies are transmitted and, on horizontal lines, by appropriation and in total:

(b) The amount represented by vouchers on hand when the report is transmitted that were not paid during the month closed and included in the "Amount disbursed" (without reference to whether such vouchers, designated in the report as "unpaid," have been examined or whether they have been paid in the meantime); and

(c) The estimated additional liabilities then outstanding on account of services rendered, purchases made, or expenses incurred in or prior to the month for which the report is rendered, but for which no vouchers have yet been received; and on the reverse of which shall appear, in perpendicular columns by appropriation and in total, and in horizontal lines by classes, the classification, required by Treasury Circulars 34 and 36, dated June 21, 1911. On the face of the report those appropriations from which expenditures have been made will be numbered in the order in which they there appear and corresponding numbers (beginning with No. 1 for the left-hand column and using as many consecutive numbers as there are appropriations) will be assigned to the necessary number of columns on the reverse, under the caption "Appropriation," as a means of identifying the appropriation on the face with the classification of expenditures on the reverse.

TRANSMITTING ACCOUNTS

319.[46] Quarterly accounts.—All disbursing officers are required by law to render their accounts quarterly and to transmit them to the proper officer at Washington within 20 days after the period to which they relate. Should there be any delinquency in transmitting accounts no further advance of moneys can be made until the reasons for the delinquency have been fully explained to this office and a waiver thereof obtained from the Secretary of the Treasury. (26 Stat. 413; 28 Stat. 209, 807.)

---

[46] See Circular No. 1040, p. 143.

Except in those cases in which disbursing officers have specific instructions to transmit certain original papers at an earlier date, each disbursing officer will, as soon as practicable after the close of each quarter and within 20 days transmit in an envelope separate from other matter:

(a) All original vouchers paid during the quarter;
(b) A quarterly abstract of expenditures listing such vouchers; and (c) An original and duplicate account current for the quarter.

320. "Other accounts."—In case a disbursing officer is required to close his account at a time other than at the close of a quarter (either on account of the execution of a new bond or the termination of his services under the appointment in connection with which he was designated a disbursing officer) he should immediately transmit his report of expenditures, balances, and liabilities (Form 4–163) for the fractional month ending with the date on which the account closes and within 20 days after said date he must transmit the original vouchers, original abstracts of expenditures, and original and duplicate account current for the fractional quarter terminating on that date.

NEW BONDS

321. Account under begins when.—In case a fiscal officer is required to execute a new bond either on account of a new appointment or of a new designation, his account under his new bond (or under both bonds if the latter is additional or cumulative) will begin on the date of the approval of such new bond by the Secretary. The fact that notice of such approval may not be immediately received by the officer is not material; he is accountable under the old bond for a proper disbursing of and accounting for the funds advanced thereunder and may continue to disburse such funds until he has received notice as to the date of approval of the new bond. This, however, does not change the fact that the account under the new bond must date from the approval thereof, notwithstanding the fact that a failure to receive prompt notice may result in the stating of two accounts for the intervening period, and notwithstanding the fact that no funds may have been received under the new bond until after the first account under such bond is due to be transmitted.

322. Account under old to be closed.—Immediately on receipt of notice of the Secretary's approval of a new bond the disbursing officer must deposit his admitted balance then on hand under the old bond, state his final account under such bond, and promptly transmit it to this office. Until the account under one bond is balanced by the deposit to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States of the admitted balance thereunder no advance may be made under a new bond.

323. What may be paid under.—The period covered by an account under a particular bond has no relation whatever to the period of service covered by vouchers which he may pay from funds advanced under that bond and, although the accounts under one bond are as separate and distinct from those rendered under another bond as though the accounts were rendered by separate individuals, a disbursing officer having executed a new bond and received an advance of funds thereunder may pay any voucher made up in prescribed form and chargeable to the appropriations so advanced notwithstanding the fact that part or all of the service represented was performed prior to the date of the new bond.

324. Difference from old not to be brought into account under.—Differences found in an account under one bond are in no case to be brought into or taken up in connection with an account under a new bond, or account under old and new bonds when the latter is additional or cumulative. Accounts under a new bond or (when an additional or cumulative bond is furnished) under new and old bonds jointly are as separate and distinct from those rendered under an old bond as though the accounts were rendered by separate individuals.

DIFFERENCES

325. A claimant's rights.—Each claimant has a right to have his claim against the United States finally settled in the Treasury Department and must not be denied the right to state his claim in such amount as he thinks is justly due him. Some certifying officers have assumed the right to dictate to a claimant the particular items or amounts he may claim in his voucher. Certifying officers, approving officers, or disbursing officers may advise a claimant as to what will be allowed (and the claimant may if he desires accept these suggestions and state a new voucher), but he must not be deprived of his right to state his claim for what items or amounts seem to him lawful and just. The adjudicating officers will certify or approve such of the items or amounts claimed as are proper, leaving untouched the statements and figures certified by the claimant. No one has any authority to make any changes in the amount certified by the claimant nor to insert any statement of difference over his signature. Suspensions made by a certifying officer or an approving officer should be itemized over their respective signatures, and the suspensions made by a disbursing officer may be made over his signature or by attaching a carbon copy of his letter to the claimant, in which appears an itemized statement of the difference between the amount claimed and the amount of the check issued in payment. In any case an itemized statement of the difference should appear on or be appended to both the voucher and the memorandum copy.

326. Procedure—Jurisdiction.—The successive steps in securing payment of vouchers or claims and the gradations of jurisdiction in the adjustment and settlement of claims and accounts are as follows:

The claim shall be:

(a) Stated in form and manner hereinabove prescribed;
(b) Sent to the proper certifying officer, who may:
    (1) Certify to the voucher as stated,
    (2) Suspend any item or items therein that are not properly stated or properly evidenced, or
    (3) Disapprove any item or items that he knows are not proper;
(c) Transmitted to the proper disbursing officer (usually by or through the certifying or approving officer), which disbursing officer may:
    (1) Pay the voucher as presented,
    (2) Pay a part and suspend a part,
    (3) Suspend payment on all and either return the voucher to the claimant for proper statement or forward to this office for instruction or for direct settlement;

(d) Claims (unpaid vouchers) transmitted to this office for direct settlement (either through a disbursing officer or by the claimant direct), or accounts of disbursing officers stated and transmitted in accordance with the foregoing instructions, receive here the administrative examination required by law, on which examination the entire account or claim (or any item or items therein) may be:
(1) Approved,
(2) Suspended, or
(3) Disapproved;

(e) After which the account or claim is transmitted to the Auditor for the Interior Department for settlement, which officer may (as to any or all items appoved or disapproved by this office):
(1) Allow,
(2) Suspend, or
(3) Disallow;

(f) A claimant on a voucher presented for direct settlement may refuse to accept payment on the auditor's settlement and appeal to the Comptroller of the Treasury for a revision of such settlement as to any item or amount disallowed therein, and a disbursing officer may likewise appeal to the comptroller for a revision as to any item or items disallowed by the auditor in his account. (See also paragraphs 193, 331, and 336.)

Items suspended by this office are not before the auditor for consideration, and the comptroller has no jurisdiction to revise an account or claim as to any items suspended by the auditor.

327. Accepting check no bar to appeal.—Any claimant who receives from a disbursing officer in payment of a claim against the Government a check for a lesser sum than the claim stated by him may thereafter present a supplemental voucher for the amount suspended before payment; his acceptance of the check in payment of a claim which has not been settled by the auditor does not bar him from right of appeal. As to acceptance of payment under a settlement by an auditor, section 8 of the act of July 31, 1894 (28 Stat. 208), provides:

> Any person accepting payment under a settlement by an auditor shall be thereby precluded from obtaining a revision of such settlement as to any items upon which payment is accepted; * * *.

328. Supplemental voucher.—New, or supplemental, vouchers must be stated for any amounts claimed on account of differences found before payment, or for items omitted from an original voucher, the employee designating it as supplemental for the particular month to which the expense pertains, and making the voucher as complete in every respect as is required of originals, except that items sworn to in an original voucher need not again be sworn to in a supplemental. As stated in paragraph 269, explanation must be made in connection with supplemental vouchers for items omitted from a voucher for services and traveling and other expenses as to why such items were not included in the original voucher.

329. Disapprovals.—Items disapproved by this office will not ordinarily thereafter be approved, but the disbursing officer is under no obligation to concede such items until they have been disallowed by the auditor.

330. Disallowances.—Items disallowed by the auditor may not again be considered by that officer within a year from the date of his settlement, nor will they be thereafter reconsidered by him except upon the presentation to him of newly discovered material evidence, and a disbursing officer should, in the first account current rendered after the receipt of an auditor's certificate of settlement, concede all the suspended items appearing therein for which he does not intend to make further claim, and all items disallowed, or immediately appeal to the Comptroller of the Treasury for a revision of the auditor's settlement as to such disallowed items.

331. Appeal to the comptroller.—A decision of the comptroller is final and conclusive upon the executive branch of the Government and an appeal to him carries before him for revision not only the item or items on which the appeal is made but the entire account or claim excepting only such items as have been suspended. A disbursing officer should at once concede all items disallowed by the comptroller on appeal. (See par. 193.)

332. Answering differences—payees.—In case a difference is found in an employee's voucher after payment by a disbursing officer the employee should, at the earliest practicable date after receipt through such disbursing officer of notice of a deduction, reimburse the officer for the amount erroneously paid or furnish him with the evidence necessary to relieve the suspension. Answers must in all cases be made within 15 days from receipt of notice, even though the employee may not at that time have received the necessary evidence.

333. Answering differences—disbursing officers.—Differences found in the adjustment of accounts by this office, or in the settlement thereof by the auditor, should be taken up by the disbursing officer, at the earliest practicable date, with the office making the deduction and such explanation offered or evidence furnished as will relieve the suspensions, no deposit being made on account of conceded items till the auditor's certificate of settlement covering such items has been received unless the disbursing officer is certain that the item or items can not be allowed. Ordinarily differences found by this office in connection with one account will not again be taken up until the next account is being adjusted, and disbursing officers should transmit answers to differences so that they will be received by that time even though they are not then able to answer all the differences then outstanding. Differences may be answered as long as they are carried by the auditor as suspensions.

334. Answering differences—Abstract form in duplicate.—The differences will be taken up in abstract form similar to that followed in the notice of adjustment sent to the disbursing officer, except that the reason for the suspension or disallowance need not be given, a brief statement being made in connection with each item as to whether a perfected voucher is transmitted, explanation offered, or amount conceded. Answers to differences to this office must in all cases be made in duplicate (including letters of explanation furnished by payees or other like evidence supplemental to the principal letter), as the original is transmitted to the auditor and a duplicate is necessary for the files of this office.

335. Adjusting differences—By deductions from vouchers.—Unless it is impracticable to do otherwise, a disbursing officer should not adjust a difference found in the adjustment or settlement of his account by deducting the amount from a subsequent voucher presented by the employee; and in case adjustment must be made in that manner the disbursing agent should concede the original disallowance and should claim credit for the full amount of the new voucher, thus in effect applying in payment of the new voucher the amount of over-payment made to the same claimant on the voucher in connection with which the disallowance was made. A claimant from whose voucher an amount has been deducted on account of a difference found in a former voucher is entitled to state a supplemental claim for the amount so deducted and to have it transmitted through the usual channels for settlement notwithstanding the fact that the amount deducted represents items that have been disallowed by the auditor. (2 Comp. Dec. 4.)

336. Adjusting differences—By concession in account.—A debit difference conceded is adjusted by crediting the United States therewith on the face of the account current as "Corrections on account of disallowances conceded," a complete itemized statement of which must appear on the debit side of the cash account. A credit difference concurred in is adjusted by debiting the United States therewith on the face of the account current as "Corrections on account of credit difference, per ———"—(showing the particular certificate or paper by which the difference was found), the specific items of which should appear on the credit side of the cash account. There is one exception as to conceded items appearing in the cash account. In cases where in the auditor's settlement a transfer between appropriations is accomplished by debiting the disbursing officer under one and crediting him under another the adjustment will be made on the face of the account current by crediting the United States under the appropriation in connection with which the debit is found as "Corrections, amount chargeable per auditor's certificate No. ———," and by debiting the United States under the appropriation in connection with which the credit is found as "Corrections, amount credited per auditor's certificate No. ———."

337. Concessions and deposits distinct.—The concession of a difference harmonizes the disbursing officer's account with the auditor's settlement so far as that particular difference is concerned. The deposit of an amount conceded is a matter entirely separate and distinct from the action necessary to adjust the difference; an amount, conceded may, if it pertains to an appropriation then current, be carried as cash or deposited to the disbursing officer's official credit, or if it pertains to some fund or appropriation not then current, to his personal credit.

DEPOSITS

338. Depositing balances at close of fiscal year.—Unexpended balances of annual appropriations shall be repaid into the Treasury as soon as practicable after the close of the fiscal year for which they were made, and not later than September 30 of each year. Those appropriations that have no fiscal year attached are not annual appropriations and balances thereunder need not be deposited at the close of each fiscal year.

Credit for the amounts deposited should be claimed in the account for the period in which the certificate of deposit is dated. After the balances are deposited any vouchers that may be received chargeable to those appropriations will have to be sent to Washington for settlement. (Treasury Circulars Nos. 133, 1897 and 133, 1903.)

339. Retain funds to cover liabilities outstanding.—While it is advisable wherever practicable to complete payment at the close of business of June 30 of each year for services rendered or expenses incurred during the year then ending, it will not be practicable for most disbursing officers to do this, and, as hereinabove indicated, disbursing officers may complete such payments at any time within the three months after the close of the fiscal year; and it will therefore be necessary, when depositing balances at the end of a fiscal year, to retain in hand (until September 30 unless liabilities are paid before that) sufficient funds from appropriations belonging to the fiscal year just ended to pay outstanding liabilities thereunder.

340. Overdeposit.—In case a disbursing officer, at the end of the fiscal year or on closing his accounts, deposits to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States a greater amount than is due, he will simply claim credit in his account current for the amount so deposited (thereby showing a balance due from the United States under one or more appropriations); and on settlement of his account by the auditor, Treasury draft will be issued for the amount found due the disbursing officer, or the amount will be transferred to his credit in the Treasury.

341. Certificates of deposit to show what.—Every deposit made by a disbursing officer to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States (personal credit) should show:

(a) The title, or titles, of the appropriation or fund to be credited;

(b) The date of the bond under which the deposit is made; and

(c) A brief reference made as to the character, source of receipt, etc., of such deposits, such as "Balance," "Collections," "Concessions," "Proceeds Government property," etc., the property being listed in detail in connection with the latter.

342. Duplicate certificates of deposit.—The same facts should be shown on the duplicate certificate as is required of the original, and, in case any of the required facts are omitted from the original, such facts should be indorsed by the disbursing officer on the reverse of the duplicate certificate; and, in all cases of deposits on account of debit differences conceded, the disbursing officer will list the conceded items in detail on the reverse of such duplicate certificate. On the reverse of each duplicate certificate of deposit on account of "Miscellaneous receipts—Proceeds of Government property" must be indorsed a complete list of the property sold. Duplicate certificates of deposit must in each case, immediately on receipt thereof, be forwarded to this office; and if in any case the disbursing officer is not furnished with a triplicate it will be necessary for him to make a copy for his own files.

343. Report to Secretary of Treasury on closing account.—"Whenever any disbursing officer of the United States shall cease to act in that capacity he will at once inform the Secretary of the Treasury whether he has any public funds to his credit in any office or bank, and, if so, what checks, if any, he has drawn against the same which are still outstanding and unpaid. Until satisfactory information of this character shall have been furnished the whole amount of such moneys will be held to meet the payment of his checks properly payable therefrom."—Treasury Circular No. 42, 1907.

CIRCULAR No. 630 [47]

ACCOUNTS—DEPOSITS FOR RESURVEYS, ACT OF SEPTEMBER, 21, 1918

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, January 13, 1919.

United States Surveyors General and Special Disbursing Agents.

SIRS: In each State wherein there is a surveyor general deposits under the act of September 21, 1918, will be made with the surveyor general; in Nebraska they will be made with the assistant supervisor of surveys, acting as special disbursing agent; in all other States they will for the present be made with Mr. Frank A. Lewis, special disbursing agent, Federal Building, Denver, Colo. Each surveyor general or special disbursing agent will receive and receipt (on Form 4–129) for such moneys as deposits on account of " Special deposits for resurveys, act of September 21, 1918 " (naming the township to be resurveyed), and will deposit the amounts so received to his official credit (certificate of deposit Form 6599) under the title quoted. Disbursements will be made in the usual manner, vouchers for field expenses being paid from " Special deposits for resurveys, act of September 21, 1918 " and " Surveying the public lands " in the proportion that the acreage of privately owned lands in the particular township bears to the acreage of public lands therein; and vouchers for office work in offices of surveyors general being paid in like proportions from " Special deposits for resurveys, act of September 21, 1918 " and " Salaries, offices of surveyor general " or allotments from other appropriations made for the same purpose. In cases where employees are authorized to receive the additional compensation provided by section 6 of the legislative act payment of such amounts will be made from " Special deposits for resurveys, act of September 21, 1918," and " Increase of compensation, Interior Department, 1918," in the proportion that the acreage of privately owned lands bears to the acreage of public lands. Repayments of any excess amounts deposited over the cost of the survey, and the expenses incident thereto, will be made by check to the order of the depositors named in the original receipts or to their legal representatives, the facts as to the deposits, expenditures, balances, and repayments for each township resurveyed being set forth as a separate account on an "Abstract of moneys returned or applied " (Form 4–103d). The date and number of checks for moneys returned should be shown in the " Check number " column and the "Applied " column should be redesignated as " Cost of resurvey," in which the cost may be shown as one total, in the following form:

Date	Receipt No.	Name of depositor	Check No.	Returned to depositor	Cost of resurvey	Total
1918 Oct. 12	7201	John Smith	6/12/19 43209	$3.13		$25.00
	7202	Richard Roe	6/12/19 43210	1.87		15.00
		Resurvey T. 14 N., 17 W., totals		5.00	$35.00	40.00

[47] See Circular No. 629, p. 1468.

The same facts as to other townships completed may follow on the same abstract, and the total amount of such moneys returned during a quarter will be carried to the account current immediately under the last "Treasury deposit" as "Returned, per abstract." As the township is the unit upon which application and survey must be made and the excess returned, each voucher for expenditures from these deposits should have the township designated thereon.

Very respectfully,

CLAY TALLMAN, Commissioner.

PRICE OF LANDS WITHIN GRANTED LIMITS OF RAILROAD—PRIOR INSTRUCTIONS REVOKED

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, December 13, 1919.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: By decision of September 10, 1919, in heirs of Edward B. Baldwin (47 L. D. 258), the department overruled its decision in the case of Even Thorstenson (45 L. D. 96), and in effect its decision in the case of Walter Hollensteiner (38 L. D. 319), and the first paragraph of the instructions of March 2, 1910 (38 L. D. 468).

Pursuant thereto, in collecting commissions and in disposing of lands in odd-numbered sections within the granted limits of a railroad, but excepted from the operations of the grant, the price should be computed at $1.25 per acre, unless a different price is fixed in the granting act or in some other act of Congress.

SIRS: The Reclamation Service advises that copies of Form 4–106, "Abstract of Treasury Deposits," are no longer required by that office. CIRCULAR No. 733[48]

ACCOUNTS—RECEIPTS UNDER MINERAL LEASING ACT

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, January 22, 1921.

Receivers of Public Moneys, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: Beginning with the month of January, 1921, receivers of public moneys will report promptly at the end of each month receipts on account of rents and royalties under the mineral leasing act (February 25, 1920). This report should be made on an abstract of moneys received (Form 4–103) and should show the same information in connection with each item as will be shown in the regular abstract of moneys received. It will in no way take the place of accounting for such moneys in the usual manner.

When such moneys are applied, instead of being listed on the regular abstract of moneys returned or applied, they should be listed on an abstract of moneys applied (Form 4–103b), with the money columns headed "Receipts under mineral leasing act (February 25, 1920)" or "Receipts under mineral leasing act, naval petroleum reserve lands (February 25, 1920)," as the case may be. The abstract should also show in the right-hand margin, in connection with each item, whether for "Past" or "Future" production. This is necessary because receipts on account of past and future production are distributed differently. Receipts for past production refer to the back royalties paid as a condition for "relief" under sections 18 and 19 of the leasing act. All other receipts under the act are for future production. (See pars. 18 (h) and 20 B (c), Circular 672.)

The fund titles should be used in accounts current and on certificates of deposit to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States; and the Treasury Department requests that the certificates of deposit shall also show whether the moneys are for "Past" or "Future" production.

Strict compliance with these instructions is necessary to enable this office and the Treasury Department to carry out the provisions of the act with regard to the disposition of receipts thereunder.

Very respectfully,

CLAY TALLMAN, Commissioner.

ACCOUNTS—RECEIPTS UNDER MINERAL LEASING ACT

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, March 28, 1921.

Receivers of Public Moneys, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: As there no longer appears to be any doubt as to the final disposition of moneys received on account of rents and royalties under the mineral leasing act of February 25, 1920, all such moneys now in your "Unearned money" accounts and hereafter received shall be deposited at once to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States, in accordance with Circular 733 of January 22, 1921.

[48] See Circular No. 743, p. 126.

As the application of the moneys when received will result in all such receipts being listed in the abstract of moneys applied for the month during which they are received, it will no longer be necessary to furnish the additional abstract of moneys received called for by the above circular.

Very respectfully, William Spry, Commissioner.

ACCOUNTS—REPORTS OF EXPENDITURES

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, May 26, 1922.

United States Surveyors General and Special Disbursing Agents.

Sirs: Beginning July 1, 1922, disbursing officers will not be required to analyze their expenditures on the reverse of their monthly report of expenditures and liabilities (Form 4–163), except as to such amounts as are paid after that date from annual appropriations for the fiscal year 1922. A new classification is required for expenditures beginning July 1, 1922, and that classification will be made in this office. This should enable every disbursing officer to mail his monthly report of expenditures and liabilities promptly and they will be expected to mail them not later than the third day of the following month, as required by paragraph 318 of Circular 616.

ACCOUNTS—DELINQUENCIES

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, August 1, 1922.

United States Surveyors General, Receivers of Public Moneys and Special Disbursing Agents.

Sirs: The Comptroller General has called attention to the laxness of many fiscal officers of the Government as in the matter of forwarding their accounts within the period allowed by law and asks that all fiscal officers under this bureau be advised that when there is a delinquency in rendering or transmitting their accounts, they must forward with them a letter stating specifically that they were prevented by physical difficulty from dispatching them within the time limit allowed, if such was the cause, and setting forth briefly the conditions which caused such physical difficulty. He also suggests that in cases of delinquency by disbursing officers in connection with which it can not be shown that the deliquency is caused by physical difficulties which made it impossible to transmit the accounts within the period allowed by law, advance of funds be denied in every case. You will govern yourselves accordingly.

Very respectfully,

Geo. R. Wickham, Acting Commissioner.

CIRCULAR NO. 860

ACCOUNTS—ACTING REGISTERS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, October 31, 1922.

Registers and Acting Registers, United States Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: Under act of Congress approved October 28, 1921, the offices of register and receiver have been consolidated in a number of land offices, and a clerk designated in each of such offices to act in case of a vacancy in the office of register by reason of death, resignation, or removal, or in case of inability to act. The Comptroller General, in a decision dated September 7, 1922, held that the law does not provide that the employee designated to act as register shall be a deputy register authorized to act for and in the name of the register, and in a decision dated October 16, 1922, he gives some special instructions concerning accounts rendered by acting registers, which instructions are incorporated herein.

The act does not contemplate that the clerk designated to act will act for a short period, such as the fractional part of a day, when the register is absent for his own convenience, and the designated clerks will not act as register except in cases where there is a real necessity.

Ordinarily all disbursements may be made by the register as special disbursing agent, and it will not be necessary to advance funds to the acting register. In case of a vacancy in the office of register or in case where it is known that the register can not act for a considerable period of time, the acting register should make requisition in the usual way for the necessary funds to pay the expenses of the office. However, if the register has the necessary funds on hand and knows that it will be impossible for him to pay the expenses of the office during his enforced absence, he may check his balance as special disbursing agent, or such amount thereof as will be necessary to meet the expenses of the office during his absence, to the acting register, debiting the United States therewith under the appropriate titles in his account current as " Transferred to acting register." The acting register will deposit the amount to his official credit, credit the United States with the amount in his account current under the same headings and same amounts under each as " Received from register," and pay the expenses in the same manner as though the funds were advanced to him from the Treasury.

Money received by the acting register as such should be receipted for in his own name and deposited to his official credit. He must render monthly and quarterly accounts for all such moneys in the manner and form required as to receivers of public moneys, except that he need not render a monthly account for any period in which there are no fiscal transactions for which he must account.

As far as it is possible, money should be applied by the register rather than the acting register, although the allowance of any entry must not be delayed on this account, and, whenever it is necessary for the acting register to apply moneys in connection with allowed entries, he may apply the amounts from any unearned moneys in his possession without reference to whether they relate to the particular entries. He must, of course, have the necessary funds in hand, and he must know that the claimant whose entry is allowed has the necessary money on deposit either with the register or acting register.

The register will show in the "Abstract of moneys received" (Form 4–103), all amounts received by himself or the acting register during the period for which his account is rendered, but will show in parentheses all amounts received by the acting register. The amounts shown in parentheses will not be included in the totals, and will, therefore, not be carried to the register's account current, but he will show in parentheses the total of all items appearing on the abstract. He is not accountable for the items, but they enter into his earnings and are needed in a single statement for statistical purposes. A new abstract of moneys received having two amount columns (one to show the amounts received by the register and the other to show the amounts received by the acting register), will be provided at an early date, and thereafter the register may show the acting register's amounts in the designated column and omit the parentheses.

Unless there is a vacancy in the office of register, the acting register will ordinarily be able to balance his account as acting register at the end of each month, and his account as special disbursing agent at the end of each quarter, and this he may do by drawing his check in favor of the register for the amount of his admitted balance at the close of the period. He will debit the United States in his account current with the amount of this check as "Transferred to register," and the register will credit the United States in his account current with the same amount under the appropriate titles as "Received from acting register." At the close of the fiscal year (unless there is an actual vacancy in the office of register), the acting register will transfer to the register by check his admitted balances under all appropriations, and will not make any payments for a fiscal year after the close thereof unless specially authorized.

Whether the clerk designated acts as register for a short period, for a long period, or for several periods during the quarter, his accounts will be due to be transmitted within 20 days after the end of the quarter, in the same manner as though he were the fiscal officer for the full period, and, beginning with the date on which he is first qualified to act as a fiscal officer, he must render an account at the close of each quarter whether he had funds on hand or not.

An acting register may not use the register's symbol numbers and may not, therefore, deposit money nor draw checks until he has been assigned symbol numbers of his own. These symbol numbers will be assigned at an early date, and as soon as possible thereafter each clerk designated to act as register should make requisition (on Treasury Forms 1231 and 1231a, in duplicate), for check books bearing such symbol numbers for their use as acting registers. They are not authorized to use the register's blank checks, but if an emergency arises before an acting register has received his checks, he may draw a line through the register's symbol number, insert his own, and so use the register's blank checks.

In case one acting register is succeeded by another, he may deliver his unused checks to his successor taking his receipt therefor and advising the chief of printing and stationery, Treasury Department, of the fact, giving date, check numbers, and the name of the party (with symbol number if possible), to whom they are delivered. The successor may use checks on which symbol numbers have not already been changed by scratching out the printed symbol and inserting his own.

Very respectfully,

GEO. R. WICKHAM,
Acting Commissioner.

CIRCULAR No. 866

ACCOUNTS—CLASSIFICATION OF EXPENDITURES

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, December 14, 1922.

Approving Officers and Special Disbursing Agents.

SIRS: General Accounting Office Bulletin No. 1, dated May 11, 1922, requires that beginning with July 1, 1922, accounts shall be so kept as to permit the segregation of expenditures in accordance with a prescribed classification. This classification is to be made in this office from memorandum copies of vouchers and it is therefore necessary that such memorandum copies be itemized in such a way as to permit a proper classification therefrom.

Memorandum vouchers received during the first quarter, 1923, contain such expressions as "supplies," "expenses," "storage and repairs," "gas, oil, and storage," "gas and repairs," "gas and equipment," "storage and labor," and "supplies and parts." Some of these expressions may include items belonging to six different classes and any one of the items may include amounts belonging to as many as three classes. Gasoline is classified as fuel, oil is classified as a lubricant, and repairs take a separate classification. Therefore, a voucher containing such an item as gas, oil, and repairs $9.38 should take some such form as

Gas ($4.35), oil ($1.25), and repairs ($3.78)	$9.38

All expenses for purchase, operation, or maintenance of Government-owned passenger-carrying vehicles must be shown separately. All vouchers, therefore, containing any such expenses should indicate clearly that the expense is for a Government-owned car, giving the number of the car. In fact, any expense pertaining to any Government car should be identified with the car by having the car number noted on the voucher, as "FS' No. 16," or "Truck No. 9."

Please see that all vouchers hereafter shall be so prepared as to permit a correct classification.

Very respectfully,

WILLIAM SPRY, Commissioner.

CIRCULAR NO. 877

ACCOUNTS—DEPOSITS—MODIFICATION OF PARAGRAPH 84, CIRCULAR NO. 616

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, March 7, 1923.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: It is quite evident that Treasury regulations concerning prompt deposit of public moneys are not being strictly complied with, and as paragraph 84, Circular No. 616, is not very specific on this matter, the following instructions are given:

The requirement in Treasury Circular No. 105a, 1917, that receivers of public moneys living in the same city or town with a duly authorized depositary must deposit their receipts at the close of the day has reference to the close of the banking day and, so far as national bank depositaries are concerned, refers only to cash receipts, that is currency, coin, post-office money orders, and express money orders, all of which are considered as cash, and are to be deposited in the form received.

Treasury Circular No. 176, 1922, is more specific and directs that all cash received shall be deposited with the general national bank depositary (if there is one in the same town), and that checks (and this includes bank drafts if such paper is accepted) shall be forwarded for deposit each day to the Federal reserve bank of the district in which the register's or receiver's office is located.

Particular attention is called to the fact that checks must be forwarded for deposit each day to the Federal reserve bank of the district; they are not to be deposited with nor forwarded to a national bank depositary, and are not to be deposited with Federal reserve branch banks unless such branch bank is located in the same town with the depositor. That is, the only officers authorized to deposit checks with any bank other than the Federal reserve bank are those located at Little Rock, Los Angeles, Denver, Helena, Portland, Salt Lake City, Seattle, and Spokane.

The officers located in those towns must deposit cash and checks daily with the local Federal reserve branch bank and the receiver at San Francisco must deposit cash and checks daily with the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco.

Cash received by officers in towns where there are national bank depositaries but no Federal reserve bank or branch banks must be deposited daily with the designated depositary and checks received at those offices must be forwarded for deposit daily to the Federal reserve bank of the district, as must also checks received in the offices in towns where there are neither Federal reserve banks, branch banks, nor national depositaries.

Permission to hold deposits until they amount to approximately $500 is only granted to those receiving officers who are located at a distance from a national bank or other designated depositary.

Very respectfully,

WILLIAM SPRY, Commissioner.

CIRCULAR No. 882

ACCOUNTS—DEPOSITING DISBURSING BALANCES

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, March 20, 1923.

Surveyors General, Registers and Receivers, and Special Disbursing Agents.

SIRS: Treasury Department Circular No. 281, 1922, from which the following extracts are quoted requires all disbursing officers—> when making deposits to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States, with Federal reserve banks and branches, the Treasurer of the United States, or a designated depositary of public moneys, to separate from all other classes of deposits those which return to the Treasury unexpended balances from funds advanced upon accountable warrants issued upon requisitions, or received as a transfer of funds from an officer to whom the funds were originally advanced.

> Such separate deposits should be made when disbursing officers deposit unexpended balances of current annual or other appropriations during or after the close of the fiscal year, and when a disbursing officer resigns or otherwise leaves the service, or when he renews his bond or gives a new bond.
> In transmitting for deposit official checks drawn on the Treasurer of the United States, exclusively representing such unexpended disbursing balances, disbursing officers will make special request in each case in the letters of transmittal that the certificates of deposit issued therefor state clearly that the amounts thereof represent "Unexpended disbursing balances repaid to the Treasury for credit to appropriations named and from which advanced."
> All checks drawn on the Treasurer of the United States which return to the Treasury unexpended disbursing balances should be deposited either with the Treasurer of the United States or with Federal reserve banks or branches, and not with other depositaries.

The circular indicates that deposits of cash on account of unexpended disbursing balances may be made with a local national bank depositary (with the same requirement as to their being kept separate, and as to what the certificates shall show) but that if such cash is first deposited to official credit with the Treasurer the above-quoted instructions apply.

CIRCULAR No. 885

REGISTERS' RETURNS TO BE MADE SEMIMONTHLY. CIRCULAR NO. 616 AMENDED. CIRCULAR NO. 621 ABROGATED

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, March 28, 1923.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: The instructions contained in paragraphs 40 to 53, inclusive, of Circular No. 616 approved August 9, 1918 (46 L. D. 513), are hereby amended as follows:

Beginning April 1, 1923, you will transmit your returns of business semimonthly. All business for the first half of the month (1 to 15, inclusive), will be forwarded not later than the third working day after the 15th, and all business for the last half of the month will be forwarded not later than the third working day of the succeeding month, excepting, of course, filings which are required to be held in your office for a definite period, those suspended pending action upon petitions for designation of the lands applied for, and rejected applications, proofs, etc., held during the period allowed for appeal. In other words, all filings which are complete so far as your office is concerned on the 15th or last day of the month, except such as are to be sent up special, shall be forwarded to this office semimonthly.

All returns must be accompanied by the general schedule of serial numbers, schedule of allowances and all classified schedules. Where the serial numbers assigned during the month are not more than a page, the general schedule of serial numbers submitted with the returns for the last half of the month must be a complete schedule for the month. This will necessitate in such cases the rewriting of the schedule for the first half of the month but will reduce the number of pages of the general schedule and conserve space.

It will not be necessary hereafter to prepare a " summary " for the schedule of allowances but the body of the schedule will be totaled as to number, area, and amount.

Copies of the schedules furnished chiefs of field divisions and district foresters under paragraphs 51 and 52 of Circular No. 616 will be transmitted to said officers semimonthly.

Paragraph 44 (h), Circular No. 616, is hereby amended to read as follows: " Suspended final proofs, proofs protested by Forest Service and chief of field division, and all suspended original applications, except those filed in accordance with the leasing act of February 25, 1920 (on Form 4–115)." In the remarks column show reason for suspension and if transmitted by special letter, date of such transmittal. This schedule will be headed " Suspended Applications and Proofs," instead of " Protested Proofs," as at present.

The returns for the first half of the month must also be accompanied by the memorandum copies of receipts (Form 4–131) issued during the period, and, in addition to the copies now furnished, an extra copy of the abstract of moneys returned or applied (Form 4–103a) and of the abstract of moneys applied (Form 4–103b). Before transmitting the memorandum copies of receipts you will prepare (but hold in your office) the abstract of moneys received (Form 4–103), said abstract and the applied abstracts to be completed at the end of the month, in duplicate, and mailed in the usual manner. Your accounts will be submitted at the end of the month or quarter in the same manner and form as heretofore, except that the memorandum copies of receipts will cover only the last half of the month. Should the corresponding portion of the applied abstracts as submitted at the end of the month differ in any respect from the copies accompanying the returns for the first half, report of same must be attached to the monthly account.

To expedite the transmittal of the semimonthly returns, you should get them ready from day to day, or every few days, so that it will not be necessary to do all the work at the end of the period. The general schedule of serial numbers (with the exception of the remarks column), the abstract of moneys received, the abstract of moneys returned or applied, and the abstract of moneys applied should be typewritten every few days or as often as the items fill a page. Such practice will help considerably, especially in the larger offices. The schedule of allowances and the classified schedules can not of course be prepared until the end of the period.

Circular No. 621 dated October 9, 1918, requiring the transmittal at the end of each week of withdrawals of applications to enter, is hereby abrogated, and you will hereafter include all such withdrawals with your returns. In connection with such withdrawals, also withdrawn applications and withdrawn final proofs, you will return by your official check all moneys returnable under paragraph 85 of Circular No. 616 and note on the paper transmitted, with pen and ink or rubber stamp, the amount, check number, and date.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

Approved.

Sirs: Effective April 1, 1924, paragraph 282, Circular No. 616, is hereby amended to read as follows:

282. Authorization for expenditure.—At least two weeks before the beginning of each quarter Chiefs of Field Division will submit quarterly estimates in triplicate on Form 4–638a and allotments will be made by the approval and return of a copy of the estimate. Schedules of hearings (Form 4–638) will still be required, but the amount column will be left blank. Supplemental estimates may be submitted when necessary, but they must be plainly marked

ACCOUNTS—NEW FORM OF PAY ROLL

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, July 29, 1924.

Registers and Receivers, Surveyors General, Other Certifying Officers and Special Disbursing Agents.

Sirs: General Accounting Office General Regulations No. 34, dated May 19, 1924, prescribes a new standard form of pay-roll voucher for use of all departments, bureaus, and offices, and in Supplement No. 1 thereto prescribes a "Short form" thereof referred to as "Standard Form 1013d," with a memorandum copy designated as "Standard Form 1013e," of which forms a supply has been mailed you.

The Comptroller General advises that these standard forms of pay roll are prescribed for general use throughout the Government service "on and after July 1, 1924, in lieu of those issued for like purposes which have heretofore been approved."

He adds the following instructions:

> The rate of salary for the period of the pay roll and the gross amount earned are not necessarily the same, and from said rate there should be deducted any amount representing leave without pay or other nonpay status, in order to determine the "gross amount earned."

Where the "gross amount earned" is made up of amounts from two or more appropriations, the items will be stated in a subcolumn in the "Name, designation, and annual salary" column, adjoining the "Gross amount earned" column, opposite the name of the employee concerned, each item bearing the proper symbol and being arranged so that the total may be readily computed and carried to "Gross amount earned."

Very respectfully,

ACCOUNTS—APPROVAL OF VOUCHERS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, March 14, 1925.

Division Inspectors and Special Disbursing Agents.

GENTLEMEN: I find that the approval of vouchers by some of the division inspectors is often perfunctory and that the signature does not necessarily indicate that the voucher has been given a careful examination. Hereafter it will be expected that each approving officer will before approving a voucher give it such an examination or require such an examination to be given by some one under his supervision as shall insure that the voucher is in proper form, properly signed, extensions carefully carried out, and all expenses represented duly authorized.

The purpose of a disbursing officer is to make payments and make them promptly and the audit of vouchers or the administrative examination thereof should not be made a part of his duties.

Very respectfully,

WILLIAM SPRY, Commissioner.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,

Supervisor of Surveys, Assistant Supervisors, Division Inspectors, and Special Disbursing Agents.

GENTLEMEN: In promulgating Circular No. 973 with the purpose of amending paragraph 233, Circular No. 616, it was not the intention to place a limit of $20 per day on boat hire or hire of transportation in Alaska, and the said paragraph is, therefore, hereby amended to read as follows:

> 233. Special conveyances.—Hire of special conveyances, such as taxicabs or other automobiles, livery, or boat, only when no public or regular means of transportation are available and the necessary incidental expenses connected therewith, such as feed and stabling of horses and the subsistence of driver, ferriage, and tolls. Also services of and subsistence of guide when no driver is employed. If the charges for special conveyance include feed and stabling of horses and subsistence of driver, or any such items, the principal voucher or subvoucher must so state. Competition should be invited in connection with the hire of special transportation, especially if services are to be continued for any considerable period, and if in rare instances it is necessary to exceed a rate of $20 per day, except in Alaska, the excess amounts must not be paid until full explanation has been submitted to the commissioner and received his approval.

ACCOUNTS—FORMS OF REMITTANCES

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, May 20, 1925.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Gentlemen: By direction of the Secretary of the Interior, paragraph 72 of the regulations (Circular No. 616), approved August 9, 1918 (46 L. D. 513, 531), which restricts the forms of remittances that may be accepted by receivers of public moneys to cash, currency, certified checks, and postal money orders is hereby amended to permit the acceptance of uncertified checks and bank drafts that may be cashed without cost to the Government, and the last sentence of the paragraph, " Receivers must not accept or issue receipt for remittances tendered in any other form," is hereby revoked.

Upon receipt of notice that a check or draft, whether certified or uncertified, is uncollectible, the receiver should at once notify the General Land Office so that appropriate action may be taken on the matter in connection with which the dishonored check or draft was tendered.

ACCOUNTS—AUTHORIZATION

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, September 9, 1925.

Purchasing Officers and Special Disbursing Agents.

Gentlemen: Hereafter letters of authorization will ordinarily bear an authority number stamped immediately following the word "authorization" when the form letter is used, and in a relatively like position when letter heads are used. Telegraphic authority will ordinarily be confirmed by mailing a copy of the telegram with the number stamped thereon.

In citing authorizations so numbered the number, instead of letter initial and date, will be indorsed on the voucher. That is, instead of saying "Authorized by office letter A of July 11, 1925," the citation will be "Authorized by authority No. 52."

So far as is practicable, purchasing officers will be advised as to the authority numbers assigned to 1926 authorizations already issued, the originals of which have been sent out without the numbers stamped thereon.

Circular No. 1032

ACCOUNTS—STANDARD ACCOUNTS CURRENT

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, September 21, 1925.

Registers and Special Disbursing Agents.

Gentlemen: The Comptroller General, by General Regulations No. 41, dated March 7, 1925, states:

> Standard forms of account current for use of disbursing and collecting officers, clerks, agents, and other officers of whatever title, disbursing and collecting moneys on account of the United States in rendering their accounts to the General Accounting Office, are hereby prescribed and published for general use throughout the Government service effective with the accounts for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1925, in lieu of all others which have heretofore been approved for like purposes by the Comptroller of the Treasury or the Comptroller General of the United States, and names four forms, of which the one designated as Form 1020, size 14″ by 8½″ is to be used by the officers and employees under this office.

Provision has been made on Form 1020 for showing opposite each appropriation, fund, or account title, the balance due from last account and receipts on the one hand, and payments and balance due the United States at close of period on the other, each of which should equal the same total, to be placed in the "Total" column between the two sides of the account.

The total only of each accounting item indicated by the columnar headings will be placed opposite the proper appropriation or other title as the "Analysis of Account Totals" on the reverse side of the account current provides space for scheduling accountable warrants, Treasury deposits and transfers of funds. Separate detailed schedules of collections and disbursements must be furnished as heretofore, only the totals thereof being included in the "Analysis of Account Totals." When more than one sheet is required the headings will be filled in with the notation "First Sheet," "Second Sheet," etc., placed on the forms just above the words "Account Current" appearing thereon. The totals of the accounting items, the officer's certificate and the information and certificates called for on the reverse side of the account current will be shown on the final sheet.

Disbursing and collecting officers, agents, and others in preparing their accounts will observe the following arrangement of accounting items and appropriation and fund accounts. Account titles will be listed in the following order: Appropriations, trust funds, miscellaneous receipts, and special deposits when their inclusion is authorized. The total balance due the United States for each of these groups, where more than one item is involved, will be entered in the "Balance Due the United States" column, on a separate line following the last entry of each group.

There has been provided on the reverse side a suitable brief or space for notations of inclosures which should always be carefully made to enable the administrative office and the General Accounting Office to ascertain immediately upon receipt of the accounts whether the papers specified have been forwarded. Such notations should be concise but specify clearly the kind and number of papers, for example: Account Current, Schedule of Collections (2 sheets, 6 receipts), Schedule of Disbursements (10 sheets), etc.

The Comptroller General has held concerning registers who are also special disbursing agents that there is no statutory requirement that separate bonds be executed (one as register and another as special disbursing agent) and that, a satisfactory bond being filed, the rendering of a consolidated account thereunder is authorized. Some officers have already filed such bonds and, as rapidly as may be, others will be required to file the new form of bond covering both classes of duties and thereafter only one symbol number will be assigned, and only one series of checks used. In the meantime all such officers will show the dates of both bonds, both symbol numbers, and both titles on the one form (giving the register's first in each instance) and will bring all fiscal transactions for the quarter into a single account current.

As a guide in the matter, it is planned to furnish each register an account current showing the manner in which his fiscal transactions for the months of July and August would appear in a quarterly account current.

Very respectfully,

Thos. C. Havell, Acting Commissioner.

CIRCULAR NO. 1033

AMENDING CIRCULAR NO. 923

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, September 26, 1925.

Division Inspectors, Hearings Officer, Hearings Clerks, Special Disbursing Agents.

SIRS: By Circular No. 923 of March 22, 1924, it is required that all vouchers for expenses of hearings in land entries shall be initialed by the division inspector or by some clerk designated by him as "hearings clerk." This requirement is for the purpose of making sure that no voucher is paid without being charged against the allotment for hearings expenses of the proper division.

It is called to the attention of this office that vouchers have been returned for initialing when certified by the division inspector, resulting in unnecessary delay in payment. As the signature of the division inspector is evidence that the voucher has passed through his office, vouchers need not bear his initials or those of the "hearings clerk" when certified or approved by him.

Very respectfully,

THOS. C. HAVELL, Acting Commissioner.

CIRCULAR NO. 1040

ACCOUNTS TO BE RENDERED MONTHLY

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, November 9, 1925.

Registers and Acting Registers, United States Land Offices, and Special Disbursing Agents.

GENTLEMEN: Beginning with the month of October all accounts shall be rendered monthly instead of quarterly.

Monthly accounts current shall be stated, in duplicate, and mailed to this office not later than the 10th of the following month, accompanied by the necessary abstracts and schedules, also in duplicate, supported by the necessary vouchers and memorandum copies of receipts. In other words, each monthly account must be complete in itself, so that the original account current, abstract, schedules, vouchers, and memorandum receipts may be forwarded to the General Accounting Office and a copy of everything but the memorandum receipts retained in this office.

It is no longer necessary for abstracts to show a recapitulation or summary of business for prior months. The abstract for each month will be complete in itself and will show only the business for that month. Likewise as to the accounts current now stated by registers and acting registers at the end of each quarter. The account current at the end of the quarter, like those submitted for the first two months of the quarter, will be for one month only, the last month of the quarter.

The monthly report of disbursements and liabilities (Form 4–163), accompanied by memorandum vouchers, must be forwarded promptly within three days after the close of each month as heretofore.

As this circular will not reach you until after the 10th of the month, the 10-day limitation will not apply to rendering the account for October, but accounts for that month must be forwarded as soon as practicable.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

Approved November 9, 1925.

Circular No. 1060 [53]

INSTRUCTIONS RELATIVE TO NUMBERING CONTRACTS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, April 10, 1926.

A uniform system of numbering contracts throughout the Government service has been adopted by the General Accounting Office, commencing with the making of contracts for the fiscal year 1927. The system provides for the use of symbols to represent each department, its bureaus, and separate administrative subdivisions. In accordance with this plan the General Land Office service has been divided into four groups, to which symbols have been assigned as follows:

Washington, D. C	I1g–
Cadastral engineering service	I2g–
Inspection service	I3g–
District land office service	I4g–

Each group will number its own contracts. In order to avoid duplication of numbers a central numbering agency is hereby established for each group as follows:

Washington, D. C	Chief clerk's office.
Cadastral engineering service	Office of supervisor of surveys, Denver, Colo.
Inspection service	Disbursing officer, inspection service, Salt Lake City, Utah.
District land office service	General Land Office, Washington, D. C.

Commencing with the fiscal year 1927 all formal contracts originating in each group will be forwarded to its respective central numbering agency so that they may be properly numbered before being transmitted to this office for approval.

Contracts will be numbered consecutively in the upper right-hand corner, in the order received in the central numbering office. The symbol will be placed first and the contract number after the symbol, separated therefrom by a hyphen, commencing with number one and continuing in succession indefinitely without reference to fiscal years, the combination of symbol and contract number forming a complete symbol number for each contract by which its origin may be readily identified.

Examples:

I2g–1.—First contract from cadastral engineering service.
I3g–1.—First contract from inspection service.
I2g–2.—Second contract from cadastral engineering service.
I3g–15.—Fifteenth contract from inspection service.

Under existing regulations a formal contract must be made for all transactions involving an expenditure of over $100. Commencing with the making of contracts for the fiscal year 1927, a formal contract will be made for all transactions involving a series of payments over a period of time, such as telephone service, garage rent, etc., notwithstanding the fact that the aggregate expenditures thereunder will amount to less than $100.

All formal contracts must be numbered in the manner above outlined and forwarded to this office separate from the vouchers, but less formal agreements, such as proposal and acceptance, involving an expenditure less than $100, where payment in full is made on a single voucher, will not be numbered. All papers in connection with such latter agreements will be forwarded to this office attached to the vouchers to which they pertain.

Appropriate records will be set up and maintained in each central numbering office to put the new system of numbering contracts into effect and avoid duplication of numbers.

Circular No. 1091

ACCOUNTS—STANDARD PURCHASE VOUCHER

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, August 23, 1926.

Certifying Officers and Special Disbursing Agents.

Sirs: By General Regulations No. 51, dated June 18, 1926, standard forms are prescribed for general use throughout the Government service, effective July 1, 1926, in lieu of all others which have heretofore been approved for like purposes, as follows:

---

Public voucher (original) for purchases and services other than personal (Form 1034); memorandum voucher (Form 1034a); first and follow sheet of original voucher (Form 1035); memorandum thereof (Form 1035a); and abstract of agreement (Form 1036).

The Comptroller General states that these forms are designed to be used generally for vouchering all demands against the Government involving expenditures other than for personal services and kindred expenditures heretofore vouchered on public voucher forms for services other than personal, and that they will be used for vouchering disbursements accounted for in special deposit accounts.

Except as hereinafter provided, the original voucher must be signed and certified to by the payee, or by his duly authorized agent, and by the proper administrative officer of the department or establishment concerned who is cognizant of and may truthfully certify to the facts stated in the voucher.

If a payee submits for payment an invoice or bill on which is contained the certificate, duly signed, "I certify that the above bill is correct and just, and that payment therefor has not been received," or words to that effect, said invoice or bill may be accepted, if it constitutes a valid claim against the Government, and fastened securely to the voucher (Standard Form 1034), in lieu of stating the invoice or bill in detail and securing the payee's certificate thereon, the voucher to be otherwise completed in due form.

Wherever it is practicable and desirable so to use dealers' invoice or bills, it is desired that, in the interest of uniformity of evidence furnished, size of form, and widespread acceptance of same in the commercial world, payee be requested to submit their bills on the National Standard Invoice Form to the fullest extent possible, to be duly attached to and become a part of their vouchers.

The administrative certificate on the voucher (Standard Form 1034) is a receiving certificate; that is, it is evidence of the receipt and acceptance of the articles purchased or services performed, either under some form of written agreement as to which the contracting officer has certified on Standard Form 1036 or without written agreement under the circumstances stated in the certificate. When the contracting officer and the receiving officer are the same person, he will sign both certificates.

The memorandum voucher (Standard Form 1034a) is identical in form with the original voucher (Standard Form 1034), except that the word "memorandum" is printed in light-line letters across its face, the words "do not sign" or "memorandum—do not sign" appear opposite all spaces intended for signature on the original voucher; the memorandum will be printed on yellow paper. The usual number of memorandum copies of the original will be furnished.

The first and follow sheets, original (Standard Form 1035) and memorandum (Standard Form 1035a), will be used where the tabulation on the principal or certificate sheet does not contain sufficient space for itemization of the payee's bill or bills, and will be printed on white and yellow paper, respectively. Where more than one sheet is thus used, all sheets must be securely fastened together, the certificate sheet being the final sheet, and the totals of each sheet carried forward to or summarized upon the final sheet.

In all transactions involving expenditures from Government funds under a written agreement, whether formal, less formal (proposal and acceptance), or informal, and whether numbered under the uniform system provided or unnumbered, it is required that Standard Form 1036 shall be used to establish the fact of compliance with law and good business administration in respect to advertising, securing competition, acceptance of bid of the lowest responsible bidder, and execution of a lawful agreement. This form must invariably be attached to the agreement.

When the abstract accompanies the agreement to the General Accounting Office, references to the agreement on the voucher (Standard Form 1034) should be indicated by stating its number and date in the space provided therefor on the face of the voucher, or if the agreement is unnumbered and attached to the voucher, it should be so stated. In case of agreements involving more than one payment, reference to the contract number and date on subsequent vouchers will be a sufficient identification of the agreement under which the payments are made, and the use of Standard Form 1036 in connection with said subsequent vouchers will be unnecessary.

The abstract of agreement provided on Standard Form 1036 is for the purpose of summarizing in brief and handy form the contents of the agreement to which it is attached. Where the space on the face of the abstract is insufficient, the details called for may be carried to the reverse side of the form or made on a separate sheet.

Authority is granted to consume the printed supply on hand of the forms now in use corresponding to those named herein: Provided, That information as to contract number, date, etc., called for on the face of Standard Form 1034 be shown on the old forms and that use of old forms be discontinued not later than July 1, 1927.

Where payments are made on vouchers in favor of General Supply contractors, whose contracts are itemized annually in the General Schedule of Supplies, and the item numbers covering the articles purchased are given on the face of the voucher (Standard Form 1034) as provided for therein, the number and date of contract may be omitted from the spaces in the blank provided for the purpose.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

PAY ROLLS—RETIREMENT DATA

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, October 27, 1926.

Special Disbursing Agent, Certifying Officers, and Approving Officers.

Sirs: Hereafter in connection with each officer or employee from whose compensation no retirement deduction is made pay rolls or other vouchers for personal service must show that such officer or employee is not within the act of May 22, 1920, even though that fact may naturally be inferred from the nature of the employment. This requirement will affect, chiefly, registers and field employees of the surveying service.

[54] See Circular No. 1155, p. 155.

Very respectfully,

D. K. Parrott,
Acting Assistant Commissioner.

Circular No. 1105

GOVERNMENT BILLS OF LADING NOT TO BE USED FOR SHIPPING PERSONAL EQUIPMENT

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, December 23, 1926.

Inspectors, General Land Office.

Sirs: It has recently come to the attention of this office that some inspectors are using Government bills of lading to ship personal equipment, such as tents, cots, bed rolls, blankets, clothing, etc., at Government expense. This is not permissible where the traveler is allowed a per diem in lieu of subsistence. The per diem is in lieu of all subsistence expenses. Lodging is a subsistence expense, and as the expense of shipping tents, cots, bedding, etc., is incident to lodging, the per diem is in lieu of it. Personal equipment that can be checked as baggage without additional cost to the Government may be shipped in that way.

Division inspectors should not furnish Government bills of lading for use in making shipments of personal equipment of inspectors.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

Circular No. 1106

REQUISITIONS FOR FUNDS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, January 8, 1927.

Registers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: Hereafter, when making requisitions for funds for salaries and expenses, registers who have but one bond should report the balance due the United States on account of "unearned moneys" as well as the appropriation balances. The additional information should be shown on a blank line at the bottom of the requisition and the balance should be included in the total.

When making requisitions for funds a great many registers give the date on which their bond was approved instead of the date of the bond. The same is true of accounts current, on which the date of the bond should be given and not the date of approval. The date of a bond is the date written into it at the time it is executed.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

CIRCULAR NO. 1110

ACCOUNTS—REAPPRAISALS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, February 15, 1927.

Division Inspectors, Registers, and Special Disbursing Agents.

SIRS: Hereafter in connection with all appraisals or reappraisals chargeable to claimants or entrymen the salary, per diem, and travel expenses of the inspector making such appraisal or reappraisal will be included on the regular pay roll or travel expense vouchers and paid by the special disbursing agent in the usual way from the regular appropriation. The matter of reimbursing that appropriation from the claimant's or entryman's deposit will be taken care of by transfer vouchers, which vouchers will be stated, certified, and approved by the division inspector at the earliest practicable date, immediately after the completion of the reappraisal if the area is comparatively small, or month by month if the work of appraisal is to continue over a considerable period of time.

If the special deposit for appraisal or reappraisal is made with a register or a fiscal officer other than the disbursing agent paying the inspector's vouchers payment will be made on the transfer voucher by check in favor of the special disbursing agent, who will deposit the amount to his official credit under the appropriation from which payment was made, if current, and if not, he will deposit it to personal credit under the proper appropriation. If the special deposit is with the disbursing officer who pays the inspector he may accomplish the transfer by proper entries in his account current upon receipt of the account stated by the division inspector.

Very respectfully,

THOS. C. HAVELL, Assistant Commissioner.

CIRCULAR NO. 1130 [55]

INSTRUCTIONS RELATIVE TO THE USE OF STANDARD SUPPLY CONTRACT FORMS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, July 29, 1927.

To all Field Officers of the General Land Office.

SIRS: On July 1, 1927, there was forwarded to all field officers of this bureau a copy of Bureau of the Budget Circular No. 207 regarding standard supply contract forms to be used without deviation on and after September 1, 1927, to which were attached copies of the standard form.

Standard Forms Nos. 30, Invitation for Bids, 31, Form of Bid, and 32, Form of Contract, will be used in all cases where a formal contract is required; that is, where the transaction involves an expenditure of over $100, or where the transaction involves a series of payments over a period of time, such as telephone service, garage rent, etc., notwithstanding the fact that the aggregate expenditures thereunder will amount to less than $100. All formal contracts will be numbered and submitted to this office in triplicate for approval, accompanied by all evidence required by Comptroller General's decisions, in accordance with existing regulations. Since all formal contracts are approved by the department, the following article must be inserted after article 14: "Article 15. Approval. This contract shall be subject to the written approval of the Secretary of the Interior and shall not be binding until so approved."

The new form of contract does not contain the form of oath of disinterestedness required by section 3745, Revised Statutes. It will therefore be necessary for each field office to order a sufficient supply of this form, No. 1–006, to meet the requirements from September 1 to the close of the fiscal year. The oath of disinterestedness is required on one copy of the contract only.

Standard Form No. 33, Short Form of Contract, will be used in lieu of the present proposal and acceptance forms in connection with transactions involving an expenditure of less than $100, where payment in full is made on a single voucher. This form of agreement will not be given a contract number but will be attached to the voucher to which it pertains.

Very respectfully,

Thos. C. Havell, Acting Commissioner.

Approved August 1, 1927.

E. C. Finney, First Assistant Secretary.

Circular No. 1132

CIRCULAR NO. 1130 AMENDED

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, September 1, 1927.

To All Field Officers of the General Land Office.

Gentlemen: In a decision of August 25, 1927, the Comptroller General held that Standard Government Short Form Contract (Supply), Standard Form No. 33, when executed as indicated thereon, may be accepted as in compliance with section 3744, Revised Statutes, stating that "Standard Form No. 33 not only provides for the notification of prospective bidders as to the needs of the Government and as to the conditions under which bids will be received, but provides for the statement of the conditions of both the offer and acceptance and for the signatures of the contracting parties at the end thereof." Since the short form contract will be more convenient for use in connection with a large number of the purchases made in the field, it may be used whenever practicable in lieu of Standard Forms Nos. 30, 31, and 32, and Circular No. 1130 of July 29, 1927, containing instructions relative to the use of standard supply contract forms is hereby amended accordingly.

Very respectfully,

THOS. C. HAVELL, Acting Commissioner.

Approved September 3, 1927.

JOHN H. EDWARDS, Assistant Secretary.

NUMBERING OF CONTRACTS OF FIELD INSPECTION SERVICE IN ALASKA

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, January 4, 1928.

JAMES A. RAMSEY, Division Inspector, and FRANK M. JOHNSON, Supervisor of Surveys.

SIRS: In order to facilitate the numbering of contracts and expedite action on vouchers of the field inspection service in Alaska, a new contract numbering agency is hereby established in the office of the division inspector at Anchorage, Alaska, to which is assigned symbol I5g–. Commencing with March 1, 1928, all contracts originating in the field inspection service in Alaska will be numbered in the office of the division inspector at Anchorage before being transmitted to this office for approval.

Circular No. 1060 relative to numbering contracts is hereby amended accordingly.

Very respectfully,

THOS. C. HAVELL,

CIRCULAR NO. 1142

ACCOUNTS—HEARINGS EXPENSES

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, February 25, 1928.

Division Inspectors, Hearings Officers, and Special Disbursing Agents.

SIRS: Section 3 act of Congress approved April 26, 1926 (44 Stat. 323), read in connection with section 2 of the act of January 31, 1903 (32 Stat. 790), operates to give to witnesses in land hearings the same allowances in all States, $2 per diem while in attendance at and in going to and returning from, mileage at 5 cents and, under circumstances stated, a per diem of $3 in lieu of subsistence. Circulars Nos. 1075, 1117, and 1123 have called the matter to your attention but there is as yet a little lack of uniformity in these allowances.

The Interior appropriation act approved January 24, 1927 (44 Stat. 937), making appropriations for the fiscal year 1928, carries no appropriation, " Expenses of Hearings in Land Entries " as heretofore, but provides for the same expenses under the title "General Expenses, General Land Office," under which title it is provided:

> That where depositions are taken for use in such hearings the fees of the officer taking them shall be 25 cents per folio for taking and certifying same and 5 cents per folio for each copy furnished to a party on request.

Hearings officers and division inspectors will please see that vouchers for services in taking depositions are prepared accordingly.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

Until rubber stamps are provided for the purpose the blank space for citing authority may be made to read: "Under authority of paragraph 244, Circular No. 616, amended by Circular No. 762, for travel within his district (or division)" followed by the names of States or otherwise, descriptive thereof.

Very respectfully,

Thos. C. Havell, Acting Commissioner.

Approved March 22, 1928.

USE OF TRANSPORTATION REQUESTS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, June 11, 1928.

To All Field Employees of the General Land Office.

SIRS: By decision dated May 23, 1928, the Comptroller General rules that transportation requests must be used where the amount involved is $1 or more. In the decision he states:

> The intent and effect of the requirement of the Standardized Travel Regulations that transportation requests be used when practicable is that such requests should be used in all cases in which there does not exist some good reason from the Government's standpoint rendering their use incapable of being put into practice.
> Accordingly I have to advise that credit will not be allowed for any payments as reimbursement for cash fares in excess of $1 paid in connection with travel performed after June 15, 1928, in the absence of a clear showing that a transportation request could not have been used for the travel.

You will govern yourselves accordingly.

Very respectfully,

WILLIAM SPRY, Commissioner.

CIRCULAR NO. 1155

PAY ROLLS—RETIREMENT DEDUCTIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, June 11, 1928.

Special Disbursing Agents.

SIRS: The Comptroller General in a letter dated June 1 quotes from paragraph 4 of General Regulations No. 54:

> At the end of each month each disbursing officer making deductions on account of the retirement fund will transmit his check for the amount deducted, to the disbursing clerk, Bureau of Pensions, and will transmit with his account to the General Accounting Office, a list of pay rolls and vouchers on which retirement fund deductions have been made, showing therein, the amount, number, and date of check drawn in favor of the disbursing clerk, Bureau of Pensions, and from paragraph 4, Supplement No. 2 to General Regulations No. 34:

> The gross amount to be charged to appropriations should always be approved for payment by the administrative officer, and this total should agree with the amount paid to the employee [and] the retirement deductions.

He furnishes a list of fiscal officers of this bureau whose accounts for the months of January, February, and March fail to show constant and full compliance with these regulations. An examination of those accounts discloses lack of compliance with the instructions in one of the following particulars:

> 1. More than one check drawn to the Bureau of Pensions during a month, or at a time other than "the end of the month";
> 2. The required list incomplete in one of the following points:
> (a) Failure of list of pay rolls and vouchers to show voucher number or numbers of pay rolls or other vouchers on which retirement deductions are made;
> (b) Failure to show the total deduction, and therefore to show the amount of the check drawn to the Bureau of Pensions;
> (c) Failure of list to show number or date (or both) of the check drawn to the Bureau of Pensions;
> 3. The pay roll or other personal service voucher is not always certified for the gross amount earned, but for the net amount after subtracting the retirement deductions.

Please study the quoted paragraphs carefully and see that their requirements are fully complied with in all accounts hereafter rendered.

Very respectfully, WILLIAM SPRY, Commissioner.

CIRCULAR No. 1157

UNCLAIMED CHECKS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, July 25, 1928.

Registers and Special Disbursing Agents.

GENTLEMEN: General Accounting Office regulations require that:

> On the first of the quarter * * * disbursing officers having in their possession checks issued to pay obligations of the United States, which for any reason remain undelivered for more than three full months from the last day of the month of issue, should forward such checks to the General Accounting Office, claims division, liabilities section, for safe-keeping and disposition.
> In forwarding the checks a statement should be furnished giving the name and symbol number of the disbursing officer and listing each check by number, date, amount, payee, payee's last known address, voucher reference, and statement of the nature of the payment; that is, whether for salary, reimbursement of expenses, supplies furnished, etc.

You will note that undelivered checks are to be sent direct to the General Accounting Office—not to this office—and that they are not to be held longer than through the quarter next succeeding the date on which they are drawn. The regulations apply to checks of all fiscal officers.

The Comptroller General directs:

"Disbursing and collecting officers will use symbols and titles of receipt accounts on all schedules of collections (abstracts of moneys returned or applied and abstracts of moneys applied) and accounts current forwarded to the General Accounting Office, and also on all certificates of deposit for funds covered into the Treasury of the United States."

Beginning with the receipt hereof the symbols above prescribed will be used in connection with fund titles on all abstracts of moneys returned or applied, abstracts of moneys applied, accounts current, and certificates of deposit to personal credit (Form 1 A).

The titles are to be written in the usual way, as for example, "6022 Receipts under Mineral Leasing Act of February 25, 1920—Future Production (State)" instead of the index form used herein.

The Comptroller General says:

> It is essential that all deposits made to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States for credit to an appropriation, revenue, or trust fund account be covered in the Treasury without unnecessary delay and all depositing officers are enjoined when making such deposits to state clearly the title of the fund, giving in doubtful cases such information as will disclose its character and identify the fund involved.

When money is deposited of a class to which a specific receipt symbol has not been assigned, the symbol assigned to the major source within which the receipt falls will be used until such time as the receipt is finally classified and symbolized. That is, for example, if there is a receipt for rents or royalties other than those for which definite symbols are assigned, the symbol assigned to the major source "Rents and Royalties" being 6000, that number should be used followed by such an expression as will identify the particular receipt, or, if there is a receipt for Indian Lands that can not be identified with one of the symbols given, the number to be used is 8600, the symbol for the major source "Trust Funds—Interior Department (Indian)" followed by some such identifying statement as "Sale of Blank Indian Lands" and a citation of the statute.

Very respectfully,

CIRCULAR NO. 1174

RELATIVE TO STATE TAX ON GASOLINE PURCHASED FOR GOVERNMENT USE AND PAID FOR FROM PRIVATE FUNDS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, November 26, 1928.

Field Employees of the General Land Office.

SIRS: Supplementing Circular No. 1168 of October 4, 1928, relative to State tax on gasoline purchased for Government use and paid for from private funds, you are advised that no special form of receipt has been or will be provided, and that the duplicate as well as the original receipt should be on the regular subvoucher for travel and other expenses (Form 4–160).

Where it becomes necessary because of lack of private funds to purchase on credit gasoline for Government use from a retail dealer who requires payment of the State tax, the dealer's voucher should be taken in duplicate on the regular form (Standard Form No. 1034), and in addition to showing the State, date, number of gallons, base price per gallon, and tax per gallon, it must be shown that the purchase was not under contract and that contract was impracticable. The duplicate voucher, marked "duplicate," should accompany the original and usual memorandum copies to the disbursing officer, who will send it with his accounts to this office to be scheduled with duplicate receipts detached from reimbursement vouchers.

Small purchases of gasoline should be paid for from private funds where possible and reimbursement secured in accordance with Circular No. 1168, especially where the purchaser has to state a reimbursement voucher anyway.

Very respectfully, WILLIAM SPRY, Commissioner.

AGENTS AND ATTORNEYS

[Reported, 35 L. D. 534]

REGULATIONS GOVERNING THE RECOGNITION OF AGENTS AND ATTORNEYS BEFORE DISTRICT LAND OFFICES

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, April 20, 1907.[1]

1. An attorney at law who desires to represent claimants or contestants before a district land office must file a certificate, under the seal of a United States, State, or Territorial court for the judicial district in which he resides or the local land office is situated, that he is an attorney in good standing.

2. Any person (not an attorney at law) who desires to appear as an agent for claimants or contestants before a district land office must file a certificate from a judge of a United States court, or of a State or Territorial court having common-law jurisdiction, except probate courts, in the county wherein he resides or the local office is situated, duly authenticated under the seal of the court, that such person is of good moral character and in good repute, possessed of the necessary qualifications to enable him to render clients valuable service, and otherwise competent to advise and assist them in the presentation of their claims or contests.

3. The oath of allegiance acquired by section 3478 of the United States Revised Statutes must also be filed by applicants. In case of a firm, the names of the individuals composing the firm must be given, and a certificate and oath as to each member of the firm will be required.

4. An applicant to practice under the above regulations must address a letter to the register and receiver, inclosing the certificate and oath above required, in which letter his full name and post-office address must be given. He must state whether or not he has ever been recognized as an attorney or agent before this department or any bureau thereof, or any of the local land offices, and, if so, whether he has ever been suspended or disbarred from practice. He must also state whether he holds any office under the Government of the United States.

5. After an application to practice has been filed in due form, the register and receiver will enroll the name and post-office address of the applicant upon a record kept by them for that purpose, and sign and deliver to him a certificate of such enrollment, and thereafter recognize the applicant as an attorney or agent, as the case may be, unless they have good reason to believe that the person making the application is unfit to practice before their offices, in which case they will at once forward the application to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, with a report giving full specification of their reasons for so doing, and furnish a copy of such report to the applicant, and notify him that he will be allowed to file a reply thereto with said commissioner within 30 days from such notice.

6. When you have recognized and enrolled the name of any person as an attorney or agent, you will at once advise the Commissioner of the General Land Office of that fact, and give the name and post-office address of such person.

7. An attorney or agent who has been admitted to practice in any particular land district, or in the Department of the Interior, may be enrolled and authorized to practice in any other district upon filing with the register and receiver of such district a certificate of the register and receiver before whom he was admitted to practice, or a certificate of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, that he is an attorney or agent in good standing.

8.[2] Every attorney must, either at the time of entering his appearance for a claimant or contestant or within 30 days thereafter, file written authority for such appearance, signed by said claimant or contestant, and setting forth his or her present residence, occupation, and post-office address. Upon a failure to file such written authority within the time limited, it is the duty of the register and receiver to no longer recognize him as attorney in the case.

9. When the appearance is for a person other than a claimant or contestant of record, the attorney or agent will be required to state the name of the person for whom he appears, his post-office address, the character and extent of his interest in the matter involved, and when and from what source it was acquired. Authorizations and powers signed or executed in blank will not be recognized.

10. If any attorney or agent shall knowingly commit any of the following acts, viz: Represent fictitious or fraudulent entrymen; prosecute collusive contests; speculate in relinquishments of entries; assist in procuring illegal or fraudulent entries or filings; represent himself as the agent or attorney of entrymen when he is only an attorney or agent for a transferee or mortgagee; conceal the name or interest of his client; give pernicious advice to parties seeking to obtain title to public land; attempt to prevent a qualified person from settling upon, entering, or filing for a tract of public land properly subject to such entry or filing, or be otherwise guilty of dishonest or unprofessional conduct, or who, in connection with business pending in local land offices or in this department, shall knowingly employ as subagent, clerk, or correspondent a person who has been guilty of any one of these acts, or who has been prohibited from practicing before the register and receiver or this department, it will be sufficient reason for his disbarment from practice.

11. When any register and receiver shall, either through their own personal knowledge or through any charge sworn to by some other person, have information that an attorney or agent admitted to practice before their office has been guilty of any act or misconduct which would warrant his disbarment, such register and receiver shall at once make investigation, and if they have or find reasonable grounds for believing the attorney or agent guilty of such acts or misconduct, they will at once formulate specific charges against him and forward the same to the Commissioner of the General Land Office for his consideration and such action thereunder as he may direct.

12. If the Commissioner of the General Land Office finds that any charges preferred by any register and receiver are sufficient to support a disbarment proceeding, he will at once forward the charges submitted to him to the register and receiver with his approval and such directions as he may deem necessary, and thereafter the register and receiver will at once furnish a copy of the charges to the accused attorney or agent, and notify him that unless he, within 30 days from such notice, files in their office a denial of such charges under oath, the charges will be taken as confessed and forwarded with the register's and receiver's report thereon to the Commissioner of the General Land Office for further appropriate action.

13. In all cases where denials are filed as required by rule 12 hereof, the register and receiver will at once fix a day for a hearing under such charges and thereafter proceed in the manner prescribed by the Rules of Practice regulating other hearings before their office.

14. In all cases where an accused attorney or agent fails to file a denial as required by rule 12 hereof, and in all cases where the register and receiver have rendered a decision, either favorable or unfavorable to the accused attorney or agent, after a hearing, they will at once make report and recommendation thereon to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and furnish the accused attorney or agent with a copy of such report and decision, and notify him that he will be allowed 30 days from date of such notice within which to file his objections thereto with the commissioner.

15. After the expiration of the 30 days mentioned in rule 14, or sooner if the accused attorney or agent so request it, the Commissioner of the General Land Office will consider the record and recommendations forwarded by the register and receiver, and if in his judgment disbarment is not warranted, he will dismiss the charges and notify the register and receiver and the accused attorney or agent thereof; but if he finds that disbarment is warranted he will render his decision so holding and notify the accused attorney or agent thereof and of his right of appeal therefrom within the time and in the manner prescribed by the Rules of Practice for other appeals to the Secretary of the Interior.

16. If any accused attorney or agent shall fail to appeal from the decision of the Commissioner of the General Land Office as prescribed in rule 15, or if the decision of the commissioner is affirmed on such appeal, such attorney or agent will thereafter stand disbarred and be precluded from representing claimants or contestants before the local land officers, and the accused attorney or agent and the register and receiver will be so notified.

17. Prior to their actual disbarment attorneys and agents will be recognized as such, unless for special reasons the Secretary of the Interior shall order their suspension from practice during the pendency of the proceedings against them, but registers and receivers will in no case attempt to suspend them.

Approved April 20, 1907.

1. Any person who is an attorney at law in good standing and a citizen of the United States, or has declared his intention to become such a citizen, may be admitted to practice as an attorney in and may be recognized as the representative of claimants before the Department of the Interior and its several bureaus by presenting for that privilege his satisfactory application containing recitals as to the following facts:

2. Any attorney at law whose application for admission to practice is pending before the Department of the Interior or any of its bureaus may, at the discretion of the officer before whom it is pending, secure the right to enter his appearance in any proper matter pending for adjudication by such department or bureau, and continuously thereafter and until final adjudication thereof exercise all the rights and privileges of an admitted attorney by presenting his application therefor to the Secretary of the Interior or to the head of the bureau before which such matter is pending.

3. Any competent person who is a citizen of the United States, or who has declared his intention to become such a citizen, and who is not an attorney at law, may be admitted to practice as an agent in, and may be recognized as the representative of claimants before the Department of the Interior and all its bureaus by presenting his satisfactory application, under oath, for that privilege containing recitals as to the following facts:

(a) The applicant's full name, age, present occupation, permanent post-office address, and his occupation during each of the preceding 10 years; (b) a statement as to whether he has theretofore been admitted to practice or denied admission to practice before any executive department or bureau of the Federal Government, and if so, the name of such department and the date of his admission or denial; (c) whether he has ever been disbarred or suspended or excluded from practice as such agent, and if so, the grounds on which he was disbarred, suspended, or excluded, the date of his disbarment, suspension, or exclusion, and the name of the department by which the same was ordered; (d) the name of any office or employment, if any, which the applicant holds or has under the Government of the United States at the date of his application for admission, or has theretofore so held or had, if any, and the date and cause of his separation from such former service or employment; (e) a brief statement of the applicant's educational qualifications and knowledge of the laws administered by said department and its bureaus; and (f) the names and post-office addresses of five reputable persons who have an intimate knowledge of the applicant's character and qualifications.

4. Each application for admission as attorney must be accompanied by and have attached thereto, in addition to the oath prescribed by section 1757, Revised Statutes, supra, a duly executed and authenticated certificate from the clerk of the court or courts named in such application, stating that the applicant is a person of good moral character and in good repute, and that he has been and is duly admitted to practice in the court of which he is the clerk, and that the applicant is at that time an attorney in good standing therein; and each applicant for admission as an agent must furnish and attach to his application as a part thereof, and in addition to the oath prescribed by section 1757, Revised Statutes, supra, a certificate signed by a judge of a court of record stating that the applicant is a person of good moral character and in good repute, possessed of the necessary qualifications to enable him to render claimants valuable service, and otherwise competent to advise and assist claimants in presenting their claims before the Department of the Interior and its bureaus.

5. All applications for admission to practice must be addressed to the Secretary of the Interior and be filed with the head of the bureau before which the applicants named therein expect most frequently to appear; and the officer with whom any such application is filed will, after such consideration and investigation as he may deem necessary, forward such application, together with such report and recommendation thereon as the facts, in his judgment, warrant to the said Secretary for his consideration and action thereon.

6. The Secretary of the Interior, or the head of any bureau with whom any application for admission to practice is filed, may require the applicant named therein to furnish such other evidence or statement in support thereof as he may deem advisable, and may make such investigation, or cause such investigation to be made as may in his judgment be necessary to enable him to determine the proper action to be taken on such application; and favorable action will not be taken on any such application until after the applicant named therein shall have furnished such additional evidence or statement as may be required of him.

7. Firms of agents or attorneys, as such, will not be permitted to practice before the department or recognized as having the right to appear before it, or any bureau or office thereof, in any proceedings or matter involving the services of an agent or attorney, and except in the Pension Bureau, in the prosecution of any matter by any such firm, every pleading, brief, motion, or other paper or communication shall be signed individually by one or more duly qualified members thereof, and such signature shall be considered as a certificate by such agent or attorney that he has read the papers so signed by him; that upon the instructions laid upon him regarding the case there is good ground for the same; that no scandalous matter is inserted therein; and that it is not interposed for delay.

8. No person holding any office or place of trust or profit under the Government of the United States will be permitted to appear as an attorney or agent for the claimant in any case against the United States; nor shall any person who has, within two years next preceding his admission to practice before the department, been employed in any of the executive departments of the Government be permitted to appear as attorney or agent of the claimant in any case involving the prosecution of a money demand against the United States, unless the case in which he appears shall have been presented after his retirement from such service. No attorney will be recognized or heard as counsel in any case in the consideration and disposition of which he has directly participated, in any capacity, during his connection with the department.

9. No officer authorized to receive final proofs, or to officiate in the preparation and execution of applications and affidavits for entry of public lands, will be permitted to appear for and represent the claimant in any case pending before the department, the General Land Office, or any district land office in which he shall have rendered such official service.

10. Authority to appear in and practice before the department includes authority to practice in and before any and all of the bureaus and offices of the department, except the Patent Office. Each of the several bureaus and offices of the department will be, from time to time, advised of the names and addresses of persons admitted to practice as attorneys or agents.

11. Attorneys or agents shall not contract for, demand, or receive, directly or indirectly, any compensation whatsoever, for advice or consultation concerning the pension laws, and such of the bounty land laws as are administered and executed by the Pension Bureau, except such compensation as may be lawfully paid by order of the Commissioner of Pensions, whether a claim has been or is thereafter filed for the person in whose behalf such advice or consultation is had.

12. Whenever the Secretary, or the head of any bureau of the department, has knowledge, or sufficient information that any attorney or agent admitted to practice before the department is engaged in unprofessional or dishonest practice, or has been guilty of disreputable conduct in connection with any matter before the department, or any bureau or subordinate office thereof, or is disreputable or incompetent, or has refused to comply with any of the rules and regulations governing his admission as such, or has with intent to defraud in any manner deceived, misled, or threatened any claimant or prospective claimant, by word, circular, letter, or advertisement, the head of such bureau, and when the offense is committed before the department, then the head of the bureau which the Secretary may designate for that purpose shall give the accused agent or attorney due notice with a statement of the charge or charges against him, which statement shall be sufficiently specific to permit the accused intelligently to make answer thereto, and shall cite said attorney or agent to show cause within a given time why he should not be disbarred.

If an answer, under oath, is filed denying the charges, or so explaining them, as to raise an issue thereon, a time and place shall then be set for the taking of testimony. If, however, said attorney or agent shall fail to file an answer or other pleading, such charge or charges will be taken as confessed and judgment may be rendered as upon default, and the head of the bureau from which the charge or charges emanated shall transmit the record to the Secretary together with his recommendations. The taking of testimony under this rule shall be held at as convenient a place as possible for both the Government and the defendant, and notice shall be served upon the defendant notifying him of the time and place at which testimony will be submitted by the Government, in order that he may be present and cross-examine the witnesses. Ten days' notice, in writing, shall be given the opposite party of the taking of testimony, such notice to be served either personally or by registered mail, and the 10-day period shall be considered as running from the date on which notice was personally served upon defendant, or if service is had by mail, then from the date on which said notice was received as shown by the return registry receipt card. Testimony shall be reduced to writing and be signed by the witnesses, unless otherwise stipulated. Testimony may be taken before any officer authorized to administer oaths for general purposes or before any officer or agent of the department designated by the Secretary for that purpose. Depositions may be taken by either party before any officer duly authorized to administer oaths for general purposes, or before any Government agent designated by the Secretary for that purpose, upon notice in writing as above provided, and such depositions may be filed as evidence before the head of the bureau from which the charge or charges emanated. After the testimony has been taken and forwarded to the head of the bureau having jurisdiction, it will be considered, and if, in the opinion of such bureau head, such attorney or agent should be disbarred, he will so recommend, transmitting the record together with his recommendations to the Secretary, who will thereafter take such action thereon as the law and facts seem to warrant.

13. Any agent or attorney will be deemed disreputable, in the sense in which that word is used in the foregoing paragraph, and be subject to suspension or exclusion from practice as such, who, after being admitted to practice, knowingly commits or is guilty of any of the following acts, to wit: (a) Represents fictitious or fraudulent applicants for title to public lands, or fictitious or fraudulent applicants for pensions or for the payment of claims of any character by the United States; (b) prosecutes collusive or fraudulent land contests, or presents or prosecutes fraudulent pension or other claims against the United States; (c) speculates in relinquishments of unassignable land entries or land claims or in unassignable claims of any kind against the United States; (d) represents himself as agent or attorney for land or other claimants when in fact he is only agent or attorney for the transferee or mortgagee of such claimants; (e) fraudulently or wrongfully attempts to prevent any qualified person from settling upon, entering, or filing for public lands; (f) demands or accepts any fee proscribed by paragraph 11 of these regulations; (g) or who is otherwise and in any manner whatever guilty of dishonest or unprofessional conduct; (i) or who, in the presentation or prosecution of, or in connection with, any matter or business pending before the said department or any of its bureaus or offices, knowingly has as his associate, or employs as his agent, subagent, or correspondent, any person who has been guilty of any of the above-mentioned acts, or who has been denied admission to practice, or is suspended or disbarred from practice before said department, or who himself knowingly acts as the associate, agent, subagent, or correspondent of any such person.

14. Upon the disbarment of any attorney or agent, notice thereof will be given to the heads of the bureaus of this department, and thereafter, until otherwise ordered, such disbarred person will not be recognized as attorney or agent in any claim or other matter before this department or any bureau thereof.

ALEXANDER T. VOGELSANG,
Acting Secretary.

REPORTS ON APPLICATIONS FOR ADMISSION TO PRACTICE BEFORE LOCAL LAND OFFICES

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, June 28, 1924.

Chiefs of Field Divisions.

SIRS: Reference is hereby made to Circular No. 127, addressed to registers and receivers, dated June 11, 1912, which reads as follows:

> Hereafter, whenever there is filed with you an application to practice as agent or attorney before your office, you will defer action thereon, advise the Chief of Field Division of the filing thereof, and await his report on the same.

Where the Chief of Field Division advises that there is no objection on his part to the admission of applicant, you will proceed to act upon the same in the usual way, and in your report on Form 4–285 to this office, you will state that the chief has reported favorably on the application. In case he reports that he desires to make a report to this office, you will further defer action until receipt of advice from this office.

You are hereby instructed that your reports on such applications should be made to the register and receiver as promptly as possible, not later than 30 days from receipt in your office of the request for such report, unless you desire to request instructions from this office in the case, or unless your preliminary investigation discloses reasonable grounds for believing that a more extended investigation of claimant's character and fitness is warranted. Where delay beyond the 30-day period is necessary, you will briefly advise the register and receiver that in your opinion a further investigation is deemed necessary.

Very respectfully,

RELATIVE TO FURNISHING LISTS OF PLAT MAKERS, ABSTRACTERS, AND ATTORNEYS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, June 27, 1927.

Registers, United States Land Offices.

Gentlemen: By direction of the secretary, the attention of all registers is invited to Circular No. 453 of December 30, 1915, which is still in force and which reads as follows:

> Attention has been called to the fact that some local officers who are unable, because of the pressure of current business relating to the entry of land, to make plats or diagrams when requested, refer the order to an outside person or company, or recommend to the applicant some certain person or company as able to do the work.
> When it is necessary for you to refuse to fill an order for a plat or diagram, the fee received should be returned to applicant and he advised of the reason therefor. There is no objection to your furnishing to the party a list of the names of persons or companies located in your city who follow the business of preparing such diagrams, but the list should be complete and be arranged in alphabetical order. Under no circumstances should you recommend any person or company.

NOTICE OF DECISIONS TO COUNSEL RESIDENT IN WASHINGTON

Department of the Interior,
Office of the Secretary,
Washington, August 13, 1928.

The Commissioner of the General Land Office.

Dear Mr. Commissioner: It has been represented to the department that decisions of your office involving lands in States where all local offices have been abolished are addressed and forwarded direct to the claimants, even though counsel resident in Washington has entered an appearance in the case.

Such practice is objectionable. (See Rule of Practice 88.)

If an attorney who has been admitted to practice before the department and the bureaus thereof has entered his appearance in a case, notice of the decision therein should be addressed to such attorney, and no notice given to the claimant.

If an attorney has filed an appeal, brief, argument, or other paper in a case, which he has signed as attorney for a party thereto, you will treat such attorney as having complied with Rule of Practice 89.

Very truly yours,

E. C. Finney,
First Assistant Secretary.

AIRPORTS AND AVIATION FIELDS

[Reported, 52 L. D. 476]

CIRCULAR NO. 1161

REGULATIONS GOVERNING THE LEASING OF PUBLIC LANDS FOR AIRPORTS AND AVIATION FIELDS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., August 22, 1928.

Registers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: The following regulations are issued under the act of Congress approved May 24, 1928 (45 Stat. 728), entitled "An act to authorize the leasing of public lands for use as public aviation fields."

1. Any contiguous unreserved and unappropriated public land, surveyed or unsurveyed, not exceeding 640 acres in area, may be leased under the provisions of this act.

2. All leases will be subject to valid existing rights initiated prior to the date the application for lease is filed.

3. Applications for lease should be in triplicate, addressed to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and filed in the proper district land office. Applications will be limited to citizens of the United States, or associations of such citizens, to corporations organized under the laws of the United States or of any State or Territory thereof, and municipalities. No specific form of application is required, and no blanks will be furnished, but the application should include in substance the following points and be under oath:

(b) If a corporation, a certified copy of the articles of incorporation.

(c) If a city or town, evidence of authority of the mayor or other officer who may be authorized to execute such lease.

(d) Description of the land for which the lease is desired by legal subdivisions, if surveyed, and by metes and bounds, if unsurveyed.

4. After assignment of a current serial number and due notations on your records, you will forward all papers to the General Land Office. A status report of all the land applied for should be furnished with each application.

5. Upon receipt of the application in the General Land Office, one copy will be referred to the Secretary of Commerce for consideration as to what fuel facilities, lights, and other furnishings are necessary to meet the rating set by that department. After the Secretary of Commerce has reported, a lease in quadruplicate will be prepared and sent you for execution by the applicant. When executed and returned by you, the lease will be submitted to the Secretary of the Interior, and, if approved, a copy will be sent to the applicant through your office and a copy forwarded to the Department of Commerce.

6. The lessee shall, within six months from the date of the lease, equip the airport as required by the Secretary of Commerce, and file a report thereof in your office for forwarding to the General Land Office.

7. At any time during the term of the lease the Secretary of Commerce may have an inspection made of the airport, and if it does not comply with the ratings set by the Department of Commerce that fact, with a statement as to wherein it fails, will be referred to the General Land Office for appropriate action.

8. The Secretary of the Interior may, in his discretion, cancel a lease issued under this act for any of the following reasons: If the lessee fails to use the leased premises or any part thereof, or uses it or any part thereof for a purpose foreign to the proper use, or shall fail to pay the annual rental or any part thereof, or shall fail to maintain the premises according to the ratings set by the Department of Commerce, or shall fail to comply with these regulations or the terms of the lease.

9. Leases under this act shall be for a period not to exceed 20 years and may be renewed for like periods upon agreement of the Secretary of the Interior and the lessee.

10. Every lessee under this act shall pay to the lessor an annual rental of $10 per year. The first payment of $10 shall be made when the application is filed in your office. All subsequent payments shall be paid in advance on or before the anniversary date of the lease.

11. The lessee shall agree that all departments and agencies of the United States operating aircraft shall have free and unrestricted use of the airport and with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, any departments or agencies shall have the right to erect and install therein such structures and improvements as are deemed advisable. Whenever the President may deem it necessary for military purposes, the Secretary of War may assume full control of the airports.

12. The lessee will submit to the Secretary of Commerçe, for his approval, regulations to govern the use of the airport.

13. The lessor is authorized to cancel any lease for public lands for public aviation fields made under any law in force on the date of this act with the consent of the lessee and to lease such lands to the lessee under the conditions prescribed herein.

14. Government departments and agencies operating aircraft may be granted permission to establish beacon lights and other navigation facilities, except terminal airports, on tracts of unreserved and unappropriated public lands of the United States of appropriate size, on application therefor, under the same rules and regulations prescribed above, except no rental will be charged. They will be withdrawn by the Secretary of the Interior for that purpose on a sufficient showing of the necessity of a withdrawal for such purpose. However, to insure uniformity and centralized control over such facilities, all such applications will be referred to the Secretary of Commerce for consideration and comment.

15. While an application for a lease of not exceeding 640 acres of public lands for a public aviation field under sections 1, 2, and 3 of the act will operate as a segregation of the lands described therein from the time such application is filed in the proper district land office, the Secretary of the Interior is given no authority to withdraw public lands for terminal airports. He may, however, withdraw such lands for beacon lights or other air navigation purposes, including emergency or intermediate landing fields between terminal airports. Such withdrawals may be made on his own motion or at the instance of the Department of Commerce or other Federal agencies, or lessees of terminal airports, or the applicants for such leases.

16. Prior to the approval of the act of May 24, 1928, public lands were subject to withdrawal by the President for public purposes, and the authority of the President to make such withdrawals is in no manner restricted by such act. Where, therefore, unappropriated public lands are desired by the Department of Commerce or other Federal agencies for airport terminals, requests for their withdrawal may be submitted to the Secretary of the Interior, for consideration by the President. All requests for withdrawal should specifically state whether the area is desired for beacon lights, emergency or intermediate landing fields, or terminal airports.

17. All the conditions contained in the prescribed form (4–455) of lease attached hereto, but not mentioned in these regulations, will be considered as a part hereof.

Very respectfully,

THOS. C. HAVELL, Acting Commissioner.

Approved August 22, 1928.

ROY O. WEST,
Secretary of the Interior.
WILLIAM P. MACCRACKEN, JR.,
Acting Secretary of Commerce.

the act will operate as a segregation of the lands described therein from the time such application is filed in the proper district land office; the Secretary of the Interior is given no authority to withdraw public lands for terminal airports. He may, however, withdraw such lands for beacon lights or other air navigation purposes, including emergency or intermediate landing fields between terminal airports. Such withdrawals may be made on his own motion or at the instance of the Department of Commerce or other Federal agencies, or lessees of terminal airports, or the applicants for such leases.

16. Prior to the approval of the act of May 24, 1928, public lands were subject to withdrawal by the President for public purposes, and the authority of the President to make such withdrawals is in no manner restricted by such act. Where, therefore, unappropriated public lands are desired by the Department of Commerce or other Federal agencies for airport terminals, requests for their withdrawal may be submitted to the Secretary of the Interior, for consideration by the President. All requests for withdrawal should specifically state whether the area is desired for beacon lights, emergency or intermediate landing fields, or terminal airports.

17. All the conditions contained in the prescribed form (4–455) of lease attached hereto, but not mentioned in these regulations, will be considered as a part hereof.

Very respectfully,

Thos. C. Havell, Acting Commissioner.

ALABAMA LANDS

[Reported, 1 L. D. 655, Rev. Ed.]

LANDS IN ALABAMA—COAL AND IRON

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., April 9, 1883.

GENTLEMEN: The act of March 3, 1883 (22 Stat. 487), enacts that all public lands within the State of Alabama, whether mineral or otherwise, shall be subject to disposal only as agricultural lands; provided, that all lands which have heretofore been reported as containing coal and iron shall first be offered at public sale, and, further, that any bona fide entry under the provisions of the homestead law of lands within said State heretofore made may be patented without reference to the act of May 10, 1872, in cases where the persons making application for such patents have in all other respects complied with the homestead law relating thereto.

In order to carry out the provisions of said act, it will be necessary to prepare a list of all public hands heretofore reported as mineral that have not been entered and have them offered by President's proclamation. In the meantime you will be careful not to allow an entry to be made for any lands lists of which were transmitted to your office October 23, 1879, nor of other tracts that have been since investigated and reported as valuable for minerals, a list of which I inclose herewith.

All existing bona fide entries, under the homestead laws, may be perfected regardless of the mineral character of the land, in accordance with rules and regulations governing the same.

Any contest pending before you where the only allegation is the mineral character of the land must be dismissed.

The law requires the offering to embrace all lands heretofore reported as containing coal or iron which remain undisposed of by entry or sale.

Entries, whether by cash or location, already allowed and reported to this office will be examined and disposed of upon their merits without reference to the question of mineral.

Very respectfully,

N. C. MCFARLAND, Commissioner.

Montgomery and Huntsville, Ala.

CIRCULAR NO. 119

ALABAMA COAL LANDS—ACT OF APRIL 23, 1912—INSTRUCTIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, May 24, 1912.

REGISTER AND RECEIVER,
United States Land Office, Montgomery, Ala.

SIRS: The following instructions are furnished for your guidance in connection with the act of April 23, 1912 (37 Stat. 90), providing for homestead entry of withdrawn coal lands in Alabama, subject to the conditions of the act of June 22, 1910 (36 Stat. 583):

(1) The lands referred to in the act include all tracts which were prior to March 3, 1883, reported as containing valuable coal, and which were not under the provisions of the act of March 27, 1906 (34 Stat. 88), classified as agricultural in character.

(2) The circular of September 8, 1910 (39 L. D. 179), under the act of June 22, 1910, will govern proceedings with reference to these lands so far as applicable and except as herein modified.

(3) Prior to execution of a homestead application it must bear across its face the notation provided by paragraph 7 (a) of the circular of September 8, 1910. You are cautioned that this notation may not be placed by you upon the application after its execution and without applicant's consent. In the absence of the notation you will treat the application as incomplete, and will allow applicant the usual time to perfect same.

(4) A number of entries heretofore inadvertently allowed for coal lands have been suspended pending a possible offering of the various tracts involved under the provisions of the act of March 3, 1883 (22 Stat. 487). Under the proviso to section 1 of the act of June 22, 1910, these entries may be perfected, provided the claimants thereunder are willing to take patents containing the reservation as to the coal provided by paragraph 7 (b) of said circular.

You will, therefore, issue notice by registered letter to the claimants, advising them of the passage of the act of April 23, 1912, and of their rights to now obtain patents, limited as indicated, on condition that they furnish their written consent to receive such patents.

The widow, heirs, devisee, or transferee of a claimant under a final entry may execute the consent above called for, proper evidence being furnished of their rights in the premises. With reference to the entries on which proof has not been submitted, the consent may be executed by the person to whom the homestead right passes by law if the claimant himself is dead.

The instrument need not be acknowledged before an officer, but the claimant's signature should be witnessed by two persons.

You will in due time make report in each case separately, forwarding such papers as may be filed. If the consents are found to have been properly executed and no adverse claims appear, the cases on which final proof has been submitted will, if otherwise regular, be approved for patenting and patent, limited as indicated, will issue in due time. A list of the suspended cases is appended.[1]

(5) There is at this time no law which provides for the disposition of the coal in these lands. Persons having homestead entries, pending or perfected, obtain no right to mine coal therefrom except for their own domestic use, as appears from the first proviso to section 3 of the act of June 22, 1910.

(6) The second proviso to section 3 of the act of June 22, 1910, has no application to the Alabama lands, and claimants are not, therefore, entitled to contest the classification of the land and disprove its coal character.

Very respectfully,

Fred Dennett, Commissioner.

Approved.

Samuel Adams,
First Assistant Secretary.

CIRCULAR NO. 845 [1]

COMPILATION OF REGULATIONS CONCERNING OIL AND GAS PERMITS AND LEASES UNDER THE ACT OF FEBRUARY 25, 1920, IN ALASKA

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE.
Washington, August 12, 1922.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices in Alaska.

SIRS: Under the authority of the act of Congress approved February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. 437), the following rules and regulations, taken from General Land Office Circular No. 672, entitled "Regulations concerning oil and gas permits and leases * * * authorized by the act of February 25, 1920," as amended to October 29, 1920 (47 L. D. 437), and as since from time to time amended, have been adopted to govern the administration of said act in so far as it applies specially to the Territory of Alaska; and the same renumbered and with incidental verbal modifications are recodified as follows for the information of those concerned:

1. General provisions under section 13.—Paragraphs 1 to 9 of Regulations as amended to October 29, 1920, as they appear in Circular No. 672 contain general provisions which govern permits under section 13 of the act. Alterations of paragraphs 7 and 8 to meet changed conditions are indicated below.

Extensions of time.—The provision in section 13 of the act providing for extension of the life of permits granted upon lands in the United States has been superseded by an act approved January 11, 1922 (42 Stat. 356), which provides that the Secretary of the Interior may, if he shall find that any oil or gas permittee has been unable, with the exercise of diligence, to begin drilling operations or to drill wells of the depth and within the time prescribed by section 13 of the act of Congress approved February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. 437), extend the time for beginning such drilling or completing it to the amount specified in the act for such time, not exceeding three years, and upon such conditions as he shall prescribe. Extensions of time may be granted thereunder in proper cases, both in Alaska and the United States, where applications therefor are filed in accordance with the Regulations, Circular No. 801,[a] approved March 9, 1922.

When an application for a lease of the one-fourth part of the area affected by a prospecting permit is submitted, supported by the requisite evidence of discovery and production of oil or gas, such application must be accompanied by further application by the permittee, or by an assignee of such permittee, for a lease of the remaining portion of the area described in the permit; or, in the alternative, a relinquishment of the permit and waiver of preference right in respect of such remaining area must be submitted.

[1] Amended by Circular No. 905, p. 923.

2. Permits in Alaska.[b]—Paragraphs 1 to 9, inclusive, of said Regulations as they appear in said Circular No. 672 will apply to permits in Alaska, under section 13 of the act, with some modifications, viz: .

(a) A person, association, or corporation is authorized to hold five permits at one time in said Territory—only one permit, however, in any one (1) geologic structure of a nonproducing field; but for development purposes (2) assignments to a qualified individual, corporation, or association outside producing oil or gas fields, for not exceeding five permits, whether contiguous or noncontiguous, may be presented for the consideration of the Secretary of the Interior and his approval if he shall find the same to be in the public interest; hence subdivision c of section 4 of the Regulations contained in said Circular No. 672 should be modified accordingly in making application for permits for lands in Alaska under section 13 of the act.

(b) The preference right treated under section 5 of the Regulations (Circular No. 672) extends for a period of six months after the erection of monument and posting of notice provided for therein, and the period for marking of the corners is extended to one year after the granting of the permit.

(c)[2] The time for exploratory work in Alaska is four years, instead of two. The various items necessary in this exploratory work are set forth in the form of permit provided in said Regulations (Circular No. 672), those applying to Alaska being included in parentheses (1). In cases where unsurveyed lands in Alaska are located in fields where compliance with paragraph 4(d) of Circular 672 with reference to public survey corners is not possible and conflicts may exist, the extent of which can not then be determined, permits are granted with the following additional conditions:

"7½. This permit is granted upon the express condition that the permittee will adjust any conflict with any prior applicant within six months from date hereof."

3. Permits upon lands embraced in nonmineral entries.—The act of Congress approved March 8, 1922 (42 Stat. 415), provides for the allowance of homesteads on lands in Alaska valuable for coal, oil, or gas, with reservations of such deposits and upon conditions similar to those of the act of July 17, 1914 (38 Stat. 509), relating to lands in the United States, and the provisions of paragraph 11 of said Circular No. 672 will apply to Alaska in cases where entries are patented with a reservation under said act of March 8, 1922.

4. Preference right of owner of surface.—Nonmineral claimants upon lands in Alaska are entitled to preference right permits under section 20 of the act wherever the mineral deposits are reserved under the act of March 8, 1922 (42 Stat. 415), under the conditions indicated in paragraph 12 and subsections thereunder of Circular No. 672.

5. Relief measures—Alaska claims—Conditions for relief under section 22:

[2] See amendment, p. 923.

A. For permit.—(a) That claimant must have been an occupant or claimant of the land on February 25, 1920, under a claim initiated under the placer mining laws by claimant or predecessors prior to November 3, 1910, the date of the Executive order withdrawing all public lands in Alaska containing petroleum deposits, including those in national forests.

(b) That claimant must have performed all acts prior to November 3, 1910, under the then existing laws necessary to valid locations except to make discovery.

(c) That claimant (1) prior to November 3, 1910, must have made substantial improvements for the discovery of oil or gas on or for each location, or (2) prior to February 25, 1920, expended not less than $250 for improvements on or for the benefit of each location.

(d) That claimant must on or before February 25, 1921, or within six months after final denial or withdrawal of application for patent, file a relinquishment to the United States of all right, title, and interest in and to the land. This relinquishment must be in the form of an unconditional quitclaim deed, duly executed and acknowledged, but not recorded, and when filed will be held for such action as the facts and the law in the case warrant and require.

In addition to the above, the conditions outlined in paragraph (e) of section 20 of the Regulations (Circular 672) are applicable to relief in Alaska.

B. For lease.—The conditions necessary to obtain a lease under section 22 of the act are identical with those outlined in the paragraphs relating to permits in Alaska together with the following additional conditions:

(a) That claimant or predecessors must have drilled an oil or gas well on the land to discovery.

(b) That claimant must pay for one-eighth of the past production exclusive of that used on the land for production purposes or unavoidably lost.

6. Relief that may be granted under section 22:

(a) A claimant qualified under the above conditions relating to permits, upon complying with the conditions of the act and these regulations, will be entitled to prospecting permits under the same terms and conditions as other permits in Alaska provided for in section 13 of the act, substantially in the form prescribed in section 6 of the Regulations (Circular No. 672).

(b) A claimant qualified under the above conditions relating to leases is entitled to a lease substantially in the form prescribed in section 17 of the Regulations (Circular No. 672), the rental and royalty to be fixed by the Secretary of the Interior and specified in the lease, subject to readjustment at the end of each 20-year period of the lease.

(c) A claimant under section 22 of the act shall be entitled to not exceeding five permits or leases in number and not exceeding an aggregate of 1,280 acres in each.

7. Royalties and rentals on oil and gas leases in Alaska:

The royalties and rentals payable under oil and gas leases granted in Alaska pursuant to sections 14 and 22 of the act of February 25, 1920, are hereby determined and prescribed as follows:

(a) For leases granted under section 22 of the act, the royalty shall be: (1) For the first five years from and after the date of the lease no royalty, except in case of leases whereon the producing wells yield an average of 100 barrels or more per well per day for the calendar month, in which event the royalty shall be 5 per cent of all oil produced; (2) for the second period of five years from and after the date of each lease, under section 22 of the act, the royalty upon all leases shall be 5 per cent; (3) for the succeeding 10 years the royalty upon all leases under section 22 of the act shall be 10 per cent of all oil produced.

(b) Upon leases granted in Alaska, under section 14 of the act, the permittee who discovers oil will be entitled to a lease for one-fourth of the area of the permit without payment of royalty for the first five years succeeding the date of the lease and thereafter shall pay a royalty of 5 per cent upon all oil produced. On the remaining lands included within the area of the permit, the permittee will be given a preference right to a lease without payment of royalty for the first five years succeeding the date of the lease, except in the case of leases whereon the producing wells yield an average of 100 barrels or more per well per day for the calendar month, in which event the royalty shall be 5 per cent; for the second five years, the lessee will be required to pay a royalty of 5 per cent upon all oil produced, and for the succeeding 10 years, a royalty of 10 per cent upon all oil produced.

(c) No royalty will be charged in any case upon leases wherein the wells upon the lands average less than 10 barrels per well per day for the calendar month.

(d) No rental upon any oil or gas lease in Alaska will be charged during the first five years succeeding the date of the lease. After the expiration of the first five years succeeding the date of the lease, a rental of 10 cents per acre per annum will be charged on all leases, payable in advance: Provided, That the rentals so paid for any one year shall be credited upon the royalties accruing for that year.

(e) The royalties on gas produced, if any, will be fixed and determined in each lease.

(f) The foregoing subsections (a) to (c), inclusive, are applicable to cases where but one permit area in a single field or structure is held by the permittee or lessee. Where one or more additional permits, not exceeding five, are secured by assignment, the rentals and royalties on one of the permits shall be as prescribed in classes a, b, c, and d of this paragraph, and upon the remaining areas secured by assignment the rentals and royalties shall be as provided in paragraph 8 of the said regulations approved March 11, 1920, amended October 29, 1920, unless modified in a proper case when such a permit or lease is granted or approved.

8. Permits for deposits reserved under the act of March 8, 1922 (42 Stat. 415).—The provisions relative to reserved deposits under the act of July 17, 1914 (38 Stat. 509), indicated on page 34 of Circular No. 672, will be incorporated in permits in Alaska in proper cases without change other than the substitution of "act of March 8, 1922 (42 Stat. 415)" for, "act of July 17, 1914 (38 Stat. 509)," and the bond required will be identical with that indicated on pages 34 and 35 of said Circular No. 672, except for the substitution of the act of March 8, 1922, supra, as above indicated.[2a]

9. Procedure in relation to agricultural claims in conflict with permits or leases, or subject to preferential rights.—The procedure indicated in Circular No. 842,[c] approved July 31, 1922, with reference to nonmineral entries made with a reservation of the oil and gas to the Government, will be followed where entries are made pursuant to the act of March 8, 1922 (42 Stat. 415).

10. In general.—The general regulations as contained in said Circular No. 672, and as since modified or amended, are to be regarded, in so far as they are appropriate and are not modified by any rule or regulation herein, as regulations affecting oil and gas permits and leases in Alaska, under said act of February 25, 1920.

Very respectfully,

CIRCULAR No. 979 [2b]

NOTATION OF CANCELLATION OF OIL AND GAS PERMITS IN ALASKA

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, February 12, 1925.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices in Alaska.

GENTLEMEN: Hereafter the cancellation of an oil and gas permit in Alaska will be made effective on a certain date specified by the letter of cancellation, but no application will be allowed for a period of 62 days from and after such date of cancellation.

During this 62-day period applications for permits will be received by the proper local land office and held without action, and during the same period a claim may be initiated by locating, marking and posting on the land as provided by section 13 of the leasing act.

All applications filed during said period shall be treated as having been filed at 9 a. m., on the sixty-third day and will be disposed of by a drawing held publicly by you at 12 m. of said sixty-third day.

The successful applicant will be advised of the result of the drawing, but the application will be held suspended until the expiration of six months from date of drawing when if no application based upon proper marking and posting within the 62 days following cancellation has been presented, you will allow the successful applicant to complete his application and forward it to this office with your report.

If an application based on proper location, marking and posting the land within the 62-day period is presented within six months from the date of such location, marking and posting, the applicant thereunder will have prior right to the land and his application will be allowed and that of the successful applicant at the drawing rejected subject to right of appeal. As between two or more applications, timely filed, based on posting the land during the 62-day period, priority of posting will determine priority of right to a permit. Attention is also called to Circular No. 966.

GENERAL PUBLICATIONS

Reference is made in this publication to many circulars which have been issued under the public land statutes of a general nature, which are applicable in the United States, including Alaska. Copies of these pamphlets may be obtained by addressing the Commissioner of the General Land Office, Washington, D. C.

OTHER PUBLICATIONS ON ALASKA

General information regarding the Territory of Alaska.—This pamphlet may be obtained from the Secretary of the Interior, Washington, D. C. It contains a general description of the Territory and a summary of the principal resources. It also contains references to more detailed publications.

Information for prospective settlers in Alaska, Circular No. 1, Alaska Agricultural Experiment Stations.—This circular may be obtained from the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. It is designed to give prospective settlers in Alaska, and particularly homesteaders, information on subjects which will be of more or less vital interest to them. It is designed also to call their attention to many factors in the situation on which they should be informed before settling in a new and comparatively little-known territory.

COAL LANDS

The President of the United States is required by section 2 of the act of October 20, 1914 (38 Stat. 741), to " designate and reserve from use, location, sale, lease, or disposition, not exceeding 5,120 acres of coal-bearing land in the Bering River field, and not exceeding 7,680 acres of coal-bearing land in the Matanuska field," before opening the fields under the provisions of the act. The unreserved coal lands are thereafter to be " divided by the Secretary of the Interior into leasing blocks or tracts of 40 acres each or multiples thereof, and in such form as, in the opinion of the Secretary, will permit the most economical mining of the coal in such blocks, but in no case exceeding 2,560 acres in any one leasing block or tract." The lands having been thus divided into leasing blocks, the Secretary under the act is authorized, then and not before, to offer such blocks or tracts for leasing and award leases thereof through such plan as he may adopt, either by advertisement, competitive bidding, or otherwise.

It is recognized that if the Government were to reserve the total acreage allowed by law and were to select those areas that are believed to be best suited for profitable mining the result might be to prevent effectually coal mining in Alaska until such time as the Government itself might undertake mine development and operation.

The intention of Congress in passing the Alaska coal-leasing law is believed to have been the promotion of the mining of coal in the Territory as early as possible to meet the demands of the Government railroad, the Navy, and Alaskan consumers. The legal provision for Government reservation furnishes a means for safeguarding the public interest in the future, when lack of competition or other exigency may necessitate Government operation. The tracts now selected for reservation in accord with this policy are therefore such as are believed to possess the average rather than the highest value.

The President has therefore designated and reserved from use, location, sale, lease, or disposition the lands described as follows:

Lands reserved in Matanuska field, Seward base and meridian

(1) T. 19 N., R. 6 E.: N. ½ NE. ¼ and N. ½ NW. ¼ sec. 4;
NE. ¼ NE. ¼, W. ½ NE. ¼ and NW. ¼ sec. 5.

NE. ¼, SE. ¼, SE. ¼ NW. ¼, E. ½ SW. ¼ and lots 3 and 4 sec. 18, containing 1,556.98 acres.

In addition to these tracts, the President, June 18, 1917, designated and reserved, in the Matanuska field, Seward base and meridian, coal leasing block No. 12, as follows:

T. 20 N., R. 5 E.: S. ½ SE. ¼, sec. 24;

December 5, 1917, the President designated and reserved, in the Matanuska field, Seward base and meridian, coal leasing block No. 7, as amended, as follows:

T. 19 N., R. 3 E.: E. ½ SE. ¼, sec. 8;
S. ½, sec. 9;
SW. ¼, sec. 10;
NW. ¼, sec. 15;
N. ½ SW. ¼, N. ½ SE. ¼, sec. 16, containing 1,280 acres

January 26, 1918, the President designated and reserved, in the Nenana field, Fairbanks base and meridian, the following tracts:

T. 11 S., R. 7 W.: SE. ¼ SE. ¼, sec. 29;
All sec. 32.
T. 12 S., R. 7 W.: S. ½ NW. ¼, SW. ¼, sec. 4;
All sec. 5, containing 1,560 acres.

All of the coal land in the remainder of these fields is open to application for lease, and none of this open territory will be withdrawn or reserved while there is any bona fide application for a lease thereon.

LEASING BLOCKS

As noted in the foregoing statement the unreserved lands in the coal fields must be divided by the Secretary into leasing "blocks" or "tracts" before he can make a leasing offer. A survey of said lands in accordance with the system of public-land surveys is therefore necessary, as the act requires each leasing block or tract to be described by subdivisions of the survey. To this end such a survey of the Bering River and Matanuska fields has been made and the known coal lands in those fields divided into leasing blocks.

Coal Mining Leases

By authority of the act of Congress approved October 20, 1914 (38 Stat. 741), the unreserved surveyed coal lands in the Bering River and the Matanuska coal fields, Alaska, have been divided into leasing blocks, or tracts, of 40 acres, or multiples thereof, and leases of such blocks or tracts, with the privilege of mining and disposing of the coal, lignite, and associated minerals therein may be procured from the United States in the following manner:

APPLICATION—MAPS

1. On request addressed to the Commissioner of the General Land Office at Washington, D. C., a blank application (Form 4–031) and lease (Form 4–031a) will be furnished the applicant; also, those who desire may procure from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., a folio containing photolithographic copies of the approved plats of the topographic and subdivisional township surveys of the Matanuska field (13 townships) for $1, and of the Bering River field (8 townships) for 75 cents.

QUALIFICATIONS OF APPLICANTS

2. Under this act the qualifications of such lessees are defined as follows:

(a) Any person above the age of 21 who is a citizen of the United States.

(b) Any association of such persons (that is, citizens of the United States over 21 years of age).

(c) Any corporation or municipality organized under the laws of the United States, or of any State or Territory thereof, "Provided, That a majority of the stock of such corporation shall at all times be owned and held by citizens of the United States."

AREA

3. The total area that may be embraced in one lease is fixed at 2,560 acres, which may include one or more contiguous leasing blocks, or tracts, as shown on the map; and no person, association, or corporation is permitted to take or hold any interest as a stockholder or otherwise in more than one lease under this act.

APPLICATION

4. The application blank calls for information as to the name of the applicant, a description of the leasing block or blocks desired, amount of capital proposed as an investment under the lease, time when actual development under the lease will begin, experience in coal mining, and reference as to financial standing.

METHOD OF AWARD

5. The statute under which these proceedings are authorized provides that the Secretary of the Interior may award leases "through advertisement, competitive bidding, or such other methods as he may by general regulation adopt," and the purpose of the applications required herein is to procure such information as will best enable the Secretary to award leases so as to procure the best terms on behalf of the United States and the most effective development of the coal deposits of the Territory.

PUBLICATION

6. All applications will be promptly listed and the proposed terms thereunder will be noted. Thereafter due publication at the expense of the Government for not less than once a week for a period of 30 days will follow in at least two newspapers of general circulation, one of which shall be published in the Territory of Alaska and one in the United States proper, of the applications filed, each to be designated by a number and not by the name of the applicant, the block or blocks applied for, with the announcement that at the expiration of the period of publication the said applications will be taken up and the proposals therein considered, subject to any better terms that may be offered by any other qualified applicant during the period of publication, or by the first applicant.

AWARD OF LEASE

7. All applications for a lease, or proposals in connection therewith, pending at the expiration of the period of publication will be submitted to the Secretary of the Interior in one report, with specific recommendations as to the awards that should be made or denied under the several applications or proposals; and thereafter such action will be taken by the Secretary on the report as may in his discretion seem warranted on the showing made in each case, by which he will obtain the largest investment proportionate to the acreage of the lease, and the earliest actual development of the coal mine on a commercial basis, reserving the right to modify proposed leasing blocks or tracts if the economical mining of the coal will better be procured thereby, or finally to reject any or all applications if, in his judgment, the interests of the United States so require.

INVESTMENT AND BOND

8. An actual, bona fide expenditure on the land for mine operation, development, or improvement purposes of $100 for each acre included in the lease is adopted as the minimum basis for granting leases, with the requirement that not less than one-fifth of the required investment shall be expended in development of the mine during the first year and a like amount each year for the four succeeding years, the investment during any one year over such proportionate amount for that year to be credited on the expenditure required for the ensuing year or years. If the investment to be made is fixed at more than $50,000, the lessee shall furnish a bond with approved corporate surety in the sum of $10,000, conditioned upon the expenditure of the specified amount of investment and upon compliance with the other terms of the lease. If the investment is fixed at $50,000 or less, a bond similarly conditioned in the sum of $5,000 must be furnished. After the required investment has been made the lessee may substitute in lieu of the bond originally furnished a like bond in the sum of $5,000 conditioned upon compliance with the terms of the lease.

In lieu of corporate surety the applicant may deposit United States bonds of a par value equal to the amount of his bond, pursuant to section 1320 of the act of February 24, 1919 (40 Stat. 1057–1148–49), under Treasury Circular No. 154, of June 30, 1919. When United States bonds are thus submitted, the same shall be accompanied by a bond and power of sale duly executed by the applicant.

ADDITIONAL LEASING BLOCKS

9. Lands found to contain coal but not divided into leasing blocks may be hereafter divided into such blocks, and the lands therein made the subject of a leasing offer, the rights of adjacent lessees to be given due consideration in any award that may be made under such offer.

USE OF TIMBER

10. The use of timber by the lessee, in addition to that taken from the leasehold under the terms of the lease, may be secured by him from other lands not embraced in leasing units in accordance with the regulations that may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior under the act of May 14, 1898 (30 Stat. 414), and the acts amendatory thereof, or by arrangement with the Department of Agriculture if from a national forest.[4]

COAL-MINING PERMIT FOR FREE USE OF COAL

The following regulations will govern the issuance of permits for the free use of coal in the unreserved public lands in Alaska, under section 10 of the act of October 20, 1914 (38 Stat. 741), except that the regulations will not apply to coal lands in the Bering or Matanuska coal fields which have been surveyed into leasing blocks or tracts or to fields where mines are being operated under lease:

QUALIFICATIONS

1. Under the terms of the act, expressed in section 3 thereof, only citizens of the United States above the age of 21 years, associations of such citizens, corporations, and municipalities, organized under the laws of the United States or of any State or Territory thereof, provided the majority of the stock of such corporations shall at all times be owned and held by citizens of the United States, are eligible to receive a permit to prospect for and mine coal from the unreserved public lands in Alaska.

WHO MAY MINE COAL FOR SALE

2. All permittees may mine coal for sale except railroads and common carriers, who by the terms of section 3 of the act are restricted to the acquirement of only such an amount of coal as may be required and used for their own consumption.

DURATION OF PERMITS

Permits will be granted for two years, beginning at date of filing, if filed in person or by attorney, or date of mailing, if sent by registered letter, subject to the approval of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and upon application and satisfactory showing as to the necessity therefor, may be extended by the commissioner for a longer period, subject to such conditions necessary for the protection of the public interest as may be imposed prior to or at the time of the extension. Misrepresentation, carelessness, waste, injury to property, the charge of unreasonable prices for coal, or material violation of such rules and regulations governing operation as shall have been prescribed in advance of the issuance of a permit, will be deemed sufficient cause for revocation.

LIMITATION OF AREA

4. The act limits the area to be covered in any one permit to 10 acres. It is not to be inferred from this, however, that the permits granted thereunder shall necessarily cover that area. The ground covered by a permit must be square in form and should be limited to an area reasonably sufficient to supply the quantity of coal needed.

SCOPE OF PERMIT

5. Permits issued under section 10 of the act of October 20, 1914, grant only a license to prospect for, mine, and remove coal free of charge from the unreserved public coal lands in Alaska, and do not authorize the mining of any other form of mineral deposit, nor the cutting or removal of timber.

HOW TO PROCEED TO OBTAIN A PERMIT

6. The application should be duly executed on Form 4-020, and the same should either be transmitted by registered mail to or filed in person with the register and receiver of the United States land office of the district in which the land is situated. Prior to the execution of the application the applicant must have gone upon the land, plainly marked the boundaries thereof by substantial monuments, and posted a notice setting forth his intention of mining coal therefrom. The application must contain the statement that these requirements have been complied with and the description of the land as given in the application must correspond with the description as marked on the ground. The permit, if granted, should be recorded with the local mining district recorder, if the land is situated within an organized mining district.

WHEN COAL MAY BE MINED BEFORE ISSUANCE OF A PERMIT

7. In view of the fact that by reason of long distances and limited means of transportation many applicants may be unable to appear in person at the United States land office to file their applications, it has been deemed advisable to allow such applicants the privilege of mining coal as soon as their applications have been duly executed and sent by registered mail to the proper United States land office. Should an application be rejected, upon receipt of notice thereof all privileges under this paragraph terminate and the applicant must cease mining the coal.

ACTION BY REGISTER

8. The register will keep a proper record of all applications received and all actions taken thereon in a book provided for that purpose. If there appear no reason why the application should not be allowed, the register will issue a permit on Form 4–020a. Should any objection appear either as to the qualifications of the applicant or applicants, or in the substance or sufficiency of the application, the register may reject the application or suspend it for correction or supplemental showing under the usual rules of procedure, subject to appeal to the Commissioner of the General Land Office. Upon the issuance of a permit the register will promptly forward to the Commissioner of the General Land Office by special letter the original application and a copy of the permit and transmit copies thereof to the division inspector and to the local representatives of the United States Bureau of Mines for their information.

If application is filed for free permit or for renewal of an existing free permit under section 10 of the act of October 20, 1914, involving land within a field within which there are mines being operated under the leasing provisions of the said act, the register will transmit such application to the Commissioner of the General Land Office without action but with appropriate recommendation, calling special attention to the possibility of its competition with existing Government leases.

The Nenana Field

A complete topographic and subdivisional township survey of the Nenana field is contained in Geological Survey Bulletin 664, copies of which may be procured on application to the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., for $1.10.

Coal Prospecting Permits

As the act of October 20, 1914 (38 Stat. 741), contained no provision for prospecting permits (which are to be distinguished from mining permits), it was amended March 4, 1921 (41 Stat. 1363), by adding to section 3 a proviso authorizing the issuance of prospecting permits.

The following regulations will govern the issuance of permits under the act of March 4, 1921:

CHARACTER OF LANDS

1. Permits may be issued to prospect unclaimed, undeveloped areas in Alaska where prospecting or exploratory work is necessary to determine the existence or workability of the coal deposits.

TO WHOM PERMITS MAY ISSUE

2. Permits may be issued to any person above the age of 21 years who is a citizen of the United States, or to any association of such persons, or to any corporation or municipality organized under the laws of the United States or any State or Territory thereof, provided that a majority of the stock of such corporation shall at all times be owned and held by citizens of the United States.

AREA

3. Permits may be issued for tracts of not exceeding 2,560 acres of contiguous lands in reasonably compact form.

RIGHTS CONFERRED

4. A permit will entitle the permittee to the exclusive right to prospect for coal on the land described therein. In the exercise of this right the permittee shall be authorized to remove from the premises only such coal as may be necessary in order to determine the workability and commercial value of the coal deposits in the land.

APPLICATION FOR PERMIT

5. Applications for permits shall be filed in the proper district land office, and after due notice thereof on the records forwarded to the General Land Office with report of status of the land affected. No specific form of application is required, and no blanks will be furnished, but it should cover in substance the following points:

(a) Applicant's name and address.

(b) Proof of citizenship and qualification as to stock ownership if a corporation.

(c) Description of land for which a permit is desired, by legal subdivisions, if surveyed, and by metes and bounds and such other description as will identify the land if unsurveyed. If unsurveyed, a survey sufficient to identify more fully and segregate the land may be required before permit is granted.

(d) Condition of coal occurrences, so far as determined, description of workings, and outcrops of coal beds, if any, and reason why the land is believed to offer a favorable field for prospecting for coal.

(e) Detailed plan and method of conducting prospecting or exploratory operations on the land, estimated cost of carrying out such proposed prospecting operations, and the diligence with which such operations will be prosecuted.

(f) A brief statement of applicant's experience in coal-mining operations, if any, together with one or more references as to his reputation and business standing.

The application must be under oath of the applicant or his attorney in fact, or, if a corporation, of one of its officers theretofore duly authorized.

(g) After a permit is ready for delivery, the permittee will be notified and allowed 30 days within which to furnish a bond, with approved corporate surety or two qualified individual sureties, in the sum fixed by the Secretary when the permit is granted, but not to exceed $500, conditioned upon compliance with the terms of the permit and against failure of the permittee to use reasonable precautions to prevent damage to the coal deposits or to leave the premises in a safe condition upon the termination of the permit. With bonds signed by individual sureties, must be filed affidavits of justification by the sureties that each is worth double the sum specified in the undertaking over and above his just debts and liabilities and a certificate by a judge or clerk of a court of record, a United States district attorney, a United States commissioner, or a postmaster, as to the identity, signatures, and financial competency of the sureties. Bond with additional obligations therein will be required where the permit embraces lands entered or patented with the coal reserved under the act of March 8, 1922 (42 Stat. 415).

FORM OF PERMIT

6. On receipt of the application, if found sufficient and the lands subject thereto, a permit will be issued on Form 4–031b, of which the district land office will be advised.

LEASES TO PERMITTEES

7. A qualified permittee who has shown, within the period of the permit, that the land included therein contains coal in commercial quantities will be entitled to a lease for such land, or part thereof as the permittee may desire, upon due application and publication of notice thereof. The application for lease should be filed in the proper district land office before expiration of the period of the permit. An application for lease under this section should describe the land desired and set forth fully and in detail the extent and mode of occurrence of the coal deposits as disclosed by the prospecting work performed under the permit. Such leases will be granted, without competitive bidding, on rents and royalties to be fixed by the Secretary of the Interior, and otherwise substantially in the form of lease provided herein governing coal-land leases in Alaska.

CONTESTS

Contests against entries of public lands in the Territory of Alaska may be initiated by private persons or on the part of the Government in the same manner as such proceedings are begun elsewhere in the United States.

The procedure in such cases will be governed by the Rules of Practice, copies of which may be obtained on application to the Commissioner of the General Land Office. The last revision of the Rules of Practice will be found in volume 51 of Land Decisions, beginning page 547.

Paragraph 4 of the instructions of May 21, 1908 (36 L. D. 433), relating to contests against homestead locations, provides as follows:

> Homestead locations of lands in the District (Territory) of Alaska may be contested and canceled upon any ground which would warrant the cancellation of a homestead entry of land elsewhere made under section 2289, R. S.; and contests of this character may be initiated at the proper United States land office by either the Government or any private person, and should be proceeded with in the same manner and given the same effect as contests against homestead entries elsewhere.

Where a final decision has been rendered in a contest proceeding canceling a homestead location, the register will secure the notation of such judgment on the record of the location in the recording office.

Ex Officio Commissioner for Department of the Interior[f]

1. The ex officio commissioner will have authority to coordinate and supervise the work of the several activities of the General Land Office in Alaska.

2. All officers and employees of the General Land Office in Alaska having for consideration any budgetary matter or matter involving the proposed scope and allocation of work to be done in Alaska should take the same up with the said ex officio commissioner, who will transmit the same with appropriate recommendation to this office.

ACTION ON APPLICATIONS, PETITIONS, ETC.

3. All applications, petitions, etc., involving claims in Alaska arising under the public land laws will be presented to and acted upon by the proper register and receiver in Alaska in the future in like manner as heretofore. The register and receiver, however, instead of transmitting the returns of such applications, petitions, etc., semimonthly to the General Land Office, will forward the returns semimonthly to the ex officio commissioner, or some one duly authorized to represent him in Alaska, who will examine the papers in each case as soon as possible for possible defects in form, execution, or otherwise, and for possible errors by the register and receiver in their actions or decisions.

If any defect or error is found in any particular case or cases included in the semimonthly returns, and such defects or errors may be cured either by the applicant or the register and receiver, such cases shall be taken from the semimonthly returns and forwarded to the register and receiver with whatever suggestions or instructions the ex officio commissioner or his representative deems proper. A note opposite the serial number or numbers of the cases so forwarded should be made on the schedule of returns, and it, with the balance of the cases to which no objection is found, should be forwarded immediately by the ex officio commissioner or his representative to the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

[f] The instructions under this heading are based on Circular No. 1140, not carried in this publication.

Should there be any case or cases in which the defect or error can not be cured or corrected, the ex officio commissioner or his representative will make such recommendation as he may deem advisable and transmit the same with the semimonthly returns in which they are listed to the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

FUR-FARMING LEASES[5]

The following rules and regulations will govern the issuance of fur-farming leases under the act of July 3, 1926 (44 Stat. 821):

APPLICATION FOR LEASE

1. Applications for leases, addressed to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, should be filed in duplicate in the proper district land office. After assignment of a serial number and due notation thereof, one copy should be forwarded to the General Land Office and the other to the division inspector at Anchorage, Alaska. A status report should be furnished with each. No specific form of application is required, and no blanks will be furnished therefor.

[5] The instructions under this heading are based on Circular No. 1108, not carried in this publication. The forms contained in Circular No. 1108 have not been reproduced herein. See instructions of Jan. 30, 1928, p. 190, and of March 19, 1929, p. 278.

Applications should cover, in substance, the following points, and be under oath:

(a)[6] Applicant's name and post-office address.

(b) Proof of citizenship of applicant; if an association of individuals, proof of citizenship of each member thereof; and if a corporation, a certified copy of the articles of incorporation must be furnished.

(c) Description of the land for which the lease is desired, by legal subdivision if surveyed, and by metes and bounds if unsurveyed. In order to properly identify unsurveyed lands, if practicable, the metes and bounds description should be connected by course and distance with some corner of the public-land surveys and their position with reference to rivers, creeks, mountains or mountain peaks, towns, islands, or other prominent topographical points or natural objects or monuments should be given.

(d) The approximate acreage if the application is for unsurveyed land.

(e) Two references as to applicant's reputation and business standing.

(f) The kind or kinds of fur-bearing animals to be raised, and, if foxes, whether silver, blue, or white.

(g) The number of fur-bearing animals the applicant expects to have on the leased land within one year from the date of the lease.

(h) A showing that the applicant has a permit to take animals with which to stock the leased land.

(i) A statement as to whether the land is occupied, claimed, or used by natives of Alaska or others; and if so, the nature of the use and occupancy.

PREFERENCE RIGHT

2. Anyone who in good faith is occupying an island or other tract of land for the purpose of raising fur-bearing animals, and who was unable to obtain a permit or lease because of lack of legal authority, shall have a preferred right to file an application for a lease at any time within six months from the date of these regulations. An applicant claiming such preference right must state fully the facts upon which this claim is based.

BEAVER RAISING

3. No lease under this act for the purpose of raising beavers shall be granted on any area already occupied by a beaver colony and no such lease shall be granted on streams or lakes which will interfere with the spawning grounds of salmon.

INVESTIGATION

4. When the copy of the application is received by the division inspector he will cause an investigation to be made and report fully to the Commissioner of the General Land Office as to the improvements, if any, existing on the lands; as to their use and occupancy, and as to the feasibility of granting the lease.

---

NEWS ITEM

5. Upon the issuance of a lease under this act the register of the United States district land office for the district within which the leased land is situated will furnish the newspaper nearest said land a statement of the issuance of the lease, containing the name of the lessee and a description of the leased land, such statement to be published as an item of news.

RENTAL

6. Every lessee under this act shall pay to the lessor in advance a minimum rental of $25 per annum on leases for all tracts up to and including 640 acres and a minimum of $50 annual rental on leases of tracts exceeding 640 acres, and shall pay a maximum rental equal to a royalty of 1 per cent on the gross returns derived from the sale of live animals and pelts, if the amount thereof exceeds the minimum rental mentioned, such yearly rental to be credited against the royalties as they accrue for that year.

CANCELLATION OF LEASE

7. A lease under this act will be subject to cancellation by the Secretary of the Interior for failure of the lessee to comply with any of the conditions enumerated therein or to exercise due diligence in raising the kind or kinds of fur-bearing animals specified in the lease or for the devotion of the leased area primarily to any purpose other than the raising of fur-bearing animals.

A lease will be automatically canceled for failure of the lessee to place on the leased area the number and kind of fur-bearing animals specified in the lease within a period of one year from the date of said lease as follows: When the lease embraces an area not exceeding 640 acres, not less than 2 pairs (two males and 2 females) of such animals shall be placed on the land within the year; 4 pairs on areas between 640 and 3,000 acres; and 6 pairs on areas exceeding 3,000 acres.

FORM OF LEASE

8. Leases under this act will be made on Form 4–230.

Grazing Leases[g]

The leasing of lands in Alaska under the act of March 4, 1927 (44 Stat. 1452), for grazing livestock, will be governed by the following regulations:

GRAZING DISTRICTS

1. The Secretary of the Interior is authorized, on application or otherwise, to create grazing districts upon any public lands in Alaska, surveyed or unsurveyed, outside of the Aleutian Islands Reservation, national forests, and other reservations administered by the Secretary of Agriculture and outside of national parks and monuments, and to lease the grazing privileges therein.

---

[g] The instructions under this heading are based on Circular No. 1138, not carried in this publication. The forms contained in Circular No. 1138 have not been reproduced herein. Sections 3 and 4 of the instructions have been amended by Circular No. 1203, p. 284.

(a) Leases will not be granted for areas which embrace the natural grazing grounds or routes of migration of wild animals, such as caribou and moose, it being the policy to retain such areas intact for the benefit of wild life and for the natives to subsist thereon, and to prevent the interbreeding of reindeer with wild animals.

(b) Any grazing district may be enlarged or diminished, for any sufficient reason, subject to existing rights of any lessee.

2. Notice of intention to establish a grazing district will be published once a week for six consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in the judicial division in which the proposed district is to be established. The notice will describe the boundaries of the proposed district and give the date on which the district will be established. On or prior to the date announced in the published notice, any person may file objections to the proposed action.

APPLICATIONS

3.[7] After the establishment of a grazing district, applications for leasing the same may be filed, in triplicate, in the proper district land office.

(a) Applications for leases for reindeer grazing areas by natives or associations of natives may be filed through a district superintendent of schools, a supervisor of reindeer, or other responsible official of the Bureau of Education.

(b) After a serial number has been assigned by the register to an application for lease, one copy will be forwarded to the Commissioner of the General Land Office and one to the division inspector at Anchorage, Alaska, each copy to be accompanied by a status report. If the application is for reindeer grazing, a copy should be filed in the office of the district superintendent.

4.[8] When a copy of an application for lease is received by the division inspector, he will cause an investigation to be made, except where such investigation has already been made by a representative of the Bureau of Education, and report to the Commissioner of the General Land Office as to the livestock to be grazed on the land; as to the improvements, if any, existing thereon; as to their use and occupancy, and as to the feasibility of granting a lease.

(a) Every application for the leasing of a reindeer grazing area, when transmitted by the register of the district land office to the division inspector, will be accompanied by a report or concurrence in a prior report, in duplicate, by an official of the Bureau of Education designated by the Commissioner of Education.

CONDITIONS

5. The Secretary of the Interior may temporarily close portions of a leased area to grazing whenever, because of incorrect handling of the stock, overgrazing, fire, or other cause such action is necessary to restore the range to its normal condition. This temporary closing will not operate to exclude such lands from the boundaries of a lease.

6. The Secretary may prescribe the maximum number of stock which may be grazed on a particular area, this maximum number to be fixed on the condition of the range and its accessibility to summer and winter feeding, with the right to reduce the maximum number of stock grazed whenever permanent damage to the range is liable to result, and to increase the number whenever it is possible to do so without injury to the range.

[8] See amendment, p. 284.

7. The Secretary may reduce the leased area if it is excessive for the number of stock owned by the lessee.

8. The Secretary may exclude stock from a specified area whenever it is determined that such area is required for the protection of camping places, sources furnishing drinking water to communities, roads and trails, town sites, mining claims, and for feeding grounds near villages for the use of draft animals or near the slaughtering or shipping points for use of stock to be marketed, and for reasonable native berrying grounds.

DEFINITIONS

9. "Natives," as mentioned in section 6 of the act, is defined as meaning members of the aboriginal races inhabiting Alaska, of whole or mixed blood.

(a) "Other occupants of the range" is defined as meaning persons occupying the range on March 4, 1927, and the area regarded as occupied by this class will be limited in the case of homesteaders or other claimants under public land laws to the area actually used or occupied on that date.

(b) "Settlers" will be regarded as those persons who have established and maintained a bona fide residence within or adjacent to a grazing district either before or after March 4, 1927.

PREFERENCE

10. Preference will not be granted according to the classes listed under section 6 of the act where to do so would oust others who have been grazing the land applied for if it is determined that such other persons should be protected.

11. Any person claiming a preference right to a lease must fully state the facts, by affidavit duly corroborated, on which such claim is made.

CORPORATIONS

12. If an application for a lease is filed in the name of a corporation, the applicant must be prepared to furnish such evidence of the creation of the corporation as the Secretary may require.

DESCRIPTION OF LANDS

13. If the land for which a lease is desired is surveyed, it must be described by legal subdivision. If the land is unsurveyed, it may be shown by a map drawn to appropriate scale, showing the land in relation to rivers, creeks, mountains, mountain peaks, towns, islands, or other prominent topographic features or natural objects, with the approximate latitude and longitude of at least one point on the boundary.

14. Leases will be granted for grazing on a definite area, except where local conditions or the administration of the grazing privileges makes more practicable a lease based on the number of stock to be grazed.

PAYMENTS

15. Unless otherwise provided, each lessee shall pay to the proper district land office such annual rental, per head or per acre, as may be determined is a fair compensation to be charged for the grazing of livestock on the leased land, the compensation to be fixed with due regard to the general economic value of the grazing privilege. The date for making the annual payment will be specified in the lease.

(a) If the rental is to be paid according to the number of animals grazed, no charge will be made for animals under one year of age at the time of entering on the leased area, provided they are the natural increase of the stock upon which fees are paid.

ASSIGNMENTS

16. Proposed assignments, in whole or in part, of a lease must be submitted to the Secretary for approval, and must be accompanied by the same showing as is required of applicants for a lease.

DRIVEWAYS

17. When it appears necessary for stock to regularly cross any portion of an established grazing district, and undue injury to other interests will not result, suitable driveways may be established. Such driveways will be as short and as easy of passage and access as the character of the country and the protection of other interests will permit. They will be established with care for the interests of lessees using adjoining ranges. Where driveways are reserved along well-defined routes which must be traveled, all grazing on these areas will be prohibited except by stock in transit.

QUARANTINE REGULATIONS

(a) It is absolutely essential that persons driving or transporting stock from one point to another comply with the quarantine regulations prescribed by the Territorial or other proper authorities, and unless they do so the privilege may be denied them. The condition of the stock as to contagious or infectious diseases will be determined by the proper Federal or Territorial authorities.

CROSSING PERMITS

18. Crossing permits will ordinarily not be required when the period for crossing is short, when the stock will be driven along a public highway and will not be grazed upon the leased land, or when such crossing will not interfere with the grazing district administration or other related interests.

(a) Free crossing permits will be issued by the division inspector when good grazing administration or the protection of other related interests do not make the issuance of such permits objectionable. Applicants for crossing privileges must make their applications to the division inspector, or such other officer as he may designate, sufficiently in advance of the date when such privilege is to begin to enable the proper officer to handle the details of the business and to give such sufficient notice of the proposed drive to the lessee that he will be able to remove his animals from the line of the drive if he so desires. The application must show the number of stock to be driven, the date of starting, and the approximate period required for crossing.

(b) Applications for crossing permits may be made either in person or by letter, and permits may be issued to either the owner or persons in charge of the stock.

(c) If the land to be crossed is uninclosed and the lessee does not desire to waive the right to its exclusive use, the stock must be so handled that the animals will not intrude upon the adjoining grazing areas.

(d) If a shipping point within a grazing district is the only one reasonably accessible to persons grazing stock outside that grazing district, crossing privileges may be allowed under such restrictions as are necessary to protect the interests of the lessee.

FREE GRAZING

19. Any person, including prospectors and miners, may graze, free of charge, not more than 10 animals upon any land included within any grazing district upon applying to the division inspector, in person or by letter, stating the number and kind of stock to be thus grazed and the approximate time such grazing will be continued.

NATIVES OR HALF-BREEDS

20. Any Eskimo or other native or half-breed, or association thereof, may apply for a grazing allotment on unallotted public lands, and the same lease shall be issued to him or them as to other persons, except that no annual rental will be charged for such lease. Such applicant must show by a corroborated statement that the applicant is an Eskimo or other native or half-breed, or an association thereof, and entitled to such lease without charge.

21. When such Eskimo, native, or half-breed grazes his livestock, through cooperative agreement, on an allotment held by other lessees or permittees, any grazing fee charged for said land on the basis of acreage will be reduced in proportion to the relative number of such native-owned livestock to the total number on said allotment.

ADVISORY BOARDS

22. Whenever any livestock association, whose membership includes a majority of the lessees or permittees owning any class of livestock using a range district unit or allotment, shall select a committee, an agreement on the part of which shall be binding on the association, such committee, upon application to the Secretary, may be recognized as an advisory board for the association. Such advisory board shall then be entitled to receive notice of proposed action and have an opportunity to be heard by the local representative of the Secretary in reference to increase or decrease in the number of stock to be allowed for any year, the division of the range between owners, or the adoption of rules to meet local conditions.

(a) When an association represents only a minority of the lessees or permittees owning any class of livestock, but its members own 75 per cent of that class of livestock using the range, its advisory board may be recognized upon petition of a sufficient number of other owners to constitute a majority of all the grazing lessees or permittees affected.

(b) Upon request from, and with the approval of, an officially recognized advisory board the Secretary may adopt special rules to regulate the use and occupancy of the range and to prevent damage to the range areas, under rules to be binding upon and observed by all lessees or permittees grazing stock within the range involved. Such conditions as may be necessary may be imposed upon the handling of permitted stock, the employment of herders to confine the stock to the allotted ranges, the distribution of salt, the enforcement of Territorial livestock laws, and the construction of permanent improvements to protect the range or faciliate the handling of stock.

OTHER CONDITIONS

23. All conditions contained in the prescribed form (4–470) of lease, but not otherwise mentioned in these regulations, will be considered as a part hereof.

HOMESTEADS

1. All unappropriated public lands in Alaska adaptable to any agricultural use are subject to homestead settlement, and, when surveyed, to homestead entry, if they are not mineral or saline in character, are not occupied for the purpose of trade or business and have not been embraced within the limits of any withdrawal, reservation or incorporated town or city.

SETTLEMENT ON UNSURVEYED LAND

2. A settlement claim on unsurveyed land must be rectangular in form, not more than 1 mile in length, located by lines running north and south, according to the true meridian, the four corners being marked by permanent monuments, unless a departure from such restrictions is authorized by the act of April 13, 1926 (44 Stat. 243). The said act permits a departure from the restrictions mentioned where by reason of local or topographic conditions it is not feasible or economical to include in rectangular form with cardinal boundaries the lands desired. Under the conditions recited in the law as justifying such departure, it will be sufficient that the claims shall be compact and approximately rectangular in form and where a departure from cardinal courses in the direction of boundary lines is necessary in order to include the lands desired there will be no restriction as to the amount of such departure. The modification of former practice in the matter of form and direction of boundaries is not to be construed, however, as authorizing the lines of the claims to be unduly extended in any such manner as will be productive of long narrow strips of land departing materially from the compactness of the tract as a whole.

NOTICE OF SETTLEMENT

3. In addition to marking the claim by permanent monuments at each corner, the settler, in order to protect his claim, must post a notice of the location on the land and must, within 90 days after the settlement, file a copy of the notice for record with the commissioner of the recording district in which the land is situated. The location notice should contain the name of the settler, the date of the settlement, and such description of the land claimed by reference to some natural object or permanent monument as will serve to identify it.

SETTLEMENT ON SURVEYED LANDS

4. Settlement on any part of a surveyed quarter section subject to homestead entry gives the right to enter all of that quarter section; but if a settler desires to initiate a claim to surveyed tracts which form a part of more than one technical quarter, he should define his claim by placing some improvements on each of the smallest subdivisions claimed. As to such claims no posting or recording of a location notice is required, but an application for entry must be filed at the United States land office within three months after the date of settlement in order to preserve the preference right of entry as against subsequent settlers.

PRESCRIBED FORM OF APPLICATION

5. Application to make homestead entry for lands in Alaska should be presented on Form 4–007, the form prescribed for homestead entries under section 2289, United States Revised Statutes.

AFFIDAVITS WHICH SHOULD ACCOMPANY APPLICATION ON PRESCRIBED FORM

6. Each application on the prescribed form should be accompanied by a corroborated affidavit showing:

(1) That the land applied for does not extend more than 160 rods along the shore of any navigable water or that the restriction as to length of claim has been waived and that the land is not within a distance of 80 rods along any such water from any location theretofore made with soldiers' additional rights or as a trade and manufacturing site, homestead, Indian or Eskimo allotment, or school indemnity selection. This showing, however, is not required where a petition for restoration is filed, as permitted in paragraph 2, under the heading "Shore Space Restrictions and Reservations."[9]

(2) That the land is not within an area which is reserved because of springs or water holes thereon. All facts relative to medicinal or other springs or water holes must be stated as set forth in paragraph 3 under the heading "Springs and Water Holes."[10]

OFFICERS AUTHORIZED TO ADMINISTER OATHS IN HOMESTEAD CASES IN ALASKA

7. An application to enter lands in Alaska may be sworn to before the register or the receiver or the acting register of the district in which the land lies or before any court, judge, or other officer in Alaska, or in the United States outside of Alaska, authorized by law to administer an oath. Except as to officers of the district land office, the official character of any officer not using a seal must be certified to under seal by the clerk of the court having record of his appointment and qualifications.

---

[10] See p. 253.

DESCRIPTION OF LANDS IN APPLICATION

8. A homestead application must describe the lands desired according to legal subdivisions as shown by the plat of survey, and, excepting that it must thus conform and that the lands must be contiguous, there is no restriction as to the shape of the tract which may be entered. Where a settlement was made and a location notice posted and filed for record before the extension of the surveys, the application should make reference thereto; it should be stated also to what extent the land applied for is different from that covered by the notice; and the settler may not abandon all of the subdivisions covered by the location unless a showing is made which would justify amendment of his claim.

AREA SUBJECT TO APPROPRIATION

9. A homestead settlement or entry in Alaska is restricted to 160 acres, except in the case of a settlement made before July 8, 1916, or an entry based thereon, which may include as much as 320 acres, provided notice of the settlement was filed for record in the recording district in which the land is situated within 90 days after the settlement was made and the settlement was duly maintained until the filing of the application for entry and provided the applicant has not exhausted his homestead right in whole or in part in the United States.

LIMITATION OF ACREAGE

10. The act of August 30, 1890 (26 Stat. 391), provides that no person who shall, after the passage of the act, enter upon any of the public lands with a view to occupation, entry, or settlement under any of the public land laws shall be permitted to acquire title to more than 320 acres in the aggregate, under all of said laws. A former homestead entry outside of Alaska is not counted as a part of this acreage in connection with a homestead entry of 160 acres in Alaska. The fact that one may have acquired title to 160 acres under the homestead laws, or other agricultural public land laws, outside of Alaska, since August 30, 1890, does not disqualify him from entering 320 acres under the homestead laws in Alaska, based on settlement made prior to July 8, 1916.

QUALIFICATIONS REQUIRED

11. Any person who is qualified to make an ordinary homestead entry in the United States under section 2289, United States Revised Statutes, is qualified to make homestead entry in Alaska, and a former homestead entry outside of Alaska does not bar the claimant's right to make entry in that Territory for not exceeding 160 acres.

SECOND ENTRIES

12. No showing is required of an applicant for 160 acres in the Territory as to a former homestead entry outside of the Territory, but if the applicant has made homestead entry or filed a location notice of a settlement in the Territory and failed to perfect title to the land, he must, in connection with another application to make homestead entry in the Territory, make the showing required by the act of September 5, 1914 (38 Stat. 712), explained in Circular No. 354 (43 L. D. 408).

ADDITIONAL ENTRIES

13. Any person otherwise qualified who has made final proof on an entry for less than 160 acres may make an additional entry for contiguous land under the act of April 28, 1904 (33 Stat. 527), or for noncontiguous land under the act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. 854), for such area as when added to the area previously entered will not exceed 160 acres. The requirements in connection with such entries are set forth in Circular No. 541. An additional entry under the act of April 28, 1904, is not subject to commutation.

APPLICABLE LAWS

14. All homestead claims in Alaska must be perfected under and in accordance with the provisions of the three-year homestead law of June 6, 1912 (37 Stat. 123), and regulations thereunder, contained in Circular No. 541, except claims initiated prior to its passage, which may be perfected under either the three-year or the five-year law.

ESTABLISHMENT OF RESIDENCE

15. Residence must be established upon the claim within six months after the date of the entry or the recording of the location notice, as the case may be; but an extension of not more than six months may be allowed, upon application duly filed, in which the entryman shows by his own affidavit, and that of two witnesses, that residence could not be established within the first six months, for climatic reasons, or on account of sickness, or other unavoidable cause.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

16. A leave of absence for one year or less may be granted by the district officers to a homesteader who has established actual residence on the land, where failure or destruction of crops, sickness, or other unavoidable casualty has prevented him from supporting himself and those dependent upon him by cultivation of the land.

RESIDENCE AND CULTIVATION REQUIRED—PERMISSIBLE ABSENCES

17. A homestead entryman must show residence upon his claim for at least three years; however, he is entitled to absent himself during each year for not more than two periods making up an aggregate of five months, giving written notice to the district land office of the time of leaving the homestead and returning thereto.

There must be shown also cultivation of one-sixteenth of the area of the claim during the second year of the entry and of one-eighth during the third year and until the submission of proof, unless the requirements in this respect be reduced upon application duly filed. The law provides also that the entryman must have a habitable house upon the land at the time proof is submitted.

TRANSFERS BEFORE PROOF

18. In Alaska, as in the United States, a forfeiture of the claim results from a transfer of any part of the land or of any interest therein before the submission of the proof, with certain exceptions specified by law. In the Territory transfers for church, cemetery, or school purposes to the extent of 5 acres and for railroad rights of way across the land having an extreme width of 200 feet are permitted.

COMMUTATION OF ENTRIES

19. To the extent of not more than 160 acres an entry may be "commuted"; that is, the claimant may show 14 months' residence upon the land and cultivation of one-sixteenth of the area commuted and pay $1.25 per acre therefor, cash certificate thereupon issuing, followed by patent in the usual manner. In such cases, the homesteader is entitled to a five months' absence in each year, but can not have credit as residence for such period, actual presence on the land for 14 months being required. However, an additional entry under the act of April 28, 1904 (33 Stat. 527), or a national forest homestead under the act of June 11, 1906 (34 Stat. 233), is not subject to commutation.

SURVEY WITHOUT EXPENSE TO SETTLER

20. The land included in a settlement claim may be surveyed without expense to the settler provided he has sufficiently complied with the law in the matter of residence, cultivation, and improvements to submit three-year proof.

Petition for survey should be filed in duplicate in the proper district land office, describing the land settled upon by approximate latitude and longitude and otherwise with as much certainty as possible without actual survey. The petition should show the date when the settlement was made, the dates from which and to which the settler has resided upon the land, the number of acres cultivated each year and the results of the cultivation, and the character and value of the improvements on the land. The petition should also show that the land does not extend more than 160 rods along the shore of any navigable water or that the 160-rod inhibition has been waived; also that the land is not within a distance of 80 rods along any navigable water from any location theretofore made with soldiers' additional or lieu selection rights, or as a trade and manufacturing site, homestead or Indian allotment, or that the land has been restored from reservation. The petition should be sworn to by the applicant and it should be corroborated by the affidavits of two persons having knowledge of the facts.

The register and receiver will assign a current serial number to the petition and will transmit the original copy thereof to the General Land Office, and if they find the showing satisfactory, if no shore-space question is involved, and in the absence of other objection they will send the duplicate copy of the petition to the cadastral engineer in charge of the public survey office, who, not later than the next succeeding surveying season will issue instructions for the survey of the land without expense to the applicant.

If deemed advisable the cadastral engineer in charge will direct the survey of the land under the rectangular system instead of the survey of the particular claim by metes and bounds.

If a shore space question is involved, the request for survey should be accompanied by a petition, in duplicate, for the waiver of the restriction as to length of claim or for the restoration of the land from reservation, or both.[11] In such case the register and receiver will send the original of both petitions to the General Land Office and the duplicate of both petitions to the division inspector. The latter will report whether or not there is objection to the waiver or restoration requested or to the making of the survey. The report will be made to the General Land Office, as in other cases, but the division inspector will send a copy of the report to the public survey office at Juneau, Alaska, together with the duplicate of the petition for survey and of the petition for waiver or restoration. If a favorable report is made the survey may be proceeded with in the public survey office in like manner as though the land had been restored; but the survey will not be accepted by the General Land Office and an application to enter based thereon will not be entertained unless and until the land is actually restored. In the case of an unfavorable report by the division inspector, action on the petition for survey will be suspended until final action has been had on the petition for restoration.

SURVEY AT EXPENSE OF SETTLER

21. A settler who wishes to secure earlier action in the matter of survey, or one who wishes to submit commutation proof, may have a survey made at his own expense by a deputy surveyor appointed by the United States supervisor of surveys.

APPLICATION TO ENTER LAND INCLUDED IN SPECIAL SURVEY

22. After a special survey has been made, application to enter should be made as in the case of other settlements on surveyed lands.

SUBMISSION OF PROOF

23. Proof may be submitted without previous notice of intention by publication, but it should not be submitted in advance of a special survey.

Whenever the claimant is ready to submit proof, he may appear, with two witnesses having knowledge of the facts, before either the register and receiver of the district in which the land is situated or before any other officer authorized to administer oaths in homestead cases[12] and submit proof of his residence, cultivation, and improvements on the land. The proof testimony must be filed in the district land office.

[11] See p. 246.

[12] See p. 209, par. 7.

FEES AND COMMISSIONS

24. The same payments as fees and commissions are required in connection with homestead entries and proofs in Alaska as must be made in connection with ordinary homestead entries in the State of Oregon. The amounts are set forth in Circular No. 541.

PUBLICATION AND POSTING

25.[13] The register and receiver, upon receipt of the application to enter and the proof testimony, will carefully examine same, and if they find same satisfactory and if the required payments have been made, they will allow the application and will issue and transmit to the entryman notice for publication reading as follows:

> Final proof testimony on homestead entry —— embracing ——— has been submitted by ——— ———, entryman, and his witnesses, ——— ———, residing at ———, and ——— ———, residing at ———, and is now in the files of the district land office at ———, Alaska, and if no protest is filed in the district land office at ——— on or before ———, said final proof will be accepted and final certificate issued.

The register will send a copy of the proof notice to the division inspector for report.

Where a special survey has been made, the proof notice must give the survey number and also the metes and bounds description of the land, and it must be published at the expense of the applicant for a period of 60 days in a newspaper designated by the register as being one of general circulation nearest the land. If the paper be published daily, there must be 60 insertions of the notice; if daily except Sunday, 52 insertions; if semiweekly, 18 insertions; and if weekly, 9 insertions. Moreover, for 60 consecutive days during the period of publication the entryman must keep a copy of the plat,[14] and of his notice of having made proof, posted in a conspicuous place on the land.

Where the public system of surveys has been extended over the land, and the claimant has an entry allowed in conformity therewith, publication of notice will be required for a period of 30 days only. If this be in a daily paper, the publication must be inserted in 30 consecutive issues; if daily except Sunday, in 26; if semiweekly, in 9; and, if weekly, in 5 consecutive issues. No posting on the land will be required.[h]

The register must cause a copy of the notice to be posted in his office during the entire period of publication.

ADVERSE CLAIM

26. In conformity with provision contained in section 10 of the act of May 14, 1898 (30 Stat. 413), during the period of posting and publication or within 30 days thereafter any person, corporation, or association, having or asserting any adverse interest in, or claim to, the tract of land or any part thereof sought to be purchased, may file in the land office where the application is pending, under oath, an adverse claim setting forth the nature and extent thereof, and such adverse claimant shall, within 60 days after the filing of such adverse claim, begin action to quiet title, in a court of competent jurisdiction in Alaska, and thereafter no patent shall issue for such claim until the final adjudication of the rights of the parties, and such patent shall then be issued in conformity with the final decree of the court.

Where such adverse claim is filed action on the application will be suspended until final adjudication of the rights of the parties in the court or until it has been shown that the adverse claimant did not commence an action in the court within the time allowed.

Any protest which may be filed which does not show that the protestant intends to commence an action to quiet title, as stated, and any contest which may be filed will be disposed of by the register and receiver in accordance with the Rules of Practice (51 L. D 547).[15]

PROOF OF PUBLICATION AND POSTING

27. The proof of publication must consist of the affidavit of the publisher or foreman of the designated newspaper, or some other employee authorized to act for the publisher, that the notice (a copy of which must be attached to the affidavit) was published for the required period in the regular and entire issue of every number of the paper during the period of publication in the newspaper proper and not in a supplement. Proof of posting on the claim must consist of the affidavits of the applicant and one witness who of their own knowledge know that the plat of survey and proof notice were posted as required and remained so posted during the required period. The register must certify to the posting of the notice in a conspicuous place in his office during the period of publication.

ISSUANCE OF CERTIFICATE

28. Upon the expiration of the period allowed for the filing of adverse claims, if all necessary proofs and payments have been made, and in the absence of objection then appearing, the register will issue final or cash certificate as may be proper.

National Forest Homesteads

The act of June 11, 1906 (34 Stat. 233), providing for homestead entries of agricultural lands within national forests applies to such lands in Alaska. Circular No. 263 (49 L. D. 9) has been issued under this act.

National-forest entries may be made only after the lands desired have been listed by the Secretary of Agriculture as agricultural in character and after a declaration by the Secretary of the Interior that the listed lands are subject to settlement and entry.

Information as to the boundaries of the forests, the method of applying for listing, etc., may be obtained by addressing the Forester, Washington, D. C., or the United States district forester at Juneau, Alaska.

Homestead entries in national forests are limited in area to 160 acres and are subject to the general homestead laws and regulations, except that no commutation is allowed. Application should be made on Form 4–007, as in other cases.

[15] See p. 199.

In the matter of form of entry and direction of boundaries, homestead settlements and entries in national forests in Alaska are subject to the same conditions and provisions as are applicable to other homestead claims in Alaska;[16] otherwise, the regulations governing the survey of homestead entries in national forests, contained in Circular No. 235 (42 L. D. 124), are applicable.

No showing as to shore space,[17] or as to springs or water holes,[18] is required in connection with homestead entries in national forests in Alaska.

HOMESTEADS ON COAL, OIL, AND GAS LANDS

Provision for homestead entries on coal, oil, and gas lands in the Territory of Alaska, with a reservation of the mineral deposits, was made by the act of March 8, 1922 (42 Stat. 415), and entries thereunder will be governed by the following instructions:

SCOPE OF ACT

1. The act provides that upon the unreserved, unwithdrawn public lands in the Territory of Alaska homestead claims may be initiated by actual settlers on public lands which are known to contain workable coal, oil, or gas deposits, or which may be, in fact, valuable for the coal, oil, or gas contained therein. Thus, by the class last named, provision is made for cases in which land is not at the date of the initiation of the claim thereto actually known to contain workable coal, oil, or gas deposits, but in which it becomes known, during the interval between the initiation of the claim and its completion, that the land is, in fact, valuable for the coal, oil, or gas contained therein.

It also provides that homestead claims so initiated may be perfected under the appropriate public land laws and that, upon satisfactory proof of full compliance with these laws, the claimant shall be entitled to patent to the lands entered by him, which patent shall contain a reservation to the United States of all the coal, oil, or gas in the land patented, together with the right to prospect for, mine, and remove the same.

The act constitutes, therefore, an extension to the Territory of Alaska of the principles of the surface homestead acts already in force in the public-land States, namely, the acts of March 3, 1909 (35 Stat. 844), June 22, 1910 (36 Stat. 583), and July 17, 1914 (38 Stat. 509).

HOMESTEAD APPLICATIONS

2. Applications to make homestead entry for land embraced in a coal, oil, or gas prospecting permit or coal lease should be suspended and forwarded to the General Land Office for consideration and instructions, but if for lands embraced in an oil or gas lease, should be rejected, subject to appeal.

Applications to make homestead entry for land classified as or known to be valuable for coal, oil, or gas must have written, stamped, or printed upon their face the following:

Application made in accordance with and subject to the provisions and reservations of the act of March 8, 1922 (42 Stat. 415).

Like notations will be made by registers upon the face of the notices of allowance issued on applications filed under this act. If, prior to the date of the filing of the homestead application, the land was embraced in a prospecting permit or coal lease, the notice of allowance should contain substantially the following:

The records of this office show that (here insert the name of permittee or coal lessee) has been granted a prospecting permit (or coal lease, as the case may be) affecting the (here insert description of land), and has the right to occupy so much of the surface thereof as may be required for all purposes reasonably incident to prospecting for and the removal of the coal (or drilling for and the extraction of the oil and gas, as the case may be), without liability to the homstead entryman for resulting damages to his crops and improvements.

FINAL CERTIFICATES AND PATENTS

3. Final certificates issued to homestead claimants under this act will contain the following provision, which the register will cause to be written or stamped thereon:

Patent will contain provisions, reservations, conditions, and limitations of the act of March 8, 1922 (42 Stat. 415).

There will be incorporated in patents issued to homestead claimants under this act the following:

Excepting and reserving, however, to the United States all the (deposit on account of which the lands are withdrawn, classified, or reported to be valuable—coal or oil and gas, as the case may be) in the lands so patented, and to it or persons authorized by it, the right to prospect for, mine, and remove such deposits from the same upon compliance with the conditions and subject to the provisions and limitations of the act of March 8, 1922 (42 Stat. 415).

NOTATIONS OF RECORDS

4. Upon the acceptance by you of any filing under this act, you will make appropriate notation on your records to show that the filing was made under the provisions of the act. You will make a similar notation on the margin of the township plat, if any, giving the description of the land in which the deposits have been reserved.

SOLDIERS' ADDITIONAL HOMESTEADS

5. The final proviso to the act excludes all the lands in Alaska withdrawn, classified, or valuable for coal, oil, or gas, from entry or disposition by means of the location of rights under section 2306, Revised Statutes, commonly known as soldiers' additional homestead entries.

DISPOSAL OF MINERAL DEPOSITS

6. Section 2 of the act provides that, upon satisfactory proof of full compliance with the provisions of the laws under which entry was made and with the provisions of the act itself, the homestead claimant shall be entitled to a patent to the land entered by him, which patent shall contain a reservation to the United States of all the coal, oil, and gas in the land so patented, together with the right to prospect for, mine, and remove the same; and that the coal, oil, and gas deposits so reserved shall be subject to disposal by the United States in accordance with the provisions of the laws applicable to coal, oil, or gas deposits, or coal, oil, or gas lands in Alaska, in force at the time of such disposal. It also provides that any person qualified to acquire coal, oil, or gas deposits, or the right to mine and remove the coal, or to drill for and remove the oil or gas, under the laws of the United States shall have the right at all times to enter upon the lands as provided by this act for the purpose of prospecting for coal, oil, or gas upon the approval, by the Secretary of the Interior, of a bond or undertaking to be filed with him as security for the payment of all the damages to the crops and improvements on such lands by reason of such prospecting; and that any person who has acquired from the United States coal, oil, or gas deposits in any such land or the right to mine, drill for, or remove the same, may reenter and occupy so much of the surface thereof as may be required for all purposes reasonably incident to the mining and removal of the coal, oil, or gas therefrom, and mine and remove the coal or drill for and remove the oil or gas upon payment of the damages caused thereby to the owner thereof, or upon giving a good and sufficient bond or undertaking, in an action instituted in any competent court to ascertain and fix the said damages,

There is no provision under the law for prospecting prior to the actual issuance of a permit therefor.

PERMITTEES' BONDS

7. Provision is made by the act of March 4, 1921 (41 Stat. 1363), for coal prospecting permits in Alaska, and by the act of February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. 437), for oil prospecting permits. In order lawfully to mine, remove, or drill for the coal, oil, or gas affected by this act, the permittee must file a waiver from, or a consent of the homestead claimant, or there must be presented to and be approved by the Secretary of the Interior a bond or undertaking for the payment of all damages to the crops and improvements on the lands prospected caused by the prospecting.

FORM OF PERMITTEE'S BOND

8. There must be filed with such bond or undertaking evidence of service of a copy thereof upon the homestead claimant. The bond must be executed by the prospector as principal with two competent individual sureties, or a corporate surety which has complied with the provisions of the act of August 13, 1894 (28 Stat. 279), as amended by the act of March 23, 1910 (36 Stat. 241), in the sum of $1,000. Except in the case of a bond given by a qualified corporate surety there must be filed therewith affidavits of justification by the sureties and a certificate by a judge or clerk of a court of record, a United States district attorney, a United States commissioner, or a postmaster as to the identity, signatures, and financial competency of the sureties.

This bond or undertaking may be filed as a matter of expedition at the time of the filing by the mineral claimant of his application for a permit or the filing may be deferred until formal notice of the necessity therefor shall be received from the General Land Office. For forms of bonds which should be utilized see 50 L. D. 129 to 131, inclusive.

LESSEES' BONDS

9. There is no provision for the presentation to this office of bonds executed to or for homestead claimants by lessees or by persons who have acquired from the United States coal, oil, or gas deposits or the right to mine, drill for, or remove the same. In such cases bonds are to be arranged for in an action instituted in any competent court to ascertain and fix the damages suffered.

HOMESTEAD CLAIMANT'S LIMITED RIGHT TO MAKE USE OF THE COAL DEPOSITS

10. The homestead claimant under this act may, at any time prior to the disposal by the United States of the coal deposits on his claim, make use of them for his domestic purposes and this may be done without the filing of any application therefor. This privilege does not, however, authorize the mining of the coal deposits for the purpose of barter or sale.

Allotments to Indians and Eskimos

1. The proceeding to secure an allotment under the act of May 17, 1906 (34 Stat. 197), will be initiated by a written application to the register and receiver, signed by the applicant and describing the location and extent of the tract applied for, and, if unsurveyed, by as accurate a description as possible by metes and bounds, and natural objects, and its position with reference to rivers, creeks, mountains or mountain peaks, towns, or other prominent topographical points of natural objects or monuments, giving the distances and directions as accurately as possible, especially with reference to any well-known trail to a town or mining camp, or to a river or mountain appearing on the map of Alaska. Notice of the application should be posted upon the land, describing the tract applied for, in the terms employed in the application, and a copy of such notice should accompany the application. If the applicant is unable to write his name, it is desired that his thumb print to the application be obtained, in preference to his signature by mark, his thumb print to be witnessed by two persons. Allotments will not be made on tracts reserved by the United States as shore spaces under the act of March 3, 1903 (32 Stat. 1028),[19] or within national forests, unless founded on actual occupancy prior to the establishment of the forest, or unless the Secretary of Agriculture certifies that the application is allowable under section 31 of the act of June 25, 1910 (36 Stat. 855, 863), and provided the applicant shows occupancy, residence, or improvements required by said section. The application if filed under said section 31 should be made on form 5-149, and should contain a reference to the act of May 17, 1906.

Reserved shore spaces eliminated under the provisions of the act of June 5, 1920 (41 Stat. 1059), may, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior, be allotted under the terms of said act of May 17, 1906, and these regulations, and the terms and provisions of said act of June 5, 1920, and instructions thereunder.

AFFIDAVITS

2. The applicant must also file his or her affidavit of qualification under the statute, and if claiming under the preference-right clause, the date of the beginning of his occupancy must be given, and its continuous nature stated. This must be corroborated by an affidavit of two witnesses, who may be Indians or Eskimos.

3. A nonmineral affidavit must also be filed by the applicant, sworn to only on personal knowledge and not on information and belief.

4. The affidavits may be sworn to before the proper register or receiver, or any officer authorized to administer oaths and having a seal.

MARRIED WOMAN

5. If the application is made by a woman, she must state in her affidavit whether she is single or married, and if married must show what constitutes her the head of a family, as it is only in exceptional cases that a married woman is entitled to an allotment under this act.

ACTION ON APPLICATION

6. The register and receiver will receive and suspend applications for allotments filed under this act, number such applications in accordance with the circular of August 9, 1918 (46 L. D. 513), and note the same on the schedules forwarded at the end of the month, as required by said circular, giving in the "Remarks" column the date of transmittal to the division inspector. Where the application is found by the district land officers to be complete in all respects, as hereinbefore required, is not rejected by them for any reason, and is received, noted, and suspended by them to await completion of the hereinafter-mentioned proceedings, it operates as a segregation of the land. All claims for land presented to the register and receiver subsequent to the filing of such an application which conflict in whole or in part with such application for the land therein described shall be rejected.

PAPERS—FEES

7. The register and receiver will assist applicants in the preparation of their papers, as far as practicable, and, as the act makes no provision for any fees for filing, will make no charge in any of these cases.

REFERENCE TO DIVISION INSPECTOR

8. The application for allotment and all papers filed in connection therewith will, when such application is found satisfactory to the register and receiver, be referred by them to the division inspector.

REPORT FROM DISTRICT SUPERINTENDENT, BUREAU OF EDUCATION

9. Upon receipt of the record from the district land office, the division inspector will call on the district superintendent of the United States Bureau of Education for the district in which the proposed allotment is situated for a report covering such information as he may have in regard to the allotment, and particularly covering the following points:

(a) The location of the land, if necessary, to furnish a more accurate description than given in the application.

(b) The special value of the tract, either for agricultural uses or fishing grounds.

(c) What, if any, residence has been maintained on the tract by the applicant.

(d) The value and character of all improvements thereon.

(e) The fitness of the land as a permanent home for the allottee.

(f) The competency of the applicant to manage his own affairs.

(g) The presence or absence of any adverse claims and, if any such claims exist, a description thereof.

(h) The proximity of the claim applied for to other claims under said act of May 17, 1906.

(i) Such other information as may serve to aid in determining whether the application should be allowed, either in whole or in part, together with his recommendation as to the proper action in the premises.

APPLICATION FOR SURVEYED LAND TO BE ALLOWED

10. Upon receipt of favorable reports from the division inspector and district superintendent covering allotment applications hereafter filed, embracing lands covered by the public survey, the register and receiver may, all else being regular, and no valid objections thereto being apparent, allow the same, notice of which, by special letter, reading substantially as follows:

> Your application under the act of May 17, 1906 (34 Stat. 197), No. ———, for ——————————, has been placed of record in this office and forwarded to the General Land Office.
> This action segregates the land from the public domain, and no other application can be allowed therefor or settlement rights attach during the life of this application; should be given to the applicant. Immediately upon the issuance of said notice copy thereof, appropriately marked, should be forwarded to each, the district superintendent, and the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

APPLICATION FOR UNSURVEYED LAND—LAND TO BE MARKED—LISTING DESCRIPTION TO BE FURNISHED BY INSPECTOR

11. Upon the receipt of the report of the district superintendent, in case of an application for unsurveyed land, the division inspector will, if in his judgment the report is sufficient, furnish or cause to be furnished by an inspector, as soon as may be convenient, and with as little expense to the Government as possible, and except in the matter of furnishing and installing the listing description monuments, without expense to the applicant, a listing description of the tract applied for. As basis for this listing description the land should be marked with substantial corners, properly installed and witnessed, uniformly marked and, except as provided for in paragraph 12 hereof, corner No. 1 thereof tied to the nearest location or mineral monument or corner of the public-land survey or other official patented survey if within a reasonable distance.

One of the aforesaid corners, preferably corner post No. 1, may be tied to the official survey of an approved allotment which has been properly tied to some established survey monument or corner of the public-land survey.

Except for the protection of preference rights acquired by actual occupancy, the land applied for must be taken by the applicant in rectangular form, and the lines must follow the true cardinal points as nearly as they may be determined, unless departure from such restrictions is authorized by the act of April 13, 1926 (44 Stat. 243),[20] and except in cases of preference rights acquired by actual occupancy, no application under said act will be favorably considered which embraces tracts of land situate upon both sides of a salmon stream or navigable or meanderable body of water. The land must be nonmineral in character, and no claim whatever may include in excess of 160 acres of such land.

12. Where the above referred to corner post is not tied to a corner of the public survey, but is tied to a location or mineral monument or one of the official surveys referred to in paragraph 11 hereof, the inspector's returns should contain a description of the location or mineral monument to which the corner, preferably corner No. 1, of the involved land is tied, by giving its latitude and longitude, and its position with reference to rivers, creeks, mountains or mountain peaks, towns, or other permanent topographical points or natural objects or monuments, giving the distances and directions as accurately as possible, especially with reference to any well-known trail to a town or mining camp, or to a river or mountain appearing upon the map of Alaska, which description shall appear in the aforesaid returns.

Where the corner post, preferably No. 1, is tied to one of the official surveys mentioned in paragraph 11 hereof the location of such post corner with relation to the other monuments of the involved land and the relation of such post to the mineral monument to which the same is tied should be given, together with the other data enumerated in this paragraph concerning the description and position of the mineral monument.

The description of such monuments should be obtained from the public-survey office and appear in a paragraph of the returns separate from the description of the courses and distances herein authorized to be furnished by the inspector.

In case the land is situated beyond a reasonable distance from a corner of the public survey or location or mineral monument or other survey mentioned in paragraph 11 hereof the location of the land with reference to known rivers, creeks, mountains, towns, trails, mining camps, or other permanent topographic features or natural objects or permanent monuments may be and should be shown in the inspector's above-mentioned work and in his returns and be depicted on the map of the section of Alaska in which the allotment is situated, which should accompany his said returns.

FACTS TO BE REPORTED ON BY INSPECTOR—SKETCH REQUIRED

13. The inspector will, after the service aforesaid shall have been performed by him, make report thereof to the division inspector.

This report in sextuplicate should be typewritten, cover all the field work done as basis for the foregoing listing description, and contain such a description of the involved land and report of the work done in connection with obtaining the listing description as will enable the Government and all parties interested to ascertain readily the location of said land from said report, even though all visible marks or other physical evidence of the boundaries may have been entirely obliterated. The report should be accompanied by a sketch, signed and dated by the inspector depicting the boundaries of the land and the position of same with relation to well-known natural and other objects, the location and description of which should be fully and accurately stated in the inspector's returns.

The returns and sketch or diagram above referred to should each bear the same date of approval.

DISPOSITION OF COPIES OF INSPECTOR'S REPORT

14. Immediately upon receipt of the above report and diagram from the inspector the division inspector will, if he approves the same, transmit three copies thereof to the register and receiver within whose land district the premises are situated and one copy thereof to the public survey office.

NOTATION OF LISTING DESCRIPTION IN PUBLIC SURVEY OFFICE—OTHER PROCEEDINGS

15. The cadastral engineer in charge of the public survey office will upon receipt of the report and sketch note same in a book to be kept for such purpose and, where practicable, note the location of the land on the district sheets of his office in pencil until such time as an official survey thereof shall be ordered or final disposition is made of the allotment adverse to the applicant. Information concerning the status of the allotment application may be obtained by the public survey office from the proper district land officers. The division inspector is also directed in those cases where he approves the returns aforesaid made by the inspector to amend over his signature the allotment application to conform with the description of the land referred to in said returns as furnished by the inspector's report and forward said application thus amended and conformed to the General Land Office properly indorsed so as to show the changes in description therein and the date when made. The original report or returns made by the inspector should be forwarded by the division inspector to the General Land Office at the same time the allotment application amended and conformed as hereinbefore directed is forwarded. He will retain in his files the remaining carbon copy of said returns. The report of the district superintendent, approved by the division inspector in cases where the same meets with his approval, should also be transmitted to the General Land Office at the same time the amended application is forwarded as hereinbefore directed, together with such suggestions as to the application as may seem to him appropriate.

NOTATION OF LISTING DESCRIPTION IN DISTRICT LAND OFFICE

16. The register and receiver, as soon as they shall have received the aforesaid copies of diagrams and report from the division inspector will appropriately note their records so as to show the location, as shown by the listing description aforesaid, of the lands applied for.

APPLICATION FOR UNSURVEYED LAND WITH LISTING DESCRIPTION TO BE ALLOWED

17. Upon making the notations required by paragraph 16 hereof so as to further conform the application to the description thus furnished by the division inspector the register and receiver will relieve the application from suspension and place the same, as thus amended, of record, all else being regular, immediately reporting to the General Land Office by special letter their action in the premises and the date thereof. Notice of the above action of the district land officers should also be given, in writing, to the applicant and to the district superintendent of the United States Bureau of Education for the district in which the land thus applied for is situated, and each should be furnished with a copy of the returns or listing description, including diagram, furnished to the register and receiver by the division inspector as aforesaid. The copy of the inspector's report furnished the register and receiver by the division inspector should be retained by them until the application is finally disposed of, whereupon same should be forwarded by special letter to the General Land Office, with appropriate remarks.

EFFECT OF ALLOWANCE BY REGISTER AND RECEIVER

18. The removal of the suspension aforesaid, amendment of the application in the manner and particulars heretofore and hereinafter referred to, and placing of applications of record do not necessarily mean that the applications for allotment will be approved. The indicated action simply further segregates and continues to segregate the land from subsequent conflicting applications therefor until the Secretary of the Interior, in his discretion, decides either to approve or disapprove the application or applications for allotment.

ADJUSTMENT TO PUBLIC SURVEY

19. Except in cases of surveys already made and approved pursuant to prior regulations and authorizations, and which are free from objections, and also, except in special cases, where special instructions for the survey of the unsurveyed land applied for are issued, it shall be the duty of the register and receiver, upon the filing of the township plat in their office and upon ascertaining, where necessary, from the public survey office whether its records disclose any allotment applications within the township (and provided the allotment application still stands of record in their office), to notify the applicant and the said superintendent thereof, each by registered letter, and to require the adjustment of the claim to the public survey within 90 days.

In default of action by the parties notified, the register and receiver will promptly, and as accurately as the records will permit, adjust the claim to the public-land survey and report their action to the General Land Office.

The said adjustment shall embrace such subdivisions and parts of subdivisions as shall include all of the applicant's improvements and possessions, if possible.

APPROVAL OF APPLICATION ADJUSTED TO PUBLIC SURVEY

20. If the Commissioner of the General Land Office, upon the entire record submitted, shall find the application meritorious, in whole or in part, he will, not earlier than five years from and after the date when the said application shall have been adjusted to the public-land survey, unless otherwise directed, submit the same to the Secretary of the Interior for his approval. In special cases, however, and without being specially directed so to do, the Commissioner may, if upon the entire record submitted he shall find the application meritorious, in whole or in part, submit the same to the Secretary of the Interior for his approval as aforesaid; and if so approved, special instructions for the survey thereof will then issue in accordance with the terms of the approval. Where such special cases are taken up, considered, submitted, and approved, and special instructions for their survey are issued in accordance with the terms of the approval, such cases or allotments shall be subject to the same requirements as to methods of survey, cardinal courses, and permanent markings of boundaries, except for the protection of preference rights acquired by actual occupancy, as land surveyed under United States laws in Alaska in general, in accordance with the instructions governing lands thus surveyed.

APPROVAL OF APPLICATIONS MADE IN CONFORMITY WITH PUBLIC SURVEYS

21. Allotment applications embracing lands covered by the public survey and allowed by the district land officers will also not be submitted to the Secretary of the Interior for his approval earlier than five years from the date of their allowance by the register and receiver as aforesaid, and not then until the hereinbefore referred to reports shall have first been made to the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

RECORD OF APPROVED ALLOTMENTS—CERTIFICATE TO ALLOTTEE

22. A schedule of all approved allotments shall be kept of record in the General Land Office; and, as the act makes no provisions for a patent, a certificate will issue showing the approval of the allotment (and the survey thereof, if surveyed) for delivery to the allottee.

DISPOSITION OF REPORT OF DISTRICT SUPERINTENDENT, BUREAU OF EDUCATION

23. If the report hereinbefore mentioned of the district superintendent to the division inspector does not fully cover all the facts, the division inspector will either return it to the district superintendent for further information or direct an investigation by an inspector of his office, as in his judgment may be deemed best; and, moreover, whether he approves or disapproves the recommendations made in the report of the district superintendent, he will transmit same to the Commissioner of the General Land Office with such suggestions as to the application as may seem to him appropriate.

APPLICATIONS AFFECTED

24. These regulations apply to all Indian allotment applications filed on or after September 8, 1923, and to all such applications filed prior to that date, which on that date had not been officially surveyed or approved by the department and which were not then in condition to be recommended for approval.

RESERVATIONS FOR INDIANS AND ESKIMOS

While there is no specific statute relating to the subject, yet the inherent power conferred upon the Secretary of the Interior by section 441, Revised Statutes, to supervise the public business relating to the Indians includes the supervision over reservations in the Territory of Alaska created in the interest of the natives and the authority to lease lands therein for their benefit. Opinion of the solicitor, May 18, 1923 (49 L. D. 592).

DISPOSAL OF LANDS

The tide or other lands in Alaska occupied or reserved for the Indians or natives can not be disposed of by them under existing law, but the power rests with Congress, with or without their consent, to provide for the ultimate disposal of these lands. Opinion of the solicitor, March 12, 1924 (50 L. D. 315).

LANDING AND WHARF PERMITS ON RESERVED SHORE SPACES

Section 10 of the act of May 14, 1898 (30 Stat. 409), the text of which is printed under the heading "Trade and Manufacturing Sites,"[21] authorizes the Secretary of the Interior to grant the use of reserved shore space lands abutting on the water front to any citizen, or association of citizens, or to any corporation incorporated under the laws of the United States or under the laws of any State or Territory, for landings and wharves, with the provision that the public shall have access to and proper use of such landings and wharves at reasonable rates of toll to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior.

APPLICATION

1. Applications for landing and wharf privileges must be under oath, and should be addressed to the Secretary of the Interior and filed in the proper district land office for transmission to the General Land Office by special letter.

Applications should describe the tracts desired by words and by a preliminary diagram showing their position in connection with adjoining surveys and water front and by courses and distances where not defined by prior surveys. There should be filed diagrams and specifications of the proposed wharves and landings, showing their position in connection with the roadway used by vessels, the width of the channel, and the various soundings. Maps and such other papers as may be necessary to fully show the situation must be furnished. All buildings proposed to be erected should be shown on the diagram accompanying the application, and there should be indicated their use and whether they are for public or private purposes.

[21] The text of the section of the act referred to has not been included in this publication.

In an application by an individual or association, the citizenship of the individual and of the members of the association must be shown.

In case of a corporation a certified copy of the articles of incorporation and evidence of organization must be furnished in the same manner as is required where corporations apply for rights of way for railroad purposes.

USE OF LAND—TOLLS

2. The use of such land is limited to landings and wharves, and all rates of toll to be paid by the public must be submitted for approval of the Secretary of the Interior. The application should be accompanied by a proposed schedule of public toll charges; and if such charges are found to be reasonable, the schedule will be approved, subject, however, to revision as the public interests may thereafter require.

SURVEY—ISSUANCE OF PERMIT

3. If the application be allowed, the cadastral engineer in charge of the public survey office will instruct a United States surveyor to execute a survey and set permanent monuments to delineate the boundaries of the tract, and a permit will be issued granting the applicant the use of the land sought for landings and wharves, subject to the provisions and conditions prescribed by the statute, which permit will be revocable at the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior. The erection of wharves and piers in any port, roadstead, haven, harbor, canal, navigable river, or other water of the United States, outside of established harbor lines, or where no harbor lines have been established, must be in conformity with plans recommended by the Chief of Engineers and authorized by the Secretary of War; consequently such applications will be submitted to the War Department for approval, or such other action as that department may deem proper, before final action is taken in this department.

JURISDICTION IN NATIONAL FORESTS

4. Reserved spaces between claims upon navigable waters within existing national forests in Alaska are subject to the jurisdiction of the Secretary of Agriculture, pursuant to the act of February 1, 1905 (33 Stat. 628), and permits for the use of such spaces for landings and wharves must be obtained through that department.

Public Land Laws Applicable in Alaska

The act of May 17, 1884 (23 Stat. 24), providing for a civil government for Alaska, in section 8, extended to Alaska "the laws of the United States relating to mining claims, and the rights incident thereto," but provided that "nothing contained in this act shall be construed to put in force in said district the general land laws of the United States." Similar provision is contained in sections 26 and 27 of the act of June 6, 1900 (31 Stat. 321), which also made provision for a civil government for Alaska.

However, in section 3 of the act of August 24, 1912 (37 Stat. 512), it was provided that " the Constitution of the United States, and all the laws thereof which are not locally inapplicable, shall have the same force and effect within the said Territory as elsewhere in the United States."

In an opinion dated June 29, 1915 (30 Op. Atty. Gen. 387), the Attorney General had occasion to consider the effect of the act of August 24, 1912, in respect to extending certain public-land statutes to Alaska,[22] and, in this connection, he stated: " The express exception of the public land laws, found in the earlier organic acts, is here omitted; all the laws of the United States are to operate in Alaska save only such as may be locally inapplicable."

It follows, therefore, that whether or not any particular public land statute is applicable in the Territory depends on whether or not it may operate therein consistently with special legislation and with local conditions.

This publication contains the text of the principal public land statutes and the regulations thereunder, which relate exclusively to the Territory, and reference is made to other public land laws and regulations of a general character, which have been held applicable in the Territory.

The question whether any particular public land statute not referred to in this publication is or is not applicable in the Territory will be given consideration in each case as it arises.

Mineral Lands

1. The laws of the United States relating to mining claims were extended to Alaska by section 8 of the act of May 17, 1884 (23 Stat. 24), and sections 15, 16, and 26 of the act of June 6, 1900 (31 Stat. 321), again, in terms, extended the mining laws of the United States and all rights incident thereto, to the Territory, with certain further provisions with respect to the acquisition of claims thereunder. Instructions under the general mining laws are contained in Circular No. 430 (49 L. D. 15).

PLACER CLAIMS

2. The law in respect to placer claims in Alaska was modified and amended by the act of August 1, 1912 (37 Stat. 242), and section 4 of that act was amended by the act of March 3, 1925 (43 Stat. 1118).

The said act of August 1, 1912, applies exclusively to placer-mining claims located in Alaska on or after August 1, 1912. It does not in any manner relate to lode-mining claims, or placer-mining claims located prior to said date. The terms of the act lay strict limitations and conditions with respect to the placer locations made upon or after said date.

Section 1 of the act provides that no association placer claim shall be located after August 1, 1912, in excess of 40 acres. This limitation is positive, whatever may be the number of persons associated together or whatever the local district rules or regulations may permit.

Said section further provides that on every placer-mining claim located in Alaska after the passage of the act, and until patent therefor has been issued, not less than $100 worth of labor must be performed or improvements made during each year, including the year of location, for each and every 20 acres or excess fraction thereof included in the claim. This means that the first annual expenditure on such a placer-mining location must be accomplished for and during the year in which the claim is located, instead of during the year succeeding that in which the location is made. Moreover, the amount of annual expenditure is dependent upon the size of the claim, it being required that at least $100 must be expended for each 20 acres or excess fraction thereof embraced in the location.

By section 2 it is provided that no person, as attorney or agent for another, may locate any placer-mining claim unless duly authorized by a power of attorney properly acknowledged and recorded in some recorder's office within the judicial division where the location is made. Furthermore, an authorized agent or attorney can act in making locations of placer-mining claims for only two individual principals or one associate principal during any calendar month, and during that period may not lawfully locate more than two claims for any one principal, either individual or association. No placer claim can lawfully be located except in compliance with and under the limitations of the act.

In order that the Land Department may be fully advised in the premises, the following requirements must be met with regard to applications for placer-mining claims located in Alaska on or after August 1, 1912:

(a) Where location is made by agent or attorney the power of attorney must be in writing and must be executed and acknowledged in accordance with the laws of the Territory of Alaska or of the State, Territory, or District in which it shall be executed. It must be recorded in the proper recorder's office as prescribed by the act. The application for patent must be accompanied by a certified copy of such power of attorney, which must show the recordation thereof, but it will be sufficient if such certified copy is attached to and made a part of the abstract of title.

(b) One of the principal purposes of the act is to limit the number of placer-mining locations made in Alaska through agents or attorneys. An agent or attorney can not at one time represent more than two individuals or one association under powers of attorney. A duly authorized agent may make two locations for each of two individual principals, or for one association principal, during any calendar month, but he can make no further locations during that month for those or other principals.

The application for patent should accordingly be accompanied by the sworn statement of the agent or attorney setting forth specifically the names of all placer-mining claims, together with the dates of location and names of the locators, which were located or attempted to be located by him under powers of attorney during the calendar month in which the placer claim applied for was located.

(c) By section 3 it is prescribed that no person shall directly locate, or through an agent or attorney cause or procure to be located, for himself, more than two placer-mining claims in any calendar month, provided, however, that one or both of such locations may be included in an association claim.

Whenever a person or an association has participated in the locating of placer-mining claims in Alaska to the extent of two such claims in any calendar month, such person or such association thereby exhausts the right to make placer locations for that month. The application for patent, therefor, for a placer-mining claim located in Alaska on or after August 1, 1912, must contain or be accompanied by a specific statement, under oath, as to each locator who had an interest therein, showing specifically and in detail all placer locations made by him, or in which he was associated, either directly or through any agent or attorney, during the calendar month in which the claim applied for was located. If no locations in excess of those permitted by law were made during such calendar month, a specific statement, under oath, to that effect should be submitted. This showing must be made in addition to that hereinabove required of the agent himself.

Section 4 of the act, as amended, prohibits the patenting of any placer-mining claim located in Alaska after the passage of the act, which contains a greater area than that fixed by law or which is longer than three times its greatest width. The act of March 3, 1925 (43 Stat. 1118), provides that the greatest width of a placer claim in Alaska shall be determined by a transverse line drawn within the lines of the claim and at right angles to its longest side, and that this dimensional restriction shall not apply to any isolated parcel of placer ground which lies between and adjoins patented or validly located claims on all of its sides, and is not over 1,320 feet in length. The cadastral engineer in charge will be careful to observe the above requirements and will not approve any survey of a placer location which does not in area and dimensions conform to the provisions of law.

By section 5 of the act it is declared that any placer-mining claim attempted to be located in violation of the provisions and limitations of the act shall be null and void and the whole area covered by such attempted location may be located by any qualified person the same as if no such prior attempted location had been made. Consequently, any attempted placer location not made in conformity with the act is a nullity, and the land covered thereby is open for and subject to proper location at any time.

It will be observed that the act does not affect the number of claims, lode or placer, and if placer, whether located before or after the passage of the act, which may be included in a single application proceeding.

ANNUAL ASSESSMENT WORK

3. Under the act of March 2, 1907 (34 Stat. 1243), an unpatented mining claim in Alaska becomes forfeited for failure to complete the required assessment work during any assessment period, the act containing no provision for the protection or preservation of such claim through resumption of work.

IDENTIFICATION OF LANDS

4. A statement as to the descriptions which should be incorporated in field notes of survey not tied to a corner of the public survey, and in applications for patent based thereon, is given under the heading "Surveys."[23]

PLATS AND FIELD NOTES

5. Copies of the plats and field notes of survey in mining cases will be made and disposed of in accordance with instructions given under the heading "Surveys."[23a]

RATES FOR NEWSPAPER PUBLICATIONS

6. Section 2334 of the Revised Statutes provides for the appointment of surveyors to survey mining claims, and authorizes the Commissioner of the General Land Office to establish the rates to be charged for surveys and for newspaper publications in mining cases. Under this authority of law, the following rates have been established as the maximum charges for newspaper publications:

The charge for the publication of notice of application for patent in a mining case in all districts shall not exceed the legal rates allowed by the laws of the State for the publication of legal notices wherein the notice is published, and in no case shall the charge exceed $10 for each 10 lines of space occupied where publication is had in a daily newspaper, and where a weekly newspaper is used as a medium of publication, $7.50 shall be the maximum charge for the same space. Such charge shall be accepted as full payment for publication in each issue for the newspaper for the entire period required by law.

It is expected that these notices shall not be so abbreviated as to curtail the description essential to a perfect notice, and the said rates are established upon the understanding that the notices are to be set in the usual body type used for legal notices.

Further information relative to publication and a sample of advertisement set up in accordance with Government requirements is given in Circular No. 943 (50 L. D. 556).

ABSTRACT

7. In the Territory of Alaska, the application for patent will be received and filed and the order for publication issued, if the abstract showing full title in the applicant is brought down to a day reasonably near the date of the presentation of the application. A supplemental abstract of title brought down so as to include the date of the filing of the application must be furnished prior to the expiration of the 60-day period of publication.

SPECIAL AFFIDAVIT

8. Each person making application for patent under the mining laws, for lands in Alaska, must furnish a duly corroborated affidavit showing that no portion of the land applied for is occupied or reserved by the United States, so as to prevent its acquisition under said laws; that the land is not occupied or claimed by natives of Alaska; and that the land is unoccupied, unimproved and unappropriated by any person claiming the same other than the applicant.

---

[23a] See p. 256, par. 10.

ADVERSE CLAIM

9. The act of June 7, 1910 (36 Stat. 459) provides that adverse claims may be filed at any time during the 60-day period of publication or within 8 months thereafter. This provision applies to any application where the 60-day period of publication ended with or ends after June 7, 1910, and operates to enlarge by 8 months additional the time within which an adverse claim may be filed. This provision does not apply to any application under which the 60-day period of publication ended with or before June 6, 1910; for if no adverse claim was seasonably filed in such case the statutory assumption that none existed has arisen, upon the expiration of the publication period, in favor of the applicant.

It is also provided by the act that adverse suits may be instituted at any time within 60 days after the filing of adverse claims in the local land office. This provision applies to any adverse claim under which the 30-day period fixed under the former law for commencing the adverse suit was running on or expired with June 7, 1910, and enlarges such time to a period of 60 days, and also to any adverse claim which is seasonably filed on or after June 7, 1910. Such provision has no operation in a case where, under the former law, the 30-day period within which to institute suit on an adverse claim expired with or ended before June 6, 1910, and the 60-day publication period also expired on or before June 6, 1910.

Registers and receivers of United States land offices in Alaska will exercise the greatest care in applying the provisions of the act, and will allow no mineral entry until after the expiration of the full period granted for the filing of adverse claims. For example, on any application under which the publication period ended with or after June 7, 1910, no entry will in any event be allowed until after the expiration of the 8 months' period following the publication period.

OIL AND GAS PERMITS AND LEASES

10. By Executive order dated November 3, 1910, all the public lands and lands in national forests in the Territory of Alaska containing petroleum deposits were withdrawn from settlement, location, sale, or entry, and reserved for classification and in aid of legislation affecting the use and disposal of petroleum lands belonging to the United States.

The disposition of oil and gas deposits in lands owned by the United States in Alaska is governed by the act of February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. 437), known as the mineral leasing act.

In the administration of this act prospecting permits and leases are issued. In Alaska there may be allowed a maximum of five permits of an area of not exceeding 2,560 acres each. "One individual, corporation, or association may locate and obtain but one permit in a geologic structure of a nonproducing field, but for development purposes assignments to a qualified individual, corporation, or association, outside producing oil or gas fields, for not exceeding five permits in Alaska, whether contiguous or noncontiguous, may be presented for the consideration of the Secretary of the Interior, and his approval, if he shall find same to be in the public interest" (48 L. D. 46).

If it is desired to acquire a preference right to a permit, it is necessary to erect a monument and post notice on the land desired, after which the locator has for six months a preferential right to file an application. Permits, when granted, are for a period of four years.

Upon establishing that valuable oil or gas deposits have been discovered on the land the permittee is entitled to a lease for one-fourth of the area embraced in his permit, or for as much as 160 acres if there be that number of acres in the permit, and a preference right to a lease for the remainder of the land included in the permit. The royalties on leases in Alaska are set forth in Circular No. 672, referred to below.

A distinction is made between lands which are within and which are without the known geologic structure of a producing oil or gas field. Permits, as set forth in the foregoing, are issued for the latter class of lands. Up to the present time there are, with the exception of a small area near Katalla, no producing structures in Alaska, and with this exception and possibly the Yakataga field the boundaries or possible structures of fields have not been ascertained.

Further instructions relative to oil and gas permits and leases under the act of February 25, 1920, and the amendatory act of April 30, 1926 (44 Stat. 373), are given in Circulars Nos. 672 (47 L. D. 437), 845 (49 L. D. 207), 905 (50 L. D. 155), 929 (50 L. D. 387), 979 (51 L. D. 50), and 1073 (51 L. D. 475).

PHOSPHATE AND OIL SHALE LEASES AND SODIUM PERMITS AND LEASES

11. The disposition of deposits of phosphate, oil shale, and sodium in lands owned by the United States in Alaska is also governed by the act of February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. 437).

Instructions governing the issuance of leases for deposits of phosphate and oil shale and of permits and leases for deposits of sodium are contained in Circulars Nos. 696 (47 L. D. 513), 671 (47 L. D. 424), and 699 (47 L. D. 529),[24] respectively, as amended by Circular No. 1073 (51 L. D. 475).

POTASSIUM PERMITS AND LEASES

12. The act of February 7, 1927 (44 Stat. 1057), authorizes the exploration for and disposition of deposits of potassium in lands owned by the United States, including Alaska. Instructions under the act are contained in Circular No. 1120.

Mission Sites

Applications and proofs for mission claims will be governed by regulations contained in Circular No. 491, approved September 8, 1923 (50 L. D. 55).

District Land Offices

A district land office is located at Anchorage, in charge of a register, and district land offices are located at Fairbanks and Nome, each in charge of an ex officio register and an ex officio receiver. The land district boundaries are shown on map attached to this publication.[25]

[24] Circular No. 699 (47 L. D. 529) has been superseded by Circular No. 1194, p. 976.

Public Survey Office

A public survey office is maintained at Juneau, and correspondence relating to local survey matters should be addressed to the cadastral engineer in charge of that office.

Office of Division Inspector [25a]

The office of the division inspector for Alaska is situated at Anchorage. Field examinations in the Territory are made under the supervision of that officer.

Parks and Cemeteries

The sale of public lands for parks and cemeteries to incorporated cities and towns is authorized by the act of September 30, 1890 (26 Stat. 502).

The sale of public lands for cemetery purposes to religious or fraternal associations or private corporations authorized to hold real estate for such purposes is authorized by the act of March 1, 1907 (34 Stat. 1052).

Regulations under both acts which are applicable to Alaska are contained in Circular No. 1122 (52 L. D. 106–131).

Reservations in Patents

All patents for lands in Alaska will reserve a right of way thereon for ditches or canals constructed by the authority of the United States under the act of August 30, 1890 (26 Stat. 371–391), and all patents for lands in the Territory taken up, entered, or located subsequent to the passage of the act of March 12, 1914 (38 Stat. 305), will reserve to the United States a right of way for the construction of railroads, telegraph, and telephone lines.

In addition to the reservations mentioned, other appropriate reservations will be inserted in the patents, if required by the special laws relating to the particular entries or selections.[26]

Public Lands in Alaska

The total area of the Territory is about 378,165,760 acres, of which about 30,000,000 acres are reserved. Of the reserved area, 21,391,742 acres are within the boundaries of national forests. Approximately 1,790,199 acres have been surveyed under the rectangular system.

INFORMATION RESPECTING VACANT AND ENTERED LANDS

Where the public surveys have been extended over lands in Alaska township diagrams and plats giving the information specified below may be prepared and sold by the register and receiver of the land office for the district in which the land is situated, at the following prices:

[25] The map is inserted between pages 190 and 191.

[26] See p. 217, par. 3.

[25a] The designation of this officer has been changed to Chief of Field Division. See instructions of Sept. 28, 1928, p. 1037.

For a township diagram showing entered land only	$1.00
For a township plat showing form of entries, names of claimants, and character of entries	2.00
For a township plat showing form of entries, names of claimants, character of entries, and numbers	3.00
For a township plat showing form of entries, names of claimants, character of entries, numbers, and date of filings or entries, together with topography, etc	4.00

If, because of the pressure of current business relating to the entry of lands, registers are unable to make the plats or diagrams mentioned above, they may refuse to furnish the same and return the fee to the applicant, advising him of their reason for not furnishing the plats requested; that he may make the plats or diagrams himself or have same made by his agent or attorney; and that he may have access to the plats and tract books of the district land office for this purpose, provided such use of the records will not interfere with the orderly dispatch of the public business.

The district officers furnish prospective settlers general advise as to lands in their respective districts. However, personal inspection must be made of the tract to be entered before application is filed, and the settler should exercise great care to satisfy himself as to its character before taking any other step.

Rights of Way for Railroads, Wagon Roads, and Tramways

1. The rights of way for railroads, wagon roads, and tramways in the Territory of Alaska, granted by sections 2 to 9, inclusive, of the act of May 14, 1898 (30 Stat. 409), does not convey an estate in fee in the lands used for such purposes or in the lands used for station and terminal facilities. The grant is merely of a right of use for the necessary and legitimate purposes of the roads, the fee remaining in the United States, except as to lands authorized to be sold under section 6 by the Secretary of the Interior, "upon such expressed conditions as in his judgment may be necessary to protect the public interests." The nature of these conditions will depend upon the public necessities and will be governed by the particular circumstances of each case. These sections authorize the Secretary of the Interior to approve maps and plats affecting unsurveyed as well as surveyed land, and, while it is not obligatory on the part of grantees to file additional maps and plats after survey of the lands, showing connections with the public surveys, and the smallest legal subdivisions of all lands affected, by so doing the grants and the extent thereof could be properly recorded on the records of the land department and readily determined.

RIGHT OF WAY INCLUDED IN AREA ENTERED

2. All persons entering public lands, to part of which a right of way has attached, take the same subject to such right of way, the latter being computed as a part of the area of the tract entered.

CONDEMNATION OF RIGHT OF WAY

3. Whenever any right of way shall pass over private land or possessory claims on lands of the United States, condemnations of the right of way across the same may be made in accordance with the provisions of section 4 of the said act of May 14, 1898.

INCORPORATED COMPANIES

4. Any incorporated company desiring to obtain the benefits of these sections is required to file the following papers and maps:

First. A copy of its articles of incorporation duly certified to by the proper officer of the company under its corporate seal, or by the secretary of the State or Territory where organized.

Second. A copy of the State or Territorial law under which the company was organized, with the certificate of the governor or secretary of the State or Territory that the same is the existing law.

Third. When said law directs that the articles of association or other papers connected with the organization be filed with any State or Territorial officer, the certificate of such officer that the same have been filed according to law, with the date of the filing thereof.

Fourth. A certificate from the secretary of the Territory of Alaska showing that the company has complied with chapter 23, title 3, act of June 6, 1900 (31 Stat. 528), providing a civil code for the Territory of Alaska.

No forms are prescribed for the above portion of the proofs required, as each case must be governed to some extent by the laws of the State or Territory.

Fifth. The official statement, under seal of the proper officer, that the organization has been completed; that the company is fully authorized to proceed with the construction of the road according to the existing law of the State or Territory where organized. (Form 1, see note, p. 70.)

Sixth. A certificate by the president, under the seal of the company, showing the names and designations of its officers at the date of the filing of the proofs. (Form 2, see note, p. 70.)

Seventh. If certified copies of the existing laws regarding such corporations, and of new laws as passed from time to time, be forwarded to this office by the governor or secretary of any State or Territory, a company organized in such State or Territory may file, in lieu of the requirements of the second subdivision of this paragraph, a certificate of the governor or secretary of the State or Territory that no change has been made since a given date, not later than that of the laws last forwarded.

Eighth. Maps, field notes, and other papers as hereinafter required.

INDIVIDUALS OR ASSOCIATIONS OF INDIVIDUALS

5. Individuals or associations of individuals making applications for a permits, under section 6 of the act, for tramways or wagon roads are required to file evidence of citizenship. In the case of associations an affidavit must be filed by the principal officer thereof, giving a list of its members and stating that the list includes all the members. Evidence of citizenship must be furnished for each member of the association. Individuals and associations will also be required to file the maps, field notes, and other papers hereinafter required.

PREPARATION OF MAPS AND PLATS

6. All maps and plats must be drawn on tracing linen, in duplicate, and must be strictly conformable to the field notes of the survey thereof, wherever such surveys have been made. The word "profile" as used in the act is understood to intend a map of alignment. No profile of grades will be required.

DATA REQUIRED ON MAPS

7. The maps should show any other road crossed or with which connection is made, and whenever possible the station number on the survey thereof at the point of intersection. All such intersecting roads must be represented in ink of a different color from that used for the line for which the applicant asks right of way. Field notes of the surveys should be written along the line on the map. If the map should be too much crowded to be easily read, then duplicate field notes should be filed separate from the map, and in such form that they may be folded for filing. In such case it will be necessary to place on the map only a sufficient number of station numbers to make it convenient to follow the field notes on the map. Station numbers should also be given on the map in all cases where changes of numbering occur and where known lines of survey, public or otherwise, are crossed, with distance to the nearest permanent monument or other mark on such line. The map must also show the lines of reference of initial, terminal, and intermediate points, with their courses and distances.

When the lines are located on surveyed land, the maps must show the 40-acre subdivisions; when on unsurveyed land, a meridian should be drawn on maps through initial and terminal points and at intervals of not more than 6 miles, intermediate points.

DATA REQUIRED IN FIELD NOTES—INSTRUCTIONS AS TO SURVEYS

8. Typewritten field notes, with clear carbon copies, are preferred, as they expedite the examination of applications. All monuments and other marks with which connections are made should be fully described, so that they may be easily found. The field notes must be so complete that the line may be retraced on the ground. On account of the conditions existing in Alaska surveys based wholly on the magnetic needle will not be accepted. In that case a true meridian should be established, as accurately as possible, at the initial point. It should be permanently marked and fully described. The survey should be based thereon and checked by a meridian similarly fixed at the terminal point and, when the line is a long one, by intermediate meridians at proper intervals. On account of the rapid convergence of the meridians in these latitudes such intermediate meridians should be established at such intervals as to avoid large discrepancies in bearings. It will probably be found preferable to run by transit deflections from a permanently established line, with frequent and readily recoverable reference lines permanently marked; and in such surveys occasional true bearings should be stated, at least approximately. On all lines of railroad the 10-mile sections should be indicated and numbered, and on maps of tramways and wagon roads the 5-mile sections shall likewise be indicated and numbered.

FILING OF PAPERS

9. The maps, field notes, and accompanying papers should be filed in the district land office for the district where the proposed right of way is located.

CONNECTIONS WITH OTHER SURVEYS

10. Connections should be made with other surveys, public or private, whenever possible; also with mineral monuments and other known and established marks. When a sufficient number of such points are not available to make such connections at least every 6 miles, the surveyor must make connection with natural objects or permanent monuments.

PERMANENT MONUMENTS OR MARKS

11. Along the line of survey, at least once in every mile, permanent and easily recoverable monuments or marks must be set and connected therewith, in such positions that the construction of the road will not interfere with them. The locations thereof must be indicated on the maps. All reference points must be fully described in the field notes, so that they may be relocated, and the exact point used for reference indicated.

DESIGNATION OF TERMINI

12. The termini of a line of road should be fixed by reference of course and distance to a permanent monument or other definite mark. The initial point of the survey and of station, terminal, and junction grounds should be similarly referred. The maps, field notes, engineer's affidavit, and applicant's certificate (Forms 3 and 4, see note, p. 241) should each show these connections.

AFFIDAVIT AND CERTIFICATE REQUIRED

13. The engineer's affidavit and applicant's certificate must be written on the map, and must both designate by termini (as in the preceding paragraph) and length in miles and decimals the line of route for which right of way application is made. (See Forms 3 and 4.) Station, terminal, or junction grounds must be described by initial point (as in the preceding paragraph) and area in acres (Forms 7 and 8, see note, p. 241), when they are located on surveyed land, and the smallest legal subdivision in which they are located should be stated. No changes or additions are allowable in the substance of any forms, except when the essential facts differ from those assumed therein. When the applicant is an individual the word "applicant" should be used instead of "company," and such other changes made as are necessary on this account.

ADDITIONAL WIDTH FOR RIGHT OF WAY

14. Where additional width is desired for railroad right of way on account of heavy cuts or fills, the additional right of way desired should be stated, the reason therefor fully shown, the limits of the additional right of way exactly designated, and any other information furnished that may be necessary to enable the Secretary of the Interior to consider the case before giving it his approval.

PRELIMINARY MAP AND FIELD NOTES

15. The preliminary map authorized by the proviso of section 4 of the act will not be required to comply so strictly with the foregoing instructions as maps of definite location; but it is to be observed that they must be based upon an actual survey, and that the more fully they comply with these regulations the better they will serve their object, which is to indicate the lands to be crossed by the final line and to preserve the company's prior right until the approval of its maps of definite location. Unless the preliminary map and field notes are such that the line of survey can be retraced from them on the ground, they will be valueless for the purpose of preserving the company's rights. The preliminary map and field notes should be in duplicate, and should be filed in the district land office in order that proper notations may be made on the records as notice to intending settlers and subsequent applicants for the right of way.

SCALE OF MAPS

16. The scale of maps showing the line of route should be 2,000 feet to an inch. The maps may, however, be drawn to a scale of 1,000 feet to an inch when necessary, or, in extreme cases, to 500 feet to an inch. No other scales must be used and should be so selected as to avoid making maps inconveniently large for handling. In most cases, by furnishing separate field notes, an increase of scale can be avoided. Plats of station, terminal, and junction grounds, etc., should be drawn on a scale of 500 feet to an inch, and must be filed separately from the line of route. Such plats should show enough of the line of route to indicate the position of the tract with reference thereto.

PLATS OF STATION, TERMINAL, AND JUNCTION GROUNDS

17. Plats of station, terminal, and junction grounds must be prepared in accordance with the directions for maps of lines of routes. Whenever they are located on or near navigable waters the shore line must be shown, and also the boundaries of any other railroad grounds or other claims located on or near navigable waters within a distance of 80 rods from any point of the tract applied for.

SHOWING REQUIRED IN APPLICATION

18. All applications for permits made under section 6 of this act should state whether it is proposed to collect toll on the proposed wagon road or tramway; and, in case of wagon roads, the application must be accompanied by satisfactory evidence, corroborated by an affidavit, tending to show that the public convenience requires the construction of the proposed road, and that the expense of making the same available and convenient for public travel will not be less, on an average, than $500 per mile. In all cases, if the proposed line of road shall be located over any road or trail in common use for public travel, a satisfactory statement, corroborated by affidavit, must be submitted with the application, showing that the interests of the public will not be injuriously affected thereby.

ACTION ON FILING OF APPLICATION

19. When maps are filed the district officers will make such pencil notations on their records as will indicate the location of the proposed right of way as nearly as possible. They should note that the application is pending, giving the date of filing and name of applicant. They must also indorse on each map and other paper the date of filing, over their written signature, transmitting them promptly to the General Land Office.

ACTION ON APPROVAL OF MAP

20. Upon the approval of a map of definite location or station plat by the Secretary of the Interior the duplicate copy will be sent to the register and receiver, who will make such notations of the approval on their records, in ink, as will indicate the location of the right of way as accurately as possible.

AFFIDAVIT AND CERTIFICATE REQUIRED WHEN ROAD IS CONSTRUCTED

21. When the road is constructed, an affidavit of the engineer and certificate of the applicant (Forms 5 and 6, see note, p. 241) should be filed in the district land office in duplicate for transmission to the General Land Office. In case of deviations from the map previously approved, whether before or after construction, there must be filed new maps and field notes in full, as herein provided, bearing proper forms, changed to agree with the facts in the case, and the location must be described in the forms as the amended survey and the amended definite location. In such cases the applicant must file a relinquishment, under seal, of all rights under the former approval as to the portions amended, said relinquishment to take effect when the map of amended definite location is approved by the Secretary of the Interior.

ACTION WHERE REQUIRED EVIDENCE IS NOT FILED

22. Unless the proper evidence of construction is filed within the time prescribed by the act for the construction of each section of the road, appropriate steps will be taken looking to the cancellation of the approval of the right of way and the notations thereof on the records.

CHARGES FOR TRANSPORTATION OF PASSENGERS AND FREIGHT

23. In the case of a wagon road or tramway built under permit issued under section 6 of this act, upon which it is proposed to collect toll, a printed schedule of the rates for freight and passengers should also be filed with the Commissioner of the General Land Office for submission to the Secretary of the Interior for his consideration and approval at least 60 days before the road is to be opened to traffic, in order to allow a sufficient time for consideration, inasmuch as by section 6 it is made a misdemeanor to collect toll without written authority from the Secretary of the Interior. In the case of a wagon road satisfactory evidence, corroborated by affidavit, must be submitted with said schedule, showing that at least an average of $500 per mile has been actually expended in constructing such road. These schedules must be submitted in duplicate, one copy of which, bearing the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, will be returned to the applicant if found satisfactory. Said schedules shall be plainly printed in large type.

Schedules of passenger and freight rates on railroads should be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

NOTE.—For Forms 1 to 8, inclusive, for due proofs and verification of maps of rights of way for railroads, tramways, wagon roads, etc., see 50 L. D., pp. 75 to 78, inclusive.

RIGHTS OF WAY FOR RESERVOIRS AND CANALS, AND FOR POWER, TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH PURPOSES, ETC.

On the general applicability of right-of-way laws in the Territory, the Attorney General in an opinion dated June 29, 1915 (30 Op. Atty. Gen. 387), responding to an inquiry whether it would be lawful to grant revocable licenses under the act of February 15, 1901 (31 Stat. 790), or easements under the act of March 4, 1911 (36 Stat. 1253), held, after a full review of all the statutes and departmental decisions thereon, and especially of the act of August 24, 1912 (37 Stat. 512), providing for the full organization of the Territory and the extension of all the laws of the United States to the Territory not locally inapplicable, that such action was authorized, for the reason that said acts of Congress were now applicable to the public lands in Alaska.

By analogy it would appear that the provisions of sections 18 to 21, inclusive, of the act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 1095), as amended by section 2 of the act of May 11, 1898 (30 Stat. 404), allowing rights of way for canals, ditches, and reservoirs to canal and ditch companies formed for purposes of irrigation, are also applicable to public lands in Alaska and it has been so held since said opinion.

Section 4 of the act of February 1, 1905 (33 Stat. 628), granting rights of way for dams, reservoirs, water plants, ditches, flumes, pipes, tunnels, and canals within and across the forest reserves of the United States, applies to and is operative in forest reserves in the Territory.

EFFECT OF FEDERAL WATER POWER ACT

It is to be noted, however, that the act of June 10, 1920 (41 Stat. 1063), known as the Federal water power act, as amended by the act of March 3, 1921 (41 Stat. 1353), has superseded and repealed all acts or parts of acts inconsistent therewith, providing for the development and transmission of water power on the public domain and certain reservations of the United States, and that this act is applicable to Alaska. Applications thereunder should be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington, D. C. But electrical projects that are in no way connected with water power—for instance, those where the electrical power is generated by steam—remain under the jurisdiction of this department, pursuant to the provisions of the act of February 15, 1901 (31 Stat. 790), and that of March 4, 1911 (36 Stat. 1253), where the land involved is not within a national forest.

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS

The general instructions and regulations regarding the various rights of way above referred to are found in departmental circulars relating to such rights in the United States. See circulars approved January 6, March 1, and July 19, 1913 (41 L. D. 454, 532 and 42 L. D. 348), and circular of June 6, 1908 (36 L. D. 567, reprinted in circular form in 1923, with amendments).

Right of Way for Roadway

A provision is made in section 10 of the act of May 14, 1898 (30 Stat. 409), that—

> A roadway 60 feet in width, parallel to the shore line as near as may be practicable, shall be reserved for the use of the public as a highway.

The phrase " shore line " as thus used means high-water line.

This reservation occurs in the proviso relating to the reservation between claims abutting on navigable waters; but since it is its purpose to reserve a roadway for public use as a highway along the shore line of navigable waters, it is held to relate to the lands entered or purchased under this act as well as to the reserved lands; otherwise it would serve little or no purpose. This reservation will not, however, prevent the location and survey of a claim up to the shore line, for in such case the claim will be subject to this servitude and the area in the highway will be computed as a part of the area entered and purchased.

Section 26 of the act of June 6, 1900 (31 Stat. 330), provides that the reservation for roadway shall not apply to mineral lands or town sites.

The reservation for roadway should not be inserted in patents (Departmental Instructions of March 15, 1915).

School Lands and Scrip Locations

By the act of March 4, 1915 (38 Stat. 1214), sections numbered 16 and 36 in every township, not known to be mineral in character at the date of acceptance of survey, on which no settlement has been made before the survey of the land in the field, and which have not been sold or otherwise appropriated by authority of Congress, are reserved for the support of the common schools in Alaska.

Section 33 in each township between parallels 64° and 65° of north latitude and between 145° and 152° of west longitude are reserved for the support of a Territorial agricultural college and school of mines.

In reporting as to the completion of surveys in the field, under Circular No. 996, the district cadastral engineer will prepare his letter of advice in triplicate, the original and one carbon to be forwarded to the Commissioner of the General Land Office and the third copy to be transmitted directly to the division inspector. Where less than a full township is involved, the report will list any and all school sections embraced therein.

Upon receipt of such notification, the division inspector will take appropriate action looking to the examination and report with a view to classification of the school sections affected as mineral or nonmineral, subject, however, to such instructions as may be received from the General Land Office with reference to forest or other withdrawals which would render field examination unnecessary. Where any school section is reported as mineral, opportunity will be afforded the proper officers of the Territory to disprove such finding.

SCHOOL SELECTIONS

Where any of said sections are lost to the reservations mentioned, in whole or in part, because of prior settlement or sale, or other appropriation under an act of Congress, or where they are wanting or are fractional in quantity, indemnity lands may be designated and reserved in lieu thereof, as provided in the act of February 28, 1891 (26 Stat. 796). The regulations providing for such selections by the States will be followed in Alaska.

Each application for selection must be accompanied by a duly corroborated affidavit showing:

(1) That no portion of the land is occupied or reserved for any purpose by the United States or occupied or claimed by natives of Alaska; that the land is unoccupied, unimproved and unappropriated by any person claiming the same other than the applicant.

(2) That the land applied for does not extend more than 160 rods along the shore of any navigable water or that such restriction has been waived and that it is not within a distance of 80 rods along any navigable or other waters from any location theretofore made with soldiers' additional rights, or as a trade and manufacturing site, homestead, Indian or Eskimo allotment, or school indemnity selection, or that it has been restored from reservation.[27]

(3) That the land is not included within an area which is reserved because of springs or water holes thereon. All facts relative to medicinal or other springs or water holes must be stated, as set forth in paragraph 3 under the heading " Springs and Water Holes."[28]

(4) The facts as to all waters upon the land other than springs and water holes, whether creek, pond, lagoon or lake, their source, depth, width, outlet and current (whether swift or sluggish), whether or not the same or any of them are navigable for skiffs, canoes, motor boats, launches or other small water craft and whether or not the same or any of them constitute a passageway for salmon or other merchantable sea-going fish to spawning grounds.

(5) That no part of the land is valuable for coal, oil, gas, or other valuable mineral deposits and that at the date of the application no part of the land was claimed under the mining laws.

[27] See p. 244.

[28] See p. 253.

LEASING OF SCHOOL LANDS

The Territory is authorized to provide by law for the leasing of its school lands, it being stipulated, however, that no greater area than one section shall be leased to any person, association, or corporation, and that leases shall not be for longer periods than 10 years.

SCRIP LOCATIONS

Aside from the right of the Territory of Alaska to select lands in lieu of tracts to which it may be entitled, under its grant in aid of public schools made by the act of March 4, 1915 (38 Stat. 1214), and which have been lost, no scrip or lieu rights can be located in said Territory except soldiers' additional homestead rights.

Shore Space Restrictions and Reservations

1. A soldier's additional entry or school indemnity selection may not be made in Alaska within a distance of 80 rods (one-quarter of a mile), of any lands along any navigable or other waters theretofore located as such entry, selection, or otherwise.

On the shores of navigable waters a space of at least 80 rods is reserved between claims, including homestead settlements and entries (not in national forests), allotments to Indians and Eskimos, which are considered as homesteads, soldiers' additional entries, trade and manufacturing sites, and school-indemnity selections, but not including mission sites (44 L. D. 83) or mining claims (43 L. D. 120).

Homestead settlements and entries (not in a national forest), allotments to Indians and Eskimos, soldiers' additional entries, and school-indemnity selections may not extend more than 160 rods along the shore of any navigable water.

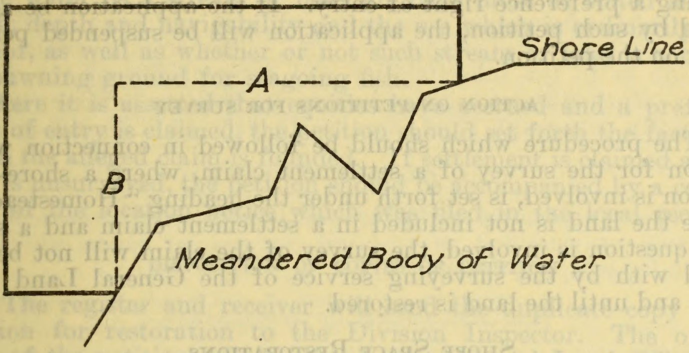
A trade and manufacturing site may not abut more than 80 rods of navigable water.

RESTRICTION AS TO LENGTH OF CLAIMS

2. In the consideration of applications to enter lands shown upon plats of public surveys in Alaska, abutting upon navigable waters, the restriction as to length of claims shall be determined as follows: The length of the water front of a subdivision will be considered as represented by the shortest distance between the two side lines of the subdivision, measured from the shore corner nearest the back line of the tract; and the sum of the distances of each subdivision of the application abutting on the waters, so determined, shall be considered as the total shore length of the application. Where, so measured, the excess of shore length is greater than the deficiency would be if an end tract or tracts were eliminated, such tract or tracts shall be excluded, otherwise the application may be allowed if in other respects proper.

The same method of measuring shore space will be used in the case of special surveys, where legal subdivisions of the public lands are not involved.

The following sketch shows the method of measuring the length of shore space, the length of line "A" or line "B," whichever is the longer, representing the length of shore space which is chargeable to the tract:



RESERVATION BETWEEN CLAIMS

3. To make effective the limitations of claims along the shore line and the reservation of 80 rods between all such claims, it is directed that where any claim is so located as to approach within 80 rods of the actual shore line such claim will be considered as located on the shore for that purpose. Such constructive extension to the shore line of claims so located shall not work a reservation of the land in front of such claims and between them and the shore line, but such lands shall be open and subject to appropriation under and in accordance with any appropriate law, and between all such claims, or the constructive extension thereof, the reserve strip shall extend for a distance of 80 rods from the shore line.

"NAVIGABLE WATERS" DEFINED

4. The term "navigable waters" is defined in section 2 of the act of May 14, 1898 (30 Stat. 409), > * * * to include all tidal waters up to the line of ordinary high tide and all nontidal waters navigable in fact up to the line of ordinary high-water mark.

This definition, however, is not taken as intending to include all nontidal waters that are in fact navigable, irrespective of their extent or suitability for transportation purposes, travel, etc., and such factors will be considered in passing upon the question of the navigability of nontidal waters.

"OR OTHER WATERS" DEFINED

5. The words "or other waters," as used in the provisos, are held to include all waters of sufficient magnitude to require meandering under the manual of surveys, or which are used as a passageway or for spawning purposes by salmon or other seagoing fish.

ACTION ON APPLICATIONS TO ENTER

6. The register and receiver will reject any application to enter which conflicts with a shore space reservation or restriction, unless it be accompanied by a petition for restoration, asserting equities and claiming a preference right of entry. If the application be accompanied by such petition, the application will be suspended pending action on the petition.

ACTION ON PETITIONS FOR SURVEY

7. The procedure which should be followed in connection with a petition for the survey of a settlement claim, where a shore-space question is involved, is set forth under the heading "Homesteads."[29] Where the land is not included in a settlement claim and a shore-space question is involved, the survey of the claim will not be proceeded with by the surveying service of the General Land Office unless and until the land is restored.

Shore Space Restorations

1. The act of June 5, 1920 (41 Stat. 1059), authorizes the Secretary of the Interior in his discretion "upon application to enter or otherwise" to waive the 160-rod restriction as to length of claims or to restore to entry and disposition the reserved shore spaces. The 80-rod restriction, in the case of trade and manufacturing sites, can not be waived.

PETITION FOR RESTORATION

2. Any person who wishes to secure such waiver or restoration should file a petition therefor, in duplicate, in the proper district land office. The petition must be sworn to by the applicant and must be corroborated by the affidavits of two persons having knowledge of the facts. The affidavits may be executed before the register or the receiver, or the acting register, of the district in which the lands lies, or before any court, judge, or other officer having a seal and authority to administer an oath, anywhere in the Territory or in the United States outside of the Territory.

PREFERENCE RIGHT

3. The applicant will not secure a preference right to enter the tract by the filing of the petition unless it is based on equities deemed sufficient in the opinion of the Secretary of the Interior.

DESCRIPTION OF LAND IN PETITION

4. If the land be surveyed, it should be described by legal subdivisions of the public land surveys. If unsurveyed, it should be described by approximate latitude and longitude and otherwise with as much certainty as possible without actual survey. The description should be tied to known monuments, towns, and natural objects whenever practicable.

SHOWING REQUIRED IN PETITION

5. The petition must contain a full statement as to all pending claims on each side of the tract bordering along the water in question and as to the availability of the land sought for harbor purposes, and, if the water be a stream or lake, all facts must be stated as to its width, depth and navigability and the use which is ordinarily made thereof, as well as whether or not such stream or lake is a runway or spawning ground for seagoing fish.

Where it is asserted that equities have accrued and a preference right of entry is claimed, the petition should set forth the facts upon which the alleged claim is founded. If settlement is claimed and the land is unsurveyed, the petition should be accompanied by a certified copy of the location notice which was filed in the local recording office.

DISPOSITION OF COPIES OF PETITION

6. The register and receiver will send the duplicate copy of the petition for restoration to the Division Inspector. The original copy of the petition will be sent to the General Land Office, with notation thereon showing the fact of the reference of the duplicate copy to the Division Inspector.

REPORT BY DIVISION INSPECTOR

7. The Division Inspector will make report to the Commissioner of the General Land Office as to whether or not there is objection to the waiver or restoration requested.

RESTORATIONS ON MOTION OF DEPARTMENT

8. Restorations may also be made by the department on its own motion, where, after field investigation, it is found that such action is authorized by the statute and required by the public interest.

LANDS NECESSARY FOR HARBORAGE USES

9. Lands found necessary for harborage uses or other public purposes will be excluded from orders of restoration and included within an appropriate order of withdrawal under the act of June 25, 1910 (36 Stat. 847).[30]

LANDS RESERVED AS ROADWAY

10. The act of June 5, 1920, does not modify that clause in section 10 of the act of May 14, 1898 (30 Stat. 409, 413), which provides that a roadway 60 feet in width, as nearly parallel to the shore line of navigable waters as may be practicable, shall be reserved for the use of the public as a highway.[31]

Soldiers' Additional Homestead Entries

1. The laws authorizing entries in Alaska under sections 2306 and 2307, United States Revised Statutes, known as soldiers' additional homestead entries, are incorporated as a part of the general homestead laws which are applicable in the Territory. These laws are printed under the heading "Homesteads."[32]

GENERAL INFORMATION

2. General information relative to soldiers' additional homestead rights is contained in Circular No. 1047. This circular contains information as to the inheritability and assignability of the rights. Further information of a general character relative to these rights is contained in paragraph 17 of Circular No. 616 (46 L. D. 513–516).

COAL, OIL, AND GAS LANDS

3. Soldiers' additional rights are not locatable on lands in Alaska withdrawn or classified as coal, oil, or gas, or lands which are valuable for coal, oil, or gas.[33]

PRESCRIBED FORM OF APPLICATION

4. Application to locate soldiers' additional rights in Alaska must be presented on the form prescribed therefor, viz, Form 4–008a. If presented by other than an assignee, the form may be appropriately modified.

APPLICATION BY ASSOCIATION OR CORPORATION

5. An application by an association must show the qualifications of each member thereof, and an application by a corporation must be accompanied by proof of incorporation, established by the certificate of the officer having custody of the records of incorporation at the place of its formation, and it must be shown that the corporation is authorized to hold land in Alaska.

DESCRIPTION OF LAND IN APPLICATION

6. If the land be surveyed, it must be described in the application according to the legal subdivisions of the public land surveys. If it be unsurveyed, the application must describe it by approximate latitude and longitude and otherwise with as much certainty as possible without actual survey.

AFFIDAVIT REQUIRED WITH APPLICATION ON PRESCRIBED FORM

7. An application on the prescribed form must be accompanied by a duly corroborated affidavit showing:

(1) That no portion of the land is occupied or reserved for any purpose by the United States or occupied or claimed by natives of Alaska; that the land is unoccupied, unimproved, and unappropriated by any person claiming the same other than the applicant.

(2) That the land applied for does not extend more than 160 rods along the shore of any navigable water or that such restriction has been waived, and that it is not within a distance of 80 rods along any navigable or other waters from any location theretofore made with soldiers' additional rights, or as a trade and manufacturing site, homestead, Indian or Eskimo allotment, or school indemnity selection, or that it has been restored from reservation.[34]

(3) That the land does not adjoin any inland or water-front location made with soldiers' additional rights which, together with the land applied for, would constitute a single body of land exceeding 160 acres.

(4) That the land is not included within an area which is reserved, because of springs or water holes thereon. All facts relative to medicinal or other springs or water holes must be stated, as set forth in paragraph 3 under the heading "Springs and Water Holes."[35]

(5) The facts as to all waters upon the land other than springs and water holes, whether creek, pond, lagoon, or lake, their source, depth, width, outlet, and current (whether swift or sluggish), whether or not the same or any of them are navigable for skiffs, canoes, motor boats, launches, or other small water craft, and whether or not the same or any of them constitute a passageway for salmon or other merchantable seagoing fish to spawning grounds.

(6) That no part of the land is valuable for coal, oil, gas or other valuable mineral deposits and that at the date of the application no part of the land was claimed under the mining laws.

EXECUTION AND FILING OF APPLICATION

8. The application must be executed in duplicate and it must be filed in the proper district land office. It may be sworn to before any officer authorized to administer oaths in homestead cases in Alaska.[36]

EVIDENCE REQUIRED OF VALIDITY AND OWNERSHIP OF RIGHT

9. The applicant must furnish evidence of the prima facie validity of the additional right and of his ownership thereof.

EXCESS IN AREA OF SELECTION OVER AREA OF RIGHT OR RIGHTS TENDERED NOT PERMITTED

10. An applicant will not be permitted to select an area which is greater than the area of the additional right or rights tendered.

EVIDENCE FURNISHED OF UNUSED PORTION OF CERTIFICATE OR RECERTIFIED CERTIFICATE

11. If the right used is a certificate or recertified certificate which exceeds the area of the land entered, evidence of the unused portion may be obtained by procuring a certified copy or photostat copy of the certificate bearing proper notation as to the amount used.

ACTION ON APPLICATION—REPORT OF DIVISION INSPECTOR

12. Upon receipt of the application the register and receiver will note its filing, assign a current serial number thereto, and transmit the original copy, unallowed, together with the accompanying papers, to the General Land Office. They will forward the duplicate copy of the application to the division inspector for report. With each copy they will report the status of the land as shown by their records.

[35] See p. 253.

The report of the division inspector will be made to the General Land Office and it should show whether the lands contain valuable deposits of coal, oil, gas, or other minerals, whether they have power or reservoir possibilities, whether they are within an area which is reserved because of hot, medicinal, or other springs, or water holes, and any other facts deemed appropriate.

APPLICATION FOR SURVEY

13. If the land applied for be unsurveyed, and no objection to its survey is known to the register and receiver, they will furnish the applicant with a certificate to the cadastral engineer in charge of the public survey office stating the facts, and, after receiving such certificate, the applicant may make application to the public survey office for the survey of the land. The register and receiver will advise the public survey office of the issuance of the certificate, and unless the applicant promptly makes application for the survey, the public survey office will report the facts to the General Land Office for such action as may be deemed proper.

SURVEY

14. Upon receipt of an application under the provisions of section 2 of the act of April 13, 1926 (44 Stat. 244), the cadastral engineer in charge of the public survey office will, if conditions make such procedure practicable and no objection is shown by his records, furnish the applicant with an estimate of the cost of field and office work, and upon receipt of the deposit required the cadastral engineer in charge will issue appropriate instructions for the survey of the claim, such survey to be made by the surveying service of the General Land Office not later than the next surveying season under the direction of the supervisor of surveys. The sum so deposited by the applicant for survey will be deemed an appropriation thereof and will be held by the public survey office to be expended in the payment of the cost of the survey, including field and office work, and upon the acceptance of the survey any excess over the cost shall be repaid by the public survey office to the depositor or his legal representative.

In case it is decided by the supervisor of surveys that by reason of the inaccessibility of the locality embraced in an application for the survey, or by reason of other conditions, it will result to the advantage of the Government or claimant to have the survey executed by a United States deputy surveyor, the public survey office will deliver to the applicant an order for such survey, which will be sufficient authority for any United States deputy surveyor to make a survey of the claim.

In the latter contingency the survey must be made at the expense of the applicant, and no right will be recognized as initiated by such application unless actual work on the survey is begun and carried to completion without unnecessary delay. Further information as to the requirements and procedure in cases of this kind is given in paragraphs 7, 8, and 9 under the heading " Surveys."

PUBLICATION AND POSTING

15. After a special survey of the land has been made, and upon receipt of the plat and field notes thereof from the public survey office, the register and receiver will notify the applicant that within 60 days from a date to be fixed by them he must furnish evidence of publication and posting, and that if he fails to do so the application will be rejected and the survey canceled. The publication and posting will be required as follows:

(1) The notice will be prepared by the register, and it must be published at the expense of the applicant for a period of at least 60 days in a newspaper of established character and general circulation designated by the register as being published nearest the land. If the newspaper be published daily, there must be 60 insertions of the notice; if daily except Sunday, 52 insertions; if semiweekly, 18 insertions; and if weekly, 9 insertions. The register and receiver will send a copy of the notice to the division inspector.

(2) The applicant must cause a copy of the plat showing the survey,[37] together with a copy of the application, to be posted in a conspicuous place on the claim for 60 consecutive days during the period of publication.

(3) The register must cause a copy of the notice to be posted in his office during the entire period of publication.

Where the land is located according to the public surveys, publication and posting will be required in accordance with instructions of February 21 and March 26, 1908 (36 L. D. 278, 346).[h]

ADVERSE CLAIM

16. In conformity with provision contained in section 10 of the act of May 14, 1898 (30 Stat. 413), during the period of posting and publication or within 30 days thereafter any person, corporation, or association having or asserting any adverse interest in or claim to the tract of land or any part thereof sought to be purchased may file in the land office where the application is pending, under oath, an adverse claim setting forth the nature and extent thereof; and such adverse claimant shall, within 60 days after the filing of such adverse claim, begin action to quiet title in a court of competent jurisdiction in Alaska, and thereafter no patent shall issue for such claim until the final adjudication of the rights of the parties, and such patent shall then be issued in conformity with the final decree of the court.

Where such adverse claim is filed, action on the application will be suspended until final adjudication of the rights of the parties in the court or until it has been shown that the adverse claimant did not commence an action in the court within the time allowed.

Any protest which may be filed which does not show that the protestant intends to commence an action to quiet title as stated and any contest which may be filed will be disposed of by the register and receiver in accordance with the rules of practice (51 L. D. 547).[38]

PROOF OF PUBLICATION AND POSTING

17. The proof of publication must consist of the affidavit of the publisher or foreman of the designated newspaper, or some other employee authorized to act for the publisher, that the notice (a copy of which must be attached to the affidavit) was published for the required period in the regular and entire issue of every number of the paper during the period of publication in the newspaper proper, and not in a supplement. Proof of posting on the claim must consist of the affidavits of the applicant and one witness who of their own knowledge know that the plat of survey and application were posted as required and remained so posted during the required period. The register must certify to the posting of the notice in a conspicuous place in his office during the period of publication. The register and receiver will send the proofs to the General Land Office upon the expiration of the period for the filing of adverse claims and will report whether or not any adverse claim or protest has been filed.

FEES AND COMMISSIONS

18. The same payments as fees and commissions are required in connection with soldiers' additional homestead entries and proofs in Alaska as must be made in connection with ordinary homestead entries in the State of Oregon. The amounts are set forth in circular No. 541. These payments are not required at the time the application is filed, but, if tendered, the receiver must, of course, issue receipts therefor.

ALLOWANCE OF ENTRY AND ISSUANCE OF FINAL CERTIFICATE

19. The application and proofs filed therewith, and the report of the division inspector on the application, will be carefully examined in the General Land Office, and, if all be found regular, the register will be instructed to allow the application and to issue final certificate thereunder, upon the required payments being made and in the absence of objections shown by his records.

Springs and Water Holes

1. By Executive order of March 28, 1911, the following order of withdrawal was issued:

> It is hereby ordered that the following lands be, and the same are hereby, withdrawn from settlement, location, sale, or entry and reserved for public purposes, to wit, to enable Congress to consider legislation providing for the use of medicinal springs in the public lands in the district of Alaska, subject to all the provisions, limitations, exceptions, and conditions contained in the act of Congress entitled "An act to authorize the President of the United States to make withdrawals of public lands in certain cases," approved June 25, 1910.
> All tracts of public lands in the district of Alaska upon which hot springs or other springs the waters of which possess curative properties are located, to the extent of 160 acres surrounding each spring, in rectangular form with side and end lines equidistant, as near as may be, from such spring or group of springs.

Said order of withdrawal was modified by Executive order of January 24, 1914, so as not to apply to lands within national forests.

SPRINGS AND WATER HOLES RESERVED FOR PUBLIC WATERING PURPOSES

2. By Executive order of April 17, 1926,[39] the following order of withdrawal was issued:

[39] See Executive order of May 4, 1929, p. 1301.

Under and pursuant to the provisions of the act of Congress approved June 25, 1910 (36 Stat. 847), entitled "An act to authorize the President of the United States to make withdrawal of public lands in certain cases," as amended by act of Congress approved August 24, 1912 (37 Stat. 497), it is hereby ordered that every smallest legal subdivision of the public land surveys which is vacant unappropriated unreserved public land and contains a spring or water hole, and all land within one-quarter of a mile of every spring or water hole located on unsurveyed public land be, and the same is hereby, withdrawn from settlement, location, sale, or entry, and reserved for public use in accordance with the provisions of section 10 of the act of December 29, 1916 (39 Stat. 862), and in aid of pending legislation.

The above order was designed to preserve for general public use and benefit unreserved public lands containing water holes or other bodies of water needed or used by the public for watering purposes. It is not, therefore, to be construed as applying to or reserving from homestead or other entry lands having small springs or water holes affording only enough water for the use of one family and its domestic animals. It withdraws those springs and water holes capable of providing enough water for general use for watering purposes.

SHOWING REQUIRED AS TO SPRINGS AND WATER HOLES

3. An applicant to enter or select lands in Alaska situated outside of a national forest must show that the land is not within an area of 160 acres surrounding any hot spring or other spring having waters possessing curative properties and that no spring or water hole of any kind exists, if it be a fact, upon any legal subdivision of the land sought to be appropriated, if surveyed, and if unsurveyed within one-quarter of a mile from the exterior boundaries of the land.

If there be any spring or water hole upon or adjacent to the land, as stated, the applicant must show the exact location and size thereof, together with an estimate of the quantity of water in gallons which it is capable of producing daily and any other information necessary to determine whether or not it is valuable or necessary as a medicinal spring or as a public water reserve.[39] Where such showing is made, the register and receiver should not allow the application, but should transmit the papers to the General Land Office for consideration.

The showing must be in affidavit form, duly corroborated.

USE OF LANDS WITHDRAWN AS PUBLIC WATER RESERVES

Permission may be obtained to use or improve lands withdrawn as or in connection with public water reserves, under the act of June 25, 1910 (36 Stat. 847), or any other act, by filing application for such permission under the act of February 15, 1901 (31 Stat. 790), in accordance with the regulations governing said act, as found in 36 L. D. 567, 579, as supplemented by Circular No. 1028 (51 L. D. 186).

LEASING OF PUBLIC LANDS NEAR OR ADJACENT TO MINERAL, MEDICINAL, OR OTHER SPRINGS

The matter of leasing public lands near or adjacent to mineral, medicinal, or other springs, for the erection of bathhouses, hotels, or other improvements for the accommodation of the public is governed by Circular No. 1034 (51 L. D. 221).[i]

[39] See Executive order of May 4, 1929, p. 1301.

System of Surveys

1. Approximately 1,790,199 acres in Alaska have been surveyed under the rectangular system, which was extended to the Territory by the Act of March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. 1074–1098). All surveys in the Territory must conform to this system, except where modification or departure therefrom is authorized by section 1 of the act of April 13, 1926 (44 Stat. 243).[40]

MERIDIANS

2. The surveys have been placed under the control of three independent meridians established as follows: The Seward Meridian, initiated just north of Resurrection Bay and extending to the Matanuska coal fields; the Fairbanks Meridian, commencing near the town of that name and controlling the surveys in that vicinity, including the Nenana coal fields; and the Copper River Meridian, which lies in the valley of the Copper River and from which surveys have been executed as far north as the Tanana River and south to the Bering River coal fields and the Gulf of Alaska.

ADMINISTRATION OF SURVEYING ACTIVITIES

3. By the act of March 3, 1925 (43 Stat. 1141, 1144), the office of surveyor general was abolished, effective July 1, 1925, and since that time the administration of all surveying activities in Alaska has been under the supervision of the United States supervisor of surveys, who has headquarters in the Federal Building at Denver, Colo. A public survey office is maintained at Juneau, Alaska, and correspondence relating to local survey matters should be addressed to the cadastral engineer in charge of that office.

EXISTING SURVEYS AND EXTENSIONS THEREOF

4. The existing surveys have been confined to known agricultural areas, the coal fields, and such adjoining lands as might under normal conditions be attractive to settlers, and areas necessary to enable the identification of lands sought to be included in oil and gas prospecting permits or leases. The extension of the surveys to other areas will be governed by the character of the lands and their occupation by actual settlers, due regard being had to whether or not the lands are in the regular progress of the extension of the public-land surveys.

IDENTIFICATION OF LANDS

5. The field notes of survey of all claims within the Territory of Alaska, and all applications for patent based thereon, where the survey is not tied to a corner of the public survey, shall contain a description of the location or mineral monument to which the survey is tied by giving its latitude and longitude and its position with reference to rivers, creeks, mountains, or mountain peaks, towns, or other prominent topographical points or natural objects or monuments, giving the distances and directions as nearly accurate as possible, especially with reference to any well-known trail to a town or mining camp or to a river or mountain appearing on the map of Alaska, which description shall appear regardless of whether or not the survey be tied to an existing monument or to a monument established by the surveyor when making the survey in accordance with existing regulations with reference to the establishment of such monuments. The description of such monument shall appear in a paragraph separate from the description of the courses and distances of the survey.

SPECIAL SURVEYS

6. Information respecting special surveys of homesteads, soldiers' additional entries, and trade and manufacturing sites is given herein under those headings.

DEPOSIT REQUIRED FOR SURVEY MADE BY UNITED STATES DEPUTY SURVEYOR

7. Where application is made to have a special survey executed by a United States deputy surveyor, the cadastral engineer in charge of the public survey office at Juneau will furnish the applicant with an estimate of the cost of the platting and other office work connected with the survey and of photolithographing the plat, and such amount must be deposited with the said officer. It found insufficient to cover the cost, the applicant will be required to pay the deficiency; if in excess of the amount required, the excess will be repaid.

PLATS AND FIELD NOTES OF SPECIAL SURVEYS MADE BY UNITED STATES DEPUTY SURVEYORS

8. Hereafter United States deputy surveyors will not prepare plats of nonmineral claims in Alaska in quadruplicate and the field notes in triplicate, as has heretofore been the practice, but will submit only the preliminary returns of their surveys to the public survey office, and the plats and field notes will be prepared in that office, as is now done in the case of mineral surveys.

PLATS AND FIELD NOTES OF SPECIAL NONMINERAL SURVEYS

9. The returns of special nonmineral surveys made by the surveying service of the General Land Office or by United States deputy surveyors, after approval by the cadastral engineer in charge of the public survey office at Juneau, will be submitted to the Commissioner of the General Land Office for examination and acceptance.

The original plat will be transmitted to the General Land Office for photolithographing and that plat and the photolithographic copies will be disposed of as follows:

(a) The original plat will be returned to the public survey office for filing.

(b) One copy on drawing paper will be filed in the General Land Office.

(c) One copy on drawing paper will be transmitted to the proper district land office for filing.

(d) One copy will be furnished to the Division Inspector for Alaska for use in his office.

(e) One copy will be sent by the public survey office to the claimant for posting on the land.

The field notes will be written in triplicate and will be disposed of as follows:

(a) The original notes will be retained by the public survey office at Juneau for filing.

(b) The duplicate copy will be filed in the General Land Office.

(c) The triplicate copy will be sent to the district land office for necessary use, thereafter to be transmitted to the General Land Office as a part of the record in the case.

PLATS AND FIELD NOTES OF MINERAL SURVEYS

10. Plats of Alaskan mineral surveys will be released immediately upon their approval by the cadastral engineer in charge of the public survey office at Juneau, and in order to enable claimants to proceed with their applications for patents without delay two copies of each plat will be reproduced in the public survey office by photostat, blueprint, or in such other manner as may be made available, and furnished to the claimant or to his agent or attorney for immediate use, one for posting on the land and one for filing with the application.

The original plat will be transmitted to the General Land Office for photolithographing and that plat and the photolithographic copies will be disposed of as follows:

(a) The original plat will be returned to the public survey office for filing.

(b) One copy on drawing paper will be filed in the General Land Office.

(c) One copy on drawing paper will be transmitted to the proper district land office for filing.

(d) One copy will be furnished to the Division Inspector for Alaska for use in his office.

The field notes will be written in duplicate and will be disposed of as follows:

(a) The original notes will be kept by and filed in the public survey office.

(b) The duplicate copy will be sent to the claimant or to his agent or attorney for filing with the application.

PLATS SOLD

11. Photolithographic copies of plats, when available, will be sold at the rate of 50 cents each, and blue prints or other copies reproduced in the public survey office will be sold at cost.

SALE OF TIMBER FOR USE IN ALASKA AND FREE USE OF TIMBER IN THE TERRITORY

Section 11 of the act of May 14, 1898 (30 Stat. 414), authorizes the Secretary of the Interior (a) to sell timber to individuals, associations, and corporations, and (b) to permit the free use of timber by actual settlers, residents, individual miners, and prospectors for minerals, for firewood, fencing, buildings, mining, prospecting, and for domestic purposes. The act has reference only to timber upon vacant, unreserved public lands, outside of the limits of national forests. The free-use privilege is not extended to associations and corporations.

Pursuant to the authority conferred upon him, the Secretary of the Interior has caused the following rules and regulations to be promulgated.

LIMITED FREE USE BY SETTLERS, ETC.

1. Persons designated in the last sentence of section 11, act of May 14, 1898, may go upon the vacant, unreserved public lands and take in amount not exceeding a total of 100,000 feet, board measure, or 200 cords, in any one calendar year, in saw logs, piling, cordwood, or other timber, the aggregate of either of which amount may be taken either in whole in any one of the above classes of timber or in part of one kind and in part another kind or in other kinds, and where a cord is the unit of measure it shall be estimated, in relation with saw timber, in the ratio of 500 feet, board measure, per cord. Where such persons are unable to take such timber in person, they may employ a servant or agent to procure the timber for them. The uses of the timber must be confined to the uses specified in the act. The taking of timber free of charge for sale and speculation is not authorized. Persons who desire to exercise the privileges extended to them in this section are not required to file applications as provided hereinafter, but in order that future complications may be avoided, they must notify the division inspector at Anchorage, Alaska, or the inspector in charge of timber investigations in the district in which the timber is to be cut, by registered letter, of their intention to procure timber under the free-use clause. Each applicant should set forth in his notice the kind and quantity of timber which is to be cut and the use for which it is to be cut and a description of the land on which said cutting is to be done by township and range and by section and sectional subdivisions thereof, if it be surveyed, or by natural objects by which it may be identified if it be unsurveyed. A blank form of notice (Form 4–023 f) has been prepared and may be obtained free of charge upon request from the division inspector or from the inspectors stationed in Alaska.

SALES OF TIMBER

2. Timber upon the vacant, unreserved public lands, outside of the limits of national forests, will be sold in such quantities as are actually needed and as will be used from year to year. Sales are not limited to residents of Alaska, but may be made to any individual, association, or corporation.

APPLICATIONS FOR PURCHASE—PLACE TO FILE—CONTENTS

3. Applicants to purchase timber must file with the register and receiver of the United States land office for the district wherein the lands to be cut over are situated applications in the form prescribed by the Commissioner of the General Land Office (Form 4–023). Blank forms may be obtained free of charge from the United States land offices at Anchorage, Fairbanks, and Nome, or from the inspectors of the Interior Department, or from the United States commissioners stationed in Alaska, or from the General Land Office, Washington, D. C. Every applicant should read carefully the printed statements and conditions in the application before attaching signature thereto, since he will be held responsible for subscribing to statements as true which he knows or ought to know to be untrue. Before executing an application, an applicant should, if in doubt, ascertain that the lands from which he desires to cut timber are subject to the provisions of the act. The following information must be incorporated in every application in the blank spaces provided for the purpose:

(a) Name or names, post-office address, residence, and business occupation of the applicant or applicants who apply to purchase timber; (b) the amount in board feet, linear feet, or cord unit of measurement of timber it is desired to purchase; (c) the approximate area of the land on which the timber is located; (d) a description by legal subdivision, if surveyed, or by metes and bounds with reference to some permanent natural landmark, if unsurveyed, of the land from which the timber is desired to be cut; (e) the proposed use of the timber and the place where it is to be used; (f) the amount of money deposited with the application and the form; that is, whether in cash, certified check, or postal money order. Each application must be duly witnessed by two witnesses.

POSTING NOTICE ON THE LAND

4. After transmitting his application to the register and receiver, the applicant shall, before commencing to cut the timber applied for, post a notice (Form 4–023c), which will be furnished with the application, in some conspicuous place on the land from which the timber is proposed to be cut, describing the land and designating the amount and kind of timber that has been applied for and the date on or before which the cutting must be completed. Unless the timber is cut and prepared for removal within one year from the date of the filing of the application, all rights thereunder will be forfeited. The application contains a statement to the effect that this requirement will be fulfilled, and neglect on the part of the applicant to fulfill it will be deemed a sufficient ground for revocation of the right to cut and remove any timber under the application. The description in the notice should be identical with the description in the application. This requirement has been adopted in order that others who may desire to file applications to purchase timber or to enter the lands may have notice that the timber has been sold.

MINIMUM PRICE FOR WHICH TIMBER WILL BE SOLD—PAYMENTS

5. All timber will be sold hereunder at a reasonable stumpage value. The following rates have been fixed as the minimum rates for which the various kinds of timber will be sold: $1 per 1,000 feet b. m. for Sitka spruce, hemlock, and red cedar; $2.50 per 1,000 feet b. m. for yellow cedar; one-half cent per linear foot for piling 50 feet or less in length up to a top diameter of 7 inches; three-fourths cent per linear foot for piling between 50 and 80 feet in length up to a top diameter of 8 inches; 1 cent per linear foot for piling over 80 feet in length up to a top diameter of 8 inches; 50 cents per cord for shingle bolts and cooperage stock; 25 cents per cord for wood suitably only for fuel or mine lagging. A deposit in the sum of $50, in cash, postal money order, or certified check, where the stumpage value, at the minimum rate, of the material applied for equals or exceeds that amount, or in a sum representing the full stumpage value, at the minimum rate, where such value is less than $50, must be made as an evidence of good faith at the time that the application is filed. If a permit shall afterwards be issued, the deposit will be applied to the purchase price of timber. If the issuance of a permit shall be denied and no timber shall have been cut under the application, the amount deposited by the applicant will be returned to him.

After an application is allowed the timber to be sold thereunder will be appraised by an inspector of the Interior Department, and after appraisal said inspector will collect the appraised amount in excess of the sum originally deposited, and give to the applicant a memorandum receipt for the payment, which receipt should be preserved by the applicant until he receives official receipt therefor. The inspector will deposit all such moneys with the proper register or receiver. Official receipts will be issued for all payments made by applicants. All postal money orders must be made payable to the order of the proper register or receiver and must be drawn on the post office where the district land office is located. Checks and bank drafts must be drawn so that they can be cashed without cost to the Government. Postal money orders, checks, and bank drafts are not to be considered as payment for timber until the same are converted into cash, but receipt for the payment will issue as provided in Circular No. 1008 (51 L. D. 148).

WHEN CUTTING AND REMOVAL MAY BEGIN

6. As soon as the applicant has filed his application with the receiver, made the requisite initial deposit, and posted notice on the land, he may begin to cut and prepare for removal the timber applied for. As soon as practicable after the filing of an application, a field investigation and appraisal will be made by an inspector of the Interior Department. After such investigation and appraisal shall have been made, and after the applicant has paid to the inspector the excess stumpage value, over and above the sum originally deposited, where there is such excess, the inspector will issue a permit (Form 4–023 b), unless he finds that a permit ought not be issued, authorizing the applicant to remove the timber. If for any reason the inspector is unable to make the investigation and appraisal within 60 days after the filing of an application, he will, if he knows of no objection, issue a permit (Form 4–023 b), and the applicant may then remove the timber, provided that he shall first transmit to the register and receiver the excess stumpage value over and above the sum originally deposited, where there is such excess.

LIMITATIONS UPON RIGHTS ACQUIRED UNDER PERMISSION TO CUT TIMBER

7. The permission to cut shall not give the applicant the exclusive right to cut timber from the lands embraced in his application as against any person entitled to the free use of timber under the provisions of the act, unless the area described in the application is limited to 40 acres and, if the lands be unsurveyed, the boundaries thereof are blazed or otherwise marked by him sufficiently to be identified. The cutting of immature timber will not be permitted under these rules and regulations. The timber authorized to be cut under these rules and regulations must be cut and prepared for removal within one year from the date of the filing of the application. Sales of timber will not be authorized unless there is a necessity for the use of the timber within two years from the date of the authorization to cut.

LIMITATIONS WITH REFERENCE TO AREA—EXCEPTIONS

8. Withdrawals have been made for various purposes from time to time within the Territory of Alaska since its purchase by the United States. These rules and regulations are not applicable to the free use or purchase of timber upon such withdrawn areas, unless an exception be made in the order of withdrawal or it is evident from the spirit and intent of the withdrawal order that such exception was intended. By the act of March 4, 1915 (38 Stat. 1214), sections 16 and 36 in each township were granted to the Territory for school purposes and section 33 in each township in the Tanana Valley between parallels 64 and 65 degrees of north latitude, and between 145 and 152 degrees of west longitude, and sec. 6, T. 1 S., R. 1 W.; sec. 31, T. 1 N., R. 1 W.; sec. 1, T. 1 S., R. 2 W.; and sec. 36, T. 1 N., R. 2 W., Fairbanks meridian, were reserved in aid of the Territorial agricultural college and school of mines when established by the Territorial legislature. The timber upon lands reserved for educational purposes will not be subject to disposition hereunder. Alaskan withdrawal No. 1 and Alaska town-site withdrawals Nos. 1 to 9, inclusive, have been amended so as to permit of the use or purchase of timber within the area of those withdrawals, and the Executive orders establishing Alaskan timber reserve No. 1, pursuant to the act of March 12, 1914 (38 Stat. 305), expressly state that such timber as shall not be needed for the construction of Alaskan Government-owned railroads may be disposed of by the Secretary of the Interior. Persons who desire to use or purchase timber on lands within Alaskan timber reserve No. 1 should first inquire of The Alaska Railroad, Anchorage, Alaska, as to whether or not the particular timber which they desire is needed by that railroad, and in the event that said timber is not so needed, applications may be filed for the same in manner as hereinbefore provided. The information to be supplied by the applicant in the fulfillment of the requirements set forth in subdivision (d) section 3 of these rules and regulations should contain statements to the effect that the timber is upon lands within the timber reserve and that The Alaska Railroad will consent to its removal. In such cases applications must be filed irrespective of whether the timber is to be procured under the free-use clause or under the purchase clause of the act.

INDIAN AND ESKIMO CLAIMS AND ALLOTMENTS—HOMESTEAD AND MINING CLAIMS

9. All persons desiring to procure timber under these rules and regulations must ascertain whether or not the lands from which they desire to cut are embraced within any allotment approved to an Indian or Eskimo or within any pending application for such allotment, or are within the bona fide legal possession of or occupied by any Indian or Eskimo, and every timber application (Form 4–023) contains a statement to the effect that the lands described in the application are not within such areas, and said statement must be subscribed to by the applicant and be duly witnessed by two witnesses. The cutting of timber on existing homestead, mining, or other claims is not authorized by these rules and regulations, but when a homestead, mining, or other claim shall have been initiated subsequent to the date of the filing of an application hereunder and posting of notice, as required by paragraph 4, such homestead, mining, or other claimant must take the claim, subject to the right of the timber applicant to cut and remove from the lands described in the application and notice the amount of timber purchased under the terms of the application.

FREE USE OF TIMBER FOR ARMY POSTS AND OTHER GOVERNMENTAL PURPOSES

10. Persons contracting with Government officials to furnish firewood or timber for United States Army posts or for other authorized governmental purposes may procure such firewood or timber from the vacant unreserved public lands free of charge, provided that the contracts do not include any charge for the value of the firewood or timber. The filing of an application is not required, but it is advisable for contractors to file applications in order that future complications with reference to charge of trespass may be avoided; and when applications are filed, the terms of the contract agreement, the use to which the timber is to be put, and a statement to the effect that no charge is to be made for the stumpage value of the material should be incorporated therein; unless the contract with the Government specifically states that no stumpage has been charged, it will be presumed that a charge has been made and the contractor must pay stumpage for the wood.

PREVENTION AGAINST WASTE—PRECAUTION AGAINST FOREST FIRES

11. The cutting of timber under these rules and regulations shall be done in such a manner as to prevent unnecessary waste. All trees shall be utilized to as low a diameter in the tops as possible, and stumps shall be cut as close to the ground as conditions will permit. All brush, tops, lops, and other forest débris made in felling and removing the timber shall be disposed of as best adapted to the protection of the remaining growth and in such manner as shall be prescribed by the inspector who has charge of the investigation. Every precaution shall be taken to prevent forest fires, and persons taking timber hereunder shall assist in suppressing such fires within the areas covered by their applications.

EXAMINATION BY INSPECTORS

12. At convenient times during cutting, or after any sale, the inspector will examine the lands cut over and submit a report or reports to the Commissioner of the General Land Office as to compliance with the terms of the sale, and if he finds that the cutting is being done in violation of the terms of sale he will immediately stop the cutting and report the matter for action. Special instructions have been issued for the guidance of the inspectors, who are to appraise timber and supervise its cutting and removal.

SALE OF TIMBER FOR EXPORTATION FROM ALASKA [j]

Authority for the exportation of timber from Alaska is contained in the act of April 12, 1926 (44 Stat. 242), and the following regulations are prescribed thereunder:

SMALL-QUANTITY SALES

1. Sales of timber to be cut for export may be made pursuant to the procedure and under the conditions set forth in the existing rules and regulations [41] where quantities are such as will be disposed of from year to year, and the purchases are made by those who do not contemplate large-scale production and an expenditure of large sums of money for developing enterprises for the exportation of such timber.

LARGE-QUANTITY SALES

2.[k] Sales of timber suitable for manufacturing purposes are hereby authorized in quantities, if found available, sufficient to supply a mill or proposed mill for a period of as much as 10 years, when it is satisfactorily shown that the purchaser in good faith intends to develop an enterprise for the cutting of this class of timber for export from Alaska and the sale does not endanger the supply of such timber for local use. The amount of timber that any one purchaser will be permitted to purchase under this provision and the period of the contract will be governed by the capacity of the mill and the estimated quantity that it will be capable of producing during the period covered by the contract of sale. When a 10 years' supply is sold the period within which the same must be cut (10 years) will begin to run from the time that the contract of sale is executed, if the manufacturing plant has been built, or from the time that the mill has been constructed and ready to begin operations if it is to be built, but in no case will more than two years be allowed for construction, and each contract shall contain a provision that all rights acquired thereunder shall be forfeited if operations have not been commenced within three years from the date of execution of the contract, unless, upon satisfactory showing the Secretary of the Interior, shall, in his discretion, excuse the delay. Commencement of operations in this sense will be construed as a bona fide commencement of actual cutting of timber in quantity sufficient to show that it is the purpose of the purchaser to fulfill the conditions of the contract and that it was not entered into merely for speculative purposes.

APPLICATIONS TO PURCHASE

3. Applications to purchase timber for export from Alaska pursuant to the foregoing act of Congress must be filed in duplicate in the United States land office for the district wherein the lands to be cut over are situated and should show: (a) Name, post-office address, residence, and business location of applicant; (b) amount or approximate amount of board feet of timber that the applicant desires to purchase; (c) a description by legal subdivision or subdivisions, if surveyed, or by metes and bounds with reference to some permanent natural landmark, if unsurveyed, and the area or approximate area of the land from which the timber is to be cut, and if the lands are within the area (Alaskan Timber Reserves) withdrawn pursuant to the act of March 12, 1914 (38 Stat. 305), in aid of the construction of the Alaskan Government-owned railroads it should be so stated, and evidence of consent previously obtained from The Alaska Railroad should be filed with the application; (d) whether or not the applicant is prepared to commence cutting immediately, and if not, approximately how long before timber cutting operations will be commenced; (e) [42] the estimated annual capacity of the mill or proposed mill, and the amount of money invested or to be invested in the establishment of the enterprise, accompanied by evidence as to the financial standing of the applicant, and a statement showing the general plan of operation and the purpose for which the timber is to be used. The sum of $200 must be deposited with each application as an evidence of good faith and for the purpose of helping to defray the cost of appraisal. If the sale is consummated, the amount of the deposit will be credited on the purchase price without deduction for the cost of appraisal.

PUBLICATION AND POSTING—MARKING OF LAND

4. Immediately upon the filing of an application to purchase timber under section 2 of these rules and regulations a notice shall be published at the expense of the applicant in a newspaper designated by the register, published in the vicinity of the land from which the timber is to be cut and most likely to give notice to the general public once a week for a period of five consecutive weeks, if in a weekly paper, or if a daily paper for a period of 30 days.[l] The description of the land in the notice must be identical with the description in the application. The register and receiver will post a copy of said notice in a conspicuous place in their office during the period of publication. Upon the execution of a contract, the purchaser shall, if the lands from which the timber is to be cut are unsurveyed, cause the boundaries to be blazed or otherwise marked in order that they may be identified. This requirement has been adopted in order that others who may subsequently desire to purchase timber or to settle upon or enter the land may have notice that the timber has been applied for.

ACTION ON APPLICATION

5.[m] The district officers will make appropriate notations upon the records of their office and transmit the application to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and at the same time transmit the duplicate to the Division Inspector at Anchorage, Alaska, or to an inspector located in the particular land district who shall have been designated by the Division Inspector to make appraisals. Upon receipt of the same the latter will without delay cause the timber applied for to be examined and appraised. The appraisal rates will be based upon a fair stumpage rate taking into consideration the quality of the timber and its accessibility to market. In no event will any timber suitable for manufacturing purposes be appraised at less than $1 per thousand feet, board measure. After an examination and appraisal has been made the Division Inspector will at once submit his report and recommendation to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, together with a statement of facts showing whether such sale would endanger the supply of timber for local use. The Government reserves the right to reappraise the remaining standing timber at the expiration of five years from the date of commencement of the timber cutting period as set forth in paragraph 2 hereof, but in no instance shall the appraisal be at more than double the rate of the original appraisal.

EXECUTION OF CONTRACT—BOND REQUIRED

6. Upon receipt of a report that such sale appears warranted the Commissioner of the General Land Office will notify the applicant of the result of the appraisal and advise him that he will be allowed 30 days from receipt of such notice within which to enter into a contract with the Government through the Commissioner of the General Land Office as its agent, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, to purchase the timber applied for pursuant to the rules and regulations of the Department pertaining thereto, and shall execute and file therewith a bond in a sum equal to 50 per cent of the stumpage value of the estimated amount of timber to be cut during each year of the contract. The said bond to have as surety a bonding company shown on an approved list issued by the Treasury Department, and shall be conditioned on the payment for the timber in accordance with the terms of the contract and to the faithful performance of the contract in other respects and to observance of the rules and regulations pursuant to which the sale is made. Forms of contract and bond to be used hereunder are printed as a part of Circular No. 1092.[n] All contracts and bonds executed hereunder must be approved by the Secretary of the Interior.

PROVISIONS TO BE INSERTED IN CONTRACT

7.[o] All contracts shall contain provisions against waste and precaution against forest fires. The Government may reserve the right to insert in a contract a provision authorizing the disposition for local use of timber that is not suitable for manufacturing purposes upon the area described in the contract, to another or others pursuant to the provisions set forth in sections 1 and 2, page 257 hereof. Contracts entered into under these rules and regulations will also be subject to the right of qualified persons to settle upon or enter the lands under the provisions of the homestead laws, but such settlers or homesteaders shall not have any title to or interest in the timber purchased under the contract or be permitted to interfere with the purchaser's operations incident to the cutting and removal of the timber.

[n] See footnote j, p. 262.

RENEWALS OF CONTRACT

8.[p] At the expiration of a contract a new contract may be entered into for a period of five years, upon the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, where there is sufficient timber available to warrant it. Prior good faith of the purchaser and substantial compliance with the conditions of the expired contract will be given consideration with reference to awarding a new contract. A new appraisal shall be made at that time for the purpose of fixing the stumpage price. Further renewals for five-year periods may be made to the same purchaser upon approval of the Secretary of the Interior.

LANDS FROM WHICH TIMBER MAY NOT BE SOLD

9. These rules and regulations are not applicable to timber on national forests, Indian or Eskimo claims, or lands otherwise appropriated, reserved, or withdrawn, for any purpose, except where the terms of the reservation or withdrawal order permit.[43]

Free Use of Timber by Oil and Gas Claimants

The free use of timber upon oil and gas prospecting permits and leases by permittees and lessees, authorized by the Secretary of the Interior under authority of section 32 of the act of February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. 437), is governed by Circular No. 1048.

Sale of Dead, Down, or Damaged Timber

The sale of dead or down timber or timber killed or seriously damaged by forest fires, authorized by the act of July 3, 1926 (44 Stat. 890), which amended the act of March 4, 1913 (37 Stat. 1015), is governed by Circular No. 1093, as amended by Circular No. 1112.

Town Sites Entered by Trustee

The entry of public lands in Alaska for town-site purposes, by such trustee or trustees as may be named by the Secretary of the Interior for that purpose, authorized by the act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 1095, 1099), will be governed by the following regulations:

SURVEY OF EXTERIOR LINES

1. If the land is unsurveyed the occupants must, by application to the public survey office, obtain a survey of the exterior lines of the town site which will be made at Government expense. There must be excluded from the tract to be surveyed and entered for the town site any lands set aside by the district court under section 31 of the act of June 6, 1900 (31 Stat. 321, 332), for use as jail and courthouse sites, also all lands needed for Government purposes or use, together with any existing valid claim initiated under Russian rule.

[43] See p. 260, par. 8, and p. 283, par. 9. The administration of the forest reserves was transferred to the Secretary of Agriculture by the act of Feb. 1, 1905 (33 Stat. 628).

APPOINTMENT OF TRUSTEE

2. When the survey of the exterior lines has been approved, or if the town site is on surveyed land, a petition to the Secretary of the Interior, signed by a majority of the occupants of the land, will be filed in the district office for transmittal to the General Land Office requesting the appointment of trustee and the survey of the town site into lots, blocks, and municipal reservations for public use, the expense thereof to be paid from assessments upon the lots occupied and improved on the date of the approval of final subdivisional town-site survey.

PAYMENT REQUIRED—AREA ENTERABLE

3. If the petition be found sufficient, the Secretary of the Interior will designate an inspector of the Interior Department as a trustee to make entry of the town site, payment for which must be made at the rate of $1.25 per acre. If there are less than 100 inhabitants the area of the town site is limited to 160 acres; if 100 and less than 200, to 320 acres; if more than 200, to 640 acres, this being the maximum area allowed by the statute.

FILING OF APPLICATION—PUBLICATION AND POSTING—SUBMISSION OF PROOF

4. The trustee will file his application and notice of intention to make proof, and thereupon the register will issue the usual notice of making proof, to be posted and published at the trustee's expense, for the time and in the manner as in other cases provided, and proof must be made showing occupancy of the tract, number of inhabitants thereon, character of the land, extent, value, and character of improvements, and that the town site does not contain any land occupied by the United States for school or other purposes or land occupied under any existing valid claim initiated under Russian rule.

MONEYS TO BE ADVANCED BY LOT OCCUPANTS

5. The occupants will advance a sufficient amount of money to pay for the land and the expenses incident to the entry, to be refunded to them when realized from lot assessments.

CONTESTS AND PROTESTS

6. Applications for entry will be subject to contest or protest as in other cases.

SUBDIVISION OF LAND

7. After the entry is made the town site will be subdivided by a United States deputy surveyor into blocks, lots, streets, alleys, and municipal public reservations. The expense of such survey will be paid from the appropriation for surveys in Alaska reimbursable from the lot assessments when collected.

STATUS OF INDIAN OCCUPANTS

8. Indian or native Alaskan occupants who have secured certificates of citizenship under the Territorial laws of Alaska shall be treated in all respects like white citizen occupants; but all land occupied by other Indians or Alaskan natives shall not be assessed by the trustee.

LOT ASSESSMENTS

9. The trustee will make a valuation of each occupied or improved lot in the town site, and thereupon assess upon such lots and blocks according to their value such rate and sum as will be necessary to pay all expenses incident to the execution of his trust which have accrued up to the time of such levy. More than one assessment may be made if necessary to effect the purpose of said act of Congress and these instructions.

PUBLICATION OF NOTICE TO LOT OCCUPANTS

10. On the acceptance of the plat by the General Land Office the trustee will publish a notice that he will, at the end of 30 days from the date thereof, proceed to award the lots applied for, and that all lots for which no applications are filed within 120 days from the date of said notice will be subject to disposition to the highest bidder at public sale. Only those who were occupants of lots or entitled to such occupancy at the date of the approval of final subdivisional town-site survey, or their assigns thereafter, are entitled to the allotments herein provided. Minority and coverture are not disabilities.

APPLICATIONS FOR DEEDS

11. Claimants should file their applications for deeds, setting forth the grounds of their claims for each lot applied for, which should be verified by their affidavits and corroborated by two witnesses. Such affidavits may be subscribed and sworn to before any officer authorized to administer oaths.

ISSUANCE OF DEEDS—PROCEDURE ON CONFLICTING APPLICATIONS

12. Upon receipt of the patent and payment of the assessments the trustee will issue deeds for the lots. The deeds will be acknowledged before an officer duly authorized to take acknowledgements of deeds at the cost of the grantee. In case of conflicting applications for lots the trustee, if he considers it necessary, may order a hearing, to be conducted in accordance with the rules of practice. No deed will be issued for any lot involved in a contest until the case has been finally closed. Appeals from any decision of the trustee or from decisions of the General Land Office may be taken in the manner provided by the rules of practice.

PUBLIC SALE OF UNCLAIMED LOTS

13. After deeds have been issued to the parties entitled thereto the trustee will publish or post notice that he will sell, at a designated place in the town and at a time named, to be not less than 30 days from date, at public outcry, for cash, to the highest bidder, all lots and tracts remaining unoccupied and unclaimed at the date of the approval of final subdivisional town-site survey, and all lots and tracts claimed and awarded on which the assessments have not been paid at the date of such sale. The notice shall contain a description of the lots and tracts to be sold, made in two separate lists, one containing the lots and tracts unclaimed at the date of the approval of final subdivisional town-site survey and the other the lots and tracts claimed and awarded on which the assessments have not been paid. Should any delinquent allottee, prior to the sale of the lot claimed by him, pay the assessments thereon, together with the pro rata cost of the publication and the cost of acknowledging deed, a deed will be issued to him for such lot, and the lot will not be offered at public sale. Where notice by publication is deemed advisable the notice will be published for 30 days prior to the date of sale, and in any event copies of such notice shall be posted in three conspicuous places within the town site. Each lot must be sold at a fair price, to be determined by the trustee, and he is authorized to reject any and all bids. Lots remaining unsold at the close of the public sale in an unincorporated town may again be offered at a fair price if a sufficient demand appears therefor.

FINAL REPORT OF TRUSTEE—DISPOSITION OF UNEXPENDED MONEYS

14. Immediately after the public sale the trustee will make and transmit to the General Land Office his final report of his trusteeship, showing all amounts received and paid out and the balance remaining on hand derived from assessments upon the lots and from the public sale. The proceeds derived from such sources, after deducting all expenses, may be used by the trustee on direction of the Secretary of the Interior, where the town is unincorporated, in making public improvements, or, if the town is incorporated, such remaining proceeds may be turned over to the municipality for the use and benefit thereof. After the public sale and upon proof of the incorporation of the town all lots then remaining unsold will be deeded to the municipality, and all municipal public reserves will, by a separate deed, be conveyed to the municipality in trust for the public purposes for which they were reserved.

RECORDS TO BE KEPT BY TRUSTEE

15. The trustee shall keep a tract book of the lots and blocks, a record of the deeds issued, a contest docket, and a book of receipts and disbursements.

DISPOSITION OF RECORDS ON COMPLETION OF TRUST

16. The trustee's duties having been completed, the books of accounts of all his receipts and expenditures, together with a record of his proceedings as hereinbefore provided, with all papers, other books, and everything pertaining to such town site in his possession and all evidence of his official acts shall be transmitted to the General Land Office to become a part of the records thereof, excepting from such papers, however, in case the town is incorporated, the subdivisional plat of the town site, which he will deliver to the municipal authorities of the town, together with a copy of the town site tract book or books, taking a receipt therefor to be transmitted to the General Land Office.

Town Sites Reserved By the President

Town sites in Alaska may be reserved by the President and sold as provided for in sections 2380 and 2381, United States Revised Statutes, and in the instructions under said sections contained in Circular No. 1122, approved April 27, 1927 (52 L. D. 106).

Indian Possessions in Trustee Towns—Native Towns [v]

The act of May 25, 1926 (44 Stat. 629), provides for the town-site survey and disposition of public lands set apart or reserved for the benefit of Indian or Eskimo occupants in trustee town sites in Alaska who have not secured certificates of citizenship under the laws of Alaska and for the survey and disposal of the lands occupied as native towns or villages, and section 4 of the act authorizes the Secretary of the Interior to prescribe appropriate regulations. Accordingly, the following regulations are issued:

DIVISION INSPECTOR TO ACT AS TRUSTEE IN ESTABLISHED TOWNS

1. As to trustee town sites in Alaska established under authority of section 11 of the act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 1095), and for which the town-site trustee has heretofore closed his accounts and been discharged as trustee, the division inspector for Alaska, whose address is now Anchorage, Alaska, is hereby appointed town-site trustee and authorized to perform all necessary acts and to administer the necessary trusts in connection with the act of May 25, 1926.

As to other trustee town sites in Alaska, the division inspector for Alaska is now the duly appointed and acting town-site trustee, and for such towns he will perform all necessary acts and administer the necessary trusts in connection with the act of May 25, 1926, in addition to his other duties as trustee.

SURVEY AND DISPOSAL OF INDIAN OR ESKIMO POSSESSIONS

2. Where the matter of surveying and disposing of Indian or Eskimo possessions in trustee town sites is hereafter taken up for consideration the town-site trustee will submit a report to the Commissioner of the General Land Office showing whether or not it would be of interest to the Indian or Eskimo occupants of the land to extend the established streets and alleys of the town site upon and across the tract and whether or not subdivisional surveys should be made. The report will be examined and considered by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and he will transmit it to the Secretary of the Interior with such recommendation as he may deem appropriate.

Before directing the survey and disposal of such Indian or Eskimo possessions under authority of the act of May 25, 1926, the Secretary of the Interior will determine whether or not the patent which issued for the townsite tract includes the tract designated as "Indian possessions." If it does not, a supplemental patent will be issued, to accompany the departmental order for survey and disposal.

[v] The instructions under this heading are based in part on Circular No. 1082, not carried in this publication.

SALE OF LAND FOR WHICH RESTRICTED DEED HAS ISSUED

3. If the parties to a proposed sale involving land for which a restricted deed has been issued under authority of the act of May 25, 1926, wish to have the sale approved by the Secretary of the Interior, the facts should first be submitted to the division inspector. Upon receiving information regarding any proposed sale, the division inspector, in his capacity as trustee, will make such investigation as he deems proper, and he will submit a report to the Commissioner of the General Land Office as to the advisability of approving the proposed sale. The report will be examined by the Commissioner and he will transmit it to the Secretary of the Interior with appropriate recommendation.

NATIVE TOWNS

4. The division inspector for Alaska is also hereby designated as trustee for any and all native towns in Alaska which may be established and surveyed under authority of section 3 of the said act of May 25, 1926, and as such trustee he will take such action as may be necessary to accomplish the objects sought to be accomplished by that section. In any case in which he thinks it would be of advantage to the Indian or Eskimo occupants to have the lands occupied and claimed by them surveyed as town or village, he should bring the matter to the attention of the Commissioner of the General Land Office with appropriate recommendation.

PAYMENT—PUBLICATION—PROOF FOR NATIVE TOWNS

5. In connection with the entry of lands as a native town or village. under section 3 of the said act of May 25, 1926, no payment need be made as purchase money or as fees, and the publication and proof which are ordinarily required in connection with trustee town sites will not be required.

PROVISIONS TO BE INSERTED IN RESTRICTED DEEDS

6. The town-site trustee will note a proper reference to the act of May 25, 1926, on each deed which is issued under authority of that act and each such deed should provide that the title conveyed is inalienable except upon approval of the Secretary of the Interior, and that the issuance of the restricted deed does not subject the tract to taxation, to levy and sale in satisfaction of the debts, contracts, or liabilities of the transferee, or to any claims of adverse occupancy or law of prescription; also, if the established streets and alleys of the town site have been extended upon and across the tract, that there is reserved to the town site the area covered by such streets and alleys as extended. The deed should further provide that the approval by the Secretary of the Interior of a sale by the Indian or Eskimo transferee shall vest in the purchaser a complete and unrestricted title from the date of such approval.

NATIVE TOWNS OCCUPIED PARTLY BY WHITE LOT OCCUPANTS

7. Native towns which are occupied partly by white lot occupants will be surveyed and disposed of under the provisions of both the act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 1095, 1099), and the act of May 25, 1926 (44 Stat. 629).

In each case of this kind the division inspector for Alaska will report the facts to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, showing the name and location of the town, the number of Indian or Eskimo lot occupants and the number of white lot occupants, the amount of land used or claimed by each and the approximate periods for which it has been used or claimed, the value of the improvements on the lands and by whom owned, and such other facts as he may deem appropriate.

Upon receipt of such report special instructions will be issued as to the procedure which should be followed with respect to the survey, entry, and disposal of the lands, assessment of costs, etc.

FORMS

8. The following forms have been issued for use in connection with the foregoing regulations: (a) Application for deed by native Indian or Eskimo of Alaska, Form 4–231; (b) trustee's deed to native Indian or Eskimo of Alaska, Form 4–232; and (c) deed of native Indian or Eskimo of Alaska, Form 4–232 a.

Town Sites Along the Alaska Railroad

Executive Order[r]

ALASKAN RAILROAD TOWN-SITE REGULATIONS

Under and pursuant to the provisions of the act of Congress approved March 12, 1914 (38 Stat. 305), entitled "An act to authorize the President of the United States to locate, construct, and operate railroads in the Territory of Alaska, and for other purposes," it is hereby ordered that the administration of that portion of said act relating to the withdrawal, location, and disposition of town sites shall be in accordance with the following regulations and provisions, to wit:

RESERVATIONS

The Alaskan Engineering Commission will file with the Secretary of the Interior, when deemed necessary, its recommendations for the reservation of such areas as in its opinion may be needed for town-site purposes. The Secretary of the Interior will thereupon transmit such recommendations to the President with his objections thereto or concurrence therewith. If approved by the President, the reservation will be made by Executive order.

SURVEY

When in the opinion of the Secretary of the Interior the public interests require a survey of any such reservation, he shall cause to be set aside such portions thereof for railroad purposes as may be selected by the Alaskan Engineering Commission, and cause the remainder, or any part thereof, to be surveyed into urban or suburban blocks and lots of suitable size, and into reservations for parks, schools, and other public purposes and for Government use. Highways should be laid out, where practicable, along all shore lines, and sufficient land for docks and wharf purposes along such shore lines should be reserved in such places as there is any apparent necessity therefor. The survey will be made under the supervision of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and the plats will be approved by him and by the chairman of the Alaskan Engineering Commission.

---

PREFERENCE RIGHT

Any person residing in a reserved town site at the time of the subdivisional survey thereof in the field and owning and having valuable and permanent improvements thereon, may, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior, be granted a preference right of entry, of not exceeding two lots on which he may have such improvements by paying the appraised price fixed by the superintendent of sale, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe. Preference right, proof, and entry, when granted, must be made prior to the date of the public sale.

PUBLIC SALE

The unreserved and unsold lots will be offered at public outcry to the highest bidder at such time and place, and after such publication of notice, if any, as the Secretary of the Interior may direct, and he may appoint or detail some suitable person as superintendent of sale to supervise the same and may fix his compensation and require him to give sufficient bond.

SUPERINTENDENT'S AUTHORITY

Under the supervision of the Secretary of the Interior, the superintendent of the sale will be, and he is hereby, authorized to make all appraisements of lots and at any time to reappraise any lot which in his judgment is not appraised at the proper amount, or to fix a minimum price for any lot below which it may not be sold, and he may adjourn, or postpone, the sale of any lots to such time and place as he may deem proper.

MANNER AND TERMS OF PUBLIC SALE

The Secretary of the Interior shall by regulations prescribe the manner of conducting the public sale, the terms thereof, and forms therefor, and he may prescribe what failures in payment will subject the bidder or purchaser to a forfeiture of his bid or right to the lot claimed and money paid thereon. The superintendent of sale will at the completion of the public sale deposit with the receiver of the proper local land office the money received and file with its officers the papers deposited with him by said bidder, together with his certificate as to successful bidder.

If it be deemed advisable, the Commissioner of the General Land Office may direct the receiver of public moneys of the proper district to attend sales herein provided for, in which event the cash payment required shall be paid to the said receiver.

ANCHORAGE, MATANUSKA, AND NENANA TOWN SITES

Unsold and forfeited lands in the town sites of Anchorage, Matanuska, and Nenana, upon which assessments for the improvements of streets, sidewalks, alleys, and for promotion of sanitation and fire protection have been levied by the Alaskan Engineering Commission and the assessments or any portion thereof remain unpaid shall be subject to such unpaid assessments and the purchaser shall pay the same in the manner the Secretary of the Interior may by regulations provide, and the proceeds of such assessments will be deposited with the Alaskan Engineering Commission, as a reimbursement to the operating expense fund as provided in section 3 of the act of March 12, 1914 (38 Stat. 305). See 22 Comp. Dec. 604. Hereafter no such assessments by said commission will be levied.

In cases where one of a number of joint purchasers of a lot has made or may hereafter make all payments of his pro rata share of the purchase price and assessments on the lot, such lot may, in the event of forfeiture being declared, and in the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior, be resubdivided and a preference right of purchase given to the person who has made all payments on his portion thereof, such preference right to be confined to the portion of the original lot held and claimed by such person. This privilege may be extended to a transferee of an original purchase.

Final certificate may issue in these town sites in all cases, when the purchase price and assessments are paid in full without regard to date of purchase.

COMMISSION BUILDING ON LOTS

Buildings belonging to the Alaskan Engineering Commission situated on a lot in any town site may be appraised and sold separate and apart from the lot on which located, under regulations provided by the Secretary of the Interior for the same and for the removal of the buildings. The proceeds for the sale of such buildings shall be paid to the Alaskan Engineering Commission as a reimbursement to its operating account.

PRIVATE ENTRY

Lots offered at public sale and not sold and lots offered and declared forfeited in a town site may, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior, be sold at private entry for the appraised price.

ORDERS REVOKED

All Executive orders heretofore issued for the disposition of town sites along the Government railroads in Alaska are hereby revoked so far as they conflict with the foregoing provisions. This order is intended to take the place of all other orders making provisions for the sale and disposal of lots in said town sites along Government railroads in Alaska under the provisions of said act.

WARREN G. HARDING.

THE WHITE HOUSE,

(No. 3529)

TRADE AND MANUFACTURING SITES

1. Section 10 of the act of May 14, 1898 (30 Stat. 413), authorizes the sale at the rate of $2.50 per acre of not exceeding 80 acres of land as a trade and manufacturing site.

EXECUTION OF APPLICATION

2. Application for a trade and manufacturing site should be executed in duplicate and should be filed in the proper district land office. It must be sworn to by the applicant and must be corroborated by the affidavits of two persons. It may be executed before any officer authorized to administer oaths in homestead cases in Alaska.[44]

---

QUALIFICATIONS OF APPLICANT

3. An application must show that the applicant is a citizen of the United States and 21 years of age, and that he has not theretofore applied for land as a trade and manufacturing site. If such site has been applied for and the application not completed, the facts must be shown. If the application is made for an association of citizens or a corporation, the qualifications of each member of the organization must be shown. In the case of a corporation, proof of incorporation must be established by the certificate of the officer having custody of the records of incorporation at the place of its formation and it must be shown that the corporation is authorized to hold land in Alaska.

DESCRIPTION OF LAND IN APPLICATION

4. If the land be surveyed, it must be described in the application according to legal subdivisions of the public-land surveys. If it be unsurveyed, the application must describe it by approximate latitude and longitude and otherwise with as much certainty as possible without survey.

FORM OF ENTRY

5. Claims initiated by occupancy after survey must conform thereto in occupation and application, but if the public surveys are extended over the lands after occupancy and prior to application, the claim may be presented in conformity with such surveys, or, at the election of the applicant, a special survey may be had.

FACTS WHICH MUST BE SHOWN IN APPLICATION

6. The application to enter must show:

(1) That the land is actually used and occupied for the purpose of trade, manufacture or other productive industry, when it was first so occupied, the character and value of the improvements thereon and the nature of the trade, business or productive industry conducted thereon and that it embraces the applicant's improvements and is needed in the prosecution of the enterprise. A site for a prospective business can not be acquired under section 10 of the act of May 14, 1898 (30 Stat. 413).

(2) That no portion of the land is occupied or reserved for any purpose by the United States or occupied or claimed by natives of Alaska; that the land is unoccupied, unimproved, and unappropriated by any person claiming the same other than the applicant.

(3) That the land does not abut more than 80 rods of navigable water.

(4) That the land is not within a distance of 80 rods along any such water from any location theretofore made with soldiers' additional rights, or as a trade and manufacturing site, homestead, Indian or Eskimo allotment, or school indemnity selection, or that it has been restored from reservation.[45]

(5) That the land is not included within an area which is reserved because of springs or water holes thereon. All facts relative to

---

[45] See p. 244.

medicinal or other springs or water holes must be stated, as set forth in paragraph 3 under the heading "Springs and Water Holes."[46]

(6) That no part of the land is valuable for coal, oil, gas, or other valuable mineral deposits and that at the date of the location no part of the land was claimed under the mining laws.

ACTION ON APPLICATION—REPORT OF DIVISION INSPECTOR

7. Upon receipt of the application, the register and receiver will note its filing, assign a current serial number thereto and transmit the original copy, unallowed, together with the accompanying papers, to the General Land Office. They will forward the duplicate copy of the application to the division inspector for report. With each copy they will report the status of the land as shown by their records.

The report of the division inspector will be made to the General Land Office and it should show whether the lands contain valuable deposits of coal, oil, gas, or other minerals, whether they have power or reservoir possibilities, whether they are within an area which is reserved because of hot, medicinal, or other springs, or water holes, and any other facts deemed appropriate.

APPLICATION FOR SURVEY

8. If the land applied for be unsurveyed and no objection to its survey is known to the register and receiver, they will furnish the applicant with a certificate to the cadastral engineer in charge of the public survey office stating the facts, and, after receiving such certificate, the applicant may make application to the public survey office for the survey of the land. The register and receiver will advise the public survey office of the issuance of the certificate, and, unless the applicant promptly makes application for the survey, the public survey office will report the facts to the General Land Office for such action as may be deemed proper.

SURVEY—PUBLICATION AND POSTING—ADVERSE CLAIMS—PROOF OF PUBLICATION AND POSTING

9. The instructions given under the above headings in connection with applications for soldiers' additional homestead entries will be followed in connection with trade and manufacturing sites.[47]

ALLOWANCE OF ENTRY AND ISSUANCE OF FINAL CERTIFICATE

10. The application and proofs filed therewith, and the report of the division inspector thereon, will be carefully examined in the General Land Office, and, if all be found regular, the register will be instructed to allow the application and to issue final certificate thereunder, upon payment for the land being made at the rate of $2.50 per acre, and in the absence of objections shown by his records.

HOMESTEADS OR HEADQUARTERS[s]

1. The act of March 3, 1927 (44 Stat. 1364), authorizes the sale as a homestead or headquarters of not to exceed 5 acres of unreserved

USE OF LANDS

3. Care will be taken in all cases before patent issues to see that the lands applied for are used for the purposes contemplated by the said act of March 3, 1927, and that they are not used for any purpose inconsistent therewith.

4. Applications under said act must be filed in duplicate in the district land office within which the land is situated.

Each application must be sworn to by the applicant and must be corroborated by the affidavits of two witnesses, and must show the following facts:

(4) The nature of the trade, business, or productive industry in which applicant or his employer, whether a citizen, an association of citizens, or a corporation, is engaged.

(5) The location of the tract applied for with respect to the place of business and other facts demonstrating its adaptability to the purpose of a homestead or headquarters.

(6) That no portion of the tract applied for is occupied or reserved for any purpose by the United States, or occupied or claimed by any natives of Alaska, or occupied as a town site or missionary station or reserved from sale, and that the tract does not include improvements made by or in possession of another person, association, or corporation.

(7) That the land is not within a distance of 80 rods along any navigable water from any location theretofore made with soldiers' additional rights, or as a trade and manufacturing site, homestead, Indian or Eskimo allotment, or school indemnity selection, or that it has been restored from reservation.[48]

(8) That the land is not included within an area which is reserved because of springs or water holes thereon. All facts as to medicinal Applications for other than power purposes which conflict in whole or in part with lands reserved or classified as power sites, or covered by power applications under the act of June 10, 1920 (41 Stat. 1063), known as "The Federal Water Power Act," will be acted upon and disposed of in accordance with instructions under section 24 of the act contained in Circular No. 729 (47 L. CIRCULAR NO. 1181

METES AND BOUNDS DESCRIPTION OF LAND TO BE OMITTED IN PROOF NOTICES FOR CERTAIN CLAIMS IN ALASKA.—CIRCULAR NO. 491 AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, February 19, 1929.

Registers and Receivers, Anchorage, Fairbanks, and Nome, Alaska.

SIRS: The requirements with reference to publication of proof notices in homestead cases in Alaska, where a special survey has been made, are set forth in paragraph 25, page 33, of Circular No. 491, approved February 24, 1928.[50] The requirements of the law with reference to publication are contained in section 10 of the act of May 14, 1898 (30 Stat. 409, 414). These requirements are applicable to homestead entries, soldiers' additional entries, and trade and manufacturing sites.

In Alaska, in the classes of entries mentioned, the important feature of proof notices is to inform all interested parties of the geographical location of the land, and the information should be given in such a way that the people who read the notice will be able to interpret it properly. The metes and bounds description is technical, and not generally understood. Hence, in these cases, it is not of much value to the general public as a means of identification of land. The metes and bounds description adds to the length of the notice and to the cost of the notice to the claimant. The statute does not require the inclusion of such description in the published notice.

[46] See p. 253.

[49] See pp. 273 to 275, inclusive, pars. 2, 4, 5, 7, 8, 9, and 10.

[50] The reference is to paragraph 25, page 33 of Circular No. 491 as issued in pamphlet form, reproduced on p. 214 hereof.

Adverse claimants may inform themselves as to the exact location of the land by the markings on the ground or from a copy of a plat of survey which must be filed in the district land office and posted on the land.

It is believed, therefore, that in the cases mentioned, and for the reasons stated, the inclusion of the metes and bounds descriptions in the published notices is objectionable and unnecessary. It is directed, therefore, that hereafter such descriptions be omitted.

In the cases referred to, as a means of identification of the land, the register will cause each notice hereafter issued to give the survey number and area of the claim, with a statement as to the general location of the land. If the survey is not tied to a corner of the rectangular system of the public-land surveys the notice should give the name and number of the location monument to which some corner of the survey is tied, and the course and distance from the location monument to such corner, with approximate latitude and longitude. If the survey is tied to a corner of the rectangular system of the public-land surveys, such corner should be identified by section, township, and range. The statement as to general location will identify the land as shown on the plat of survey or otherwise as the register may deem best. The statement, where possible, should refer to the land in connection with some well-known topographical point or natural object or monument, river, trail, town, mining camp, etc.

Circular No. 491 is hereby amended to agree with the above instructions.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

Department of the Interior,

---

[52] See footnote j, p. 262.

SEC. 2. That the college and school provided for in this Act shall forever remain under the exclusive control of the said Territory, and no part of the proceeds arising from the sale or disposal of any lands granted herein shall be used for the support of any sectarian or denominational college or school.

SEC. 3. That it is hereby declared that all lands hereby granted to said Territory are hereby expressly transferred and confirmed to the said Territory and shall be by the said Territory held in trust, to be disposed of, in whole or in part, only in the manner herein provided and for the objects specified in the granting provisions, and that the natural products and money proceeds of any of said lands shall be subject to the same trusts as the lands producing the same. Disposition of any of said lands or of any money or thing of value directly or indirectly derived therefrom for any object other than that for which such particular lands or the lands from which such money or thing of value shall have been derived or granted or in any manner contrary to the provisions of this Act shall be deemed a breach of trust.

SEC. 4. That no mortgage or other encumbrance of said lands shall be valid in favor of any person for any purpose or under any circumstances whatsoever. Said lands shall not be sold or leased, in whole or in part, except to the highest bidder at public auction, notice of which public auction shall first have been duly given by advertisement, which shall set forth the nature, time, and place of the transaction to be had, with full description of the lands to be offered, published once each week for not less than ten successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation published regularly at the capital and in a newspaper of like circulation which shall then be regularly published nearest to the location of the lands so offered; nor shall any sale or contract for the sale of any timber or other natural product of such lands be made, save at the place, in the manner, and after the notice thus provided for sales and leases of the lands themselves: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall prevent said Territory from leasing any of said lands referred to in this section for a term of five years or less without such advertisement herein required.

Sec. 5. That all lands, leasehold, timber, and other products of the land before being offered shall be appraised at their true value, and no sale or other disposal thereof shall be made for a consideration less than the value so ascertained, nor, in case of the sale of the land, less than a minimum price of $5 per acre; nor upon credit unless accompanied by ample security, and the legal title shall not be deemed to have passed until the consideration shall have been paid.

Sec. 6. That a fund shall be established in the Territorial treasury to carry out the purposes of this Act, and whenever any money shall be in any manner derived from any of the land granted same shall be deposited in the Territorial treasury in the fund. The Territorial treasurer shall keep all such money invested in safe interest-bearing securities, which securities shall be approved by the governor and the secretary of state of the Territory, and shall at all times be under a good and sufficient bond or bonds conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties in regard thereto, as defined by this Act and the laws of the Territory not in conflict herewith. The income from said fund may and shall be used exclusively for the purposes of such Agricultural College and School of Mines: Provided, That no portion of said income shall be applied, directly or indirectly, under any pretense whatever, to the purchase, erection, preservation, or repair of any building or buildings.

Sec. 7. That every sale, lease, conveyance, or contract of or concerning any of the lands hereby granted or confirmed or the use thereof of the natural products thereof, not made in substantial conformity with the provisions of this Act, shall be null and void. It shall be the duty of the Attorney General of the United States to prosecute in the name of the United States and in its courts such proceedings at law or in equity as may from time to time be necessary and appropriate to enforce the provisions hereof relative to the application and disposition of the said lands and the products thereof and the funds derived therefrom."

Applications to select lands under this grant will be made by the proper selecting agent of the Territory and will be filed in the local land office of the district in which such selected lands are situated. Such selections must be made in accordance with the law, and with the regulations governing the selections of lands by States and Territories, approved June 23, 1910 (39 L. Each list of selections must contain a reference to this act under which the selections are made and must be accompanied by a certificate of the selecting agent showing the selections are made under and pursuant to the laws of the Territory of Alaska.

The selections in any one list should not exceed 6,400 acres. No more than one serial number must be given to any list of selections, notwithstanding it may contain more than one selection.

Each list must be accompanied by a certificate of the selecting agent showing that the selections therein and those pending, together with those approved, do not exceed the total amount granted for the purpose stated.

The nonmineral character of the land applied for must be shown by an affidavit of some responsible party, having and testifying to a personal knowledge of the land, based upon examination made not more than three months prior to the filing of the list, and shall apply to each smallest legal subdivision of land selected. This affidavit should also show that the land is not occupied by nor does it contain improvements placed thereon by any Indian.

(2) That the land applied for does not extend more than 160 rods along the shore of any navigable water or that such restriction has been waived; and that it is not within a distance of 80 rods along any navigable or other waters from any location theretofore made with soldiers' additional rights, or as a trade and manufacturing site, homestead, Inian or Eskimo allotment or Territorial selection, or that it has been restored from reservation.

NENANA TOWN SITE, ALASKA

Under and pursuant to the provisions of the act of Congress approved March 12, 1914 (38 Stat. 305), it is ordered that Executive Order No. 3489, issued June 10, 1921, containing the Alaska Railroad town site regulations, is hereby amended to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to reappraise and sell the unimproved lots in Nenana town site, Alaska, belonging to the United States, and to readjust the assessments levied against them for the improvement of streets, sidewalks, and alleys, and for the promotion of sanitation and fire protection by the Alaska Railroad prior to August 31, 1921.

Circular No. 1198

REGULATIONS PERMITTING THE EXPORTATION OF TIMBER FROM ALASKA (CIRCULAR NO. 1092) AMENDED[t]

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, August 5, 1929.

Circular No. 1092, approved August 27, 1926, containing the regulations governing the exportation of timber from Alaska under the act of April 12, 1926 (44 Stat. 242), is hereby amended as follows:

> (2) Sales of timber suitable for manufacturing purposes are hereby authorized in quantities, if found available, sufficient to supply a mill or proposed mill for a period of as much as twenty years, when it is satisfactorily shown that the purchaser in good faith intends to develop an enterprise for the cutting of this class of timber for export from Alaska and the sale does not endanger the supply of such timber for local use. The amount of timber that any one purchaser will be permitted to purchase under this provision and the period of the contract will be governed by the capacity of the mill and the estimated quantity that it will be capable of producing during the period covered by the contract of sale. When a twenty years' supply is sold the period within which the same must be cut (twenty years) will begin to run from the time that the contract of sale is executed, if the manufacturing plant has been built, or from the time that the mill has been constructed and ready to begin operations if it is to be built, but in no case will more than two years be allowed for construction, and each contract shall contain a provision that all rights acquired thereunder shall be forfeited if operations have not been commenced within three years from the date of execution of the contract, unless, upon satisfactory showing the Secretary of the Interior, shall, in his discretion, excuse the delay. Commencement of operations in this sense will be construed as a bona fide commencement of actual cutting of timber in quantity sufficient to show that it is the purpose of the purchaser to fulfill the conditions of the contract and that it was not entered into merely for speculative purposes.

(5). The district officers will make appropriate notations upon the records of their office and transmit the application to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and at the same time transmit the duplicate to the Chief of Field Division at Anchorage, Alaska, or to an examiner located in the particular land district who shall have been designated by the Chief of Field Division to make appraisals. Upon receipt of the same the latter will without delay cause the timber applied for to be examined and appraised. The appraisal rates will be based upon a fair stumpage rate taking into consideration the quality of the timber and its accessibility to market. In no event will any timber suitable for manufacturing purposes be appraised at less than $1 per thousand feet, board measure. After an examination and appraisal has been made the Chief of Field Division will at once submit his report and recommendation to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, together with a statement of facts showing whether such sale would endanger the supply of timber for local use. The Government reserves the right to reappraise the remaining standing timber at the expiration of five years from the date of commencement of the timber cutting period as set forth in paragraph 2 hereof and at intervals of five years thereafter, but in no instance shall the appraisal be at more than double the rate of the original appraisal.

(7). All contracts shall contain provisions against waste and precaution against forest fires. The Government may reserve the right to insert in a contract a provision authorizing the disposition for local use of timber that is not suitable for manufacturing purposes upon the area described in the contract, to another or others pursuant to the provisions of Circular No. 491, page 92, sections 1 and 2.[1] Contracts entered into under these rules and regulations will also be subject to the right of qualified persons to locate, select, settle upon, or enter the lands involved under the provisions of the public land laws applicable to Alaska, but such claimants shall not have any title to or interest in the timber purchased under the contract or be permitted to interfere with the purchaser's operations incident to the cutting and removal of the timber.

(8). At the expiration of a contract a new contract may, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior, be entered into for a period of not to exceed twenty years, where there is sufficient timber available to warrant it. Prior good faith of the purchaser and substantial compliance with the conditions of the expired contract will be given consideration with reference to awarding a new contract. A new appraisal shall be made at that time for the purpose of fixing the stumpage price.

TIMBER SALE CONTRACT

(9) At the end of the period designated herein a new contract may, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior, be entered into, for a period of not exceeding twenty years, provided that there is sufficient timber suitable for manufacturing purposes available to warrant, and further provided that the provisions and conditions of this contract shall have been faithfully complied with. The price to be paid for the timber will be based upon an appraisal to be made at that time.

Very respectfully,

C. C. Moore, Commissioner.

CIRCULAR NO. 1203

GRAZING REGULATIONS CONTAINED IN CIRCULARS NOS. 491 AND 1138 AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, December 2, 1929.

MR. GEORGE A. PARKS,
Ex Officio Commissioner, Juneau, Alaska.

REGISTER AND CHIEF OF FIELD DIVISION,
Anchorage, Alaska.

REGISTERS AND RECEIVERS,

GENTLEMEN: In order to conform to the order of the Secretary of the Interior of October 3, 1929, transferring supervision of all reindeer activities in Alaska, from the office of education to the ex officio commissioner of Alaska, representing the Interior Department, subject to the general supervision and control of the Secretary of the Interior, effective November 1, 1929, the regulations governing the leasing of lands in Alaska for grazing livestock issued in pursuance of the act of March 4, 1927 (44 Stat. 1452), approved January 7, 1928, contained in Circulars Nos. 491 and 1138, are hereby amended by substituting for sections 3 and 4 thereof, the following:

3. After the establishment of a grazing district applications for leases may be filed in the proper district land office. Applications should be filed in duplicate except applications for reindeer grazing which should be in triplicate:

(a) Applications to lease lands for reindeer grazing filed by natives of Alaska or associations of such natives may be filed by the natives themselves or through a supervisor or other responsible official designated by the ex officio commissioner of Alaska for the Department of the Interior.

(c) Applications for leases must conform substantially to the appended Form 4-469.

4. The chief of field division will cause an investigation to be made of all applications to lease for grazing purposes except of applications filed by natives of Alaska for reindeer grazing and report to the General Land Office as to the livestock to be grazed on the land; as to the carrying capacity of the areas sought; as to the improvements, if any, existing thereon; as to their use and occupancy and as to the feasibility of granting the lease applied for Recommendation should also be made as to what rental should be charged and whether such charge should be deferred for any particular period.

(a) The said ex officio commissioner or such official as he may designate to act for him, will make report, in duplicate, similar to that described in section 4, except as to charge for rental, on all applications to lease for reindeer grazing filed by natives of Alaska. The report will be filed in the proper district land office. The register will transmit the original copy to the General Land Office and the duplicate copy to the chief of field division.

(b) The chief of field division will submit to the General Land Office such report and recommendation as he may deem proper in connection with all applications to lease lands for reindeer grazing filed by natives of Alaska.

Very respectfully,

C. C. MOORE, Commissioner.

AMENDMENT OF ENTRIES

[Reported, 44 L. D. 181]

Circular No. 423

REVISED REGULATIONS GOVERNING AMENDMENT OF ENTRIES PURSUANT TO SECTION 2372 R. S., AS AMENDED. BY ACT OF FEBRUARY 24, 1909 (35 STAT. 645), AND OTHERWISE

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., July 10, 1915.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: Section 2372, United States Revised Statutes, as amended by the act of Congress approved February 24, 1909 (35 Stat. 645), reads as follows:

> Sec. 2372. In all cases where an entry, selection, or location has been or shall hereafter be made of a tract of land not intended to be entered, the entryman, selector, or locator, or, in case of his death, his legal representatives, or, when the claim is by law transferable, his or their transferees, may, in any case coming within the provisions of this section, file his or their affidavit, with such additional evidence as can be procured showing the mistake as to the numbers of the tract intended to be entered and that every reasonable precaution and exertion was used to avoid the error, with the register and receiver of the land district in which such tract of land is situate, who should transmit the evidence submitted to them, in each case, together with their written opinion both as to the existence of the mistake and the credibility of every person testifying thereto, to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, who, if he be entirely satisfied that the mistake has been made and that every reasonable precaution and exertion has been made to avoid it, is authorized to change the entry and transfer the payment from the tract erroneously entered to that intended to be entered, if the same has not been disposed of and is subject to entry, or if not subject to entry, then to any other tract liable to such entry, selection, or location; but the oath of the person interested shall in no case be deemed sufficient, in the absence of other corroborating testimony, to authorize such change of entry, nor shall anything herein contained affect the right of third persons.

For the purpose of governing the administration of the provisions of this statute and to define the circumstances under which amendments of entries will be granted pursuant to its provisions, or by virtue of the authority of the department to recognize and establish rights and equities not strictly within the purview and contemplation of such statute, the following rules are provided and will be followed:

1. Applications for amendment must be filed in the local land office of the United States having jurisdiction over the land sought to be entered, and should be substantially in accordance with the printed form herewith. This form may be used for the amendment of nonmineral entries where the applicant is either the original entryman, the assignee, or transferee, by making such modifications as the facts may justify. Each application must be verified by the oath of the applicant and corroborating witnesses, and must describe the land erroneously entered, as well as that desired by way of amendment, by subdivision, section, township, and range; and where the land originally intended to be entered has been disposed of the applicant must describe that land also and show why he can not obtain it.

2. The application must contain a full statement of all the facts and circumstances, showing how the mistake occurred and what precautions were taken prior to the filing of the erroneous entry, selection, or location, to avoid error in the description. The showing in this regard must be complete, because no amendment will be allowed unless it is made to appear that proper precaution was taken to avoid error at the time of making the original entry, location, or selection; and where there has been undue delay in applying for amendment, the application will be closely scrutinized, and will not be allowed unless the utmost good faith is shown, and the delay explained to the entire satisfaction of the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

3. The application must also show that no timber or other thing of value has been taken from the land erroneously entered, located, or selected; that the land sought by way of amendment is not occupied or claimed by any adverse claimant; that it is of the character contemplated by the law under which the claim is presented, and, in cases of nonmineral claims, the kind and quantity of timber on each legal subdivision applied for must be stated.

4. Where no final certificate has been issued and the amendment is sought by the original claimant, it must be shown that the land embraced in the erroneous entry, location, or selection has not been sold, assigned, relinquished, or in any way encumbered, and for this purpose the affidavit of the applicant, corroborated as hereinafter required, will be sufficient; but where final certificate has issued, or where amendment is sought by a transferee, it must be shown by a certificate from the proper recording officer of the county in which the land is situated, or by satisfactory abstract of title, that the applicant is the owner of such land under the entry, location, or selection, as the case may be, and it must also be shown that there are no liens, unpaid taxes, or other incumbrance charged against the land. Where patent has been issued, reconveyance of the land embraced in the patent must be made by deed executed by the claimant, and also by his wife, if he be married, in accordance with the laws governing the execution of deeds for the conveyance of real estate in the State in which the land is situated, such deed to be accompanied by a satisfactory abstract of title or a certificate from the register of deeds in and for the county in which the land is situated, showing the title to be clear and free of incumbrance.

5. The affidavit of the applicant must be corroborated by at least two witnesses who have been well acquainted with him for a sufficient length of time to enable them to testify as to the character and reputation of the applicant for truth and veracity. At least one witness must verify the allegations of the application on his personal knowledge of the facts therein stated, so far as such facts may well be known to anyone other than the applicant, and as to other facts, including those concerning the applicant's intent or purpose, such witness may testify on information and belief.

6.[1] The affidavit of the applicant must be executed before the register or receiver of the land office where the application is made, or before a United States commissioner, or before the judge or clerk of any court of record in the county, parish, or land district in which the lands are situated, as required by the act of March 4, 1904 (33 Stat. 59). The corroborating affidavits may be made before any officer authorized to administer oaths and using a seal.

7. When an application to amend is filed in your office, you will make proper notations on your records and forward it to the General Land Office with your monthly returns, with your recommendation written at the place indicated in the form, and thereafter you will make no disposition of the land applied for until instructed by the General Land Office.

8. When an application to amend is received in the General Land Office, together with proper report and recommendation from the register and receiver, it will be considered, and, if found satisfactory, the amendment will be allowed and proper correction made on the records, of which you will be duly advised, to the end that the necessary corrections may be made on the records of your office and the applicant properly notified. Where an application is denied, an appeal may be taken to the department.

9. Where amendments are allowed of claims upon which final proof has been submitted, and publication or posting of notice is required, republication of notice applicable to the class of entry for which application to amend is made will be required; and if the land sought by way of amendment is the land originally intended to be entered, the witnesses who testified when the final proof was made on the erroneous entry must make affidavit, showing that the land described in the application for amendment is the same land to which which they intended to refer in their testimony, formerly given. If, however, the same witnesses can not be secured, or if the land sought by way of amendment is not the land originally intended to be entered, new proof must be made.

10. The statute to which the foregoing regulations refer does not, in terms, provide for amendment of an entry, selection, or location for the purpose of correcting any error other than such as affects and pertains to the description of the lands entered and intended to be entered. Nevertheless, in the exercise of its equitable power and authority, the department will grant amendment of an entry, made for the purpose of securing a home upon the public lands, or for the purpose of effecting reclamation in accordance with the provisions of the desert land law, in any case where it is satisfactorily shown that, through no fault or neglect of the entryman, the land embraced by his entry is so far unfit for, or insusceptible of, occupancy, cultivation, or irrigation, as to render it practically impossible to perform the requirements of the law thereon.

11. Amendment for the purpose of enlarging the area of a desert land entry will be granted under and in the conditions and circumstances now to be stated.

(a) In any case where it is satisfactorily disclosed that entry was not made to embrace the full area which might lawfully have been included therein because of existing appropriations of all contiguous lands then appearing to be susceptible of irrigation through and by means of entryman's water supply, or of all such lands which seemed to be worthy of the expenditure requisite for that purpose, said lands having since been released from such appropriations.

[1] See Circular No. 884, p. 1035.

(b) Where contiguous tracts have been omitted from entry because of entryman's belief, after a reasonably careful investigation, that they could not be reclaimed by means of the water supply available for use in that behalf, it having been subsequently discovered that reclamation thereof can be effectively accomplished by means of a changed plan or method of conserving or distributing such water supply.

(c) Where, at the time of entry, the entryman announced, in his declaration, his purpose to procure the cancellation, through contest or relinquishment, of an entry embracing lands contiguous to those entered by him, and thereafter to seek amendment of his entry in such manner as to embrace all or some portion of the lands so discharged from entry.

12. Applications for amendment presented pursuant to rule 10 will not be granted, except where at least one legal subdivision of the lands originally entered is retained in the amended entry, and any such application must be submitted within one year next after discovery by the entryman of the existence of the conditions relied upon as entitling him to the relief he seeks, or within one year succeeding the date on which, by the exercise of reasonable diligence, the existence of such conditions might have been discovered: Provided, nevertheless, That where an applicant for amendment has made both homestead and desert land entries for contiguous lands, amendment may be granted whereby to transfer the desert-land entry, in its entirety, to the land covered by the homestead entry, and the homestead entry, in its entirety, to the land covered by the desert-land entry, or whereby to enlarge the desert-land entry in such manner as that it will include the whole or some portion of the lands embraced in the homestead entry, sufficient equitable reason for such enlargement being exhibited, and the area of the enlarged entry in no case exceeding 320 acres. Applications for such amendments may be made under the rules given above and on the prescribed form, in so far as the same are applicable. A supplemental affidavit should also be furnished, if necessary, to show the facts.

13. Application to amend desert land entries by the addition of a new and enlarged area or by transferring the entry to lands not originally selected for entry must be accompanied by evidence of applicant's right to the use of water sufficient for the adequate irrigation of said enlarged area or of the lands to which entry is to be transferred. Such evidence must be in the form prescribed by paragraph 12 of the circular of September 30, 1910, as amended March 23, 1914, and the provisions of paragraph 13 thereof, as amended February 25, 1915 (Circular No. 383).[a]

14. Where entries, selections, or locations are improperly allowed by the land department, as where the lands are not subject to such entries, selections, or locations, amendments will not be allowed, because such claims, being invalid, should be canceled, and upon cancellation thereof a new entry, selection, or location may be allowed as though the former had never been made.

[a] These circulars have been superseded by Circular No. 474. See pars. 12 and 13, pp. 421 and 422.

15. Amendment of an entry becomes effective, by relation, as of the date of the original entry in all cases except where the effect of the amendment is to transfer the entry in its entirety to lands other than those originally selected for entry. In all cases, therefore, where amendment is granted to correct a mistake in description and to effect the entryman's original intention, or to increase merely the area embraced by the entry, such amendment will not be effective to alter the time within which the requirements of the law must be complied with. In other cases, the date of the amendment will be treated as the date of the entry and the time within which residence is to be established or proof of any kind submitted will be computed from that date.

The circular of April 22, 1909 (37 L. D. 655), and all other circulars or instructions concerning amendments incompatible herewith, are hereby revoked.

Clay Tallman, Commissioner.

Approved.

First Assistant Secretary.

AMENDMENT OF ENTRIES UNDER PARAGRAPH 10, CIRCULAR NO. 423 (44 L. D. 181)

Instructions

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, June 26, 1924.

Chiefs of Divisions C, F, and K, General Land Office.

Sirs: Paragraph 10, of Circular No. 423 (44 L. D. 181), provides for the amendment of certain classes of entries on equitable grounds, and paragraph 12 restricts the allowance of such amendments to cases wherein at least one legal subdivision of the lands originally entered is retained in the amended entry, and the application for amendment is submitted within one year next after discovery of the existence of the conditions relied upon as entitling the entryman to the relief sought, or within one year succeeding the date on which, by the exercise of reasonable diligence, the existence of such conditions might have been discovered.

In a number of instances, the most recent being the case of William Olson, Miles City 049153, the department has reversed decisions of this office denying applications to amend under said paragraph 10 on the sole ground that the applicant either failed to retain one legal subdivision or to present his application within one year.

It would appear to follow that said paragraph 12 is not mandatory, and if this office, upon consideration of all the facts presented, concludes that equitable relief is warranted under paragraph 10, it should, if necessary, waive either or both of the restrictions of paragraph 12, and grant the amendment.

You will be governed accordingly.

Very respectfully,

WILLIAM SPRY, Commissioner

ISSUANCE OF AMENDED PATENT TO TRANSFEREE

INSTRUCTIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, November 13, 1925.

FINNEY, First Assistant Secretary:

By decision of April 3, 1925, unreported, the department affirmed your [Commisisoner of the General Land Office] decision of September 24, 1924, rejecting the application of Minnie C. Coleman to make homestead entry for NW. ¼ SE. ¼, sec. 29, T. 2 N., R. 20 W., N. M. M., New Mexico.

The decision was based on evidence to the effect that the tract applied for was in the possession of Harris Miller, claiming as a remote transferee of Mancel H. Thompson, to whom a patent for NE. ¼ SE. ¼, sec. 30, said township, issued July 31, 1903, under a forest lieu selection filed April 17, 1901.

On September 15, 1922, said Miller applied to so amend the patent as to make the description read NW. ¼ SE. ¼, said sec. 29. Your office has reached the conclusion that the application to amend is in conformity with the regulations, but instructions have been informally requested as to whom the amended or supplemental patent should issue, it being stated that, under the long-established practice of your office, the patent would issue to Mancel H. Thompson. The cases of Hawley v. Diller (178 U. S. 476) and Nicholas Van Gass (44 L. D. 139) are cited in support of your practice.

Prior to the amendment of section 2372, Revised Statutes, by the act of February 24, 1909 (35 Stat. 645), there was no law under which an application by the transferee of a patented selection could be entertained. As amended by the act cited, said section provides—

> In all cases where an entry, selection, or location has been or shall hereafter be made of a tract of land not intended to be entered, the entryman, selector, or locator, or, in case of his death, his legal representatives, or when the claim is by law transferable, his or their transferees, may, in any case coming within the provisions of this section, file his or their affidavit, with such additional evidence as can be procured showing the mistake as to the numbers of the tract intended to be entered, * * * with the register and receiver of the land district in which such tract of land is situate, who should transmit the evidence * * * to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, who, if he be entirely satisfied that the mistake has been made * * * is authorized to change the entry and transfer the payment from the tract erroneously entered to that intended to be entered. * * *

Under the regulations, an application for amendment filed by the transferee of a patented entry, selection, or location must be supported by an abstract of title, showing present ownership by the applicant of the tract sought to be eliminated from the patent, and a duly recorded conveyance to the United States of the tract erroneously entered and patented. Miller has filed such abstract and reconveyance, and unless a patent for the tract to which the selection is amended is issued to him, he will not thereby acquire a merchantable title, even though the patent recites the reason for its issuance, but he will be put to the trouble and expense of applying to the local courts to quiet his title.

By dealing with Miller as the transferee of the patented tract, and accepting his conveyance thereof, you became bound to issue to him a patent for the tract which he has shown he thought he purchased and which the selector thought was the land he was occupying and had transferred to Miller's remote transferor.

I find nothing in the cases of Hawley v. Diller and Nicholas Van Gass, supra, which has any bearing upon the question presented in this case.

[Reported, 51 L. D. 335]

ISSUANCE OF PATENT ON AMENDED ENTRY TO TRANSFEREE

Instructions

Department of the Interior,
Washington, January 22, 1926.

Finney, First Assistant Secretary:

Reference is made to your [Commissioner of the General Land Office] letter of January 13, 1926, asking instructions in regard to the issuance of patent on an amended homestead entry where the land was transferred after issuance of final certificate, and where no patent has issued.

The entry referred to was made by Everett Chambers for land described as lots 1 and 2, E. ½ NW. ¼ and NE. ¼, sec. 30, T. 17 S., R. 54 W., 6th P. M., Colorado. Final certificate issued May 15, 1919, but no patent has issued. The land has been transferred to Oris L. Balsiger.

A resurvey of this township shows error in the description of the tracts held under this entry, and the proper description is given by the surveyor as lots 3 and 4, E. ½ SW. ¼ and SE. ¼, sec. 30, said township, which calls for lands one-half mile south of that given in the entry. Mr. Chambers requested amendment in accordance with the new survey.

The question presented is whether it would be proper in issuing patent on this entry when amended, to issue same in the name of the transferee, or whether it should issue in the name of the entryman.

In the case of Harris Miller, decided November 13, 1925 (51 L. D. 281), which involved amendment of a patented entry to embrace lands of a different survey description from that given in the entry as patented, the department held that the new patent should issue in the name of the transferee. The reason for that ruling was that the transferee would not have a merchantable title for the land under the new description unless patent issued to him, and would be put to the trouble and expense of applying to the courts to quiet his title. It seems that the same reasoning would apply in the instant case and that the rule should be the same even though patent has not been heretofore issued in his case.

The land was subject to transfer after issuance of the final certificate, and the description proposed for the patent is for lands which do not satisfy the description contained in the transfer. In case the evidence of title in the transferee be sufficient to justify his recognition for amendment of the entry at his request, it is deemed proper to issue the patent in his name as transferee. By designating him as transferee of the original entryman, the identity of the basic claim will be indicated. The decision in the Harris Miller case, supra, should be applied in the same manner.

AMERICAN ANTIQUITIES

UNIFORM RULES AND REGULATIONS PRESCRIBED BY THE SECRETARIES OF THE INTERIOR, AGRICULTURE, AND WAR TO CARRY OUT THE PROVISIONS OF THE ACT FOR THE PRESERVATION OF AMERICAN ANTIQUITIES, APPROVED JUNE 8, 1906 (34 STAT. L. 225)

INSTRUCTIONS, DECEMBER 28, 1906.

1. Jurisdiction over ruins, archæological sites, historic and prehistoric monuments and structures, objects of antiquity, historic landmarks, and other objects of historic or scientific interest, shall be exercised under the act by the respective Departments as follows:

By the Secretary of Agriculture over lands within the exterior limits of forest reserves, by the Secretary of War over lands within the exterior limits of military reservations, by the Secretary of the Interior over all other lands owned or controlled by the Government of the United States, provided the Secretaries of War and Agriculture may by agreement cooperate with the Secretary of the Interior in the supervision of such monuments and objects covered by the act of June 8, 1906, as may be located on lands near or adjacent to forest reserves and military reservations, respectively.

2. No permit for the removal of any ancient monument or structure which can be permanently preserved under the control of the United States in situ, and remain an object of interest, shall be granted.

3. Permits for the examination of ruins, the excavation of archæological sites, and the gathering of objects of antiquity will be granted, by the respective Secretaries having jurisdiction, to reputable museums, universities, colleges, or other recognized scientific or educational institutions, or to their duly authorized agents.

4. No exclusive permits shall be granted for a larger area than the applicant can reasonably be expected to explore fully and systematically within the time limit named in the permit.

5. Each application for a permit should be filed with the Secretary having jurisdiction, and must be accompanied by a definite outline of the proposed work, indicating the name of the institution making the request, the date proposed for beginning the field work, the length of time proposed to be devoted to it, and the person who will have immediate charge of the work. The application must also contain an exact statement of the character of the work, whether examination, excavation, or gathering, and the public museum in which the collections made under the permit are to be permanently preserved. The application must be accompanied by a sketch plan or description of the particular site or area to be examined, excavated, or searched, so definite that it can be located on the map with reasonable accuracy.

6. No permit will be granted for a period of more than three years, but if the work has been diligently prosecuted under the permit, the time may be extended for proper cause upon application.

7. Failure to begin work under a permit within six months after it is granted, or failure to diligently prosecute such work after it has been begun, shall make the permit void without any order or proceeding by the Secretary having jurisdiction.

8. Applications for permits shall be referred to the Smithsonian Institution for recommendation.

9. Every permit shall be in writing and copies shall be transmitted to the Smithsonian Institution and the field officer in charge of the land involved. The permittee will be furnished with a copy of these rules and regulations.

10. At the close of each season's field work the permittee shall report in duplicate to the Smithsonian Institution, in such form as its secretary may prescribe, and shall prepare in duplicate a catalogue of the collections and of the photographs made during the season, indicating therein such material, if any, as may be available for exchange.

11. Institutions and persons receiving permits for excavation shall, after the completion of the work, restore the lands upon which they have worked to their customary condition, to the satisfaction of the field officer in charge.

12. All permits shall be terminable at the discretion of the Secretary having jurisdiction.

13. The field officer in charge of land owned or controlled by the Government of the United States shall, from time to time, inquire and report as to the existence, on or near such lands, of ruins and archæological sites, historic or prehistoric ruins or monuments, objects of antiquity, historic landmarks, historic and prehistoric structures, and other objects of historic or scientific interest.

14. The field officer in charge may at all times examine the permit of any person or institution claiming privileges granted in accordance with the act and these rules and regulations, and may fully examine all work done under such permit.

15. All persons duly authorized by the Secretaries of Agriculture, War, and Interior may apprehend or cause to be arrested, as provided in the act of February 6, 1905 (33 Stat. L. 700), any person or persons who appropriate, excavate, injure, or destroy any historic or prehistoric ruin or monument, or any object of antiquity on lands under the supervision of the Secretaries of Agriculture, War, and Interior, respectively.

16. Any object of antiquity taken, or collection made, on lands owned or controlled by the United States, without a permit, as prescribed by the act and these rules and regulations, or there taken or made, contrary to the terms of the permit, or contrary to the act and these rules and regulations, may be seized wherever found and at any time, by the proper field officer or by any person duly authorized by the Secretary having jurisdiction, and disposed of as the Secretary shall determine, by deposit in the proper national depository or otherwise.

17. Every collection made under the authority of the act and of these rules and regulations shall be preserved in the public museum designated in the permit and shall be accessible to the public. No such collection shall be removed from such public museum without the written authority of the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, and then only to another public museum, where it shall be accessible to the public; and when any public museum, which is a depository of any collection made under the provisions of the act and these rules and regulations, shall cease to exist, every such collection in such public museum shall thereupon revert to the national collections and be placed in the proper national depository.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 28, 1906.

The foregoing rules and regulations are hereby approved in triplicate and, under authority conferred by law on the Secretaries of the Interior, Agriculture, and War, are hereby made and established, to take effect immediately.

JURISDICTION OF INTERIOR DEPARTMENT OVER RUINS, ARCHAEOLOGICAL SITES, ETC.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, February 1, 1928.

Certain questions discussed in a letter dated January 14, 1928, from Jesse L. Nusbaum, department archæologist, concerning jurisdiction of this department over ruins, archæological sites, and objects covered by the act of June 8, 1906 (34 Stat. 225), have been referred to me for consideration.

Mr. Nusbaum states that an expedition in charge of Mr. Paul Martin, State archæologist, is to be sent out this coming summer by the State Historical Society of Colorado, to make explorations and gather such objects of antiquity as may be located on sec. 2, T. 38 N., R. 19 W., and sec. 35, T. 39 N., R. 19 W., in the Ruin Canyon country near Spargo, Colo., and in that connection the following questions are propounded:

1. The particular ground on which Mr. Martin desires to begin work has quite recently been filed on, so he understands, by a homesteader and he wishes to know if, under the law, this filing is subject to the reserved rights of the department to issue archæological permits thereon, or if they deal both with the Government and the homesteader, or the homesteader alone.

2. Does "under the jurisdiction of the departments (Interior, Agriculture, and War)" of section 3 of the act for the preservation of American antiquities imply that the Secretaries of the three departments can issue archæological permits covering examinations and investigations on unperfected entries or on lands patented since the act was passed in 1906?

3. Would it be possible under the law to retain within the various departments, permanent jurisdiction over the archæological remains included in present unperfected claims and future entries?

4. If a permit to prospect for oil and gas is outstanding on these designated sections, will that in any way prevent the issuance of an archæological permit thereon, or in any way hamper the work that the State Historical Society hopes to undertake on these sites?

The act of June 8, 1906, supra, entitled "An act for the preservation of American antiquities" authorizes the President to declare by public proclamation such objects situated on lands owned or controlled by the Government to be national monuments, and to reserve parcels of land for their protection and management. The act provides in its first section that it shall be a criminal offense to appropriate, excavate, injure, or destroy any historic or prehistoric ruin or monument situated on lands owned or controlled by the United States " without the permission of the secretary of the department of the Government having jurisdiction over the lands on which such antiquities are situated."

Section 3 provides for the issuing of permits for the examination of ruins, the excavation of archæological sites, et cetera, by the Secretaries of the Interior, Agriculture, and War, " upon the lands under their respective jurisdiction." Section 4 authorizes the Secretaries of the respective departments to make uniform rules and regulations for carrying out the provisions of the act. In accordance with the authority granted, uniform rules and regulations were prescribed by the three Secretaries under date of December 28, 1906, jurisdiction thereunder to be exercised by the Secretary of Agriculture over lands within the exterior limits of National Forests, by the Secretary of War over lands within the exterior limits of military reservations, by the Secretary of the Interior over all other lands owned or controlled by the Government of the United States, and provided for cooperative action in appropriate cases.

The statute applies to lands owned or controlled by the United States. Obviously, the phrase " lands owned or controlled by the United States " includes lands the title to which is in process of acquisition by entrymen. The jurisdiction of the Land Department over public lands continues so long as the legal title remains in the United States. A homestead entry, although it gives the party entering certain rights of occupation, does not so convey title or divest the United States of property in it as to change its character as lands of the United States. From the time of the entry the homesteader has the right of possession as against trespassers, and all others except the United States. He may treat the lands as his own, so far, and so far only, as is necessary to carry out the purposes of the act. He has an inchoate title, subject to be defeated only by failure on his part to comply with the requirements of the homestead law. As between the United States and the settler the land is to be deemed the property of the former, so far as it is necessary to protect it from waste. The law contemplates the possibility of his abandoning it, and he may not in the meantime despoil it, or perform any act upon it, which impairs its value. United States v. Williams et al. (18 Fed. 475); United States v. Taylor (35 Fed. 484); Petty v. Desmond (129 Fed. 1); Shiver v. United States (159 U. S. 491); United States v. Buchanan (232 U. S. 72); Union Naval Stores Company v. United States (240 U. S. 284).

Clearly, therefore, under the law, ruins and other objects within the purview of the act of 1906, supra, which may be located on lands occupied by a homesteader, belong to the United States—the owner of the fee—at least until the entryman has earned the equitable title to the land, and are subject to the right of the Government to issue permits or licenses for the examination, excavation, and recovery thereof, as contemplated by the act of 1906, supra. By the legislation referred to Congress reserved the right to say who shall go upon its lands to search for such objects, and to impose conditions on their disposition, and, in my opinion, the duly authorized agents of the Government can go upon lands included in the unperfected claim of a homesteader for the purpose of exploring and excavating the lands, without violation or infraction of the homesteader's right of possession, which is held subject to the will of Congress. Congress, if it saw fit, could dispose of the lands to other parties, and if Congress has the power of disposition, it must follow that it could authorize others to go upon the land for the purpose of making investigations, explorations, and the gathering of objects of scientific interest.

This sufficiently answers the first question and that part of the second question pertaining to examinations and investigations on unperfected entries.

Permits may not be issued, however, for excavations and investigations on patented lands. As stated above, the statute applies to lands owned or controlled by the United States. It is fundamental that the jurisdiction of the Land Department terminates with the issuance of patent. The act of June 8, 1906, supra, authorized no reservation or exception in patents for lands embracing ruins or archaeological sites. Only such exceptions can be included in patents to public lands as are specifically prescribed by existing law, and the inclusion of any others therein would be wholly without effect. Burke v. Southern Pacific Railroad Company (234 U. S. 669). It follows that an entryman of public lands embracing ruins and archaeological sites, upon showing compliance with statutory conditions, is entitled to an unrestricted patent.

This answers that branch of question 2 concerning jurisdiction over patented entries, and also covers question 3.

In my opinion, the fact that lands desired to be explored are embraced in an outstanding oil and gas prospecting permit under the act of February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. 437), would not prevent the granting of a permit for examinations and explorations under the act of June 8, 1906, supra. The holder of a permit under section 13 of the act aforesaid has merely an exclusive right to prospect for oil and gas within the area covered by his permit, and to use and occupy so much of the surface as may be necessary to his operations. The department has determined that it has authority to grant permits for concurrent operations for different minerals, deposits, or materials which may occur on or in the lands. See paragraph 3, Oil and Gas Regulations of March 11, 1920 (47 L. D. 437; 50 L. D. 276; ibid. 640; 51 L. D. 180; ibid. 623).

There would seem to be no reason, therefore, why the Government should not have permittees under the acts of 1906 and 1920 on the same land at the same time.

I believe the foregoing fully covers the questions submitted by Mr. Nusbaum.

Circular No. 825

INSTRUCTIONS RELATIVE TO THE DISPOSAL OF CERTAIN LANDS IN COCONINO COUNTY, ARIZ., TO THE OCCUPANTS THEREOF

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, May 13, 1922.

Register and Receiver,
Phoenix, Ariz.

Sir: By Executive Order No. 1786, approved June 11, 1913, all of the lands in T. 41 N., R. 2 W., G. and S. R. M., were temporarily withdrawn from settlement, location, sale, or entry. This withdrawal was under the act of June 25, 1910 (36 Stat. 847), and was for the purpose of reclassifying said lands pending the enactment of legislation governing the disposition thereof. The act of July 28, 1914 (38 Stat. 558), authorized and directed the survey and platting of the occupied and improved lands in W. ½ SW. ¼ sec. 16, all secs. 17, 19, 20, 21, 28, 29, and 30, said township and range, same being adjacent to the town site of Fredonia.

Executive Order No. 2979, approved October 22, 1918, restored to settlement, location, sale, and entry all that portion of said township outside of the town-site limits, said restoration including secs. 1 to 15, inclusive, the E. ½; NW. ¼; and the E. ½ SW. ¼ sec. 16, all sec. 18, secs. 22 to 27, inclusive, and secs. 31 to 36, inclusive. Regulations governing this restoration were approved March 7, 1919.

The act approved March 20, 1922 (42 Stat. 467), provided:

> That section 3 of the act entitled "An act authorizing the survey and sale of certain lands in Coconino County, Arizona, to the occupants thereof," approved July 28, 1914 (Thirty-eighth Statutes at Large, page 558), is amended to read as follows:
> Sec. 3. That any person, or his successors in interest, who prior to January 1, 1914, were in the actual occupancy of and improving one or more of said tracts for agricultural purposes, not exceeding in all eighty acres, and have maintained the same in good faith for said purposes, upon the filing of an application to enter the same within six months from the filing of the plat of said survey in the local land office, shall be entitled to a patent for such tract of tracts upon paying the sum of $1.25 per acre therefor. All such tracts not covered by valid applications at the expiration of said six months shall thereafter be subject to cash entry upon payment of $1.25 per acre.

This amendment made no change in section 3 of the original act except to extend the maximum amount of land that may be included in one application from 20 to 80 acres.

A special survey of the agricultural tracts, reservoir site, and cemetery reserve has been made, and same was approved April 22, 1921.

Copies of same are furnished your office, to be formally filed on July 1, 1922, and from this day will run the 6-months' period for filing applications under section 3, as amended. Copies of said approved plat and of these regulations are to be sent by your office to all the occupants of said tracts as shown by the field notes of survey, and to any other parties shown by the records of your office to be entitled thereto, and also to all proof-taking officers in Coconino County and to all United States commissioners in the vicinity thereof.

All persons desiring to assert a claim under the provisions of section 3, as amended, of the act of July 28, 1914, must, within six months from July 1, 1922, when the plat of said survey is officially filed in your office, file their applications for such lot or lots, under oath, correctly describing same by tract numbers, and setting forth fully all the facts as to occupancy and improvements and any and all other facts that may be material in determining the rights of the parties to said tracts.

Applicants to purchase said lots must show themselves qualified so to do as to age and citizenship, or that he has declared his intention to become a citizen, and furnish a nonmineral affidavit.

Upon receipt of such application, you will assign current serial number thereto and in the event that the applicant by himself or through his predecessors in interest, shows actual occupancy and improvements commencing prior to July 1, 1914, and also shows to the satisfaction of your office that he has maintained the same in good faith, for the purpose of securing title thereto, you will issue notice of publication.

Should it appear that any applicant is claiming in whole or in part, a tract or tracts shown by the field notes and survey to be occupied by a person or persons other than applicant, you are directed not to allow applicant to make final proof and payment except on special written notice, by registered mail to all others who appear by said field notes and plat as claimants to the same tract. Said special written notice must be issued contemporaneously with the issuance of the notice for publication.

Notice of such application to purchase and intention to obtain title shall be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the vicinity of said lands, at the expense of the applicant, for a period of four weeks, according to the usual form and a copy thereof will be posted in your office. Said notice will advise all persons claiming adversely thereto that they should file any objections or protests against the allowance of an application within the period of publication, otherwise the application may be allowed. At the expiration of the period of publication, proper proof thereof must be filed in your office. Any objections or protests must be under oath, corroborated, and a copy thereof served upon the applicant. After proof of publication, if no adverse claims are filed, upon submission of satisfactory proof, and on receipt of payment for said lands at the rate of $1.25 per acre, a cash certificate may then be issued.

Any of said lots remaining undisposed of at the expiration of six months from the date of filing of the plat of survey in your office, will be subject to cash entry by any qualified applicant upon payment of $1.25 per acre.

Acknowledge receipt of these regulations, and give them all the publicity possible without expense to the Government by furnishing copies thereof for publication as an item of news to the various newspapers in the vicinity of said lands. You will also post a copy in your office and transmit copies to the postmasters nearest said lands for posting in their offices.

CIRCULAR NO. 864

LANDS ERRONEOUSLY MEANDERED AND SHOWN ON PLATS AS WATER-COVERED AREAS—PREFERENCE RIGHT TO PURCHASE—ACT OF SEPTEMBER 21, 1922

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, November 18, 1922.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices, Arkansas.

GENTLEMEN: The following regulations are for the guidance of your office, the chief of field division, and the public in matters affected by the act of Congress approved September 21, 1922 (42 Stat. 992), entitled "An act granting to certain claimants the preference right to purchase unappropriated public lands in the State of Arkansas," a copy of which is hereto appended:

1. Applications to purchase under this act must be sworn to and may be executed before any officer having a seal and authorized to administer oaths in the county or land district in which the lands are located, and must be filed with the register and receiver of the local land office in that district within 90 days from the date of the passage of this act, if the lands have been surveyed and plats filed in the local land office, otherwise within 90 days from the filing of such plat. The applicant must show that he is either a native-born or naturalized citizen of the United States, and, if naturalized, file record evidence thereof; must describe the land which he desires to purchase, together with the land claimed as the basis of his preference right to the lands applied for if he applies as a riparian owner, or if claiming otherwise, under what color of title his claim is based, and that the applied for lands are not lawfully appropriated by a qualified settler or entryman under the public land laws, nor in the legal possession of any adverse applicant; the kind, character, and value of the improvements on the land covered by the application; when they were placed thereon; the extent of the cultivation had, if any, and how long continued. This application must be supported by the affidavits of two persons having personal knowledge of the facts alleged in the application. Upon receipt of such application the local officers will assign current serial number thereto.

2.[1] If all the land applied for is surveyed and is vacant, not withdrawn, or otherwise reserved from such disposition, the local officers, after noting the application on their records, will suspend action thereon and will promptly forward same to the chief of field division for investigation and appraisement of the land in accordance with the provisions of the act. If for unsurveyed land, the local officers will note the application and suspend same, transmitting it to the Commissioner of the General Land Office for consideration as to whether or not the lands applied for are in fact public lands and of the class contemplated by the act under which title is sought. During such suspension the lands described in the application shall not be disposed of.

[1] Amended by Circular No. 872, p. 305.

3. When an application is received by the chief of field division, he will assign same to a field examiner for investigation and appraisement of the land in accordance with the provisions of the act. The examiner will make a written report thereon as to the development or improvement for agricultural purposes and the evidence obtained as to whether or not the lands are of the class contemplated by the act, recommending the allowance or rejection of the application. If such report is favorable and the chief of field division is of the opinion that the application should be allowed, he will return it to the register and receiver with the appraisement, report, and recommendation to that effect, whereupon the register and receiver will pass upon it in regular order in the light of the report, which is to be attached to the application as a part of the record and transmit same to the General Land Office with their recommendations. If, however, the chief of field division is of the opinion that the entry should not be allowed, he will have a full report prepared and transmit the entire record to the General Land Office for consideration and action, advising the register and receiver thereof. If the report justifies such action, this office will direct proceedings against the application under the circular of February 26, 1916, under which the claimant would have the right to apply for a hearing to determine whether or not he is entitled to purchase the land applied for.

4. If upon consideration of the application in the General Land Office, with report and appraisement, it shall be determined that the applicant is entitled to purchase the lands applied for, the local officers will be authorized to notify the applicant at once by registered mail that he must within thirty days from service of notice deposit with the receiver the appraised price, or thereafter, and without further notice, forfeit all rights under his application.

5. Upon payment of the appraised price of the land the local officers will issue notice of publication. Such notice shall be published at the expense of the applicant in a newspaper of general circulation designated by the register in the vicinity of the lands once a week for five consecutive weeks (or thirty consecutive days, if in a daily paper) immediately prior to the date of sale, but a sufficient time should elapse between the date of last publication and date of sale to enable the affidavit of the publisher to be filed in the local office.[2] The notice will advise all persons claiming adversely to the applicant that they should file any objections or protests against the allowance of the application within the period of publication, otherwise the application may be allowed. Any objections or protests must be under oath, corroborated, and a copy thereof served upon the applicant. The register and receiver will cause a notice similar to the notice for publication to be posted in the local land office, such notice to remain posted during the entire period of publication. The publisher of the newspaper must file in the local land office prior to the date fixed by the sale evidence that publication has been had for the required period, which evidence must consist of the affidavit of the publisher, accompanied by a copy of the notice published.*

6. Upon submission of satisfactory proof, the register and receiver will, if no protest or contest is pending, allow a final entry and issue final certificate, transmitting same to the General Land Office with their regular monthly returns.

CIRCULAR NO. 1190

INSTRUCTIONS UNDER THE ARKANSAS DRAINAGE LAWS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, June 5, 1929.

REGISTER, Little Rock, Ark.

SIR: Your attention is directed to the subjoined act approved February 28, 1929 (45 Stat. 1410), affecting lands within the St. Francis Levee district, Arkansas.

Sections 1, 2, and 3 of the act impose no duties on this department nor do they require any change in the matter of entry, proof, payment, or patent. The proviso to section 1 excludes Government land, entered or unentered, from levy, assessment, or tax until the date an entryman or purchaser thereof has earned the right to a patent. If and when equitable title to any particular tract shall have passed from the Government of the United States to an entryman or purchaser, the levy, special assessment, or tax to which consent was given will become effective.

Section 4, however, provides for the purchase after foreclosure by any drainage district in Tps. 14, 15, 16 N., R. 9 E., and Tps. 15, 16 N., R. 10 E., 5th P. M., in Mississippi County, and in Tps. 11 and 12 N., R. 6 E., in Poinsett County, Ark., and does not apply to the balance of the lands in the St. Francis Levee district. It is in effect an amendment of the act of January 17, 1920 (41 Stat. 392), which expressly prohibited the issuance of patent to a drainage district for lands bid in by it.

The following instructions are issued under the act of January 17, 1920, as amended by section 4 of the act of February 28, 1929.

1. All unentered, unreserved public lands in the above-described townships in the State of Arkansas which are subject to entry, and entered lands for which no final certificates have issued, are by said acts made subject to the State drainage laws to the same extent and in the same manner except as hereinafter noted in which lands of like character held in private ownership are or may be subject to said laws.

2. Certified lists showing the amount of the charges assessed against each smallest legal subdivision are required by the act to be furnished by the county officers to the register of the district land office in which the lands are located as soon as the charges would become a lien on the land if in private ownership. It is the duty of the district land officer to compare said lists with the records of his office, and if any charges are assessed against land which is not subject to the State drainage laws, he will promptly notify the county auditor thereof, and advise him that the lands are not subject to sale thereunder.

3. The charges against the Government lands subject thereto may, under section 3 of the act of January 17, 1920, be enforced by a sale of the lands by the State in the same manner and under the same proceedings as such charges would be enforced against lands held in private ownership.

Said section 3 makes it the duty of the State officials to certify officially to your office a statement showing the name of the purchaser of each tract, including land bid in for a drainage district, the price at which each legal subdivision was sold, the amount assessed against it, the penalties and interest, the cost of the sale, and the amount of excess, if any, over and above all lawful assessment charges and the cost of sale. You will allow no entries under this act until this requirement has been complied with.

When such statement has been filed in your office, you will at once make proper notes thereof on the records of your office and furnish this office a copy of such statement.

4. Section 5 of the act of January 17, 1920, provides that purchasers of unentered lands at such sales by the State have 90 days from the date of sale and purchasers of entered but unpatented lands have 90 days from the expiration of the period of redemption provided for in the drainage laws under which the lands were sold, no redemption having been made within which to pay to the receiver of the proper district land office $5 per acre, together with the usual fees and commissions both original and final, charged in entry of lands under the homestead laws, and make entry.

5. Purchasers, (other than an improvement or drainage district), of land from the Government under the act of 1920 are required to have the qualifications of a homestead entryman which must be shown by his affidavit. Any purchaser hereunder shall exhaust his homestead right to the extent of the amount of lands purchased by him, and not more than 160 acres can be sold to any one purchaser. The tracts must be entered by legal subdivisions, but they need not be contiguous or in one body.

6. Unless the purchaser of unentered lands, at the sale by the State files application for a patent and pays the required amounts, within the time specified in section 5 of said act, any other qualified person may make application for a patent and file an affidavit of qualifications and pay to the register the unpaid fees, commissions, and purchase price and in addition an amount equal to the drainage charges, penalties, interest, and costs for which the land was sold, and if the lands were bid in for the drainage district, an additional amount equal to 6 per cent per annum on the sum for which the lands were sold from the date of sale and shall become subrogated to the rights of such purchaser and shall be entitled to receive a patent for not more than 160 acres of said lands.

7. When payment is made to effect subrogation as provided in paragraph 6 of these regulations and section 6 of the act, the register shall serve notice upon the purchaser at the sale that an application for patent for the lands purchased by him has been filed and that the amount of the drainage charges, penalties, interests, and costs of the sale will be paid to him upon submission of proof of purchase and payment of said sums. The register shall make such payment as soon as said requirement shall have been fulfilled. If the lands were bid in for a drainage or improvement district, the register will make such payments to the proper county officers.

8. Section 5 of the act of January 17, 1920, permits the bidding in of lands for a drainage district. Section 4 of the act of February 28, 1929, provides that in case of the foreclosure of the liens of any improvement or drainage district, and the lands have been purchased by said district, said improvement or drainage district may, upon proof of the sale and purchase and payment of $5 per acre, together with the usual fees and commissions charged entry of lands under the homestead laws, where such payment has not heretofore been made, receive a patent for the land. In case of unentered land, a preference right exists for 90 days from date of sale. In case of entered lands, the preference-right period is for 90 days from the expiration of the period of redemption. The drainage or improvement district may exercise the right of purchase after the period mentioned in the absence of an adverse claim. No limitation is placed on the amount of land an improvement or drainage district may enter under the act.

9. Proof of the foreclosure of the land and of the failure of the entryman to redeem the lands in accordance with State statutes relating to the taxation of lands in private ownership in Arkansas must be furnished under the certificate and seal of the officer of the State declaring the foreclosure. Said certificate should be presented to the register of your office, whereupon, should no objection appear, you will cancel the entry upon the records of your office, as of the date of the receipt of said certificate, note such cancellation with proper reference to the entry on the certificate, and forward the certificate to this office. For 90 days after the expiration of the period of redemption provided by the Arkansas laws the purchaser at the sale, including the improvement district, if bid in by the district, may furnish the certificate mentioned, make entry of the lands, and receive patent in his or its own name. Should such purchaser or district fail to make entry within the 90-day period mentioned, any other person, upon furnishing said certificate, may secure the cancellation of the entry and make entry.

Rules 6 and 7 hereof should be observed in allowing purchases of entered lands.

10. If a homestead entry, after the land covered thereby has been sold for delinquent taxes, should be subsequently relinquished or canceled prior to the expiration of the period of redemption, the purchaser at the tax sale, if the taxes have not been redeemed, will have the preference right for 30 days, after due notice of the cancellation or relinquishment of the entry, to file an application to purchase the land without having to wait until the expiration of the period of redemption. Such right is given to the actual purchaser only if the land has not been redeemed. This right to purchase is not given to the homestead entryman who allowed the land to be sold for taxes and then relinquished the same.

11. In the sale of lands by the State, should there be paid any excess over and above the drainage charges due, the excess amount shall be paid to the register for deposit in accordance with sections 3 and 4 of the act of 1920, before patent is issued.

12. To avoid confusion, misunderstanding, and conflict of rights it is hereby provided that no right of redemption, referred to in section 5 of the act, can be acquired by settlement on or application for unentered lands after the hour and date fixed for their sale. You will suspend all applications for such lands advertised for sale under said act received on or subsequent to the date of sale until after the statement of sale provided in section 4 of the act is received, unless the applicant shall show by affidavit, duly corroborated, that he settled on the land in good faith prior to the beginning of the sale, for the purpose of securing a home and not for the purpose of defeating the rights of a purchaser at the sale. If the statement referred to shows that the land was actually sold at the sale in question, the application in question will remain suspended until after the expiration of 90 days from the date of sale to give the purchaser an opportunity to make entry for the land. Should the purchaser not make entry the homestead application may then be allowed. If the statement does not show a sale of the land, or it was bid in by the drainage district, the homestead application may be allowed, and the homestead entryman will be required to comply with the homestead laws in the matter of residence, improvements, and cultivation.

13. Payment of the drainage charges will not be required, and you will formally notify each applicant making a 3-year homestead entry where the land has been sold for delinquent drainage charges and evidence of redemption has not been furnished, the amount of taxes assessed against said land, and of any tax certificates outstanding thereon, and you will file with the application a carbon copy of such letter.

14. You will, however, reject all applications for cash entries under the acts of January 17, 1920, and February 28, 1929, where evidence of redemption is required if the name is not filed in connection therewith.

15. After the expiration of 90 days from the date of sale by the State for drainage charges the unentered lands will be subject to ordinary homestead entry, in which case residence, improvements, and cultivation are required, or to entry under the act of January 17, 1920, which does not require such compliance with the homestead law. The drainage charges and expenses incident to sale will become a lien on the land which can be enforced by the State after patent issues.

16. In case payment is made in purchases under the acts of 1920 and 1929, you will issue the usual cash certificates and receipts and forward the papers to this office, together with evidence showing the qualifications of the purchaser. Should no objection appear patent will issue in due course of business.

17. You will note on the application and receipt in all entries hereafter made for lands in the townships mentioned herein, the following: "Subject to act of January 17, 1920."

Very respectfully,

C. C. MOORE, Commissioner.

Approved June 5, 1929.

and then relinquished the same.

11. In the sale of lands for taxes, should there be paid any excess over and above the drainage charges [illegible] shall be paid [illegible] in accordance with sections 3 and 4 of the act of 1920, before patent is issued.

12. To avoid confusion, misunderstanding, and conflict of right it is hereby provided that no right of redemption, referred to in section 5 of the act, can be acquired by settlement on or application for unentered lands after the hour and date fixed for their sale. You will suspend all applications for such lands advertised for sale under said act received on or subsequent to the date of sale until after the statement of sale provided in section 7 of the act is received, unless the applicant shall show by affidavit duly corroborated, that he settled on the land in good faith prior to the beginning of the sale, for the purpose of securing a home and not for the purpose of defeating the rights of a purchaser at the sale. If the statement referred to shows that the land was actually sold at the sale in question, the application in question will remain suspended until after the expiration of 90 days from the date of sale to give the purchaser an opportunity to make entry for the land. Should the purchaser not make entry the homestead application may then be allowed. If the statement does not show a sale of the land, or it was bid in by the drainage district, the homestead application may be allowed, and the homestead entryman will be required to comply with the

That where patents have been already issued on entries which are approved by the Secretary of the Interior, the Commissioner of the General Land Office, upon the canceling of the outstanding patent, is authorized to issue a new patent, on such approval, to the person who made the entry, his heirs or assigns.

The effect of said act is to eliminate the Attorney General from membership on the Board of Equitable Adjudication.

All rules which have heretofore been adopted governing the submission of cases to said board are hereby revoked, and the jurisdiction of the board is defined as covering the following:

All classes of entries in connection with which the law has been substantially complied with and legal notice given, but the necessary citizenship status not acquired, sufficient proof not submitted, or full compliance with law not effected within the period authorized by law, or where the final proof testimony, or affidavits of the entryman or claimant were executed before an officer duly authorized to administer oaths but outside the county or land district in which the land is situated, and special cases deemed proper by the Commissioner of the General Land Office for submission to the board, where the error or informality is satisfactorily explained as being the result of ignorance, mistake, or some obstacle over which the party had no control, or any other sufficient reason not indicating bad faith, there being no lawful adverse claim.

The form in which claims approved by you as being within the scope of the foregoing may be submitted to the Secretary of the Interior for approval will be the subject of a conference with you at an early date.

E. C. Finney,
First Assistant Secretary.

JURISDICTION OF BOARD OF EQUITABLE ADJUDICATION—SUPPLEMENTAL INSTRUCTIONS

Department of the Interior,
Office of the Secretary,
Washington, September 29, 1927.

The Commissioner of the General Land Office.

Dear Mr. Commissioner: You have been informally requested to be advised whether the final proof on the homestead entry serialized as Las Cruces 022062 can be accepted and submitted to the Board of Equitable Adjudication.

The entry was made on January 13, 1921, by Robert Lee Loftin for the SE. ¼ of sec. 10, T. 3 S., R. 20 W., N. M. M. On August 27, 1925, the widow of entryman filed notice of intention to submit final proof before a United States commissioner at Reserve, N. Mex., on October 14, 1925. Proof of publication was filed, and the notice was duly posted in the local office. The final proof was not submitted until October 28, 1925, and final certificate was withheld at the request of the division inspector, who on August 30, 1927, approved a field report to the effect that the law had been fully complied with and recommending that the final proof be accepted.

The only objection to the acceptance of the final proof is the fact that it was not submitted on October 14, 1925, nor within 10 days thereafter.

In an affidavit, corroborated by a physician's certificate, the widow of entryman states that the delay in the submission of the final proof was due to the fact that she was confined to her bed by illness, and that it was impossible for her to make the trip to Reserve at that time.

Rule 2 of Rules to be Observed in Passing on Final Proof Papers in Preemption and Commuted Homestead Cases, approved February 21, 1887 (5 L. D. 426), provided:

> Where final proof or any part thereof is taken after the day advertised, require new advertisement and new proof, in whole or in part, unless on day advertised due notice had been given of postponement to a day certain by the officer taking the proof, and the proof be taken in accordance with said postponement.

After section 7 of the act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. 855), authorized the submission of final proofs within 10 days following the day advertised, new rules were adopted on July 17, 1889 (9 L. D. 123), rule 2 providing that—

> When final proof or any part thereof has not been taken on the day advertised, or within 10 days thereafter under the exception and as required by rule 1, you will direct new advertisement to be made; and if no protest or objection is then filed, the proof theretofore submitted, if in compliance with the law in other respects, may be accepted.

The rule 2 adopted on July 17, 1889, was continued in force in the rules adopted May 9, 1906 (34 L. D. 601).

The jurisdiction of the Board of Equitable Adjudication was defined on October 17, 1922 (49 L. D. 323), as covering the following:

> All classes of entries in connection with which the law has been substantially complied with and legal notice given, but the necessary citizenship status not acquired, sufficient proof not submitted, or full compliance with law not effected within the period authorized by law, or where the final proof of testimony or affidavits of the entryman or claimant were executed before an officer duly authorized to administer oaths but outside the county or land district in which the land is situated, and special cases deemed proper by the Commissioner of the General Land Office for submission to the board, where the error or informality is satisfactorily explained as being the result of ignorance, mistake, or some obstacle over which the party had no control, or any other sufficient reason not indicating bad faith, there being no lawful adverse claim.

It is the opinion of the Department that the act of March 2, 1889, supra, does not forbid the submission to the Board of Equitable Adjudication of meritorious cases such as the one under consideration. That the law has been fully complied with has been clearly established, and to require the widow of the entryman to go to the expense of publishing a new notice would serve no good purpose.

You will, therefore, direct the issuance of final certificate, and upon its receipt the entry should be submitted to the board as a "special case."

Very truly yours,

E. C. Finney, First Assistant Secretary.

BOUNTY-LAND WARRANTS

[Reported, 41 L. D. 34]

CIRCULAR No. 120[1]

REGULATIONS RESPECTING BOUNTY-LAND WARRANTS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
May 24, 1912.

Registers and Receivers of United States Land Offices:

Warrants for bounty land were and are issued by the Commissioner of Pensions for services in wars or battles prior to March 3, 1855, only. Applications for the issuance thereof should be addressed to that official.

Pursuant to authority conferred by section 2414, Revised Statutes (Appendix B), and other legislation, the following regulations are prescribed to govern the assignment, location, and use of such warrants. All regulations inconsistent herewith are revoked.

You must refuse all warrants presented when the assignments thereof do not accord in every essential particular with the rules herein set forth. When the question of title or genuineness is in doubt you must decline to receive the warrant until the holders thereof have submitted the same to the General Land Office for examination and obtained a favorable decision thereon. This office will render an opinion without charge.

Bounty-land warrants should always be described by number, act, and acreage, and in all instances of use or attempted use the register and receiver must forthwith notify this office thereof by special letter, setting forth a description of the warrant and of the entry by serial number, date, land, and name of the entryman, and also whether the warrant was accepted or refused. If you accept the warrant, you will indorse on the upper left-hand corner of the face of same, a similar description of the entry in red ink.

I. ASSIGNMENTS

1. No assignment of a warrant or power of attorney to sell or locate the same executed prior to the date of the issue thereof can be recognized by this office. (Rev. Stat. sec. 2436.) Assignments must be in writing. Delivery only constitutes no transfer.

2. The assignment and acknowledgment are required to be indorsed as far as practicable upon the warrant. Should it be found necessary to write the entire assignment on a separate paper, which can only occur when prior assignments or acknowledgments have filled entirely the blank space on the warrant, it must be so attached as to show positively that the warrant assigned was in the hands of the party making the transfer. In such cases the signature of the assignor must be affixed in the presence of the officer before whom it is acknowledged, who must certify that at the date of the assignment the warrant was presented by and in possession of the assignor. (See Form No. 5.) The assignments should describe the warrant by number, act, and acreage. Parties should avoid discrepancies in spelling and write their full Christian names and surnames.

[1] See Circular No. 1151, p. 326.

3. The same requirement must be observed in preparing acknowledgments of powers of attorney to sell or locate bounty-land warrants.

4. Blank assignments are void, and will not be recognized by this office. The name of an assignee should be written in the assignment before the warrant is sent to the local or General Land Office. Evidence that such assignee procured the warrant for value under the blank assignment may be required.

5. Each assignment or power of attorney must be attested by two subscribing witnesses. The mark of a witness will not be recognized.

6. A person to whom a warrant is transferred will not be recognized as a legal attesting witness to the assignment, nor as a proper officer to take the acknowledgment thereof.

7. The execution of assignments is required to be acknowledged by the assignor in the presence of a register or receiver of a land office, a judge or clerk of a court of record when authorized to take acknowledgments, a notary public, justice of the peace, a commissioner of deeds, or a United States commissioner, who shall certify to the fact of the acknowledgment and to the identity of the assignor. The official seal of said court, notary public, or commissioner shall be affixed to the certificate. When the acknowledgment is taken before a justice of the peace or other officer without an official seal (except a register or receiver of a land office), it must be accompanied by an additional certificate under seal of proper authority, establishing the official character of such official and the genuineness of his signature. (See Form No. 15.)

Powers of attorney must be acknowledged in like manner.

8. Assignments executed by unmarried females must be accompanied by evidence that they have attained the age of 21 years.

9. Assignments executed by a commissioner, or other designated person acting under a decree of court, must be accompanied by a duly certified copy of such decree, in which all the proceedings should be recited, and from which it must appear that due, proper, and legal notice of the proceedings had been given to all parties in interest. The jurisdiction of the court must appear. Where assignments can not be procured, the Commissioner of the General Land Office will determine the title to a bounty-land warrant according to the principles and usages of law and equity.

10. Where two assignments exist executed by the same party in favor of different individuals, whether the assignment first in time has been completed or not, to make the second assignment available it must be established by evidence satisfactory to the General Land Office, either that no title passed under the first assignment or that all claims thereunder have been transferred to the second assignee, renounced, or abandoned.

11. When the name of a person has been inserted in an assignment of a warrant and erased, there should be filed evidence satisfactory to this office consisting of an affidavit, duly authenticated, of the assignor or party or parties by whom said name was inserted and the erasure made, fully explaining the facts and circumstances of such insertion and erasure, and stating that no transfer or delivery of said warrant was made to the party whose name had been so inserted, and that the ownership or custody of said warrant had not been changed by such insertion, which affidavit shall be accompanied by satisfactory evidence that a copy of the same has been served personally or by registered letter upon the party whose name was inserted. The affidavit should set forth that the further object thereof is to afford such party an opportunity to file a protest in the General Land Office against the use of the warrant. When the name of a bona fide assignee has been erased from a transfer, an assignment from said assignee to the present holder of the warrant will be required to perfect the title to the warrant. Material erasures in powers of attorney must be satisfactorily explained.

12. When the assignment of a warrant is executed in a foreign country, and the acknowledgment taken by an officer authorized by the laws thereof to perform such duties, the attestation of the American consul in such country should be obtained as to the official character and genuineness of the signature of such official. If the official character, etc., of the foreign officer is attested by a consular agent of such foreign Government residing in this country, the latter's official character must be certified by the diplomatic representatives of such Government in the United States. When such assignments are executed in a foreign language duly authenticated translations thereof must be furnished. Secretaries of legation and consular officers of the United States are authorized to take acknowledgments, but they must certify the same under their official seals.

13. When the persons named as warrantees are described in the warrant as minors, their assignments thereof must be accompanied by satisfactory evidence that they had attained their majority at the date of the transfer.

14. When an assignment has been executed and witnessed, but not acknowledged, it may be proved in open court, but a certified transcript of the proceedings must be attached to the warrant. Such unacknowledged assignment may also be established to the satisfaction of the General Land Office by competent evidence. When such assignment has not been properly attested, it must be made anew.

15. When an assignment is made by an Indian residing among whites the prescribed form will be adopted with this addition, that the officer taking the acknowledgment shall certify that the Indian is capable of contracting the amount paid for the warrant, and that he saw the same paid to the Indian.

16. Where it is made by an Indian holding tribal relations, his identity and ability to contract must be certified by the superintendent of Indian affairs or Indian agent, either of his own knowledge or on the testimony of the chiefs certifying to the amount paid for said warrant; that the same was paid in his presence; and that the transaction was fair and regular. In either case, if the amount paid is not a fair consideration, the assignment will be disregarded.

17. Where a warrant for the service of an Indian is issued or descends to minors who no longer retain their tribal relations, it must be located or sold by a guardian duly appointed and authorized by the proper court for that purpose.

Where the minor or minors retain their tribal relations, the agent or superintendent must certify that they are entitled to the warrant under the laws, usages, and customs of the tribe; and when sold or located, that it was done by the guardian or such proper representative as, according to said laws, usages, and customs, was fully authorized.

Where the signature of a superintendent or an Indian agent is required, the genuineness of the signature of that officer must be certified to by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

18. Prior to June 3, 1858, bounty-land warrants were regarded as real estate. Consequently a transfer of a warrant before that date by an administrator must be accompanied by evidence that the same was made in pursuance of an order of court for the sale of the real estate of the decedent.

By the act of June 3, 1858 (11 Stat. 308), bounty-land warrants were declared to be personal chattels, and, as such, assignable by the warrantees, by their widows in certain cases, by their heirs or legatees, or by the legal representatives of the deceased claimant "for the use of the heirs or legatees only."

It follows that the right to assign inures to the assignees of the vendors named above, and to their heirs, legatees, or legal representatives; but these latter are not required to assign "for the use of the heirs or legatees only."

19. Where a warrant has been issued in the name of a deceased soldier, who had applied therefor before his death, the title thereto is declared by section 2444, Revised Statutes (Appendix J), to vest in the widow, if there be one, and if there be no widow, then in the heirs or legatees of the claimant.

20. If the claimant died and left a widow, who also was deceased before the issue of the warrant, then the title thereto vests in the heirs or legatees of the warrantee.

21. To make a warrant issued in the name of a deceased person available it should be accompanied by a certificate under seal from the proper court having probate jurisdiction, showing the fact of the death of the warrantee at a specified date and place, and whether he left a widow, giving her name, if there was one. If there was no widow the said certificate should state whether the warrantee died testate or intestate and gives the names of all his heirs a law, specifying adults and minors. Where the assignee of a warrant is deceased a similar certificate should be exhibited setting forth the fact, time, and place of death, his testacy or intestacy, and, in the event he left no will, the names, ages, and places of residence of all the heirs.

22. If it shall appear from such certificate that the warrantee died before the issue of the warrant and left a widow, the assignment of such widow, her heirs, or legal representatives will be a sufficient conveyance of the warrant.

23. If the warrantee died after the issue of the warrant, or if he died before such issue and left no widow, the title vests in his heirs at law or legatees.

24. If he died intestate his heirs, shown to be such by the required certificate of course, may assign the warrant, the adults for themselves and the minor by their guardians, who shall file with the warrant a certified copy of their letters of guardianship or a certificate from the clerk of the proper court stating that such letters had been issued and that they were in force at the date of the assignment.

Or the administrator of the estate of the deceased warrantee who died intestate may assign the warrant "for the use of the heirs or legatees only," upon filing therewith a certified transcript of the letters of administration or a certificate from the clerk of the proper court that the said letters had been issued and that they were in force at the date of the assignment. (See Form No. 6.) Satisfactory evidence may also be required to show that the administrator was appointed at the instance of the heirs or proper parties in interest and transferred the warrant for their benefit.

25. If the warrantee or his assignee died testate a certified transcript of the will must accompany the warrant. If the will specifically disposes of the warrant the legatee or legatees may assign, if adults, in the usual form; if minors, by their guardians as aforesaid. If the will does not specifically dispose of the warrant the executor of the estate of the warrantee may assign "for the use of the heirs or legatees only," but in that case a certified transcript of the letters testamentary or a certificate from the proper authority that such letters had been granted and were in force at the date of the assignment must accompany the transfer. (See Form No. 8.)

26. An assignment executed by an administrator de bonis non, with the will annexed, of the estate of the deceased warrantee or transferee must be prepared in accordance with the Form No. 8 prescribed to be used by an executor and accompanied by evidence of his authority to act as required in the case of an administrator of the estate of a warrantee who died intestate.

II. LOCATIONS

27. Bounty-land warrants may be located by one or more persons who are citizens of the United States or have declared their intention to become such, and have reached majority or by a corporation capable of acquiring and holding the legal title to real property in the jurisdiction where the lands sought lie upon any vacant, surveyed, nonmineral, nonsaline, unreserved, unappropriated public lands of the United States that may be subject to private entry at the time of such location. As no public lands of the United States, except those in the State of Missouri, have been subject to private entry since the passage of the act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. 854), such warrants can be located in Missouri only, without any residence upon, cultivation, or improvement of the land. (See Appendix C.)

A corporation locating a land warrant should submit a copy of its charter or articles of incorporation, from which it must appear that it is empowered to acquire and hold realty in said jurisdiction.

Said copy should be certified to by some State or county officer who is required by law to have custody of such charter or articles, and who must also certify that the same have not been annulled or in anywise revoked.

A warrant may also be located on behalf of minor heirs or legatees of the soldier upon whose service the same was predicated. Such location must be made in the names of the heirs or legatees and may be made by guardian, who must procure all necessary judicial authority.

28. A warrant can not be located if assigned so as to vest any one person with a greater interest than any other. In other words, each owner of a warrant at the time of its location must have an equal interest therein. This does not apply to locations by persons in their capacity as heirs.

29. A warrant may be located either at a district land office (see rule 27) or through the agency of this office (Rev. Stat. sec. 2437). If located at a district office, it must be accompanied by a tender of the fees to which the register and receiver are entitled, and by a written application to locate containing a description of the tracts desired and signed by the locator or his attorney in fact. If by the latter, his authority to act must be evidenced by a power of attorney, prepared in accordance with Form No. 14, and indorsed, if practicable, upon the warrant. (See rule No. 2.)

Persons presenting warrants for use or location should furnish affidavits that they are the identical persons to whom the same were issued or assigned, and also a relinquishment thereof to the United States, as follows:

I (or we) do hereby relinquish to the United States the within bounty-land warrant in payment (or in part payment, as the case may be) of the (here describe the tract), located in the name of ——— ———, at the land office at ———, this —— day of ———, 19—.

[SEAL.] (Signed) A B.

Witnesses:
C D.
E F.

The following requirements will also govern in locations, but not in homestead, preemption, or other cases mentioned in the act of December 13, 1894 (28 Stat. 594):

(a) The location must be accompanied by the affidavit of the locator or some credible person possessed of the requisite personal knowledge in the premises showing that the land located is not in any manner occupied adversely to the locator, and also a nonsaline affidavit (Form 4–062A).

In jurisdictions where the mineral laws of the United States are applicable you will also require a nonmineral affidavit, Form 4–062. The affidavit of the locator as to the nonmineral and nonsaline character of the land, and that it is not occupied adversely, may be made on Form 4–061a, modified by striking out reference to the act of June 4, 1897.

(b) You will require the locator within 20 days from the filing of his location to begin publication of notice thereof, at his own expense, in a newspaper to be designated by the register as of general circulation in the vicinity of the land and to be the nearest thereto. Such publication must cover a period of 30 days, during which time a similar notice of the location must be posted in the local land office and upon the land included in the location.[a]

(c) The notice must describe the land, give the date of location, and the name and post-office address of the locator, and state that the purpose thereof is to allow all persons claiming the land adversely, or desiring to show it to be [2] mineral or saline in character, an opportunity to file objection to such location with the local officers for the land district in which the land is situated and to establish their interest therein or the [2] mineral or saline character thereof. Such notices may be prepared by you or by the locator and submitted to you for approval, and should be in substance as follows:

——— LAND OFFICE,
——— ———, 19—.

Notice is hereby given that ——— ———, whose post-office address is ———, county of ———, State of ———, filed in this office on ——— ———, 191—, his application to locate a military bounty land warrant issued in favor of ——— ——— under the provisions of the act of Congress approved ——— ——— upon the ——— of sec —, T. —, R. —, ——— meridian. Any and all persons claiming adversely the land described or desiring to object because of the mineral or saline character of the land, or for any other reason, to the disposition to the applicant, should file their affidavits of protest in this office on or before the —— of ———, 19—.

——— ———,
Register.

The date last specified in the above notice should be not later than 30 days after the beginning of publication and posting.

(d) Proof of publication must consist of an affidavit of the publisher or of the foreman of the newspaper in which the notice was published, with a copy of the published notice attached. Proof that the notice remained posted upon the land during the entire period of publication must be made by the locator or some credible persons having personal knowledge of the fact. The register will certify to the posting in your office by a certificate, Form 4–227, modified so as to show the first and last dates of such posting. The first and last dates of such publication and posting must in all cases be given.

30. If the location is made through this office the warrant must be sent to the commissioner with a request that the same be located in a specified land district, and accompanied by a receipt from the register and receiver for the fees to which they may be severally entitled under section 2238, Revised Statutes.

31. Each warrant is required to be distinctly and separately located upon a compact body of land. If the area of the tract claimed should exceed the number of acres called for in the warrant the locator must pay for the excess in cash. If it should fall short he must take the tract in full satisfaction for his warrant. A person can not enter a body of land with a number of warrants without specifying the particular tract or tracts to which each shall be applied and for each warrant there must be a distinct location, certificate and patent.

32. Where the desired tract is subject to entry at a greater minimum than $1.25 per acre the locator, in addition to the surrendered warrant, must pay in cash the difference between the value of such warrant at $1.25 per acre and that of the said land; or present a warrant of such denomination as will at the rate of $1.25 per acre cover the rated price of the tract, and pay the excess in value of the land if any in cash. For example: A tract of 40 acres of land held at $2.50 per acre may be entered by the location of a warrant calling for 40 acres and the payment of $50 in cash; or by locating thereon a warrant for 80 acres, the 40 acres embraced in the entry being received in full satisfaction of the same; or a tract containing 80 acres rated at $2.50 per acre may be entered by the location of two 80-acre warrants, or of one for 160 acres, and so on. It will be required, however, in the entry of a tract held at a greater minimum that $1.25 per acre by the location of two or more warrants, that each warrant shall be located upon a specific legal subdivision thereof, which legal subdivision shall be received in full satisfaction of the warrant surrendered therefor; and that the excess in value of the lands, if any there be, shall in each case be paid in cash. Hence, a tract containing 40 acres or less of double minimum lands can not be entered by the location of two 40-acre warrants.

33. The distinction hitherto maintained between the use of warrants in homestead and preemption entries and cases under the act of December 13, 1894 (28 Stat. 594) is hereby abolished. In homestead and preemption entries, future use of warrants will no longer be regarded as locations as ruled in T. M. Pieper (2 L. D. 673), but they will be treated as cash. In all cases you will issue cash receipts and cash certificates as the bases of patents as now required by rule 42. You will not require the location fees exacted by rule 35 nor will you issue location certificates as the foundation of patents nor will each warrant be required to be applied on separate legal subdivisions as in locations (rule 31). The future practice is outlined in rule 42.

34. When a subdivision is fractional a warrant approximating nearest the number of acres embraced therein may be located thereon, but the fractional excess in area must be paid for with cash and will be conveyed in the same patent with the lands covered by the location of the warrant; a legal subdivision, however, other than those entered by the location of the warrant, will not be regarded as a legitimate fractional excess over such location, but will be required to constitute a separate entry. Thus, a person will not be permitted to make one entry of a quarter section of land by the location of a warrant for 120 acres and a cash payment for the remaining subdivision.

35. Registers and receivers of the local land offices are entitled to the following fees for their services in locating warrants, and the several amounts mentioned must be paid at the time of location.

For a 40-acre warrant, $0.50 each to the register and receiver; total, $1.
For a 60-acre warrant, $0.75 each to the register and receiver; total, $1.50.
For an 80-acre warrant, $1 each to the register and receiver; total, $2.
For a 120-acre warrant, $1.50 each to the register and receiver; total, $3.
For a 160-acre warrant, $2 each to the register and receiver; total, $4.

36. Upon issuance patents will be transmitted to the proper local office for delivery, unless proper application shall have been previously filed in this office. In no case will patents be delivered, either by this or the local office, except upon receipt of the duplicate certificate of location or an affidavit of its loss or destruction. A transferee of the land requesting the delivery of a patent should furnish, in addition to the foregoing, satisfactory evidence that he owns the land as grantee of the locator.

III. MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

37. Upon the loss or destruction of a warrant, or where the lawful owner has been fraudulently deprived thereof, the parties may file in this office an affidavit setting forth a description of the warrant by number, act, and acreage, their interest in the premises, a history of the assignment thereof, a description in detail of its disappearance, and the names of all parties in interest. If the same is deemed sufficient to identify the warrant, and satisfactory in other respects, it will be entered as a caveat against the satisfaction of the warrant. Thereafter the General Land Office will take all reasonable precautions to prevent a use of the warrant by persons not entitled to the benefits thereof. The doctrine governing innocent purchasers of negotiable instruments does not apply to warrants.

38. Neither bounty-land warrants nor the lands entered therewith are liable to be sold or made subject to the payment of any debt or claim incurred by any officer or soldier prior to the issuing of the patent (Rev. Stat. sec. 2436). (Appendix F.)

39. Warrants reissued under Revised Statutes, section 2441, are subject to the same rules respecting assignments that apply to original warrants; but in default of an assignment from the warrantee a decree of title must be obtained from a court of competent jurisdiction and a transcript thereof appended to the reissued warrant. Legal notice must be given to all parties in interest. In proper cases the Commissioner of the General Land Office may accept other satisfactory evidence that the original warrant had been assigned to the claimant.

40. When an entry made by the location of a warrant properly assigned to the locator has been canceled the warrant will be returned to its owner. A transfer of the land by the locator of a warrant is held to carry the warrant. This title reverts to the locator if he indemnifies the grantee for all loss sustained by such cancellation either by the return of the purchase money or by causing the paramount title to the land to be vested in said grantee. Applications for the return of warrants must be accompanied by the duplicate certificate of location or an affidavit showing the inability of the parties to present the same; evidence that the certificate of location and no assignments thereof were recorded in the proper county; and evidence consisting of a certificate from the proper recording officer, or an abstract of title prepared by a reliable abstracter showing all transfers of the land. When the land has been transferred by the locator or those in privity with him there must also be furnished evidence as to whether or not the grantee sustaining the loss occasioned by the cancellation of the location has been indemnified. See R. M. Stitt (33 L. D. 315).

41. When a valid entry is withheld from patent on account of the objectionable character of the warrant located thereon, the parties in interest may procure the issue of patent to the locator by filing in the proper local office an acceptable substitute for said warrant. The substitution must be made in the name of the original locator, and may consist of a warrant, cash, or any kind of scrip legally applicable to the class of lands embraced in the entry. Two warrants can not be substituted for one originally located, nor will any payment be received that would destroy the identity of the entry.

Cash can not be substituted in locations made since March 2, 1889, outside of Missouri, except in preemption and homestead cases and cases under the act of December 13, 1894. Attention is directed to Hussman v Durham (165 U. S. 145). Authority to substitute must be first procured from this office in each case.

IV. USE UNDER HOMESTEAD AND PREEMPTION LAWS AND AS CASH UNDER THE ACT OF DECEMBER 13, 1894 (28 STAT. 594)

42. Warrants for bounty lands may be used in commutation of homestead entries under sections 2277 and 2301, Revised Statutes, and in payment of preemption claims under section 2277, Revised Statutes, and are also receivable as cash at $1.25 per acre under the act of December 13, 1894 (28 Stat. 594), Appendix M, in payment of entries made under the desert land law of March 3, 1877 (19 Stat. 377), and the amendments thereof; the timber culture law of March 3, 1873 (17 Stat. 605), and the amendments thereof; the timber and stone law of June 3, 1878 (20 Stat. 89), and the amendments thereof, or for lands sold at public auction.

The preemption laws and the timber culture act were repealed on March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 1095). Warrants can still be used in these two classes of entry where the rights of the claimant or entryman attached prior to said repeal, unless otherwise provided by the law under which the land may be opened for entry or other legislation.

In all cases it is immaterial whether the land is in Missouri or not and whether offered or unoffered land is embraced. Warrants can not thus be used where it is otherwise provided by law; where the lands are being disposed of by the United States for the benefit of Indians and where (unless otherwise provided) the lands have been purchased from an Indian tribe since December 13, 1884.

The land must be subject to entry under the law under which the original entry is made, and all residence upon and cultivation and improvement of the tracts which may be required by such law and the regulations thereunder must be complied with.

In reference to homestead and preemption entries and the four classes of entries specified in the act of December 13, 1894, you are advised that one or more warrants are receivable in payment, or part payment, for a tract of land entered under either of the laws designated, at the rate of $1.25 per acre upon the expressed value of the warrants or certificates of location. If the amount of money due on such entry exceeds the face value of the warrant at the rate of $1.25 per acre, the entryman must pay for the excess in cash, but if the face value of the warrant exceeds the amount due on such entry, the claimant must take the tract in full satisfaction of said warrant.

In all cases the warrants are regarded as the equivalent of money to the extent of their value at $1.25 per acre, and it is unnecessary to apply the warrant to a specific tract. For instance, a 40-acre warrant will be received as $50 cash in part payment of a timber and stone entry for 160 acres of land. Said warrant need not be applied on any particular 40-acre tract of said 160 acres, and the fees required by rule 35 will not be paid. The local officers will receive from the United States Treasury their commissions upon surrender thereof, as in the case of entries made with cash.

In initiating an entry under desert land laws, payment may be made in money to the amount of 25 cents per acre, as required by previously existing law or, if preferred, warrants may be tendered as payment, and if the face value of such warrant exceeds the amount of money due in initiating said entry, credit may be given for any balance to be applied to final payment when final proof has been made. In this event you will make such notes on your records as will indicate such credit, giving the number, act, and acreage of the warrant used, and in issuing final papers refer thereon to such credit, collecting any balance due in cash, warrants, or scrip. A notation should also be made on the declaration (Form 4–274) as to such location and credit.

Where such warrants are tendered as payment by other than the party to whom issued, you will require evidence that the entryman is the heir or legatee of the party to whom issued, or see that said warrant has been duly assigned in accordance with rules Nos. 1 to 26.

When a warrant is used in preemption and homestead entries and under the act of December 13, 1894, you will issue receipt 4–131 (new form). (Par. 23, Cir. June 10, 1908.[b]) You will issue certificate 4–189 in entries under the homestead and preemption laws, the timber and stone law, and purchases at public sale; Form 4–200 in desert-land entries; and Form 4–217 in timber-culture entries. You will embody in said certificate and receipt a description of the warrant by number, act, acreage, date of issue, and name of the warrantee.

In locations you will issue Forms 4–002 and 4–191.

In all cases the parties must furnish an affidavit of identity and a relinquishment of the warrant to the United States.

On his "Schedule of serial numbers" (Form 4–115) the register will designate the locations and also the entries in connection with which warrants are used in payment. On his "Abstract of certificates of deposits on account of surveys, military bounty land warrants, scrip, and certificates of location" (Form 4–106a) the receiver will make report of bounty-land warrants located or surrendered as cash as indicated on said abstract. The total of the "Abstract of ceritficates of deposits on account of surveys, military bounty land warrants, scrip, and certificates of location" will be reported by the receiver on the debit side of his "Account current" in the space provided therefor. The receiver will report, upon the proper abstract of collections according to the class of entry in connection with which surrendered, the amount of bounty-land warrants surrendered, together with any amount paid in connection therewith in cash, in the same manner as if the entire payment had been made in cash.

All warrants received must be forwarded to this office with the regular monthly returns.

Very respectfully,

Fred Dennett, Commissioner.

Approved May 24, 1912.

Samuel Adams,
First Assistant Secretary.

CIRCULAR No. 1151

GENERAL INFORMATION RELATIVE TO BOUNTY-LAND WARRANTS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, January 8, 1929.

1. Warrants for bounty lands were and are issued by the Commissioner of Pensions for services in wars or battles prior to March 3, 1855, only. Applicants for the issuance of warrants should be addressed to that official.

2. Warrants can not now be " located " upon the public lands. The locating privilege was denied except in the State of Missouri after the passage of the act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. 854), and there are now no lands known to this office to be subject to warrant location in Missouri.

3. A warrant for bounty lands may be used as cash in commuted homestead, desert land, and timber and stone entries, and for lands sold at public auction, except ceded Indian lands.

4. In the instances mentioned above, warrants are received as the equivalent of money to the extent of their valuation at $1.25 per acre, and it is not necessary to apply the warrant to a specific tract. For instance, a 40-acre warrant will be received as $50 cash in payment or part payment of the money due.

5. In order to use a warrant, as indicated above, it is necessary for the party to make application under one of the four classes mentioned, and all residence upon and cultivation and improvement of the tract, which may be required by such law and the regulations thereunder, must be fully complied with.

ASSIGNMENTS

6. No assignment of a warrant or power of attorney to sell or locate the same executed prior to the date of the issue thereof can be recognized by this office. (Rev. Stat. sec. 2436.) Assignments must be in writing. Delivery only constitutes no transfer.

7. The assignment and acknowledgment are required to be indorsed as far as practicable upon the warrant. Should it be found necessary to write the entire assignment on a separate paper, which can only occur when prior assignments or acknowledgments have filled entirely the blank space on the warrant, it must be so attached as to show positively that the warrant assigned was in the hands of the party making the transfer. In such cases the signature of the assignor must be affixed in the presence of the officer before whom it is acknowledged, who must certify that at the date of the assignment the warrant was presented by and in possession of the assignor. The assignments should describe the warrant by number, act, and acreage. Parties should avoid discrepancies in spelling and write their full Christian names and surnames.

8. The same requirement must be observed in preparing acknowledgments of powers of attorney to sell or locate bounty-land warrants.

9. Blank assignments are void, and will not be recognized by this office. The name of an assignee should be written in the assignment before the warrant is sent to the local or General Land Office. Evidence that such assignee procured the warrant for value under the blank assignment may be required.

10. Each assignment or power of attorney must be attested by two subscribing witnesses. The mark of a witness will not be recognized.

11. A person to whom a warrant is transferred will not be recognized as a legal attesting witness to the assignment, nor as a proper officer to take the acknowledgment thereof.

12. The execution of assignments is required to be acknowledged by the assignor in the presence of a register or receiver of a land office, a judge or clerk of a court of record when authorized to take acknowledgments, a notary public, justice of the peace, a commissioner of deeds, or a United States commissioner, who shall certify to the fact of the acknowledgment and to the identity of the assignor. The official seal of said court, notary public, or commissioner shall be affixed to the certificate. When the acknowledgment is taken before a justice of the peace or other officer without an official seal (except a register or receiver of a land office), it must be accompanied by an additional certificate under seal of proper authority, establishing the official character of such official and the genuineness of his signature.

Powers of attorney must be acknowledged in like manner.

13. Assignments executed by unmarried females must be accompanied by evidence that they have attained the age of 21 years.

14. Assignments executed by a commissioner, or other designated person acting under a decree of court, must be accompanied by a duly certified copy of such decree in which all the proceedings should be recited, and from which it must appear that due, proper, and legal notice of the proceedings had been given to all parties in interest. The jurisdiction of the court must appear. Where assignments can not be produced, the Commissioner of the General Land Office will determine the title to a bounty-land warrant according to the principles and usages of law and equity.

15. Where two assignments exist, executed by the same party in favor of different individuals, whether the assignment first in time has been completed or not, to make the second assignment available it must be established by evidence satisfactory to the General Land Office, either that no title passed under the first assignment or that all claims thereunder have been transferred to the second assignee, renounced, or abandoned.

16. When the name of a person has been inserted in an assignment of a warrant and erased, there should be filed evidence satisfactory to this office, consisting of an affidavit duly authenticated, of the assignor, or party or parties by whom said name was inserted and the erasure made, fully explaining the facts and circumstances of such insertion and erasure, and stating that no transfer or delivery of said warrant was made to the party whose name had been so inserted, and that the ownership or custody of said warrant had not been changed by such insertion, which affidavit shall be accompanied by satisfactory evidence that a copy of the same has been served personally or by registered letter upon the party whose name was inserted. The affidavit should set forth that the further object thereof is to afford such party an opportunity to file a protest in the General Land Office against the use of the warrant. When the name of a bona fide assignee has been erased from a transfer, an assignment from said assignee to the present holder of the warrant will be required to perfect the title to the warrant. Material erasures in powers of attorney must be satisfactorily explained.

17. When the assignment of a warrant is executed in a foreign country, and the acknowledgment taken by an officer authorized by the laws thereof to perform such duties, the attestation of the American consul in such country should be obtained as to the official character and genuineness of the signature of such official. If the official character, etc., of the foreign officer is attested by a consular agent of such foreign government residing in this country, the latter's official character must be certified by the diplomatic representatives of such government in the United States. When such assignments are executed in a foreign language duly authenticated translations thereof must be furnished. Secretaries of legation and consular officers of the United States are authorized to take acknowledgments, but they must certify the same under their official seals.

18. When the persons named as warrantees are described in the warrant as minors, their assignments thereof must be accompanied by satisfactory evidence that they had attained their majority at the date of the transfer.

19. When an assignment has been executed and witnessed, but not acknowledged, it may be proved in open court, but a certified transcript of the proceedings must be attached to the warrant. Such unacknowledged assignment may also be established to the satisfaction of the General Land Office by competent evidence. When such assignment has not been properly attested, it must be made anew.

20. When an assignment is made by an Indian residing among whites the prescribed form will be adopted with this addition, that the officer taking the acknowledgment shall certify that the Indian is capable of contracting the amount paid for the warrant, and that he saw the same paid to the Indian.

21. Where it is made by an Indian holding tribal relations, his identity and ability to contract must be certified by the superintendent of Indian Affairs or Indian agent, either of his own knowledge or on the testimony of the chiefs certifying to the amount paid for said warrant; that the same was paid in his presence; and that the transaction was fair and regular. In either case, if the amount paid is not a fair consideration, the assignment will be disregarded.

22. Where a warrant for the service of an Indian is issued or descends to minors who no longer retain their tribal relations, it must be located or sold by a guardian duly appointed and authorized by the proper court for that purpose.

Where the minor or minors retain their tribal relations, the agent or superintendent must certify that they are entitled to the warrant under the laws, usages, and customs of the tribe; and when sold or located, that it was done by the guardian or such proper representative as, according to said laws, usages, and customs, was fully authorized.

Where the signature of a superintendent or an Indian agent is required, the genuineness of the signature of that officer must be certified to by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

23. Prior to June 3, 1858, bounty-land warrants were regarded as real estate. Consequently a transfer of a warrant before that date by an administrator must be accompanied by evidence that the same was made in pursuance of an order of court for the sale of the real estate of the decedent.

By the act of June 3, 1858 (11 Stat. 308), bounty-land warrants were declared to be personal chattels, and, as such, assignable by the warrantees, by their widows in certain cases, by their heirs or legatees, or by the legal representatives of the deceased claimant "for the use of the heirs or legatees only."

It follows that the right to assign inures to the assignees of the venders named above, and to their heirs, legatees, or legal representatives; but these latter are not required to assign "for the use of the heirs or legatees only."

24. Where a warrant has been issued in the name of a deceased soldier, who had applied therefor before his death, the title thereto is declared by section 2444, Revised Statutes, to vest in the widow, if there be one, and if there be no widow, then in the heirs or legatees of the claimant.

25. If the claimant died and left a widow, who also was deceased before the issue of the warrant, then the title thereto vests in the heirs or legatees of the warrantee.

26. To make a warrant issued in the name of a deceased person available it should be accompanied by a certificate under seal from the proper court having probate jurisdiction, showing the fact of the death of the warrantee at a specified date and place, and whether he left a widow, giving her name, if there was one. If there was no widow the said certificate should state whether the warrantee died testate or intestate and give the names of all his heirs at law, specifying adults and minors. Where the assignee of a warrant is deceased a similar certificate should be exhibited setting forth the fact, time, and place of death, his testacy or intestacy, and, in the event he left no will, the names, ages, and places of residence of all the heirs.

27. If it shall appear from such certificate that the warrantee died before the issue of the warrant and left a widow, the assignment of such widow, her heirs, or legal representatives, will be a sufficient conveyance of the warrant.

28. If the warrantee died after the issue of the warrant, or if he died before such issue and left no widow, the title vests in his heirs at law or legatees.

29. If he died intestate his heirs, shown to be such by the required certificate of court, may assign the warrant, the adults for themselves and the minors by their guardians, who shall file with the warrant a certified copy of their letters of guardianship or a certificate from the clerk of the proper court stating that such letters had been issued and that they were in force at the date of the assignment.

Or the administrator of the estate of the deceased warrantee who died intestate may assign the warrant "for the use of the heirs or legatees only," upon filing therewith a certified transcript of the letters of administration or a certificate from the clerk of the proper court that the said letters had been issued and that they were in force at the date of the assignment. Satisfactory evidence may also be required to show that the administrator was appointed at the instance of the heirs or proper parties in interest and transferred the warrant for their benefit.

30. If the warrantee or his assignee died testate a certified transcript of the will must accompany the warrant. If the will specifically disposes of the warrant the legatee or legatees may assign, if adults, in the usual form; if minors, by their guardians as aforesaid. If the will does not specifically dispose of the warrant the executor of the estate of the warrantee may assign "for the use of the heirs or legatees only," but in that case a certified transcript of the letters testamentary or a certificate from the proper authority that such letters had been granted and were in force at the date of the assignment must accompany the transfer.

31. An assignment executed by an adminstrator de bonis non, with the will annexed, of the estate of the deceased warrantee or transferee must be accompanied by evidence of his authority to act as required in the case of an administrator of the estate of a warrantee who died intestate.

IDENTIFICATION OF LANDS PATENTED IN SATISFACTION OF LAND WARRANTS

32. Inquiries are constantly being received in this office to ascertain whether a particular soldier has received a grant of land on account of military service. These inquiries are often for the purpose of obtaining information in order to qualify applicants for eligibility in the National Society, Daughters of American Revolution.

33. In order that this office may best answer such inquiries, it is suggested that as much of the following information as is available be furnished:

(a) The full name of the soldier.

(b) The period of his service.

(c) The State from which he entered the service.

(d) The date of his death.

(e) The name of his widow.

(f) The number of the warrant, the acreage, and the act of Congress under which the warrant was issued.

(g) Legal description of the land upon which the warrant is supposed to have been located.

(h) If the legal description is not known, describe the land with respect to its distance and direction from some town or city, naming the State in which it is supposed to be located.

34. The public lands in those States bearing the names of the original 13 colonies, also in Kentucky, Maine, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, and West Virginia, were disposed of by the State authorities. Therefore, this office has no record of land grants, warrant locations, or land entries made therein and it is suggested that any grant made in such States would probably have been made by the State authorities.

35. The following is a list of officials to be addressed relative to lands in the States mentioned.

Connecticut, the State treasurer, Hartford.
Delaware, chairman public lands commission, Dover.
Georgia, secretary of state, Atlanta.
Kentucky, auditor for State, Frankfort.
Maine, State land agent and forest commissioner, statehouse, Augusta.

CAREY ACT LANDS

[Reported, 37 L. D. 624]

REGULATIONS CONCERNING THE SELECTION OF DESERT LANDS BY CERTAIN STATES AND TERRITORIES

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
April 9, 1909.

Section 4 of the act of August 18, 1894, entitled, "An act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1895, and for other purposes" (28 Stat. 372–422), authorizes the Secretary of the Interior, with the approval of the President, to contract and agree to patent to the States of Washington, Oregon, California, Nevada, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Utah, or any other States, as provided in the act, in which may be found desert lands, not to exceed 1,000,000 acres of such lands to each State, under certain conditions.

The text of the act is as follows:

Sec. 4. That to aid the public-land States in the reclamation of the desert lands therein, and the settlement, cultivation, and sale thereof in small tracts to actual settlers, the Secretary of the Interior, with the approval of the President, be, and hereby is, authorized and empowered, upon proper application of the State, to contract and agree, from time to time, with each of the States in which there may be situated desert lands as defined by the act entitled "An act to provide for the sale of desert land in certain States and Territories," approved March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, and the act amendatory thereof, approved March third, eighteen hundred and ninety-one, binding the United States to donate, grant, and patent to the State free of cost for survey or price such desert lands, not exceeding one million acres in each State, as the State may cause to be irrigated, reclaimed, occupied, and not less than twenty acres of each one hundred and sixty-acre tract cultivated by actual settlers, within ten years next after the passage of this act, as thoroughly as is required of citizens who may enter under the said desert-land law.

Before the application of any State is allowed or any contract or agreement is executed or any segregation of any of the land from the public domain is ordered by the Secretary of the Interior, the State shall file a map of the said land proposed to be irrigated, which shall exhibit a plan showing the mode of the contemplated irrigation and which plan shall be sufficient to thoroughly irrigate and reclaim said land and prepare it to raise ordinary agricultural crops and shall also show the source of the water to be used for irrigation and reclamation, and the Secretary of the Interior may make necessary regulations for the reservation of the lands applied for by the States to date from the date of the filing of the map and plan of irrigation, but such reservation shall be of no force whatever if such map and plan of irrigation shall not be approved. That any State contracting under this section is hereby authorized to make all necessary contracts to cause the said lands to be reclaimed, and to induce their settlement and cultivation in accordance with and subject to the provisions of this section; but the State shall not be authorized to lease any of said lands or to use or dispose of the same in any way whatever, except to secure their reclamation, cultivation, and settlement.

As fast as any State may furnish satisfactory proof, according to such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, that any of said lands are irrigated, reclaimed, and occupied by actual settlers, patents shall be issued to the State or its assigns for said lands so reclaimed and settled: Provided, That said States shall not sell or dispose of more than one hundred and sixty acres of said lands to any one person, and any surplus of money derived by any State from the sale of said lands in excess of the cost of their reclamation, shall be held as a trust fund for and be applied to the reclamation of other desert lands in such State. That to enable the Secretary of the Interior to examine any of the lands that may be selected under the provisions of this section, there is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated one thousand dollars.

In the act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1897, and for other purposes, approved June 11, 1896 (29 Stat. 413–434), there is, under the head of appropriation for " Surveying public lands," the following provision:

That under any law heretofore or hereafter enacted by any State providing for the reclamation of arid lands, in pursuance and acceptance of the terms of the grant made in section four of an act entitled "An act making appropriations for the sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five," approved August eighteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, a lien or liens is hereby authorized to be created by the State to which such lands are granted and by no other authority whatever, and when created shall be valid on and against the separate legal subdivisions of land reclaimed, for the actual cost and necessary expenses of reclamation and reasonable interest thereon from the date of reclamation until disposed of to actual settlers; and when an ample supply of water is actually furnished in a substantial ditch or canal, or by artesian wells or reservoirs, to reclaim a particular tract or tracts of such lands, then patents shall issue for the same to such State without regard to settlement or cultivation: Provided, That in no event, in no contingency, and under no circumstances shall the United States be in any manner directly or indirectly liable for any amount of any such lien or liability, in whole or in part.

The limitation of time in the above-quoted section 4 was modified by section 3 of the act entitled "An act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. 1133–1188), which provides as follows:

SEC. 3. That section four of the act of August eighteenth, eighteen hundred ane ninety-four, entitled "An act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, and for other purposes," is hereby amended so that the ten years' period within which any State shall cause the lands applied for under said act to be irrigated and reclaimed, as provided in said section as amended by the act of June eleventh, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, shall begin to run from the date of approval by the Secretary of the Interior of the State's application for the segregation of such lands; and if the State fails within said ten years to cause the whole or any part of the lands so segregated to be so irrigated and reclaimed, the Secretary of the Interior may, in his discretion, continue said segregation for a period of not exceeding five years, or may, in his discretion, restore such lands to the public domain.

By the act of March 1, 1907 (34 Stat. 1057), the provisions of the foregoing acts were extended to the desert lands within the former Southern Ute Indian Reservation in Colorado.

Said act is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the provisions of section four of "An act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, and for other purposes," approved August eighteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, and the acts amendatory thereof, approved June eleventh, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, and March third, nineteen hundred and one, respectively, be, and are hereby, extended over and shall apply to the desert lands included within the limits of the former Southern Ute Indian Reservation in Colorado not included in any forest reservation: Provided, That before a patent shall issue for any of the lands aforesaid under the terms of the said act approved August eighteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, and amendments thereto, the State of Colorado shall pay into the Treasury of the United States the sum of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre for the lands so patented, and the money so paid shall be subject to the provisions of section three of the act of June fifteenth, eighteen hundred and eighty, entitled "An act to accept and ratify the agreements submitted by the confederated bands of Ute Indians in Colorado for the sale of their reservation in said State, and for other purposes, and to make the necessary appropriation for carrying out same."

Sec. 2. That no lands shall be included in any tract to be segregated under the provisions of this act on which the United States Government has valuable improvements or which have been reserved for Indian schools or farm purposes.

In the act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1909, and for other purposes, approved May 27, 1908 (35 Stat. 317–347), there is under the head of "Arid lands in Idaho and Wyoming," the following provision:

That an additional one million acres of arid lands within each of the States of Idaho and Wyoming be made available and subject to the terms of section four of an act of Congress entitled "An act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, and for other purposes," approved August eighteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, and by amendments thereto, and that the States of Idaho and Wyoming be allowed under the provisions of said acts said additional area or so much thereof as may be necessary for the purposes and under the provisions of said acts.

The act of February 18, 1909 (35 Stat. 638), extending the provisions of section 4, act of August 18, 1894, supra, and the amendments thereof, to the Territories of New Mexico and Arizona, reads as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That all the provisions of section four of the act of Congress approved August eighteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, being chapter three hundred and one to Supplement to Revised Statutes of the United States, entitled "An act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, and for other purposes," and the amendments thereto be, and the same are hereby, extended to the Territories of New Mexico and Arizona, and that said Territories upon complying with the provisions of said act shall be entitled to have and receive all of the benefits therein conferred upon the States.

Sec. 2. That this act shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage.

The provisions of said section 4, act of August 18, 1894, and the amendments thereof, were also extended to the desert lands within the former Ute Indian Reservation in Colorado, by the act of February 24, 1909 (35 Stat. 644), the text of which is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the provision of section four of "An act making appropriation for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, and for other purposes," approved August eighteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, and the amendments thereof, approved June eleventh, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, and March third, nineteen hundred and one, respectively, be, and are hereby, extended over and shall apply to the desert lands within the limits of all that portion of the former Ute Indian Reservation, not included in any national forest, in the State of Colorado, described and embraced in the act entitled "An act relating to lands in Colorado lately occupied by the Uncompahgre and White River Ute Indians," approved July twenty-eighth, eighteen hundred and eighty-two: Provided, That before a patent shall issue for any of the lands aforesaid under the terms of the act approved August eighteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, and amendments thereto, the State of Colorado shall pay into the Treasury of the United States the sum of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre for the lands so patented, and the money so paid shall be subject to the provisions of section three of the act of June fifteenth, eighteen hundred and eighty, entitled, "An act to accept and ratify the agreements submitted by the confederated bands of Ute Indians in Colorado for the sale of their reservation in said State, and for other purposes, and to make the necessary appropriation for carrying out same."

SEC. 2. That no lands shall be included in any tract to be segregated under the provisions of this act on which the United States Government has valuable improvements, or which have been reserved for any Indian schools or farm purposes.

1. Under the provisions of the acts quoted the States and Territories are allowed 10 years from the date of the approval of the application for the segregation of the lands by the Secretary of the Interior, in which to irrigate and reclaim them. The Secretary of the Interior may, however, in his discretion, extend the time for irrigating and reclaiming the lands for a period of 5 years, or he may restore to the public domain the lands not reclaimed at the expiration of the 10 years, or of the extended period.

2. The lands selected under these acts must all be desert lands as defined by the acts of 1877 and 1891, and the decisions and regulations of this department therein provided for.

Lands which produce native grasses sufficient in quantity, if unfed by grazing animals, to make an ordinary crop of hay in usual seasons, are not desert lands. Lands which will produce an agricultural crop of any kind in amount sufficient to make the cultivation reasonably remunerative are not desert. Lands containing sufficient moisture to produce a natural growth of trees are not to be classed as desert lands.

Lands occupied by bona fide settlers and lands containing valuable deposits of coal or other minerals are not subject to selection.

3. The second paragraph of section 4, before quoted, provides that before the application of any State is allowed or any contract or agreement is executed or any segregation of any of the land from the public domain is ordered by the Secretary of the Interior, the State shall file a map of the land selected and proposed to be irrigated, which shall exhibit a plan showing the mode of contemplated irrigation and the source of the water. In accordance with the requirements of the act, the State must give full data to show that the proposed plan will be sufficient to thoroughly irrigate and reclaim the land and prepare it to raise ordinary agricultural crops, for which purpose a statement by the State engineer of the amount of water available for the plan of irrigation will be necessary. The other data required can not be fully prescribed, as it will depend upon the nature of the plan submitted. All information necessary to enable this office to judge of its practicability for irrigating all the land selected must be submitted. Upon the filing of the map showing the plan of irrigation, and the lands selected, such lands will be withheld from other disposition until final action is had thereon by the Secretary of the Interior. If such final action be a disapproval of the map and plan, the lands selected shall, without further order, be subject to disposition as if such reservation had never been made; and the local officers will make the appropriate notations on the tract books and plat books, opposite those previously made, in accordance with the requirements of paragraph 7.

4. The map must be on tracing linen, in duplicate, and must be drawn to a scale not greater than 1,000 feet to 1 inch. A smaller scale is desirable, if the necessary information can be clearly shown. The map and field notes in duplicate must be filed in the local land office for the district in which the land is located. If the lands selected are located in more than one district, duplicate map and field notes need be filed in but one district and single sets in the others. Each legal subdivision of the land selected should be clearly indicated on the map by a check mark, thus: ✓. The map and field notes must show the connections of termini of a canal or of the initial point of a reservoir with public survey corners, the connections with public survey corners wherever section or township lines are crossed by the proposed irrigation works, and must show full data to admit of retracing the lines of the survey of the irrigation works on the ground.

5. The map should bear an affidavit of the engineer who made or supervised the preparation of the map and plan, Form 1, and also of the officer authorized by the State to make its selections under the act, Form 2. The map should be accompanied by a list in triplicate of the lands selected, designated by legal subdivisions, properly summed up at the foot of each page, and at the end of the list. If the lands selected are located in more than one district, a list in triplicate must be filed in each office, describing the lands selected in that district. Clear carbon copies are preferred for the duplicate and triplicate lists. The lists should be dated and verified by a certificate of the selecting agent, Form 3. The party appearing as agent of the State must file with the register and receiver written and satisfactory evidence, under seal, of his authority to act in the premises; such evidence once filed need not be duplicated during the period for which the agent was appointed. The State should number the lists in consecutive order, beginning with No. 1, regardless of the land office in which they are to be filed. Form of title page to be prefixed to the lists of selections will be found marked "A." Lists received at this office containing erasures will not be filed, but will be returned in order that new ones may be prepared. When a township has not been subdivided, but has had its exteriors surveyed, the whole township may be designated, omitting, however, the sections to which the State may be entitled under its grant of school lands. When the records are in such condition that the proper notations may be made, a section or part of a section of unsurveyed land may be designated in the list; but no patent can issue thereon until the land has been surveyed.

6. A contract in the form herein prescribed (Form 5), in duplicate, signed by the State officer authorized to execute such contract, must also be filed. A carbon copy of the contract will not be accepted.[1] The person who executes the contract on behalf of the State must furnish evidence of his authority to do so.

7. The lists must be carefully and critically examined by the register and receiver, and their accuracy tested by the plats and records of their office. When so examined and found correct in all respects, they will attach a certificate at the foot of each list (Form 4). The register must note on the map, lists, contracts, and all papers the name of the land office and the date of filing over his written signature and will thereupon post the selections in ink in the tract book after the following manner: "Selected ———, 19—, by ——— ———, the State ———, as desert land, act of August 18, 1894, serial No. ———," and on the plats he will mark the tracts so selected "State desert-land selection." After the selections are properly posted and marked on the records, the list, maps, and all papers will be transmitted to the General Land Office.

For rejected selections a new list will be required, upon which the register will note opposite each tract the objections appearing on the records and indorse thereon his reasons in full for refusing to certify the same. The State will be allowed to appeal in the manner provided for in the Rules of Practice. It is required that clear lists of approvals shall in every case be made out by the selecting agents, if after the above examination one or more tracts have been rejected, showing clearly and without erasure the tracts to which the register is prepared to certify. On the map of lands selected the register will mark rejected such tracts as he has rejected on the lists.

8. When the canals or reservoirs required by the plan of irrigation cross public land not selected by the State, an application for right of way over such lands under sections 18 to 21, act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 1095), should be filed separately, in accordance with the regulations under said act.

9. In the preceding paragraphs instructions are given for the designation of the lands by the proper State authorities. Upon the approval of the map of the lands and the plan of irrigation, the contract is executed by the Secretary of the Interior and approved by the President, as directed by the act. Upon the approval of the map and plan, the lands are reserved for the purposes of the act, said reservation dating from the date of the filing of the map and plan in the local land office. A duplicate of the approved map and plan, and of the list of lands, is transmitted for the files of the local land office, and a triplicate copy of the list is forwarded to the State authorities.

10. When patents are desired for any lands that have been segregated, the State should file in the local land office a list, to which is prefixed a certificate of the presiding officer of the State land board, or other officer of the State who may be charged with the duty of disposing of the lands which the State may obtain under the law (Form 6); and followed by an affidavit of the State engineer, or other State officer whose duty it may be to superintend the reclamation of the lands (Form 7).

[1] Printed copies of the contract, in which the list of lands can be inserted, will be furnished to the State, or to parties dealing with it, on application to the General Land Office.

11. The certificate of Form 6 is required in order to show that the State laws accepting the grant of the lands have been duly complied with.

12. The affidavit of Form 7 is required in order to show compliance with the provisions of the law, that an ample supply of water has been actually furnished in a substantial ditch or canal, or by artesian wells or reservoirs, for each tract in the list, sufficiently to thoroughly irrigate and reclaim it, and to prepare it to raise ordinary agricultural crops. A separate statement by the State engineer must be furnished, giving all the facts as to the water supply and the nature, location, and completion of the irrigation works.

If there are some high points which it is not practicable to irrigate, the nature, extent, location, and area of such points should be fully stated. If no part of a legal subdivision is susceptible of irrigation, such legal subdivision must be relinquished. Lands upon which valuable deposits of coal or other minerals are discovered will not be patented to the State under these acts.

13. These lists will be called " lists for patent," and should be numbered by the State consecutively, beginning with No. 1. The list should also show, opposite each tract, the number of the approved segregation list in which it appears. The aggregate area should be stated at the foot of each page and at the end of the list.

14. Upon the filing of such list the local officers will place thereon the date of filing and note on the records opposite each tract listed: " List for patent serial No. ——, filed ——— ——," giving the date.

15. When said list is filed in the local land office there shall also be filed by the State a notice, in duplicate, prepared for the signature of the register and receiver, describing the land by sections, and portions of sections, where less than a section is designated (Form 8). This notice shall be published at the expense of the State once a week in each of nine consecutive weeks, in a newspaper of established character and general circulation, to be designated by the register as published nearest the land. One copy of said notice shall be posted in a conspicuous place in the local office for at least 60 days during the period of publication.

16. At the expiration of the period of publication the State shall file in the local office proof of said publication and of payment for the same. Thereupon the register and receiver shall forward the list for patent to the General Land Office, noting thereon any protests or contests which may have been filed, transmitting such papers, and submitting any recommendations they may deem proper. They will also forward proofs of publication, of payment therefor, and of the posting of the list in their office.

17. Before patents are issued for lands within the former Southern Ute and the Ute Indian Reservations in Colorado, the State will be required to pay the price ($1.25 per acre) fixed by the acts of March 1, 1907, and February 24, 1909. The State will be advised of the number of acres which will be included in the patent and payment shall be made to the receiver of the proper land office, who issue a receipt as in other cases. The money will be accounted for in the same manner as other moneys received from the disposal of such lands.

18. Upon the receipt of the papers in the General Land Office such action will be taken in each case as the showing may require, and all tracts that are free from valid protest or contest, and respecting which the law and regulations have been complied with, will be certified to the Secretary of the Interior for approval and patenting.

Commissioner, General Land Office.

INSTRUCTIONS GOVERNING THE EXTENSION OF TIME FOR IRRIGATION AND RECLAMATION PLANTS, UNDER SECTION 4 OF THE ACT OF AUGUST 18, 1894, AS AMENDED BY SECTION 3 OF THE ACT OF MARCH 3, 1901

Department of the Interior,
Washington, May 13, 1909.

Secretary Ballinger to the Commissioner of the General Land Office:

Referring to that portion of the act of Congress, above cited (31 Stat. 1188), which authorizes the Secretary of the Interior in his discretion to continue segregation of lands for a period of not exceeding five years, or to restore them to the public domain, where a State has failed to reclaim lands segregated under the Carey Act within the period of 10 years, prescribed by law, you are advised that all such applications must be submitted to me with your report and recommendation, and applications for extension of time will only be entertained upon a showing of the happening of some event preventing completion of the reclamation which could not have been reasonably anticipated or guarded against, such as—

1. Destruction of dams, reservoirs, canals, ditches, or other works constructed, or partly constructed, by storms, floods, or other unavoidable casualties.

2. Inability to complete construction of reservoirs, ditches, canals, etc., within the 10 years because of unforeseen structural or physical difficulties encountered, in cases where construction was promptly begun and diligently prosecuted.

3. Error or misjudgment in surveying and locating ditches, canals, etc., necessitating new surveys and construction in order to effect proper and permanent reclamation.

4. Financial failures on the part of the contractor under the State, which delayed or prevented reclamation and which could not have been foreseen or reasonably anticipated.

5. Other reasons not above specified but falling within the general scope of these instructions will be considered if presented, but in all cases the showing made must be by or through the proper State authorities and clearly and specifically set forth all the facts and reasons which prevented the completion of the contract or reclamation of the land within the 10-year period.

SUPPLEMENTAL REGULATIONS CONCERNING THE SELECTION OF DESERT LANDS BY CERTAIN STATES AND TERRITORIES[2]

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., April 25, 1910.

By the act of March 15, 1910 (36 Stat. 237), section 4, act of August 18, 1894 (28 Stat. 372–422), commonly known as the "Carey Act," was amended so as to authorize the Secretary of the Interior, upon application of a beneficiary State or Territory, to temporarily withdraw from settlement or entry public lands of the United States, pending survey and investigation preliminary to the filing of application for the segregation of such lands under said act of August 18, 1894.

The text of the act is as follows:

> Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That to aid in carrying out the purposes of section four of the act of August eighteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, entitled, "An act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending eighteen hundred and ninety-five, and for other purposes," it shall be lawful for the Secretary of the Interior, upon application by the proper officer of any State or Territory to which said section applies, to withdraw temporarily from settlement or entry areas embracing lands for which the State or Territory proposes to make application under said section, pending the investigation and survey preliminary to the filing of the maps and plats and application for segregation by the State or Territory: Provided, That if the State or Territory shall not present its application for segregation and maps and plats within one year after such temporary withdrawal the lands so withdrawn shall be restored to entry as though such withdrawal had not been made.
> Approved March 15, 1910.

REGULATIONS

1. Under the provisions of this amendatory act public lands of the United States may be temporarily withdrawn upon proper application by a beneficiary State or Territory that proper surveys may be prepared and investigation made preliminary to the filing of application by such State or Territory for the segregation of such lands under the Carey Act.

If such application is not filed within one year from the date of withdrawal, the lands so withdrawn will, as directed by the act, be immediately restored to entry.

No provision is made for the extension of such a temporary withdrawal.

2. To obtain the benefits of this amendatory act, the State or Territory, through its proper official, will be required to file in the local land office in the land district within which the lands sought to be withdrawn lie, an application therefor, (see appended Form B), which shall set forth the name of the individual or corporation proposing to reclaim the lands; that all of the forms and conditions imposed by the State law upon such proposer prior to segregation have been complied with; that from the showing made by the proposer (or state other source of information) it is believed that sufficient water to irrigate the whole of the lands asked to be withdrawn, over and above prior appropriations, is available; and that the proposer has either acquired title to such water or applied for the same, and that the lands are desert in character.

Appended to the application should be a list of the lands asked to be withdrawn. If the lands are unsurveyed, the fact should be set forth, together with a statement that an application for the survey thereof has been filed in the office of the surveyor general.

3. Accompanying such application should be filed an affidavit, (see appended Form C), based upon personal examination, that the lands sought to be withdrawn are desert in character, as contemplated by the Carey Act, and are nonmineral.

This affidavit should be made either by the proposer, his or its engineer, or by the State or territorial engineer, or one of his assistants.

4. Where the lands sought to be withdrawn are situated in more than one land district, a list must be filed in each district, describing the lands in that district.

5. Upon the filing of such application the register will at once note the same upon his records, and will thereafter reject all applications to enter, purchase, or select any of such lands, excepting when settlement or application to enter, purchase, or select prior to the date of filing of the State's application is alleged or disclosed of record. He will then at once transmit the application to this office for further action, first noting thereon the date of filing over his written signature.

6. Within three months after the date of filing the application for withdrawal in the local office the State must file a corroborated affidavit by the proposer, his or its engineer, or the State engineer that the work of surveying and laying out the proposed irrigation system has been actually commenced in the field and is being energetically prosecuted. This affidavit should show the work accomplished and the result.

In default of such showing by the State, the withdrawal will be promptly revoked.

7. In the event that any of the tracts withdrawn are found to be above the proposed irrigation works, or for any other reason not susceptible of irrigation, the fact and description of the nonreclaimable land by smallest legal subdivisions should be at once communicated to this office, that they may be relieved from the withdrawal.

8. If at any time after withdrawal it is shown that the State is not energetically prosecuting the investigation and survey of the lands, that the same are not reclaimable by the proposed system of reclamation, are not desert in character, or for any reason are not subject to the provisions of the Carey Act, or that the proposer is not proceeding in good faith, the withdrawal will be at once revoked.

9.[3] The one year mentioned in the act as the period of withdrawal will commence to run from the date of the filing of the application for withdrawal in the local land office.

Very respectfully,

S. V. PROUDFIT, Assistant Commissioner.

Approved.

R. A. BALLINGER, Secretary.

CAREY ACT—ELIMINATIONS FROM APPLICATIONS FOR SEGREGATION OR WITHDRAWAL

REGULATIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, November 23, 1916.

The COMMISSIONER OF THE GENERAL LAND OFFICE.

DEAR MR. COMMISSIONER: I am in receipt of your letter of October 17, 1916, transmitting for consideration proposed new rules to govern eliminations from applications for segregations under the Carey Act (28 Stat. 372), the withdrawal act of March 15, 1910 (36 Stat. 237), and from applications for segregation or withdrawal.

I do not agree with the conclusion reached in your paper, either from the administrative or legal standpoint. Administratively, I believe proposed rule 1 would lead to confusion and possible hardship and suffering to settlers and applicants, and in cases where segregations are finally allowed might embarrass the disposition of the land under the Carey Act. The general rule of the department, as laid down in numerous decisions, and approved by the Supreme Court in case of Holt v. Murphy (207 U. S. 407), is to the effect that the Secretary of the Interior is fully justified in ruling that no applications will be received nor any rights recognized by the tender of an application for land embraced in selections and entries of record until same have been canceled upon the records of the local land office. The reason for such a rule is equally forcible with respect to lands applied for or segregated under the so-called Carey Act or acts supplemental thereto. The act first mentioned provides that the Secretary of the Interior—> may make necessary regulations for the reservation of the lands applied for by the States, to date from the date of the filing of the map and plan of irrigation, but such reservation shall be of no force whatever if such map and plan of irrigation shall not be approved.

[3] This section was amended by instructions of June 17, 1914 (43 L. D. 281), quoted in Circular No. 334 of July 3, 1914. The section as amended reads as follows:

"Upon departmental approval of an application for temporary withdrawal, the local office will be advised thereof by the General Land Office, and the register will make proper notations upon the records of his office.

"The one year mentioned in the act as the period of withdrawal will commence on the date of approval of the application by the department.

"At the expiration of one year from the date of approval (or at such prior date as the Secretary may determine to restore a part or all of the withdrawn land) the commissioner will advise the local office of such restoration.

"Upon receipt by the local office of such advice immediate notation thereof will be made on the records, and the lands withdrawn will be thereby restored to entry as though such withdrawal had not been made except in case where, by the order of restoration, provision is made under the act of September 30, 1913 (38 Stat. 113), as to the particular conditions governing the restoration.

"In all cases restoration shall be made as provided by the order of restoration; but where it is found proper to restore land with conditions and restrictions, as provided by the act of September 30, 1913, the order of restoration shall be approved by the Secretary of the Interior before becoming effective."

It is argued that under this provision of law lands covered by an application for segregation are subject to settlement and to application for entry until actual segregation of the lands is ordered by the Secretary of the Interior, whereupon such settlements and applications are defeated, but that if the application for segregation shall be finally denied, the subsequently initiated claims are valid.

As indicated, this, in my opinion, is not good administration, either from the standpoint of the Government or the people, and I am not convinced that the act of 1894, supra, necessarily bears out the construction indicated. It provides that the reservation shall be of no force if the application for segregation be not approved, but it also provides that the Secretary may make necessary regulations for the reservation of the lands, to date from the filing of the application, thereby vesting in the Secretary administrative discretion and authority with respect to withdrawal of the lands pending consideration and disposition of the State's application.

Be that as it may, the question appears to be disposed of by the subsequent legislation of September 30, 1913 (38 Stat. 113–114), providing a method for the opening and restoration of withdrawn or reserved lands. Section 1 deals with such reservations as are to be vacated and set aside by the President and vests in him broad discretion as to the time and manner of restoration, in order that good administration may be maintained and equal opportunity afforded the general public. Section 2 of the act is to the effect that—> where under the law the Secretary of the Interior is authorized or directed to make restoration of lands previously withdrawn, he may also restrict the restoration.

If, therefore, authority for restricting the disposition of lands reserved or withdrawn in connection with applications and segregations under the Carey Act be not found in the Carey Act itself, it is to be found in the act just cited. I therefore hereby establish the following rules and regulations governing lands covered by applications for segregation under the act of August 18, 1894, segregations made under said act, and withdrawals under the act of March 15, 1910, supra, while pending and when eliminated or restored:

1. Lands embraced in pending applications filed by States under the act of August 18, 1894 (28 Stat. 422), and described in accompanying maps and plans of irrigation; lands withdrawn under the act of March 15, 1910 (36 Stat. 237); and lands covered by approved segregations under the act of August 18, 1894, supra, are not subject to settlement, application, entry, or other filings while reserved, withdrawn, or segregated, and applications to file, select, or enter tendered shall be rejected by the register and receiver.

2. Upon rejection of an application for segregation under the Carey Act, or upon elimination of lands from a segregation or a withdrawal under the act of March 15, 1910, such lands, not otherwise withdrawn, reserved, or appropriated, shall be restored to entry under the homestead laws only on a future day fixed or appointed, and to entry, filing, or selection generally on a subsequently fixed or appointed day. Applications may be filed under the regulations of May 22, 1914 (Circular 324, 43 L. D. 254), 20 days before the land becomes subject to entry, filing, or selection contemplated. All applications under the homestead laws under Circular 324 shall be treated as simultaneously filed on the date the land becomes subject to entry thereunder.

Prior regulations, in so far as they may conflict herewith, are hereby revoked.

Very truly yours,

ALEXANDER T. VOGELSANG.

CIRCULAR NO. 731

PREFERENCE RIGHT OF ENTRY ON RESTORED CAREY ACT LANDS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, December 10, 1920.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: October 30, 1920, the First Assistant Secretary of the Interior approved the following regulations under the act of February 14, 1920 (41 Stat. 407), providing for preference right of State entrymen upon restored Carey Act lands.

(1) The act approved February 14, 1920 (41 Stat. 407), provides as follows:

> That the Secretary of the Interior, when restoring to the public domain lands that have been segregated to a State under section 4 of the Act of August 18, 1894, and the Acts and resolutions amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, commonly called the Carey Act, is authorized, in his discretion and under such rules and regulations as he may establish to allow for not exceeding ninety days to any Carey Act entryman a preference right of entry under applicable land laws of any of such lands which such person had entered under and pursuant to the State laws providing for the administration of the grant under the Carey Act and upon which such person had established actual bona fide residence or had made substantial and permanent improvements: Provided, That each entryman shall be entitled to a credit as residence upon his new homestead entry allowed hereunder of the time that he has actually lived upon the claim as a bone fide resident thereof.

(2) Prior to the restoration to entry of lands theretofore segregated under the Carey Act, you will take steps to ascertain from the proper State officers whether any entries have been allowed under the State law for any of the segregated lands which are to be restored, and if any such entries have been allowed, the status thereof and action taken by the State with reference thereto.

(3) If it is shown with reasonable certainty, either from the report of the State officers or by other available information, that there are no entries under the State law on the basis of which a claim to preference right of entry might be asserted and maintained, then the said act of February 14, 1920, may be disregarded in the restoration of the lands to entry.

(4) But if it appears from the report of the State officers or otherwise that there are entries under the State law which may properly be the basis of preference right under this act, in the order restoring the lands, you will make suitable provision for the filing of applications to enter or select by those claiming a preference right under this act, when the restoration is effective or during the 20 days preceding, according to existing practice. The period during which such perference right claims may be submitted may be fixed at 30, 60, or 90 days following the date on which such restoration is effective, as may appear best to meet the situation presented by each particular restoration. The order of restoration should instruct the register and receiver that during such preference right period other applications not based on preference rights under this act may be filed pursuant to the terms of the order of restoration, but in the case of lands covered by an application timely filed and claiming a preference right under this act all of such other conflicting applications will be suspended pending action on the application claiming a preference right under this act; and, further, that the register and receiver will take no action on such preference right applications, other than to give same a serial number, note their records, and transmit such applications with report of status and conflicts to your office for action on the preference right claim.

(5) In case the preference right claim is allowed, any conflicting applications will be rejected as to the land embraced in the allowed preference claim; in case the preference right claim is rejected, conflicting applications will then be disposed of the same as if such preference right claim had not been filed.

(6) You are advised that the said act of February 14, 1920, applies only to cases of entries in good faith in compliance with the requirements of the State law, with a view to reclaiming the land and procuring title pursuant to the provisions of the Carey Act; the act does not apply to cases where persons have settled on or improved the segregated land, either with the approval of the State authorities or otherwise, not pursuant to the State laws or not in anticipation of reclaiming the lands and procuring title under the Carey Act, but for the purpose of initiating some kind of a claim to the land on its restoration because of failure of the project or cancellation of the segregation.

(7) You are also advised that the act does not apply to cases where the State entry has been canceled or forfeited for default on the part of the State entryman in carrying out his part of the contract, unless such default on the part of the State entryman as the result of conditions which culminated in the elimination of the lands from the project; the allowance of a subsequent entry for the same land by the State would be presumptive that the default was the fault of the State entryman whose entry was forfeited or canceled.

(8) You are further advised that any rights to which a claimant may be entitled under this act of February 14, 1920 (41 Stat. 407), are not affected by resolution No. 29 of February 14, 1920, giving preference rights to ex-service men, for by the terms of the resolution rights thereunder are made subject to " prior existing valid settlement rights and * * * preference rights conferred by existing laws or equitable claims subject to allowance or confirmation "; rights under this act of February 14, 1920, are considered to be within the class described by the language quoted.

(9) Applications to enter or select under applicable public land laws in the exercise of the preference rights granted by this act of February 14, 1920, will be considered and adjudicated the same as other applications under such laws, except as otherwise provided in the act of February 14, 1920; that is to say, each applicant must be qualified under the law under which he seeks to make entry or selection, and he must fully comply with such law in order to secure patent, with the single exception that one who exercises his preference right by making entry under the homestead law "shall be entitled to a credit, as residence upon his new homestead entry allowed hereunder, of the time he has actually lived upon the claim as a bona fide resident thereof."

Very respectfully,

Clay Tallman, Commissioner.

CAREY ACT STATUTES AND REGULATIONS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, March 21, 1924.

There are a number of statutes comprising the law commonly referred to as the Carey Act, but copies of these and of the departmental regulations thereunder are not available for distribution. The following paragraphs, however, will give the citation and the general purport of each of these statutes:

Section 4 of the act of August 18, 1894 (28 Stat. 372, 422), authorizes the Secretary of the Interior, with the approval of the President, to contract and agree to patent to States in which there are desert lands not to exceed 1,000,000 acres of such lands, to each State, under the conditions specified in the act. The lands selected by the several States, within their respective boundaries, are segregated from the public domain for a period of 10 years, the State undertaking within that time to cause an adequate irrigation system to be constructed, and a sufficient water supply to be made available in a substantial ditch, for the reclamation of the lands by irrigation. The lands when patented are disposed of by the States to actual settlers.

The act of June 11, 1896 (29 Stat, 413, 434), authorizes a lien on the land for the cost of construction of the irrigation works and permits the issuance of patent without actual cultivation of the land.

Section 3 of the act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. 1133, 1188), authorizes an extension of the period of segregation for five years.

The act of March 1, 1907 (34 Stat. 1057), extends the provisions of the law to the former Southern Ute Indian Reservation in Colorado.

The joint resolution approved May 25, 1908 (35 Stat. 577), grants to the State of Idaho an additional 1,000,000 acres.

The act of May 27, 1908 (35 Stat. 317, 347), grants to the State of Idaho an additional 1,000,000 acres, and to the State of Wyoming an additional 1,000,000 acres.

The act of February 18, 1909 (35 Stat. 638, 639), extends the provisions of the Carey Act to the States of Arizona and New Mexico.

The act of February 24, 1909 (35 Stat. 644, 645), extends the provisions of the Carey Act to the former Ute Indian Reservation in Colorado.

The act of March 3, 1909 (35 Stat. 844), permits the States to elect to receive patent for coal lands with reservation of the coal to the United States.

The act of March 15, 1910 (36 Stat. 237), authorizes a temporary withdrawal for one year of lands which the State may propose to select with a view to enabling the State to examine the lands and plan the method of reclamation.

Section 23 of the act of April 4, 1910 (36 Stat. 269, 285), extends the provisions of the Carey Act to the former Uintah Indian Reservation in Utah.

Section 27 of the act of April 4, 1910 (36 Stat. 269, 288), as amended by section 18 of the act of June 25, 1910 (36 Stat. 855, 860), extends the Carey Act to the former Wind River Indian Reservation in Wyoming.

The act of June 22, 1910 (36 Stat. 583), permits Carey Act selections to be made for coal lands where the selection is made with a view to obtaining title to the surface only.

The act of February 16, 1911 (36 Stat. 913), extends the Carey Act to the former Fort Bridger Military Reservation in Wyoming.

The act of February 21, 1911 (36 Stat. 925), permits the sale of surplus water by the United States Bureau of Reclamation for use upon Carey Act lands.

The act of March 4, 1911 (36 Stat. 1363, 1417), grants the State of Nevada an additional 1,000,000 acres.

The joint resolution of August 21, 1911 (37 Stat. 38), grants the State of Colorado an additional 1,000,000 acres.

The act of August 24, 1912 (37 Stat. 496), extends the provisions of the Carey Act to oil and gas lands in the State of Utah where the selection is made with a view to obtaining title with a reservation of the mineral to the United States.

The act of February 27, 1913 (37 Stat. 687), makes a similar provision with regard to oil and gas lands in the State of Idaho.

The act of September 30, 1913 (38 Stat. 113), governs the methods of restoration to the public domain of lands withdrawn for any purpose, including Carey Act segregations and withdrawals.

The act of July 17, 1914 (38 Stat. 509), provides for Carey Act selections upon lands containing phosphate, nitrate, petroleum, oil, gas, or asphaltic minerals where the selection is made with a view to obtaining title with a reservation of the mineral to the United States.

The act of February 14, 1920 (41 Stat. 407), relates to preference rights of Carey Act entrymen upon lands restored to the public domain from Carey Act segregations.

Public Resolution No. 29 (41 Stat. 434), approved February 14, 1920, grants a preference right to ex-service men upon lands restored from Carey Act segregations to the public domain.

The act of January 6, 1921 (41 Stat. 1085), further amends the Carey Act by limiting the time within which the work of reclamation must be commenced.

Public Resolution No. 36 (42 Stat. 358), approved January 21, 1922, amends Public Resolution No. 29, relative to preference rights of ex-service men.

Circular No. 361

MARRIAGE OF FEMALE CITIZEN TO ALIEN AFTER INITIATING CLAIM TO PUBLIC LANDS—ACT OF OCTOBER 17, 1914 (38 STAT. 740)

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., November 4, 1914.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: Your attention is directed to the act of Congress approved October 17, 1914 (38 Stat. 740), copy appended, entitled "An act to provide for certificate of title to homestead entry by a female American citizen who has intermarried with an alien."

1. This act is applicable to all cases in which a female citizen of the United States, either native born or naturalized, has initiated a valid claim to a tract of public land by settlement or by filing an application to enter, or to acquire title under any of the public-land laws.

2. Where a woman who is a native-born citizen of the United States, or who has been fully naturalized, has initiated a claim to a tract of public land and marries before completing title thereto, it will not hereafter be necessary to require her to furnish evidence of her husband's citizenship; but if he be foreign born, she must show, by affidavit, that he is or may hereafter be himself entitled to become a citizen of the United States in accordance with the laws in that behalf made and provided. (Sec. 2169, U. S. Revised Statutes; sec. 14, act of Congress of May 6, 1882, 22 Stat. 58, 61; sec. 7, act of Congress of June 29, 1906, 34 Stat. 596.)

3. Where a woman who has declared her intention to become a citizen of the United States, or who occupies the status of a person who has declared such intention, has initiated a valid claim under some public-land law requiring full citizenship before completing title thereto, her marriage to an alien will not excuse her from showing either that she herself became fully naturalized before her marriage or that her husband is a citizen of the United States, as required by the regulations heretofore in force.

Very respectfully,

C. M. Bruce,
Acting Commissioner.

Approved.

A. A. Jones,
First Assistant Secretary.

GENTLEMEN: Inclosed find rubber stamp worded "Full citizenship shown," which must be stamped on the serial register in connection with every application to make entry if complete citizenship is shown. CIRCULAR NO. 857

CITIZENSHIP OF MARRIED WOMEN

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, October 11, 1922.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: Your attention is directed to the act of Congress approved September 22, 1922 (42 Stat. 1021), entitled "An act relative to the naturalization and citizenship of married women," a copy of which is appended.

In all cases of applications for entry of public land, or proofs in support of such entries, by married women otherwise duly qualified to make such entry or proof, you will require a showing of such facts concerning marital status and citizenship as may be rendered necessary by the provisions of said act.

The act makes no change in the existing requirements with respect to a female citizen of the United States who, after initiating a claim to public land, marries an alien, as set forth in paragraph 2, Circular No. 361 (43 L. D. 444), and she must show that her husband is entitled to become a citizen of the United States.

Office Circular No. 44, of August 17, 1911, is revoked.

Very respectfully,

WILLIAM SPRY,
Commissioner.

CIRCULAR NO. 1005 [1]

EVIDENCE REGARDING CITIZENSHIP IN PUBLIC-LAND CASES (CIRCULAR NO. 599 SUPERSEDED)

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, May 1, 1925.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: The following instructions relative to accepting evidence of citizenship in public land cases and returning citizenship papers to the parties will supersede the instructions (Circular No. 599) of May 14, 1918 (46 L. D. 382):

1. Evidence of a declaration of intention to become a citizen executed more than seven years before the date of the filing, unless it be shown that there is pending a petition for naturalization pursuant thereto filed within seven years after the date of the declaration, is not acceptable.

2. You may hereafter accept as evidence of a party's status a triplicate declaration of intention to become a citizen of the United States or an original certificate of naturalization. However, a certified copy of the paper made by the clerk of the court whence it issued is preferred, and if the copy is of a paper issued after September 26, 1906, it should be on the form prescribed by the Bureau of Naturalization. It is to the party's advantage to file a certified copy, since the triplicate declaration of intention to become a citizen is needed by him when petitioning for admission to citizenship, while the original certificate of naturalization may be lost or mutilated.

3. Triplicate declaration of intention to become a citizen, provided it has not become invalid by reason of its statutory life, or original certificate of naturalization will be returned by this office to the party upon request therefor or to any other person making request, provided it be clearly shown that the person applying is the proper person to receive the paper.

Very respectfully,

THOS. C. HAVELL,
Acting Commissioner.

Approved May 1, 1925.

E. C. FINNEY,
First Assistant Secretary.

CIRCULAR NO. 1202

EVIDENCE OF CITIZENSHIP

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, November 16, 1929.

Registers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: This office is in receipt of information from the Department of Labor that under the new naturalization law (act of March 2, 1929, 45 Stat. 1512), effective July 1, 1929, all certified copies of naturalization papers are to be issued by the Commissioner of Naturalization.

---

[1] See Circular No. 1202, p. 353.

As the result of conferences between officials of this office and representatives of the Bureau of Naturalization and of the Department of Labor it has been agreed that the issuance of certified copies of naturalization papers for land-office purposes will be discontinued and in lieu thereof the Bureau of Naturalization will in appropriate cases and on request of this office furnish statements as to the facts of the naturalization of applicants for public lands.

In cases where it is inconvenient or impossible for an applicant to furnish evidence of citizenship or declaration of intention in the form as required by instructions of May 1, 1925, Circular No. 1005, 51 L. D. 134, you may accept a sworn statement of the applicant, giving the facts as to his citizenship status, which statement should include the date of the alleged naturalization or declaration of intention, the title and location of the court in which instituted, and when available, the number of the document in question, if the proceeding has been had since September 26, 1906. In addition, in cases of naturalization prior to September 27, 1906, there should be given the date and place of the applicant's birth and the foreign country of which he was a citizen or subject.

The citizenship showing may be incorporated in any of the forms prescribed for use in connection with the entry of public lands. Where the necessary data have been given you will accept same and proceed with the case, leaving it to this office to secure verification of the citizenship status at the proper time.

You will furnish copies hereof to proof-taking officers in your district and give publicity thereto as a matter of news.

Very respectfully,

C. C. MOORE, Commissioner.

Approved, November 16, 1929.

First Assistant Secretary.

COAL ENTRIES, ETC.

[Reported, 46 L. D. 131]

Circular No. 557

COAL-LAND REGULATIONS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., July 7, 1917.

The following coal-land rules and regulations as now applicable, are herewith published for the instruction of the local land officers and the information of intending applicants. All rules and regulations in conflict herewith heretofore issued under said laws are hereby abrogated.

Rules and Regulations

1. The sale of coal lands is provided for—

(a) By ordinary cash entry under section 2347;

(b) By cash entry under a preference right to purchase acquired by compliance with the provisions of section 2348.

2. Coal lands may be entered only after survey and by legal subdivisions. The lands must be vacant and unappropriated coal lands of the United States, unreserved, unwithdrawn, and must contain workable deposits of coal and must not be valuable for mines of gold, silver, or copper. Lands containing lignites are included under the term "coal lands."

3. Entry by an individual may be made only by a person above the age of 21 years who is a citizen of the United States or has declared his intention to become such, and shall not embrace more than 160 acres. Entry by an association of persons may embrace 320 acres, but each person composing the association must be qualified as in the case of an individual entryman. A corporation is held to be an association under the provisions of the coal land law.

A married woman may make entry if the laws of the State in which she applies permit married women to purchase and hold for themselves real estate; but she must make the entry for her own benefit, and not in the interest of her husband or any other person, and she will be required, in addition to the other affidavits required herein, to show, by affidavit, whether she is single or married, and, if married, that the purchase price is furnished from her own separate funds in which her husband has no interest.

4. When an association of not less than four persons, severally qualified as required in the case of an individual entryman, shall have expended not less than $5,000 in working and improving a mine or mines of coal upon the public lands, such association may enter not exceeding 640 acres, including such mining improvements.

5. But one entry of coal lands by any person or association of persons is allowed by the law. No person who, and no association any member of which, either as an individual or as a member of an association, shall have had the benefits of the law may enter or hold any other coal lands thereunder. The right so to enter or hold is exhausted whether an entry embraces in any instance the maximum area allowed by the law or less; also by the acquisition of a preference right of entry unless sufficient cause for the abandonment thereof is shown. Assignment of a preference right of entry under section 2348, Revised Statutes, has not been recognized since April 12, 1907.

6. (a) Coal withdrawals, and all withdrawals under the withdrawal act of June 25, 1910 (36 Stat. L. 847), as amended by the act of August 24, 1912 (37 Stat. L. 497), prohibit the allowance of coal filings, applications, and entries while the withdrawals are outstanding. No preference or other right under the provisions of sections 2347–2352, inclusive, United States Revised Statutes, may be initiated or acquired on withdrawn coal lands or lands withdrawn under the provisions of said withdrawal act, subsequent to their withdrawal and prior to their restoration to coal-land entry.

(b) An Executive order of withdrawal is operative immediately at the time it is signed by the President.

(c) With reference, first, to cases where qualified persons or associations of qualified persons legally and in good faith went into possession of and opened and improved coal mines on the public domain within less than 60 days preceding the date when the lands upon which such mines are situated were withdrawn from coal entry or otherwise withdrawn under said withdrawal act and who have not filed coal declaratory statements; and, second, to cases where qualified persons or associations of qualified persons in good faith filed coal declaratory statements in the proper local land office prior to the date on which the lands covered thereby were withdrawn from coal entry or otherwise withdrawn under said withdrawal act and who, in consequence of such withdrawal orders, have thereby not been permitted to proceed to entry within the preference period, it is to be observed that said withdrawal act and withdrawals made thereunder make no provision whatever for the protection of or passing to patent of any coal-land claim, filing, or application; hence, before such persons in said cases, and other similar cases, may proceed to obtain title, it will be necessary to modify the withdrawal order.

In all these cases your procedure will be to receive, give proper serial numbers to and suspend the offered coal filings or applications and forward same, together with showing in support thereof, to the General Land Office, by special letter, and your report and recommendation thereon, whereupon said office will consider the same with a view of reporting to the department the advisability of recommending that the President modify the outstanding withdrawal order, to the extent of the land involved and only for the purpose of permitting the specified claimants to proceed to entry. In these cases such claimants will, if duly qualified and in the absence of other objections, be permitted upon modification of the withdrawal to purchase at the price existent at the date of the opening and improving of the mine of coal; subject, of course, and in proper cases, to the provisions of the law with reference to the distance of the land from a completed railroad at date of application and payment, and upon the further condition that the claimant or claimants diligently prosecute his, its, or their claim to completion within the time required by law and regulations.

The showing in support of the coal claimant's equities must be in duplicate, under oath and made by the claimant and such other individuals as are personally conversant with all of the facts in the case; be full and complete in every particular and should contain sufficient data to enable representatives of the Government to confirm the same by examination in the field and also enable the proper officers of the Government in Washington, D. C., to determine whether the case made by the claimant or claimants is such as to entitle him or them to favorable consideration, as hereinabove set forth.

(d) Information by means of schedules or diagrams, or both, will be furnished registers and receivers by the Commissioner of the General Land Office of the price at which all coal lands in their respective districts may be entered under the coal-land laws.

(e) Until the register and receiver at the proper local land office are in receipt of the coal classification and appraisal (preliminarily to which, generally, the lands are withdrawn under said act of June 25, 1910, as amended by said act of August 24, 1912, from coal filings, applications, and entries, although occasionally lands are classified without withdrawal, in which case the classification, or classification and appraisal, when made, occupies, so far as concerns proceedings under the coal-land laws, the same status as lands classified and appraised after withdrawal), accompanied by notice of the Executive order of restoration, they are not authorized to allow any coal filings, applications or entries for lands covered by Executive withdrawals, and if any such filings are presented they should be rejected outright, subject to the usual right of appeal.

(f) Lands classified as coal lands, appraised and restored to filing and entry, are, after the proper local land officers have been duly notified thereof and in the absence of other objection, subject to sale, under the coal-land law (entry, under nonmineral land laws of designated classes, of lands withdrawn or classified as coal lands, or valuable for coal, being permitted at any time prior to application therefor under the coal-land laws where the nonmineral entryman makes such entry with a reservation to the Government of the title to the coal deposits within the entered premises—see Addenda—in which event the coal deposits only may be entered, provided, always, that such coal deposits have then been restored to disposition under the coal-land laws and the regulations in force), at the appraised (or, if reappraised, at the reappraised) price, unless shown by the applicant to be of such character as to be subject to entry under some other law; except, that when lands which were, at the time of appraisal, more than 15 miles from a railroad are brought within the 15-mile limit by the beginning of operation of a new road, all values given in the original appraisal shall be doubled by the register and receiver.

(g) All public lands, and the coal deposits therein contained, (1) which have been withdrawn and thereafter classified, only, as coal and restored, (2) which have been withdrawn and thereafter classified as coal "price not fixed" and restored, (3) which have been withdrawn and thereafter restored without classification, or, (4) which have never been withdrawn, but which contain workable deposits of coal, are, if vacant, and otherwise available and so long as such lands are unaffected by, or embraced within, a coal withdrawal or other withdrawal under said withdrawal act, subject to coal filing and entry, unless shown by the applicant to be of such character as to be subject to entry under some other law.

As to the lands and the coal deposits therein contained, mentioned in said subdivision (g), the price thereof is, when same are sold under the coal-land laws, not less than $10 per acre when the lands is situated more than 15 miles from a completed railroad and $20 per acre when the land is situated within 15 miles of a completed railroad. When lands lie partly without such limit, the higher price must be paid for each smallest legal subdivision the greater part of which lies within 15 miles of such railroad. The term "completed railroad" is construed to mean a railroad actually constructed, equipped, and operating at the date the applicant filed proper application to purchase and paid the price of the land. The distance is to be calculated from the point on such railroad nearest the land applied for, and the facts in each case, including cases where the appraisal does not show that the appraised land is within the 15-mile limit, must be shown by the affidavit of the applicant, corroborated by the affidavits of two disinterested credible persons having actual knowledge thereof.

(h) Lands classified as noncoal are prima facie noncoal in character. You will advise any person presenting an application under the coal-land laws for lands classified as noncoal that he will be allowed 30 days in which to submit evidence, consisting preferably of the sworn statements of experts or practical miners, that the land is in fact coal in character, together with an application that it be reclassified, and that in the event of failure to furnish said evidence within the time specified the application will be rejected. Such application will be given proper serial numbers and notation thereof made upon the records, and when accompanied by the necessary evidence they will be forwarded to the General Land Office, where, if upon the showing made, and such other inquiry as may be deemed proper, the land is classified as coal land, the coal-land application will be returned for allowance in the absence of other objection. If reclassification be denied, the applicant may, within 30 days from receipt of notice, appeal or apply for a hearing, at which hearing he will be afforded an opportunity to show that the classification is improper, in which event he must assume the burden of proof. If he should fail to apply for a hearing within the time allowed, or to appeal, his application to enter or file will be finally rejected.

(i) In so far as any of the preceding subdivisions of this paragraph relate to the selling price of the land under the coal land laws, they are to be considered and observed in connection with what is hereinafter set forth in paragraph 18 of these regulations.

7. A preference right of entry accrues only where a person or association of persons, severally qualified, have opened and improved a coal mine or mines upon the public lands and shall be in actual possession thereof and not by the filing of a declaratory statement.

A perfunctory compliance with the law in this respect will not suffice, but a mine or mines of coal must be in fact opened and improved on the land claimed. The statute clearly contemplates the actual opening of a mine of coal and its improvement as such. Substantial steps, taken in good faith, looking to the creation of an operating and producing coal mine are essential. What specific work or workings constitute the opening of a mine, or what accomplishes the improvement of a mine when opened, are matters as to which no arbitrary and inflexible rule can be laid down. Each case as it arises must be determined upon the facts disclosed; but work merely for prospecting purposes does not meet the requirements of the coal land laws conferring a preference right of purchase upon one who opens and improves a coal mine upon the public domain.

There is no authority under which a coal mine upon public lands, entry not having been made, may be worked and operated for profit and sale of the coal, or beyond the opening and improving of the mine as a condition precedent to a preference right under section 2348 of the Revised Statutes. A violation of the law in this regard may subject the offending party to an action for damages for the trespass committed.

As to the circumstances under which nonmineral entrymen may, of right, use for domestic purposes upon the entered land deposits of coal belonging to the United States, see the statutes in the addenda.

To preserve a preference right of entry specified in the statute, the person or association of persons having acquired the same must present to the register of the proper land district, within 60 days from the date of actual possession and commencement of improvements upon the land, a declaratory statement therefor in all cases where the township plat has been filed. When the township plat is not on file at the date of such improvement, such declaratory statement must be presented within 60 days from the receipt of such plat at the district land office. (See, in this connection, par. 6, subdivisions (a) and (c).)

8. At any time prior to the issuance of patent protest may be filed against the patenting of the land applied for upon any ground tending to show that the applicant has failed to comply with the law in any matter essential to a valid entry under the patent proceedings, or upon any other ground sufficient to deny the issuance of patent.

Protests filed will be received and acted upon by the local officers in accordance with the rules of practice, and such rules will, as far as applicable, govern all cases and proceedings arising under the statutes providing for the sale of coal lands and deposits of coal. Government protests in connection with coal claims in forest reserves will be governed by the provisions of the joint regulations of September 4, 1915 (44 L. D. 360), and amendments thereto.

FEES OF REGISTERS AND RECEIVERS

9. In Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming registers and receivers are allowed by law a fee of $3 for each coal-land declaratory statement filed.

In Arkansas, North Dakota, and South Dakota registers and receivers are allowed by law a fee of $2 for each coal-land declaratory statement filed.

Declaratory-statement fees are earned irrespective of the action taken upon the declaratory statement.

Each applicant must at the time he presents his application to purchase, either in the exercise of a preference right or otherwise than in the exercise of a preference right, deposit with the receiver a filing fee of $10.

10. When it is sought to purchase otherwise than in the exercise of a preference right, the party will himself make oath to the following application, which must be presented to the register:

I, ——— ———, hereby apply, under the provisions of the Revised Statutes of the United States relating to the sale of coal lands of the United States, to purchase the —— quarter of section ——, in township —— of range ——, in the district of lands subject to sale at the land office at ———, and containing —— acres; and I solemnly swear that no portion of said tract is in the possession of any other party or parties who has or have commenced improvements thereon for the development of coal; that I am twenty-one years of age, a citizen of the United States (or have declared my intention to become a citizen of the United States), and have never held, except ——— or purchased any lands under said act, either as an individual or as a member of an association; that I make this application in good faith for my own benefit, and not, directly or indirectly, in whole or in part, in behalf of any other person or persons whomsoever; and I do further swear that I am well acquainted with the characted of said described land and with each and every legal subdivision thereof; that my knowledge of said land is such as to enable me to testify understandingly with regard thereto; that said land contains workable deposits of coal; that there is not to my knowledge within the limits thereof any valuable vein or lode of quartz or other rock in place bearing gold, silver, or copper; and that there is not within the limits of said land, to my knowledge, any valuable deposit of gold, silver, or copper. So help me God.

11. Where a preference right of entry is sought to be preserved the required declaratory statement must be substantially as follows:

I, ——— ———, do hereby declare my intention to purchase, in the exercise of a preference right, under the provisions of the Revised Statutes of the United States relating to the sale of the coal lands of the United States, the ——— quarter of section ——— of township ——— of range ——, in the district of the lands subject to sale at the district land office at ———; and I do solemnly swear that I am —— years of age and a citizen of the United States (or have declared my intention to become a citizen of the United States); that I have never, either as an individual or as a member of an association, held, except ——— or purchased any coal lands under the aforesaid provisions of the Revised Statutes; that I was in possession of, and commenced improvements on, said tract on the —— day of ———, A. D. 19—, and have ever since remained in actual possession continuously; that I have opened and improved a valuable mine of coal thereon, and have expended in labor and improvements on said mine the sum of ——— dollars, the labor and improvements being as follows: (Here describe the nature and character of the improvements); and I do furthermore solemnly swear that I am well acquainted with the character of said described land and with each and every legal subdivision thereof; that my knowledge of said land is such as to enable me to testify understandingly with regard thereto; that there is not, to my knowledge, within the limits thereof any valuable vein or lode of quartz or other rock in place bearing gold, silver, or copper, and that there is not within the limits of said land, to my knowledge, any valuable deposit of gold, silver, or copper. So help me God.

12. One year from and after the expiration of the period allowed for filing the declaratory statement is given within which to make proof and payment; but the local officers will allow no party to make final proof and payment except on special written notice to all others who appear on their records as claimants to the same tract. No notice will be given to parties whose declaratory statements have expired by limitation under the law.

13. A claimant who has failed to file declaratory statement within the 60-day period may, in the absence of intervening adverse rights in, or disposition of, the land involved, file declaratory statement at any time subsequent to such period and within the ensuing year, but a declarant will not be permitted to exercise a preference right of purchase after the expiration of the statutory period.

14. When it is sought to purchase, in the exercise of a preference right, the applicant must himself make the following affadivit, which must be presented to the register:

I, ——— ———, claiming under the provisions of the Revised Statutes of the United States relating to the sale of the coal lands of the United States, the preference right to purchase the —— quarter of section ——, in township —— of range ——, subject to sale at the district land office at ———, hereby apply to purchase and enter the same; and I do solemnly swear that I have not hitherto held, except ———, or purchased, either as an individual or as a member of an association, any coal lands under the aforesaid provisions of the law; that I have expended in developing coal mines on said tract, in labor and improvements, the sum of ——— dollars, the nature of such improvements being as follows: ——— ———; that I am now in the actual possession of said mines, and make the entry in good faith for my own benefit, and not, directly or indirectly, in whole or in part, in behalf of any person or persons whomsoever; and I do furthermore swear that I am well acquainted with the character of said described land, and with each and every legal subdivision thereof; that my knowledge of said land is such as to enable me to testify understandingly with regard thereto; that said land contains workable deposits of coal; that there is not, to my knowledge, within the limits thereof any valuable vein or lode of quartz or other rock in place bearing gold, silver, or copper, and that there is not within the limits of said land, to my knowledge, any valuable deposits of gold, silver, or copper. So help me God.

15. Where purchase and entry, whether in the exercise of a preference right or otherwise, is made by an association, each member thereof must subscribe and swear to the application or affidavit, the necessary changes being made to cover the joint possession and expenditure and the purchase and entry in their joint interest.

16. Each application, declaratory statement, and affidavit, forms whereof are given above, must be verified before the register or receiver or some officer authorized by law to administer oaths in the land district wherein the lands involved are situate. (Amendment of April 29, 1908, 36 L. D. 368.)

Necessary changes should be made in the application, declaratory statement, affidavit, and sworn statement where it is sought to acquire possession of or title to the coal deposits only.

17. Upon the filing of an application to purchase coal lands under the provisions of paragraphs 10 or 14 the applicant will be required, at his own expense, to publish a notice of said application in a newspaper nearest the lands, to be designated by the register, for a period of 30 days, during which time a similar notice must be posted in the local land office and in a conspicuous place on the land. The notice should describe the land applied for and state that the purpose thereof is to allow all persons claiming the land applied for, or desiring to show that the applicant's coal entry should not be allowed for any reason, an opportunity to file objections with the local land officers.

Publication must be made sufficiently in advance to permit entry within the year specified by the statute.

After an application to purchase has been received no other person will be permitted to file on the land embraced therein under any public-land law until such application shall have been finally disposed of adverse to the applicant.

Notations should be made upon the tract books and other records of the local land offices of the filing of all coal declaratory statements and applications to purchase under the coal-land law, and said coal declaratory statements and applications to purchase should be properly indorsed so as to show the date of filing, the filing fees, and purchase money paid. All such coal declaratory statements and applications to purchase, except rejected unappealed coal declaratory statements and applications to purchase, should also be noted upon the tract books of the General Land Office.

The local land officers will forward with the returns for each month all coal declaratory statements and applications to purchase received by them during the month, whether protested or not, unless the same are rejected or suspended by them.

Rejected coal declaratory statements and applications to purchase must be held for appeal, and transmitted to the General Land Office with the returns for the month during which the appeal is filed, or for the month in which the time allowed for appeal expires. There must be attached to each rejected coal declaratory statement or application to purchase a " rejection slip " (Form 4–659), or copy of notice of rejection, properly signed, and the final disposition must be plainly noted on such rejection slip, or copy of notice or rejection, before the papers are transmitted with the monthly returns, together with all proofs of service.

Except as otherwise provided for in these regulations, suspended coal declaratory statements and applications to purchase must be forwarded with the returns for the month during which the suspension was removed.

When proper application to purchase coal land, whether at private entry under section 2347, Revised Statutes, or in the exercise of a preference right under section 2348, Revised Statutes, is filed and is not, for any reason, rejected or suspended by the local land officers, the register will, at the time such application to purchase is filed, prepare the proper notices for publication and forward copy thereof to the chief of field division or the proper forest officer, if the lands are in a national forest, and to the State, if in a school section. The register and receiver will thereafter forward the application to purchase, indorsed so as to show the date of filing and the amount of filing fee paid, with the returns for the month in which the application to purchase was filed, together with their written report as to the amount, if any, of purchase money paid (see 41 L. D. 417), and as to the action taken by them with reference to publication of notice, delivering copy of same to the chief of field division and other parties entitled to such copy. When the proofs are completed they must forward the same as provided by Circular No. 105,[a] as amended.

[a] Circular No. 105 has been superseded by Circular No. 616, p. 48.

Contests should be duly noted upon the records as required by the circular of August 4, 1910 (39 L. D. 150–151).

The register and receiver will promptly report to the General Land Office, with appropriate recommendation, all coal-land applications wherein proof and payment are not made within the time required. See, in this connection, amended paragraph 18.

18. After the 30 days' period of newspaper publication has expired the claimant will furnish from the office of publication a sworn statement (including an attached copy of the published notice) that the notice was published for the required period, giving the first and last date of such publication, and his own affidavit, or that of some credible person having personal knowledge of the fact, showing that the notice aforesaid remained conspicuously posted upon the land sought to be patented during said 30 days' publication, giving the dates. The register shall certify to the fact that the notice was posted in his office for the full period of 30 days, the certificate to state distinctly when such posting was done and how long continued, giving the dates.

The claimant will be required within 30 days after the expiration of the period of newspaper publication to furnish the proofs specified in this paragraph, whereupon, and after receipt of report of chief of field division, as required in paragraphs 5 and 6 of circular approved April 24, 1907, the register and receiver will examine the proofs submitted, and if all be found regular and the application allowable will, by registered mail or personal service, so notify the applicant in writing, requiring him, within 15 days from receipt of notice of such allowance, to make payment of the purchase money unless it has theretofore been made. Should the specified proofs and purchase money be not furnished and tendered within the time prescribed, the local officers will reject the application subject to appeal. In the exercise of a preference right of purchase, the publication and posting of notice should be completed and the proof thereof filed within the year fixed by the statute.

Applicants to purchase under section 2347 of the Revised Statutes may at their option pay for the land at the time of filing their applications to purchase, or at any time thereafter, up to 15 days from and after receipt of notice from the register and receiver, as hereinbefore provided. The price to be paid will be that existent at date of actual payment of the purchase money by the applicants to the register and receiver, and a subsequent increase in the price will not affect their right to complete the applications, if proceedings be diligently prosecuted to final proof and entry. Where payments are not made at time of filing applications to purchase, but are deferred to a later date, and an increase in valuation has occurred subsequent to application to purchase, but before the actual tender and payment of the purchase money, the applicants will in all such cases be required to pay the new or higher price.

The foregoing is not applicable to coal-land claimants who have initiated claims under section 2348 of the Revised Statutes, by the opening and improving of a mine of coal on public land, and who have diligently prosecuted their claims to completion, as required by the law and regulations. Such claimants will be required to pay the price fixed and existent at the time of the initiation of their claims. (As amended December 30, 1912, 41 L. D. 417, 418.)

When the purchase price is paid the receiver will deposit the same to his official credit as "trust funds" (unearned moneys) and the same may be held until earned and applied or returned.

19. Of the following forms, the one appropriate to the sections of the Revised Statutes under which application is made should be used for publication of all notices of application to enter coal lands:

CLASSIFICATION AND VALUATION OF PUBLIC COAL LANDS

(NOTE.—The classification and valuation of public coal lands are made by the U. S. Geological Survey. Notice thereof is sent to the proper local officers by the General Land Office.)

REGULATIONS, FEBRUARY 20, 1913

I. CLASSIFICATION

1. Land shall be classified as coal land if it contains coal having—

(a) A heat value of not less than 8,000 B. t. u. on an air-dried, unwashed or washed, unweathered mine sample.

(b) A thickness of or equivalent to 14 inches for coals having a heat value of 12,000 B. t. u. or more, increasing 1 inch for a decrease from 12,000 to 11,000 B. t. u., 1 inch for a decrease from 11,000 to 10,500 B. t. u., 1 inch for each decrease of 250 B. t. u. from 10,500 to 10,000, and 1 inch for each decrease of 100 B. t. u. below 10,000.

(c) A depth below the surface for a bed of coal 6 feet or more thick of not more than 100 feet for each 300 B. t. u. or major fraction thereof, and for a bed of minimum thickness for that coal a depth of not more than 500 feet, and for beds of any thickness between the minimum and 6 feet a depth directly proportional to that thickness within these limits, provided that, if the coal lies below the depth limit but within a horizontal distance from the surface not exceeding 10 times the depth limit, or if its horizontal distance from the foot of a possible shaft (not deeper than the depth limit) plus 7.5 times the depth of such shaft does not exceed 10 times the depth limit, the land shall be classified as coal land; provided, further, that the depth limit shall be computed for each individual bed, except that where two or more beds occur in such relations that they may be mined from the same opening the depth limit may be determined on the group as a unit, being fixed at the center of weight of the group, no coal that is below the depth limit thus determined to be considered.

2. Classification shall be made by quarter quarter sections or surveyed lots. (As amended February 16, 1915, 43 L. D. 520.)

II. VALUATION

3. For purposes of valuation the price per ton for a noncoking, nonanthracite coal 6 to 10 feet thick shall be one-tenth of a cent for each 1,250 B. t. u.:

(a) Provided that the price per ton may be increased by not more than 100 per cent if the coal is coking, smokeless, or anthracitic or has other enhancing qualities; or it may be decreased for high sulphur or ash, friability, or nonstocking or other qualities that reduce the value; and

(b) Provided, further, that if the coal in one bed is over 10 feet thick the price on each foot above 10 feet shall be reduced 1 per cent for each such foot (thus the reduction will be 1 per cent on the eleventh foot, 2 per cent on the twelfth foot, and so on); or if the coal is less than 6 feet thick the price shall be reduced by multiplying the normal value by $\frac{4+t}{10}$, where t equals thickness in feet; and

(c) Provided that where the thickness of any bed varies irregularly its computed thickness (CT) over any area shall be equal to the average of the measurements (AM) less the sum of the differences between each measurement and the average of the measurements (SD) divided by the sum of the measurements (S):

$$CT = AM - \frac{SD}{S}$$

4. The value of any acre within 15 miles of a railroad in operation shall be determined at the rate per ton prescribed above on an estimated recoverable tonnage of 1,000 tons to the acre-foot:

Provided that if the coal is in several beds having an aggregate thickness of more than 10 feet if beds less than 6 feet thick are considered at the reduced thickness as prescribed above, the value due to each foot above 10 feet shall be reduced 1 per cent for each such foot (as in computing the price per ton on a single thick bed) up to a thickness of 80 feet, above which any additional thickness shall be valued at 30 per cent of the normal value.

5. This price shall be decreased one-half if the land is more than 15 miles from a railroad in operation, or if it is within that limit but inaccessible owing to topographic conditions; but no land shall be valued at less than the legal minimum price, nor shall the price of any land exceed $300 an acre except in districts which contain large coal mines and where the character and extent of the coal are well known.

6. Within the above restrictions a graded allowance shall be made for increasing depth, and allowance may be made for any special conditions enhancing or diminishing the value of the land for coal mining.

7. If only a part of a smallest legal subdivision is underlain by coal the price per acre shall be fixed by dividing the total estimated coal values by the number of acres in the subdivision, but this price shall be not less than the minimum provided by law.

8. When lands which were at the time of classification more than 15 miles from a railroad are brought within the 15-mile limit by the beginning of operation of a new road, all values given in the original classification shall be doubled by the register and receiver.

9. Review of classification or valuation may be had only on application therefor to the Secretary, accompanied by a clear and specific statement of conditions not existing or not known to exist at the time of examination.

Circular No. 362

COAL PROSPECTORS' BONDS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, November 7, 1914.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: You are advised that, under date of October 26, 1914, the department amended paragraph 2 of subdivision 6 of departmental instructions, dated September 8, 1910[b] (39 L. D. 179, 473), under the act of June 22, 1910 (36 Stat. 583), so as to read as follows:

> As a condition precedent to the exercise of the right mentioned in this act to prospect for coal, the person desiring so to prospect must file in the office of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, for submission to the Secretary of the Interior for his approval, a bond or understaking to indemnify the nonmineral claimant in lawful possession under this act from all damages that may accrue to the latter's crops and improvements on such lands by reason of such prospecting, the right to prospect to date from receipt of notice of approval of the bond. There must be filed with such bond evidence of service of a copy thereof upon the nonmineral claimant. The bond must be executed by the prospector as principal, with two competent individual sureties or a corporate surety that has complied with the provisions of the act of August 13, 1894, (28 Stat. 279), as amended by the act approved March 23, 1910, (36 Stat. 241), in the sum of $1,000, as per form hereto annexed. Except in the case of a bond given by a qualified corporate surety, there must be filed therewith affidavits of justification by the sureties, and a certificate by a judge or clerk of a court of record, a United States district attorney, a United States commissioner, or a United States postmaster, as to the identity, signatures, and financial competency of the sureties. Coal declaratory statements for and applications to purchase the coal deposits in lands entered, selected, or withdrawn under the reclamation act, as provided in section 2 of act, will be received and filed at any time after such entry or selection has been received and allowed of record or such withdrawal has become a matter of record in your office; coal declaratory statements for and applications to purchase the coal deposits in those lands embraced in nonmineral entries, selections, or locations made in good faith, described in, and protected by, the proviso in section 1 of the act, will be accepted and filed after it shall have been determined and become a matter of record in your office that such nonmineral entryman, selector, or locator shall receive the limited patent prescribed in the act: Provided always, That such lands, or the coal deposits therein, have then been restored to disposition under the coal-land laws and the regulations in force.

You are further advised that on and after December 1, 1914, any coal prospector's bond presented to your office should have attached the proper stamps, called for by the recent act to increase the internal revenue, and for other purposes, approved October 22, 1914 (38 Stat. 754).

Very respectfully,

D. K. Parrott,
Acting Assistant Commissioner.

Circular No. 384

TRANSMITTAL OF COAL PROSPECTORS' BONDS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, February 27, 1915.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: Hereafter when coal prospectors' bonds, provided for by the act of June 22, 1910 (36 Stat. 583), are filed in your offices, you will, instead of the prevalent practice of delaying their transmittal until transmitted in the subsequent monthly returns with the coal declaratory statement or other filing to which they are incident, promptly examine the same, and if they satisfy the requirements of Circular No. 362, of November 7, 1914, transmit them to this office by special letter. If they do not satisfy these requirements, you will take appropriate steps in order that they may be completed or corrected.

If a coal declaratory statement be filed in addition to the bond, it may be retained in your office and may be sent up with the monthly returns, as at present, but in the letter transmitting the bond the filing of the declaratory statement should be noted.

Very respectfully,

Clay Tallman, Commissioner.

COAL PERMITS, LEASES, AND LICENSES

[Reported, 47 L. D. 489]

Circular No. 679[1]

COAL MINING LEASES, PERMITS, AND LICENSES (EXCLUSIVE OF ALASKA)

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
April 1, 1920.

Register and Receiver, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: Under authority of the act of Congress approved February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. 437), entitled "An act to promote the mining of coal, phosphate, oil, oil shale, gas, and sodium on the public domain," the following rules and regulations are prescribed for the administration of the provisions of said act relative to coal:

1. Methods of disposition.—Sections 2 to 8, inclusive, of said act authorize the Secretary of the Interior to—

(1) Divide into leasing units and award leases of coal lands and coal deposits owned by the United States;

(2) Issue permits to prospect unclaimed and undeveloped areas of coal lands and coal deposits; and

(3) Issue limited licenses or permits to prospect for, mine, and take for use coal from public lands.

2. Lands to which applicable.—The act applies to the coal lands, or the deposits of coal, classified and unclassified, owned by the United States, including those in national forests, and including the coal deposits reserved under laws authorizing entries and patents with reservation to the United States of such deposits; also to coal lands in ceded or restored Indian reservations the proceeds from the disposition of which are the property of the United States. It does not include land or deposits in (a) national parks, (b) forests created under the act of March 1, 1911 (36 Stat. 961), known as the Appalachian forest reserve act, (c) lands in military or naval reservations, (d) Indian reservations, nor (e) ceded or restored Indian lands, the proceeds from the disposition of which are credited to the Indians.

All permits or leases for the exploration for or development of coal deposits under this act within the limits of national forests or other reservations or withdrawals to which this act is applicable shall be subject to and contain such conditions, stipulations, and reservations as the Secretary of the Interior shall deem necessary for the protection of such forests, reservations, or withdrawals, and the uses and purposes for which created.

3. Who may take.—Leases and prospecting permits may be issued to citizens of the United States, associations of citizens, corporations organized under the laws of the United States or any State or Territory thereof, and to municipalities. Limited licenses or permits for the mining of coal may be issued to citizens, associations of citizens, and municipalities. Leases may also be issued to operating railroad companies to mine coal for their own use for railroad purposes, subject to certain restrictions found in section 2 of the act.

4. Equitable rights.—Equitable rights of claimants who, prior to the date of the act, occupied and improved coal lands in good faith may be recognized in awarding leases of such lands, in which cases the rents and royalties, not less than the minimum provided for leases under the act, will be fixed by the Secretary of the Interior.

5. Repealing and saving clause.—Section 37 of the act provides that hereafter the deposits of coal, phosphate, sodium, oil, oil shale, and gas referred to and described in the act, including lands and deposits described in joint resolution of August 1, 1912 (37 Stat. 1346), may be disposed of only in the manner provided in the act " except as to valid claims existent at date of passage of this act, and thereafter maintained in compliance with the laws under which initiated, which claims may be perfected under such laws, including discovery."

As to coal, those claims initiated under the preexisting law may go to patent, which, at the date of the act, were covered by valid coal declaratory statements or applications to purchase which are timely followed up and perfected in accordance with the controlling coal land laws (secs. 2348 to 2352, Revised Statutes), and the regulations thereunder (circular No. 557) ; likewise, one who has opened and improved a mine of coal on unsurveyed lands may proceed to perfect his claim within sixty days from the filing of the official plat of survey, pursuant to section 2349, Revised Statutes.

6. Fees and commissions.—(a) For receiving and acting upon each application for a permit, lease, or license filed in the district land office in accordance with these regulations, there shall be paid a fee of $2 for every 160 acres, or fraction thereof, in such application, but such fee in no case to be less than $10, the same to be paid by the applicant and considered as earned when paid, and to be credited in equal parts on the compensation of the register and receiver within the limitations provided by law.

(b) Registers and receivers shall be entitled to a commission of 1 per cent of all moneys received in each receiver's office, to be equally divided between the register and receiver; such commission will not be collected from the applicant, lessee, or permittee in addition to the moneys otherwise provided to be paid.

It should be understood that the commissions herein provided for will not affect the disposition of the proceeds arising from operations under the act, as provided in section 35 thereof; also that such commissions will be credited on compensation of registers and receivers only to the extent of the limitation provided by law for maximum compensation of such officers.

I. COAL LEASES

7. Leasing units.—Under section 2 of the act, no coal land or deposits may be leased until after division into suitable leasing units or tracts. Such leasing units may be created by the Secretary of the Interior (a) pursuant to the petition of a qualified applicant, that is, qualified to take a lease under the act, or (b) on his own initiative.

Leasing units will not exceed 2,560 acres in area. All material factors, such as character and depth of the coal deposits, topography of the land, situation with respect to adjacent private holdings of coal lands, the proximity of rail or water transportation, and outlet for other lands in the immediate vicinity, as well as the investment reasonably required to provide the requisite development and operating facilities, will be given consideration in the establishment of leasing units.

Such leasing units will comprise contiguous tracts, except in cases where it appears that noncontiguous tracts can be practically worked on a single mine or unit.

Leasing units may include, in whole or in part, unsurveyed land, but a survey of the land will be made and the leasing unit conformed to such survey prior to the execution of a lease thereof.

8.[2] Minimum development.—An actual bona fide expenditure for mine operation, development, or improvement purposes of the amount determined by the Secretary, and stated in the lease offer hereinafter referred to, is adopted as the minimum basis for granting leases, with the requirement that not less than one-third of the required investment shall be expended in development of the mine during the first year, and a like amount each year for the two succeeding years, the investment during any one year over such proportionate amount for that year to be credited on the expenditure required for the ensuing year or years. A bond executed by the lessee, with approved corporate surety, will be required to be furnished, in the sum of $10,000, conditioned upon the expenditure of the specified amount of investment. After said investment has been made a similar bond in the sum of $5,000, conditioned upon compliance with the terms of the lease, will be required.

9. Petitions for leasing units.—Any person, association of persons, or corporation qualified to take a lease may file in the proper district land office a petition to divide coal lands into leasing units for purpose of lease. Such petition should set forth—

(a) Name and post-office address of petitioner.

(b). Statement showing qualifications of petitioner to take a lease under the act; proof of citizenship to be made by affidavit if native born; if naturalized, by certified copy (special form for land cases) of certificate thereof if copy is not already on file; if a corporation, by certified copy of the articles of incorporation; if a municipality, a showing of (1) the law or charter and procedure taken by which it became and exists a legal body corporate, (2) that the taking of a permit or lease is authorized under such law or charter, and (3) that the action proposed has been duly authorized by the governing body of such municipality; and the applicant must make affidavit that he or it is not disqualified to take a permit or lease under the provisions of section 27 of the act. Corporations must also submit a showing as to the residence and citizenship of its stockholders.

(c) Description of the land, by legal subdivisions if surveyed, or if not surveyed, by metes and bounds or natural monuments, with such particularity as to render possible its identification with certainty. Where possible, description of the land by the approximate subdivisions of the future survey should be given.

[2] See amendments, pp. 382, 383, and 389.

(d) Statement of the general situation of the land with respect to other mines, its topography, outlet to market, and transportation facilities.

(e) Character and extent of the coal deposits so far as known.

(f) The contemplated investment for the development and equipment of a producing mine of a stated average daily output.

(g) Maximum royalty petitioner is willing to pay if awarded lease of the land described in petition, or any specific portion thereof, together with a statement by or on behalf of petitioner that, in the absence of any better bid for lease of said land, he will, within 30 days from auction of lease, execute a lease therefor and comply with its terms in good faith.

10. Action by local office.—Registers and receivers will assign current serial numbers to such petitions, promptly note the petitions on their records, and transmit them to the General Land Office with report of the record status of the land described.

After receipt of such a petition, no filing for any of the land described therein will be accepted until so directed, except other petitions for diving into leasing units.

11. Action on petition.—If the terms offered by the petitioner for lease of the land or deposits are considered tentatively acceptable as minimum terms for such land or deposits, examination, classification, and blocking the land into leasing unit or units will be directed. If it be found thereby that the land desired by the petitioner constitutes a suitable unit, and the terms offered by him are considered acceptable therefor, the land or deposits will be advertised for lease to the bidder offering the highest bonus for such lease on the same terms. But, if it be found as a result of such examination and blocking out, that the land does not constitute an acceptable leasing unit, or if the royalty offered, or investment contemplated, is considered inadequate, the petitioner will be so advised, and also of the form and area in which the land or deposits will be leased and the minimum terms on the basis of which lease will be offered for sale, whereupon the petitioner will be permitted to amend his offer to meet the terms required. If the offer is so amended, the leasing units will be advertised for lease to the bidder offering the highest bonus for such lease; but if no bidder offers a bonus for such lease, same will be awarded to the petitioner. In case the petitioner fails to make a satisfactory minimum lease offer, the leasing unit may or may not be offered for lease, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior.

12. Notice of offer.—When any coal lands are divided into leasing tracts, the appropriate district land office will be advised thereof, whereupon the register will publish a notice for a period of 30 days in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the lands or deposits are situated, of the offer of the land for lease, and the date and hour on which bids will be received at his office, such date to be not earlier than the last day of publication. The notice will describe the land, state the amount of royalty and rental to be charged, and the minimum investment required, and that the sale of lease will be made at public auction at the time fixed to the qualified bidder offering the highest bonus for the privilege of leasing the land on the terms set forth. A copy of the notice will also be posted in the land office during publication thereof. Publication of the offer will be at the expense of the Government.

All bidders at any public sale of leases are warned against committing any act by intimidation, combination or unfair management, to hinder or prevent bidding thereat, in violation of section 59 of the Criminal Code of the United States, approved March 4, 1909.

13. Auction of lease.—At the time fixed in the notice, the register or receiver will, by public auction at his office, offer the land or deposits for lease on the terms and conditions fixed in the notice to the qualified bidder of the highest amount offered as a bonus for the privilege of leasing the land, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Interior. The successful bidder must deposit with the receiver on the day of sale a certified check or cash, for one-fifth of the amount of his bid, such sum to be deposited by the receiver in his account "Trust funds—Unearned money."

14. Right to reject bids.—The right is reserved by the Secretary of the Interior to reject any and all bids; and should a bid be rejected, the deposit made by the bidder will be returned.

15. Action by bidder.—The successful bidder will be allowed 30 days from date of auction within which (a) to file in the district land office a lease, duly executed by him in triplicate in the form herein prescribed, (par. 18); (b) to file evidence of qualifications as prescribed by paragraph 9 (b) hereof, unless such evidence has theretofore been filed; (c) to file the bond required by section 2 (b) of the lease, or U. S. bonds in lieu thereof under the act of February 24, 1919 (40 Stat. 1148); (d) to pay the remainder of the bonus bid by him and the annual rental for the first year of the lease, together with the required filing fee of $2 for each 160 acres of land, or fraction thereof, but in no case less than $10.

16. Action by district officers.—At the end of the 30 days allowed the successful bidder, or sooner, if the foregoing be complied with by him, the local offices will forward by special letter all papers with full report of action taken. In case of default, the amount deposited by the bidder will be forfeited, and disposed of as other receipts under this act.

17. Modifications of leases.—Under section 3 of the act, where a lease has been issued, modifications may be secured to include therein additional contiguous coal lands or coal deposits, not exceeding a total of 2,560 acres in the lease. Under section 4 of the act, upon satisfactory showing by the lessee that all of the workable coal within a tract covered by the lease will be exhausted, worked out, or removed within three years thereafter, additional tracts may be leased, which, including the lands or deposits remaining in the lease, shall not exceed 2,560 acres, such lease of additional lands to be made under similar procedure and on the same conditions as original leases.

18. Form of lease.—Leases hereunder will be in substance as follows:

(1 b) The right to lease, sell, or otherwise dispose of the surface of said lands or any part thereof under existing law or laws hereafter enacted, in so far as said surface is not necessary for the use of the lessee in the mining and removal of the coal therein, and to lease other mineral deposits in the lands, under the provisions of said act.

(1 c) Full power and authority to carry out and enforce all the provisions of section 30 of said act to insure the sale of the production of said leased lands to the United States and to the public at reasonable prices, to prevent monopoly; and to safeguard the public welfare.

(2 f) To furnish quarterly, within 30 days after the expiration of the quarter, a written report covering such quarter, certified under oath by the superintendent of the mine, or by such other agent having personal knowledge of the facts as may be designated by the lessee for such purpose, showing the number of tons of 2,000 pounds of coal mined during the quarter, the character and quality thereof, amount of coal and products and by-products thereof disposed of and price received therefor, amount of coal and its products in storage or held for sale, and amount used in operations under this lease.

Each map of the workings in any coal bed shall show the thickness of the coal and of partings, and the dip and strike of each bed at intervals of 500 feet or less; the location of all openings connecting such bed with the workings in any other bed, or with any adjacent mine, or with the surface; the location of all entries, gangways, rooms, or breasts, and all other mine openings, shafts, airways, appliances, and devices, constructed or placed in the mine or any of the workings thereof; and such maps shall also show the elevation relative to sea level or a Government survey corner of the principal points of the various beds and workings.

All mine progress maps kept by the lessee shall at all times be subject to examination by lessor.

(2 i) That, beginning with the fourth year of the lease, except when such operation shall be interrupted by strikes, the elements, or casualties not attributable to the lessee, the lessee shall mine and pay a royalty on not less than ______ tons of coal per year, unless on application and showing made, operations shall be suspended for not exceeding six months at any one time, pursuant to section 7 of the act; or unless the lessee shall pay the royalty less rent, on such minimum amount of coal, for one year in advance, in which case operations may be suspended for that year.

(2 j) That the lessee shall not assign this lease or any interest therein, nor sublet any portion of the leased premises without the written consent of the lessor being first had and obtained.

Sec. 3. It is mutually understood and agreed that the lessor shall have the right to readjust and fix the royalties payable hereunder and other terms and conditions at the end of 20 years from the date hereof, and thereafter at the end of each succeeding 20-year period during the continuance of this lease unless otherwise provided by law at the time of the expiration of any such period, but in case the lessee be dissatisfied with the rate of royalty or other terms and conditions so fixed, he may terminate this lease in the manner and under the conditions provided in sections 6 (b) and 6 (c) hereof.

SEC. 4. This lease is made subject to the following provisions, which the lessee accepts and covenants faithfully to perform and observe, unless the laws of the State where the leased land or deposits are situated otherwise provide, in which case such State laws control:

(4 a) The lessee shall carry out and observe regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior and in force at the date hereof relative to (1) reasonable diligence, skill, and care in the operation of said property in accordance with approved methods and practices; (2) the prevention of undue waste; (3) the safety and welfare of miners; and (4) insuring the fair and just weighing or measurement of the coal mined by each miner.

(4 b) And also shall pay all miners and other employees, both above and below ground, at least twice each month in lawful money of the United States, and shall permit such miners and other employees full and complete freedom of purchase, but with a view to increasing safety this provision shall not apply to the purchase of explosives, detonators, or fuses; and shall not require or permit miners or other employees, except in case of emergency, to work underground for more than eight hours in any one workday, and shall not employ any boy under the age of 16 years, or any girl or woman without regard to age in any mine below the surface.

SEC. 5. And the lessee also expressly agrees that all mining and related operations shall be subject to the inspection of authorized representatives of the lessor, and that such representatives, with all proper and necessary assistants, may at all reasonable times enter into and upon the leased lands and survey and examine same and all surface and underground improvements, works, machinery, equipment, and operations.

(5 a) And also shall permit the lessor to examine all books and records pertaining to operations under this lease, and to make copies of and extracts from any or all of same, if desired.

(5 b) And also shall permit the lessor or its lessees or transferees, with the approval of the lessor, to make and use upon or under the leased lands any workings necessary for freeing any other mine from water or gas, or extinguishing fires, causing as little damage or interference as possible to or with the mine or mining operations of the lessee hereunder: Provided, That any such use by a transferee or another lessee shall be conditioned upon the payment to the lessee hereunder of the amount of actual damages sustained thereby and adequate compensation for such use.

(5 c) And also shall, at the termination of this lease, as the result of forfeiture thereof, pursuant to paragraph (6 d), deliver up to the lessor the lands covered thereby, including all fixtures, machinery, improvements, and appurtenances, other than strictly personal property, situate on any of said lands, in good order and condition, so as to permit of immediate continued operation to the full extent and capacity of the leased premises.

SEC. 6. It is further mutually understood and agreed as follows:

(6 a) That the lessor may, in writing, waive any breach of the covenants and conditions contained herein, except such as are required by the act, but any such waiver shall extend only to the particular breach so waived, and shall not limit the rights of the lessor with respect to any furture breach; nor shall the waiver of a particular cause of forfeiture prevent cancellation of this lease for any other cause, or for the same cause occurring at another time.

(6 b) The lessee may, on consent of the Secretary of the Interior first had and obtained, surrender and terminate this lease upon payment of all rents, royalties, and other debts due and payable to the lessor and upon payment of all wages or moneys due and payable to the workmen employed by the lessee, and upon a satisfactory showing to the Secretary of the Interior that the public interest will not be impaired; and the lessee may with like consent surrender any legal subdivision of the area included within the lease; but in no case shall such termination be effective until the lessee shall have made provision for the preservation of any mines or productive works or permanent improvements on the lands covered hereby.

(6 c)[3] That on the termination of this lease, pursuant to the last preceding paragraph, the lessor, his agent, licensee, or lessee shall have the exclusive right, at the lessor's election, to purchase at any time within six months, at the appraised value thereof, all buildings, machinery, equipment, and tools, placed by the lessee in or on the land leased hereunder, save and except all underground timbering, and such other supports and structures as are necessary for the preservation of the mine, which shall be and remain a part of the realty without further consideration or compensation; that the purchase price to be paid for said buildings, machinery, equipment, and tools to be purchased as aforesaid, shall be fixed by appraisal of three disinterested and competent persons (one to be designated by each party thereto and the third by the two so designated), the valuation of the three or a majority of them to be conclusive; that pending such election to purchase within said period of six months none of said buildings or other property shall be removed from their normal position; that if such valuation be not requested, or the lessor shall affirmatively elect not to purchase within said period of six months, the lessee shall have the privilege of removing said buildings and other property, except said timbering and other supports and structures, as are necessary for the preservation of the mine, as aforesaid.

(6 d) If the lessee shall fail to comply with the provisions of the act or make default in the performance or observance of any of the terms, covenants, and stipulations hereof, or of the general regulations promulgated and in force at date hereof, the lessor may institute appropriate proceedings in a court of competent jurisdiction for the forfeiture and cancellation of this lease as provided in section 31 of the act, but this provision shall not be construed as depriving the lessor of any legal or equitable remedy which the lessor might otherwise have.

Sec. 7. It is further covenanted and agreed that, should the lessee fail to take prompt and necessary steps to prevent loss or damage to the mine, property, or premises, or danger to the employees, the lessor may enter on the premises and take such measures as may be deemed necessary to prevent such loss or damage or to correct the dangerous or unsafe condition of the mine or works thereof, which shall be at the expense of lessee.

Sec. 8. It is further covenanted and agreed that each obligation hereunder shall extend to and be binding upon, and every benefit hereof shall inure to, the heirs, executors, administrators, successors, or assigns of the respective parties hereto.

Sec. 9. It is also further agreed that no member of or delegate to Congress, or resident commissioner, after his election or appointment, or either before or after he has qualified, and during his continuance in office, and that no officer, agent, or employee of the Department of the Interior, shall be admitted to any share or part in this lease, or derive any benefit that may arise therefrom, and the provisions of section 3741 of the Revised Statutes of the United States and sections 114, 115, and 116 of the Codification of the Penal Laws of the United States approved March 4, 1909 (35 Stat. 1109), relating to contracts enter into and form a part of this lease so far as the same may be applicable.

undeveloped lands where prospecting or exploratory work is necessary to determine the existence or workability of the coal deposits.

20. Area.—Permits will be issued for tracts of not exceeding 2,560 acres of contiguous lands, or, if not contiguous, in reasonably compact form, considering the reasons for not including a contiguous area. Where lands included in a permit have been or may be disposed of with reservation of the coal deposits, a permittee must make full compliance with the law under which such reservation was made, reference being made to the acts of March 3, 1909 (35 Stat. 844); June 22, 1910 (36 Stat. 583); December 29, 1916 (39 Stat. 862), and other laws authorizing such reservations.

21. Rights conferred.—A permit will entitle the permittee to the exclusive right to prospect for coal on the land described therein. In the exercise of this right, the permittee shall be authorized to remove from the premises only such coal as may be necessary in order to determine the workability and commercial value of the coal deposits in the land.

22.[4] Application for permit.—Applications for permits shall be filed in the proper district land office, and, after due notation thereof on the records, forwarded to the General Land Office with report of status of the land affected. No specific form of application is required and no blanks will be furnished, but it should cover, in substance, the following points:

(a) Applicant's name and address;

(b) Proof of citizenship and qualifications to take a lease as required by paragraph 9 (b) hereof;

(c) Description of land for which a permit is desired by legal subdivision if surveyed, and by metes and bounds and such other description as will identify the land if unsurveyed. If unsurveyed, a survey sufficient to identify more fully and segregate the land may be required before permit is granted;

(d) Condition of coal occurrences, so far as determined; description of workings, and outcrops of coal beds, if any, and reason why the land is believed to offer a favorable field for prospecting for coal;

(e) Detailed plan and method of conducting prospecting or exploratory operations on the land, estimated cost of carrying out such proposed prospecting operations, and the diligence with which such operations will be prosecuted;

(f) Brief statement of applicant's experience in coal-mining operations, if any, together with one or more references as to his reputation and business standing.

The application must be under oath of the applicant, or if a corporation, of one of its officers theretofore duly authorized.

23. Form of permit.—On receipt of the application, if found sufficient and the lands subject thereto, a permit will be issued, of which the district land office will be advised. Permits will be in substantially the following form:

COAL PROSPECTING PERMIT

Know all men by these presents, that the Secretary of the Interior, under and by virtue of the act of Congress entitled "An act to promote the mining of coal, phosphate, oil, oil shale, gas, and sodium on the public domain, approved February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. 437), has granted and does hereby grant a permit to ------ of the exclusive right for a period of two years from date hereof to prospect for coal the following described lands: ------ but for no other purpose, under the provisions of said act and upon the following express conditions, to wit:

1. To begin prospecting work within 90 days from date hereof and to diligently prosecute the same during the period of such permit in accordance with the following plan: ------

2. To remove from said premises only such coal or other material as may be necessary to prospecting work, and to keep a record of all coal mined and disposed of, payment of a royalty thereon of 25 cents per ton of 2 000 pounds to be made to the receiver of the district land office not later than during the calendar month succeeding that during which such coal was disposed of.

3. To afford all facilities for inspection of the prospecting work on behalf of the Secretary of the Interior, and to make report on demand of all matters pertaining to the character, progress, and results of such work.

4. To observe such conditions as to the use and occupancy of the surface of the land as provided by law, in case any of said lands shall have been or may be entered or patented with a reservation of the coal deposits to the United States.

Expressly reserving to the Secretary of the Interior the right to permit for joint or several use such easements or rights of way upon, through or in the land embraced herein as may be necessary or appropriate to the working of the same, or of other lands containing the deposits described in said act, and the treatment and shipment of the products thereof by or under authority of the Government, its lessees, or permittees, and for other public purposes; also reserving to the United States the right to lease, sell, or otherwise dispose of the surface of said lands under existing law or laws hereafter enacted in so far as said surface is not necessary for the use of the permittee in prospecting hereunder, and further reserving the right and authority to cancel this instrument for failure of the permittee to comply with any of the conditions hereof, after 30 days' notice of the reasons for such cancellation.

Valid existing rights acquired prior hereto on the lands described herein will not be adversely affected hereby.

Dated this ------ day of ------, 19--.

-------------------------------,
Secretary of the Interior.

24. Leases to permittees.—A qualified permittee who has shown, within the period of the permit, that the land included therein contains coal in commercial quantities, will be entitled to a lease for such land, or part thereof as the permittee may desire, upon due application and publication of notice thereof. The application for lease should be filed in the proper district land office before the expiration of the period of the permit. An application for lease under this section should describe the land desired and set forth fully and in detail the extent and mode of occurrence of the coal deposits as disclosed by the prospecting work performed under the permit. Such leases will be granted without competitive bidding, on rents and royalties to be fixed by the Secretary of the Interior, and otherwise substantially in the form of lease provided in section 18 of these regulations.

III. LIMITED LICENSE TO MINE COAL

Under section 8 of the act, the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to issue limited licenses to individuals and associations of individuals to mine and take coal for their own use, but not for sale, without the payment of any rent or royalty, and such licenses may be issued to municipalities to mine and dispose of coal without profit to their residents " for household use." Attention is called to the fact that, under this section, an individual or association of individuals may mine and take coal under such a license for his or their own strictly local domestic needs for fuel, whatever such use may be, but in no case for barter or sale; while a municipality may under such a license supply coal to its residents for household use only, which excludes mining coal by a municipality either for its own use or use of its residents other than for household purposes, thus barring factories, stores, heating and lighting plants, and other business establishments.

25. Area and duration.—(a) A license to an individual or association, in the absence of unusual conditions or necessity, will be limited as to area to a legal subdivision of 40 acres or less; and may be revoked at any time, and such license will expire by limitation at the end of two years from date of issuance, unless timely renewed on application filed and proper showing made prior to expiration of the two-year period.

(b) Licenses to municipalities are limited as to area by the provisions of the act, as follows: Not to exceed 320 acres for a municipality of less than 100,000 population, not to exceed 1,280 for a municipality of not less than 100,000, and not more than 150,000 population, and not to exceed 2,560 acres for a municipality of 150,000 population or more. Licenses to municipalities will expire by limitation at the end of four years from date of issuance, unless renewed; but every such licensee must make to the Commissioner of the General Land Office an annual report of all operations conducted under such license.

26. Application for license.—Application for such limited license must be filed in duplicate in the district land office having jurisdiction over the land, in the form herein provided. A municipality must file with the application a showing of (1) the law or charter and procedure taken by which it became and exists a legal body corporate, (2) that the taking of a license is authorized under such law or charter, and (3) that the proposed action has been duly authorized by the governing body of the municipality. Appropriate serial number will be assigned to such application, notation made thereof on the office records, and the application promptly forwarded to the General Land Office with report of status of the lands.

minimum basis for granting leases, with the requirement that not less than one-third of the required investment shall be expended in development of the mine during the first year, and a like amount each year for the two succeeding years, the investment during any one year over such proportionate amount for that year to be credited on the expenditure required for the ensuing year or years. If the investment to be made is fixed at more than $10,000, the lessee shall furnish a bond, with approved corporate surety or with two qualified individual sureties, conditioned upon the expenditure of the specified amount of investment. After the required investment has been made, a bond in the sum of $5,000, with approved corporate surety, conditioned upon compliance with the terms of the lease, will be required. In case of lease of a small area, where the investment to be made is $10,000 or less, the lessee shall furnish a bond, with approved corporate surety or with two qualified individual sureties, to cover both the investment and compliance with the terms of the lease, such bond to be in half the amount of the investment to be made but in no case less than $1 000. Bond with additional obligations therein will be required where the permit embraces lands entered or patented with the coal reserved under the act of June 22, 1910 (36 Stat. 583), or where the lands are a portion of a reclamation project.

CIRCULAR NO. 953 [1]

INSTRUCTIONS AS TO COAL MINED UNDER PENDING APPLICATIONS FOR LEASE OR PERMIT

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, July 19, 1924.

Chiefs of Field Divisions, Registers and Receivers.

GENTLEMEN: Since the passage of the act of February 25, 1920, providing for the mining of coal on Government lands under lease and prospecting permit, applicants for such leases or permits have, in many instances, begun mining coal immediately after filing their applications. In such cases it has been the practice up to the present time to collect damages on a trespass basis for all coal so mined up to the date of execution of the lease or permit applied for.

---

[1] See Circular No. 1135, p. 386.

In a letter dated May 23, 1924, in response to a request from the Director of the Bureau of Mines for instructions regarding certain phases of the general coal-production situation, the department stated in part as follows:

> All coal mined upon the public domain without any right under the public land laws is mined in trespass and such sums as are received by the Government for coal so mined are covered into the Treasury of the United States as "miscellaneous receipts." (See Circular No. 881 for measures of damage in such cases.)
> Reports of production mined in trespass should in all cases be itemized separately from production under permits or leases.
> Where a party has applied to have lands offered for lease at public auction and becomes the successful bidder when such auction is held, any operations commenced before such lease is awarded constitutes a trespass and the funds received in payment for coal removed while such trespass existed occupy the same status as though the trespasser was not, at the time of payment, a potential lessee.
> If a lessee mines coal before being awarded a lease at public auction, the production is in trespass and is to be separately accounted for as such. In this situation, no rights are initiated by applying to have the lands offered for lease as the applicant must be the highest bidder in order to succeed. Upon award of the lease at the auction the successful bidder in possession is accountable for the coal deposits and rentals as though the lease had issued.
>
> Where, however, a lessee makes application for a lease and shows that he has in good faith improved, occupied, or claimed coal lands and is found equitably entitled to a lease, coal produced prior to the application for a lease was produced in trespass and will be collected for as such, but if the lessee has at all times been in possession of the land, working the same, all coal produced after application is made for a lease will be considered as mined under the lease and the lessee will be held accountable therefor and for the prescribed rental, from that time under the principles stated in the case of the Big-4 Consolidated Oil Company (49 L. D. 482).
> Prospecting permits are granted only where such operations are necessary to show the existence and workability of coal deposits. Provision is made in these permits for the payment of a royalty on all coal produced thereunder before lease is applied for. In this case also rentals and royalties under the lease will commence upon the date when lease is applied for.
> Where a permittee has discovered coal and has applied for a lease, such application supersedes the permit and when lease is granted it relates back to the time of application. There can be no interval, for the permittee must account for the coal in accordance with the terms of his permit until lease is applied for and thereafter in accordance with the terms of the lease.

In accordance with the above, you will hereafter observe the following rules:

1. Coal mined from the date of filing of an application for prospecting permit to the date of execution of the permit is in trespass and must be settled for on a trespass basis, but at the rate of 25 cents a ton fixed in the permit.

2. Where a permittee has discovered coal and has applied for a lease his rights relate back to the date of filing of the application for lease and the mining of coal thereunder does not constitute a trespass.

3. Where the applicant has no equities, gained prior to the passage of the leasing act, but is awarded a lease as the successful bidder at the auction, coal mined by him from the date of filing of his application to the date of awarding of the lease at the auction must be settled for as a trespass, but at the rate of royalty fixed in the lease.

4. Where an applicant has been awarded a lease on account of equities gained prior to the passage of the leasing act his rights relate back to the date of filing of the application. Coal mined prior to the filing of the application for lease is, however, a trespass and must be settled for on a trespass basis.

Settlements for coal mined in trespass should be made to the chief of field division and transmitted by him with his report in the matter to this office as in other trespass cases. If, for any reason, such settlements are made to the registers and receivers, they will promptly forward the same to the proper chief of field division for appropriate action.

Cases now pending in this office will be adjudicated in accordance with the above instructions.

Very respectfully, WILLIAM SPRY, Commissioner.

First Assistant Secretary.

GENTLEMEN: Herewith inclosed are a few copies of form No. 4–205 notice to the division inspector of an application for coal-prospecting permit or lease.

When you have sent the said notice to the division inspector you will note that fact on the margin of the application and handle said application in the usual manner.

CIRCULAR NO. 1135—SUPPLEMENTAL TO CIRCULAR 953

INSTRUCTIONS AS TO COAL MINED UNDER PENDING APPLICATIONS FOR LEASE OR PERMIT

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, October 1, 1927.

Division Inspectors and Registers, United States Land Office.

GENTLEMEN: Section 3 of Circular No. 953, Instructions as to Coal Mined Under Pending Applications for Lease or Permit, approved July 19, 1924, provides as follows:

3. Where the applicant has no equities gained prior to the passage of the leasing act, but is awarded a lease as the successful bidder at the auction, coal mined by him from the date of filing of his application to the date of awarding of the lease at the auction must be settled for as a trespass, but at the rate of royalty fixed in the lease.

The division inspector is expected to procure settlement for any coal mined in trespass prior to the award of the lease. Payments for coal mined subsequent to the award should be collected by the register and applied as royalty.

The register will, upon award of the lease at the auction, at once notify the proper division inspector and also the district mining supervisor of the Geological Survey of such award, in order that the division inspector may take prompt action looking toward collecting settlement for and closing out any trespass which may have been committed prior to the award and the district mining supervisor may take steps with a view to ascertaining the condition of the mine, if mining operations are being conducted, and submitting production reports of any coal mined subsequent to the award.

If upon receipt of a lease for delivery the register has information that coal has been mined subsequent to the date of award and payment has not been made therefor he will take immediate steps to collect the amount due.

The register is further directed to see that all notices to permittees or lessees of the cancellation of a permit or lease contain the following statement:

> Mining of coal from the land involved subsequent to receipt of this notice of cancellation is unauthorized and in violation of law. Such mining operations will render you liable to the penalties provided for willful trespass upon Government lands.

The division inspector will upon receipt of notice of cancellation of a lease or permit take such steps as may be necessary to ascertain whether mining operations thereunder ceased upon receipt by permittee or lessee of the notice of cancellation. If not, he will collect payment for all coal so mined on the basis of willful trespass and take such further action as may be necessary to prevent continuation of the mining operations.

Very respectfully, WILLIAM SPRY, Commissioner.

EXTENSIONS OF TIME UNDER COAL PERMITS—INSTRUCTIONS UNDER THE ACT OF MARCH 9, 1928 (45 STAT. 251)

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, May 3, 1928.

Registers, United States Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: By act of Congress approved March 9, 1928 (45 Stat. 251), the Secretary of the Interior was authorized to grant an extension of time for a period of two years on any coal prospecting permit issued under the act of February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. 437). The act, which does not apply to Alaska, is as follows:

[1] See Circular No. 926, p. 970.

> Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That any coal prospecting permit issued under the act entitled "An act to promote the mining of coal, phosphate, oil, oil shale, gas and sodium on the public domain," approved February 25, 1920, as amended, may be extended by the Secretary of the Interior for a period of two years, if he shall find that the permittee has been unable, with the exercise of reasonable diligence, to determine the existence or workability of coal deposits in the area covered by the permit and desires to prosecute further prospecting or exploration, or for other reasons in the opinion of the Secretary warranting such extension.
> SEC. 2. Upon application to the Secretary of the Interior, and subject to valid intervening rights and to the provisions of section 1 of this act, any coal permit that has already expired because of lack of authority under existing law to make extensions, may, in the discretion of the Secretary, be extended for a period of two years from the date of the passage of this act.

Accordingly, a permittee who has been unable with the exercise of reasonable diligence to determine the existence or workability of the coal deposits, or who gives other reasons, which, in the opinion of the Secretary, warrant an extension, and who desires to prosecute further prospecting, may, if the facts warrant, be granted an extension of time upon filing an application therefor, accompanied with his own affidavit setting forth what efforts, if any, he has made to comply with the terms of his permit and the reasons for failure fully to comply therewith, such showing to be corroborated by the affidavit of at least one disinterested person having actual knowledge of the facts.

Under the second section of the act, even where a permit expired prior to the passage of the act, it may be extended for a period not exceeding two years from the date of the act subject to valid intervening rights and to the provisions of section 1 of the act. In no case would an extension under section 2 go beyond March 9, 1930.

As the permit bond is limited to the period for which the permit was granted, the permittee must furnish with an application for extension a properly executed assent by the surety to the extension of his bond to cover the life of the permit as it will be extended if an extension is granted, or furnish a new bond.

The application for extension may be filed in the General Land Office or in the local land office having jurisdiction over the land involved by the permit, to be promptly forwarded by the register to this office. The application should show how much additional time is considered necessary to complete prospecting work. Extensions will be limited to such period, not exceeding the two years authorized, as may be determined to be allowable under the circumstances in each particular case.

You will give to the regulations the widest publicity possible without expense to the Government.

Very respectfully,

WILLIAM SPRY, Commissioner.

8. Minimum development.—An actual bona fide expenditure for mine operation, development, or improvement purposes of the amount determined by the Secretary and stated in the lease offer hereinafter referred to is adopted as the minimum basis for granting leases, with the requirement that not less than one-third of the required investment shall be expended in development of the mine during the first year, and a like amount each year for the two succeeding years, the investment during any one year over such proportionate amount for that year to be credited on the expenditure required for the ensuing year or years.

If the investment to be made is fixed at more than $10,000, the lessee shall furnish a bond, with approved corporate surety, conditioned upon compliance with the investment requirement and with the other terms of the lease. Bond in the sum of $1,500 will be required where the permit embraces land entered or patented with the coal reserved under the act of June 22, 1910 (36 Stat. 583), or where any part of the land is within a reclamation project. The bond may be filed with the application, which will expedite action thereon, or within 30 days after receipt of notice by the applicant that the permit will be granted when the bond is filed.

COLOR OF TITLE AND SMALL HOLDING CLAIMS

[Reported, 21 L. D. 157]

SMALL HOLDING CLAIMS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., September 18, 1895.

Registers and Receivers, United States District Land Offices in the Territories of New Mexico, Arizona, and Utah, and the States of Colorado, Nevada, and Wyoming.

Gentlemen: Your attention is called to the provisions of sections 16 and 17 of the act of Congress approved March 3, 1891, entitled "An act to establish a court of private land claims and to provide for settlement of private land claims in certain States and Territories" (26 Stat. 854), as amended by the act approved February 21, 1893 (27 Stat. 470).

As the object of said act is the final adjudication of all private land claims in the States and Territories aforesaid, so the object of said sections 16 and 17 is the final adjudication of that class of private claims, or "small holdings" therein described, and to furnish the means whereby title thereto can be perfected by the claimants thereof.

Section 16 relates to "small holdings" situate in those parts of said States and Territories over which the township surveys had not been extended at the date of the passage of said act; and section 17 relates to the same class of claims situate in townships which had been surveyed at that time.

By section 16, the right to receive patent for the land occupied is recognized in any person who has, through himself, his ancestors, grantors, or their lawful successors in title or possession, been in the continuous, adverse, actual, bona fide possession of any tract of land, which does not, in itself, or in connection with other tracts so held by him, exceed 160 acres, for 20 years next preceding the time when the survey of the township in which such tract is situate shall be made, and provision is made for the survey of such land and the issuance of patent therefor: Provided, That no person shall be entitled to confirmation of, or to patent for, more than 160 acres in his own right by virtue of this section.

By section 17, all persons who have been in the actual, continuous, adverse possession, through themselves, their ancestors, grantors, or those under whom they claim, of tracts of land not exceeding 160 acres each, for 20 years next preceding the time when the survey of the township in which the land is situate was made, are permitted, upon making proof of such possession, and of the further fact that they, or their ancestors or grantors, or those under whom they claim, became citizens of the United States by reason of the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo or the terms of the Gadsen purchase, to enter, without payment of purchase money, fees or commissions, such subdivisions, not exceeding 160 acres, as shall include their said possessions: Provided, That no person shall be entitled to enter more than 160 acres in one or more tracts in his own right under the provisions of this section.

In order that these claims may be adjudicated, you will secure from the surveyor general, as soon as a township containing such claims shall have been surveyed, a list of the claims therein, with the names of the claimants, and if possible their post-office addresses. In case of townships already surveyed, you should be furnished a list of those claims that have been filed with the surveyor general that conform to legal subdivisions, and where it is necessary to survey the claims the list should be furnished you as soon as the surveys of said claims are approved.

When this information has been received you will notify each of the claimants that he will be allowed 90 days to submit proof of his possession and occupation in accordance with the following instructions:

1. Each of the claimants under the provisions of section 16 who was in the actual, adverse, bona fide possession of his claim 20 years prior to the survey of the township in which the land is situated, and has so occupied and held the same continuously from that time on to the making of such survey, will be required to make affidavit to that fact, stating therein the character and origin of his claim, and the material facts relied upon to show such possession.

2. Each of the claimants under the provision of said section 16 who was not in the actual, adverse, bona fide possession of his claim 20 years prior to the survey of the township in which the land was situated, but who bases his claim upon the actual, adverse, bona fide possession of those under whom he holds, will be required to make affidavit to that fact, stating therein the name of the person so occupying the land claimed 20 years prior to such survey, and the name of each of his successors in such occupancy during the said period of 20 years; the respective periods, as near as may be, that the land was so held by each of such successive occupants; the material facts relied upon to show such possession during said period; and giving a complete history of his title to such claim, from the first of the occupants mentioned down to the present claimant.

3. Each of the claimants under the provisions of section 17 will be required to make affidavit in accordance with the foregoing instructions 1 or 2, as the case may be, stating therein the additional facts necessary to show that he became a citizen of the United States by reason of said treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo or the terms of the Gadsen purchase, or that some former occupant or claimant of said land from whom he derived his title or possession so became a citizen of the United States; and in the latter case giving a complete history of the title to his claim from the ancestor or grantor so naturalized down to the present claimant.

4. If documentary evidence of the title of such claimants is in existence such evidence or duly authenticated copies of the documents must be produced and filed by them.

5. Every material fact set forth in the claimant's affidavit, or necessary to the validity of his claim, not established by competent documentary evidence, must be substantiated by the affidavits of not less than two disinterested witnesses having a personal knowledge of the facts.

As the proof submitted must depend upon the character of the claim, no blank forms can be prepared applicable to all cases.

When such proof has been filed in your office you will examine the same in each case, and if found sufficient, in your opinion, to establish the title of the claimant to the tract applied for, you will approve the same and issue a joint certificate of the form hereto attached, a supply of which will be sent to you as soon as practicable.

These entries should be accounted for in a separate series, commencing with No. 1, and may be accounted for on any of your abstracts with the necessary change of heading to indicate the class of claims, and referring to the acts cited.

It will be noticed that section 17 of said act, allows entry under said section without payment of purchase money, fees or commissions, and as section 16 does not provide for any payment, entries will be allowed thereunder without fees or commissions.

The proof required by these regulations must be made before one of you, or before one of the officers designated by the act of May 26, 1890 (26 Stat. 121).

Section 18, act of February 21, 1893, supra, limits the time of filing such claims with the surveyor general to two years after the 1st day of December, 1892, and under this provision claims not filed on or before December 1, 1894, should be rejected by you.

Very respectfully,

E. F. Best,
Acting Commissioner.

Acting Secretary.

SMALL HOLDING SETTLERS—RAILROAD GRANT—COAL LANDS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington July 29, 1910.

First Assistant Secretary Pierce to the Commissioner of the General Land Office:

The department has received your office letter of July 25, 1910, submitting for consideration certain questions arising under the act of April 28, 1904 (33 Stat. 556), for the relief of small holding settlers within the limits of the grant to the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad Co. in the Territory of New Mexico, which act reads as follows:

> That the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad Company, its successors in interest and its or their assigns, may, when requested by the Secretary of the Interior so to do, relinquish or deed, as may be proper, to the United States any section or sections of its or their lands in the Territory of New Mexico, the title to which was derived by said railroad company through the act of Congress of July twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and sixty-six, in aid of the construction of said railroad, any portion of which section is and has been occupied by any settler or settlers as a home or homestead by themselves or their predecessors in interest for a period of not less than twenty-five years next before the passage of this act, and shall then be entitled to select in lieu thereof, and to have patented other sections of vacant public land of equal quality in said Territory, as may be agreed upon with the Secretary of the Interior.
> SEC. 2. That the Secretary of the Interior shall, as soon as may be after the passage of this act, cause inquiry to be made of all lands so held by settlers, and shall cause the holdings of such settlers to be surveyed, without cost to the settlers, cause patents to issue to each such settler for his or her such holdings: Provided, That not to exceed one hundred and sixty acres shall be patented to any one person, and such recipient must possess the qualifications necessary to entitle him or her to enter such land under the homestead laws.
> SEC. 3. That any fractions of any such sections of land remaining after the issuance of patents to the settlers as aforesaid shall be subject to entry by citizens the same as other public lands of the United States.

The small holding settlers referred to in the title of the act are those for whom provision was made by sections 16 and 17 of the act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 854), as amended by the act of February 21, 1893 (27 Stat. 470), and inasmuch as it was found that certain of these small holding claims were located upon lands which passed to the Atlantic & Pacific Railroad Co., now the Santa Fe Pacific Railroad Co., under the grant of July 27, 1866 (14 Stat. 292), the act of April 28, 1904, supra, was passed for the purpose of affording a means whereby relief might be granted these settlers. The grant to the railroad company did not except lands valuable for coal and it having been found that some of the lands which have been patented to the company are claimed by the settlers under the act of 1904, and are valuable for coal, the company wishes to be assured before relinquishing the lands claimed by the settlers that it will be allowed to select coal land of equal quality in lieu thereof.

It is stated in your office letter that the proposed deed submitted by the company has been examined and found to be satisfactory except that it includes a tract in sec. 17, T. 13 N., R. 17 W., upon which no small holding claim is located, and because of which said tract may not be relinquished by the company and must, in any event, be eliminated from the deed; and while your office expresses the opinion that the lands are clearly within the terms of the law the question is suggested that there may be grave objection to any conclusion which would authorize the disposal of lands valuable for their coal deposits in the manner indicated.

It will be seen by referring to the act of 1904, quoted above, that no mention is made of mineral lands nor are the settlers confined in terms to nonmineral lands. The act clearly authorizes the Atlantic & Pacific Railroad Co., or its successors in interest, to relinquish any land acquired under its grant, upon which the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to issue a patent to such settler for the land held by him, there being but one proviso, namely, that not to exceed 160 acres shall be patented to any one person, who must possess the qualifications necessary to entitle him to enter such land under the homestead laws.

By the terms of the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, concluded February 2, 1848 (9 Stat. 922), the United States agreed to protect the titles of individuals derived from former sovereigns owning the territory, and provision was made for confirmation of such claims by the act of July 22, 1854 (10 Stat. 308). A number of claims filed with the surveyor general as provided for by the act of 1854, some embracing very large areas and others consisting only of small claims, were confirmed by Congress from time to time until March 3, 1891, when Congress, by act of that date, created a court of private land claims for the adjudication of all such claims in the territory acquired from Mexico.

By the sixteenth and seventeenth sections of the act of 1891, Congress afforded the holders of small tracts, not exceeding 160 acres, and who had occupied the same for the period specified in the act, an inexpensive and easy method of acquiring title thereto without the necessity of resorting to the court of private land claims for confirmation. These claimants had merely to file their claims with the surveyor general of the Territory and to make proof of their citizenship, by virtue of the treaty with Mexico, and their occupation of the land for the period named in the act. The act contained no provision whatever restricting such claims to nonmineral lands, whereas in that portion of the act relating to claims submitted for confirmation by the court, it was provided that no allowance or confirmation of any claim should confer any right or title to any gold, silver, or quicksilver mines or minerals of the same, unless the grant claimed effected the donation or sale of such mines or minerals, or unless the grantee had otherwise become entitled thereto in law and in equity.

While it is true that no express exception of mineral lands is necessary to exclude them from an ordinary grant, nevertheless, where Congress undertakes to except certain minerals, the presumption is that all other minerals not named are not excepted, and it is but reasonable to assume that Congress intended to impose no greater restrictions upon the small holding claimant provided for by sections 16 and 17 of the act than were imposed upon the owners of larger claims who were required to procure confirmation through the court.

Having under consideration the purpose of sections 16 and 17 of the act of 1891, this department has said:

> The history of the act of 1891 and the terms of the act itself, which was the successful culmination of frequent attempts since the act of 1854 at legislation looking to the final settlement of private land claims in the territory derived from the Republic of Mexico, show that the homes and lands of small holding claimants * * * were the objects of the special solicitude of Congress, and that it was the intention by the passage of the latter act to afford them full protection, and provide a simple and easy means by which they could secure and perfect their titles against all possibility of successful claim under the public land laws of the United States as well as against danger to them by reason of failure of confirmation of the alleged Spanish or Mexican grants within which their claims were situated. It is believed that the laws and decisions applicable to the facts in this case should be liberally construed and applied in behalf of these small holding claimants. (Apodaca et al. v. Mulligan, 27 L. D. 604, 608.)

As stated in your office letter, Congress knew that the railroad company acquired the title to coal land under its grant, and as the act of 1904 clearly provided that the company may relinquish any section of land acquired under the grant which is occupied by a small holding settler, to the end that the home of the latter may be protected, there would seem to be no reason why the land so relinquished by the company may not be patented to the settler if he can show himself qualified under the terms of the act. Such being the case, and as the acts expressly provide that the company relinquishing the land may select in lieu thereof "vacant public land of equal quality in said territory," the company, upon relinquishing lands found to be valuable for coal, would appear to be entitled to select in lieu thereof coal lands equal in value to those relinquished.

CIRCULAR NO. 849

SMALL HOLDING CLAIMS IN NEW MEXICO

INSTRUCTIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, September 13, 1922.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices, and the Surveyor General, in the State of New Mexico.

GENTLEMEN: Your attention is called to the act approved by Congress June 15, 1922 (42 Stat. 650), which provides:

> That in township surveys hereafter to be made in the State of New Mexico, if it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the deputy surveyor making such survey that any person has, through himself, his ancestors, grantors, or their lawful successors in title or possession, been in the continuous adverse actual bona fide possession, residing thereon as his home, of any tract of land or in connection therewith of other lands, altogether not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres, in such township for twenty years next preceding the time of making such survey, the deputy surveyor shall recognize and establish the lines of such possession and make the subdivision of the adjoining lands in accordance therewith. Such possession shall be accurately defined in the field notes of the survey and delineated on the township plat, with the boundaries and area of the tract as a separate legal subdivision. The deputy surveyor shall return with his survey the name or names of all persons so found to be in possession, with a proper description of the tract in the possession of each as shown by the survey, and the proofs furnished to him of such possession.

Upon receipt of such survey and proofs the Commissioner of the General Land Office shall cause careful investigation to be made in such manner as he shall deem necessary for the ascertainment of the truth in respect of such claim and occupancy, and if satisfied upon such investigation that the claimant comes within the provisions of this section, he shall cause patents to be issued to the parties so found to be in possession for the tracts respectively claimed by them: Provided, however, That no person shall be entitled to confirmation of, or to patent for, more than one hundred and sixty acres in his own right by virtue of this section.

All claims arising under this act shall be filed with the surveyor general of New Mexico within two years next after the passage of this act, and no claim not so filed shall be valid. No tract of such land shall be subject to entry under the land laws of the United States: And provided further, That this act shall not apply to any city lot, town lot, village lot, farm lot, or pasture lot held under a grant from any corporation or town the claim to which may fall within the provision of this act.

It will be observed that the act is practically a reenactment of sections 16 and 18 of the act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 861), as originally passed, restricted in its application to the State of New Mexico. The words "residing thereon as his home," which were stricken out of section 16 of the act of March 3, 1891, by the act of February 21, 1893 (27 Stat. 470), are retained in the said act.

This act applies only to townships surveyed after its passage.

All claims arising under the said act must be filed with the surveyor general of New Mexico within two years after June 15, 1922, and any claim not so filed must be rejected.

The act is restricted in its application to natural persons, and the possession required by the act must be maintained during the required period by individuals, and a claim by an individual based, in whole or in part, upon possession maintained by his grantor or predecessor in interest who was a corporation or a town is invalid.

To the end that the claims which will arise under the said act may be efficiently and expeditiously adjudicated, you are directed to be guided by the following instructions:

1. The surveyor general shall assign a number to all claims filed under the provisions of the said act and require such proof to be made in support thereof as he shall deem satisfactory, following the method heretofore adopted in claims which have arisen under sections 16, 17, and 18 of the act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 861).

2. After an application for such claims shall have been filed and proof shall have been made before the surveyor general in support thereof, the surveyor general shall immediately forward to the register and receiver of the land district in which the claim is situate a copy of the application so filed and proof made.

3. The deputy surveyor, when surveying a township containing such claims, applications for which shall have been filed, shall, before such claims are segregated, satisfy himself that such claims shall have been resided upon as homes.

4. As soon as a township containing such claims shall have been surveyed and a copy of said plat of survey shall have been approved and filed in the district land office, the register and receiver of such office shall ascertain whether or not the surveyor general has forwarded a copy of the applications and proofs as required by paragraph 2 of these instructions, and in the event it is found that they have not been forwarded, the register and receiver shall immediately request the surveyor general to forward the same.

5. When this information shall have been received the register and receiver shall serve notice upon each of such claimants that 90 days from receipt of notice will be allowed within which to begin the publication of notice of intention to submit final proof, as hereafter required, and in the event the said publication is not begun within the time allowed and final proof finally submitted in due course the said claim will be canceled and finally closed.

6. The register and receiver shall require each of such claimants to publish notice of intention to submit final proof of his occupation and possession under the same terms and restrictions as govern publication in homestead cases following the same form with the necessary alterations as will indicate the nature of the claim and of the proof to be submitted. In all cases in which the claims are situated in sections that have been granted to the State for school purposes the claimants shall be required to serve notice of intention to submit final proof upon the proper State authorities, either personally or by registered mail, and to furnish evidence of such notice at the time of making final proof.

7. In making final proof the claimant will be required to make affidavit setting forth the name of the original settler and the date of the original settlement; the names of all mesne possessors of such claim, if any, and the periods held by each, giving the exact dates, and how each such possessor acquired possession of such claim; the date the then present claimant took possession of such claim, how he acquired possession thereof and the manner in which each such possessors has maintained possession of such claim. If documentary evidence of title of such claimants is in existence such documents or duly authenticated copies thereof must be produced and filed with the proof. Every material fact stated in the claimant's affidavit or necessary to the validity of his claim not established by competent documentary evidence must be substantiated by the affidavits of not less than two disinterested persons having a personal knowledge of the facts.

8. When such proof has been made the register and receiver will examine the same in each case and, if satisfied that the provisions of the said act have been complied with, issue final certificate thereon in duplicate, of the usual form, with such modifications as shall be necessary to show the act under which the claim arose, and transmit the duplicate to the claimant and the original, together with all the records in the case, to this office for final action. If, after considering the said proof, the register and receiver should be of the opinion that it does not meet the requirements of the said act, the register and receiver will reject the same allowing an appeal to this office.

9. If, after serving the notice required by paragraph 5 of these instructions and the expiration of the time allowed, no action having been taken by such claimants, the register and receiver will transmit all the records in such cases, together with evidence of such notice having been given, to this office for further action.

10. The proof required by these instructions must be made before the register or the receiver or one of the officers authorized to take proof in homestead cases.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

Circular No. 1079 [2]

PURCHASE OF LANDS IN NEW MEXICO, ACT OF JUNE 8, 1926

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, July 13, 1926.

Registers, United States Land Offices, Santa Fe and Las Cruces, New Mexico.

Sirs: Your attention is called to the act of Congress approved June 8, 1926 (44 Stat. 709), Sixty-ninth Congress, entitled "An Act to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to issue patents for lands held under color of title," which provides:

> That whenever it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Interior that a tract or tracts of public land, not known to be mineral, in the State of New Mexico, not exceeding in the aggregate one hundred and sixty acres, has or have been held in good faith and in peaceful, adverse possession by a citizen of the United States, his ancestors or grantors, for more than twenty years under claim or color of title, and that valuable improvements have been placed on such land, or some part thereof has been reduced to cultivation, the Secretary may, in his discretion, upon the payment of $1.25 per acre, cause a patent or patents to issue for such land to any such citizen: Provided, That where the area or areas so held by any such citizen is in excess of one hundred and sixty acres the Secretary may determine what particular subdivisions, not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres in the aggregate, to any such citizen may be patented hereunder: Provided further, That the term "citizen" as used herein shall be held to include a corporation organized under the laws of the United States or any State or Territory thereof.

This act authorizes the Secretary of the Interior in his discretion to issue patents for not more than 160 acres of land in New Mexico to citizens of the United States who have or whose ancestors or grantors have held the land peaceably and adversely for more than 20 years under claim or color of title upon payment for the land at the rate of $1.25 per acre.

Only claims for surveyed land will be recognized under the provisions of this act. If a tract is shown on the plat of survey as included in a private land or small holding claim, the designation thereof must be shown as public land on an official plat of survey before an entry under this act can be allowed. If unsurveyed land is claimed, the filing of such claim should be deferred until the land has been surveyed.

[2] Modified by Circular No. 1097, p. 402. See par. 18, Circular No. 1186, p. 407.

Persons applying for patent under the provisions of this act must file a nonmineral affidavit. They must show by affidavit that their possession, or the possession of their ancestors or grantors for the 20 years next preceding the filing of the claim has been peaceful and adverse by setting forth the facts of the possession and not merely the conclusions. If improvements have been placed upon the land, the nature and value thereof should be set forth, together with the time of their construction, and cost, and by whom constructed. If any of the land has been reduced to cultivation, the amount of land claimed so reduced, when it was so reduced, and the nature of the cultivation should be set forth.

In making proof, the claimant will be required to make affidavits setting forth the names of all the mesne possessors of the land, periods held by each, giving the exact dates and how each possessor acquired possession of the land; the date the claimant took possession of the land, how he acquired possession thereof and the manner in which each of the possessors has maintained possession of the land. If documentary evidence of title of the claimant is in existence, such documents or duly authenticated copies thereof must be produced and filed with the proof.

If the claimant is a natural person, the affidavit should set forth whether the claimant is a male or a female and whether the claimant is a native born or a naturalized citizen of the United States. If claimant is a female, the affidavit should set forth whether she is married or single and if married the date of her marriage and the facts concerning her husband's citizenship. If the claimant is a naturalized citizen of the United States a certified copy of the certificate of naturalization should be filed. In case the land is claimed by a corporation a certified copy of the articles of incorporation should be filed.

The said act does not contemplate the recognition of any claim for more than 160 acres (or approximately that area under the rule of approximation), and no person claiming more than approximately 160 acres will be permitted by transfer of portions of the land claimed to secure recognition of his claim, through himself and his grantees, for more land in the aggregate than he could purchase in his own name. It must be shown in each case that the land claimed is not part of a claim which embraced more than approximately 160 acres on June 8, 1926, or if the land claimed is part of such a larger claim the full facts relative thereto must be shown.

The claimant must in each case show whether or not he has filed any other claim under the said act, and if he has filed another claim he must identify it.

Every material fact stated in the claimant's affidavit or proof or necessary to the validity of his claim not established by competent documentary evidence must be substantiated by the affidavits of not less than two disinterested persons having knowledge of the facts.

The register will require any claimant, under the provisions of this act, to publish notice of intention to submit proof on his appication to purchase under the same terms and restrictions as govern publications in homestead cases, following the same form with such necessary alterations as will indicate the claim and of the proof submitted. In all cases in which the claims are situated in sections that have been granted to the State for school purposes, the claimant will be required to serve notice of intention to submit final proof upon the proper State authorities either personally or by registered mail, and to furnish evidence of such service at the time of making proof.

When such proof has been made, the register will examine the same in each case and if satisfied that the provisions of the act have been complied with will issue final certificate thereon in duplicate on the usual form with such modifications as will be necessary to show the act under which the claim arose and transmit the duplicate to the claimant and the original, together with all the records in the case, to this office for final action. If, after considering the said proof, the register should be of the opinion that it does not meet the requirements of the act, he will reject it, allowing an appeal to this office.

The proof required by these instructions must be made before the register or one of the officers authorized to take proof in homestead cases.

Very respectfully,

William Spry,
Commissioner.

First Assistant Secretary.

Circular No. 1097

REGULATIONS RELATIVE TO PURCHASE OF LANDS IN NEW MEXICO—CIRCULAR NO. 1079 MODIFIED

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, September 29, 1926.

Register, Santa Fe, New Mexico.

Sir: I have your letter of August 23, 1926, suggesting modifications of office Circular No. 1079, dated July 13, 1926, relative to the purchase of lands in New Mexico under the act of June 8, 1926 (44 Stat. 709).

1. Small holding claims have from the beginning been classified with private land claims. See the instructions of September 18, 1895 (21 L. D. 157). Small holding claims have had a distinctive designation on the plats of survey, being given a number of tract and a small holding claim number. Public lands irregular in area have usually been given a lot number or have been designated by a letter of the alphabet. The act of June 8, 1926, authorizes the disposal thereunder of "tract or tracts of public land." There is therefore seen no reason for a modification of said Circular No. 1079, which requires that before allowance of an entry under the act of June 8, 1926, the land be designated in accordance with the public land system.

2. Where a small holding claimant submits proof on a claim and same is rejected because of inability of the claimant to qualify under an applicable small holding claim act, he may at once waive his right of appeal and file an application to be allowed to purchase the land under said act of June 8, 1926. Such application should be accompanied by the proof or by copy of the proof submitted under the small holding act. If such proof is clear and unmistakable as to all the tracts applied for and satisfactorily shows that the applicant is entitled to purchase the land under the act mentioned; if proper publication of notice has been had of the small holding claim and no protest has been filed or other objection shown by your records, this office will, as speedily as practicable after receiving your report, accompanied by the evidence submitted, prepare a supplemental plat, retaining the boundaries of the small holding claim but clearing away the reference thereto as such and substituting a lot number or other legal designation with appropriate area as in rectangular surveys, and will instruct you to issue final certificate, if proper payments have been made, without further proof or publication of notice.

3. In the case of small holding claims as shown by the official plats, the parties entitled to submit proof thereon may waive their rights to acquire title under the small holding acts and file an application to purchase under the act of June 8, 1926. You will submit such application to this office with your report as to what your records show with regard thereto, whereupon the tract will be designated in accordance with the public land system of designations and you will be informed thereof and the party, if entitled thereto, will be permitted to purchase the land in accordance with Circular No. 1079.

4. All deeds which are in Spanish should be accompanied by a translation thereof. The practice of submitting deeds in a foreign language is objectionable.

5. The forms submitted by you have been examined and no objection is found thereto. The forms already prepared for submitting proof on small holding claims are acceptable, however, and no reason appears for officially adopting new forms. The proof submitted, however, should clearly indicate that the party is entitled to purchase the lands under the act of June 8, 1926.

Very respectfully,

Thos. C. Havell,
Acting Commissioner.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, April 15, 1929.

Registers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: Attention is called to the act of December 22, 1928 (45 Stat. 1069), Seventieth Congress, entitled "An act to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to issue patents for lands held under color of title," which provides:

> That whenever it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Interior that a tract of public land, not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres, has been held in good faith and in peaceful, adverse, possession by a citizen of the United States, his ancestors or grantors, for more than twenty years under claim or color of title, and that valuable improvements have been placed on such land, or some part thereof has been reduced to cultivation, the Secretary may, in his discretion, upon the payment of not less than $1.25 per acre, cause a patent to issue for such land to any such citizen: Provided, That where the area so held is in excess of one hundred and sixty acres the Secretary may determine what particular subdivisions, not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres, may be patented hereunder: Provided further, That coal and all other minerals contained therein are hereby reserved to the United States; that said coal and other minerals shall be subject to sale or disposal by the United States under applicable leasing and mineral land laws, and permittees, lessees, or grantees of the United States shall have the right to enter upon said lands for the purpose of prospecting for and mining such deposits: And provided further, That no patent shall issue under the provisions of this act for any tract to which there is a conflicting claim adverse to that of the applicant, unless and until such claim shall have been finally adjudicated in favor of such applicant.
> SEC. 2. That upon the filing of an application to purchase any lands subject to the operation of this act, together with the required proof, the Secretary of the Interior shall cause the lands described in said application to be appraised, said appraisal to be on the basis of the value of such lands at the date of appraisal, exclusive of any increased value resulting from the development or improvement of the lands by the applicant or his predecessors in interest, and in such appraisal the Secretary shall consider and give full effect to the equities of any such applicant.

1. This act authorizes the Secretary, in his discretion to issue patents for not more than 160 acres of public land, to citizens of the United States, who have, or whose ancestors or grantors have held the land in peaceable, adverse, possession for more than 20 years under claim or color of title, upon payment for the land at not less than $1.25 per acre.

2. Only claims for surveyed lands will be recognized under this act. If unsurveyed land is claimed, the filing of such claim should be deferred until the land has been surveyed and the plat of survey thereof has been officially filed.

3. Applications under this act must be filed with the register of the district land office for the district in which the land thus applied for is situated; or if there is no district land office in the State where the land is situated, then the application must be filed with the Commissioner of the General Land Office, Washington, D. C.

4. No special forms of application are provided. The application must be under oath and in typewritten form, or in legible manuscript.

5. Persons applying for patent under the provisions of this act must show by affidavit that their possession, or the possession of their ancestors or grantors for the 20 years next preceding the filing of the claim has been peaceable and adverse, by setting forth the facts of the possession and not merely the conclusions, and that such application is made in good faith for their own benefit and not for the benefit of any other person.

6. If improvements have been placed upon the land applied for, the nature and value thereof should be set forth, together with the time of their construction, and cost, and by whom constructed.

7. If any of the land has been reduced to cultivation, the amount of land claimed to have been so reduced, when it was so reduced, and the nature of the cultivation should be set forth.

8. If the claimant is claiming as a record owner or under color of title he will be required to file an abstract of title certified to by a competent abstractor showing the record of all conveyances of the land up to the date of the filing of the application. If he is not a record owner and no abstract of title can be furnished he will be required to file affidavits setting forth the names of all the mesne possessors of the land, periods held by each, giving the dates and how each possessor acquired possession of the land; the date the claimant took possession of the land, how he acquired possession thereof and the manner in which each of the possessors has maintained possession of the land.

9. If the claimant is a natural person, the affidavit should set forth whether the claimant is a male or a female and whether the claimant is a native born or a naturalized citizen of the United States. If claimant is a female, the affidavit should set forth whether she is married or single, and if married the date of her marriage and the facts concerning her husband's citizenship. If the claimant is a naturalized citizen of the United States a certified copy of the certificate of naturalization should be filed. In case the land is claimed by a corporation, a certified copy of the articles of incorporation should be filed.

10. The said act does not contemplate the recognition of any claim for more than 160 acres (or approximately that area, under the rule of approximation), and no person claiming more than approximately 160 acres will be permitted by transfer of portions of the land claimed to secure recognition of his claim, through himself and his grantees, for more land in the aggregate than he could purchase in his own name. It must be shown in each case that the land claimed is not part of a claim which embraced more than approximately 160 acres on December 22, 1928, or if the land claimed is part of such a larger claim the full facts relative thereto must be shown.

11. The claimant must in each case show whether or not he has filed any other claim under the said act, and if he has filed another claim he must identify it.

12. Every material fact stated in the claimant's affidavit or proof or necessary to the validity of his claim not established by competent documentary evidence must be substantiated by the affidavits of not less than two disinterested persons having knowledge of the facts.

13. If the land applied for has been surveyed, and is subject to purchase under this act, the register when the application is filed in a district land office, after the assignment of a serial number thereto, will note the application on his records and will promptly forward same to the Commissioner of the General Land Office. Where there is no district land office, and the application is filed directly in the General Land Office, the proper notations will be made on the records of the General Land Office. When such application has been received in the General Land Office, it will be promptly forwarded to the proper field division for appraisement in accordance with the terms of the act.

14. The appraisement shall be made on the basis of the value of such lands at the date of appraisal, exclusive of any increased value resulting from the development or improvement of the lands by the applicant or his predecessor in interest.

15. If, upon consideration of the application in the General Land Office with report and appraisement it shall be determined that the applicant is entitled to purchase the lands applied for, the applicant will be notified at once, by registered mail, that he must within 30 days from service of notice, deposit with the register of the district land office, where there is a district land office in the State where the land is situated, or with the receiving clerk of the General Land Office, where there is no district land office, the appraised price or thereafter and without further notice, forfeit all rights under his application, whereupon the land will be subject to disposal under applicable laws.

16. Upon the payment of the appraised price of the land, in the district land office, when there is one in the State, or in the General Land Office, notice for publication will be issued in the following form:

> Notice is hereby given that ——— ——— (name of applicant), of ——— (post-office address), has applied under the act of Congress approved December 22, 1928, 45 Stat. 1069, to purchase ———, section ——, township ——, range ——, meridian ———, State of ———, claiming under ——— (grounds of claim).
> All persons claiming the lands adversely will be allowed until ——— ———, to file in this office their objections to the issuance of patent under the aforesaid application, copy of objection to be served on the applicant. The appraised price of the land is ———.

Such notice shall be published at the expense of the applicant in a newspaper of general circulation, designated by the register or the commissioner, as the case may be, in the vicinity of the land applied for. If it be a daily paper, the publication must be inserted in 30 consecutive issues; if daily except Sunday, in 26; if weekly, in 5; and if semiweekly, in 9 consecutive issues.[a]

The first day of publication must be at least 30 days before the date set in the notice before which protests shall be filed. A copy of the notice will be posted in the district land office, or in the General Land Office, as the case may be, during the entire period of publication. The applicant must file evidence showing that publication has been had for the required time, which evidence must consist of the affidavit of the publisher, accompanied by a copy of the notice published.

[a] See instructions of Oct. 19, 1929, p. 1149.

17. Upon submission of satisfactory proof of publication and posting as provided in the foreging rule, if no protest or contest is pending or no other objection appears, final certificate will be issued. Such certificate shall bear upon its face the following: Patent to contain reservation of coal and all other minerals, and conditions and limitations provided by the act of December 22, 1928. There will be incorporated in patents issued on such entries the following: Excepting and reserving, however, to the United States all coal and other minerals in the lands so entered and patented, together with the right of the United States or its permittees, lessees, or grantees, to enter upon said lands for the purpose of prospecting for and mining such deposits as provided by the act of December 22, 1928.

18. The said act of December 22, 1928, impliedly repeals and supersedes the local act of June 8, 1926 (44 Stat. 709), relating only to New Mexico.

Very respectfully,

Thos. C. Havell,
Acting Commissioner.

CONFIRMATION [a]

CIRCULAR NO. 879[1]

INSTRUCTIONS UNDER SUPREME COURT DECISIONS INVOLVING CONFIRMATION UNDER SECTION 7, ACT OF MARCH 3, 1891

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, March 9, 1923.

Chiefs of Field Divisions.

SIRS: I inclose herewith for your information a photographic copy of the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in Thomas J. Stockley et al., appellants, v. the United States, decided January 2, 1923.

The court held in said case that after the lapse of two years from the date of the issuance of the receiver's receipt upon the final entry of any tract of land under the homestead, timber-culture, desert-land, or preemption laws, such entryman is, there being no pending contest or protest against the validity of such entry, entitled to patent under the proviso to section 7 of the act of March 3, 1891, regardless of whether the register's final certificate has issued or not.

The Supreme Court of the United States in Payne v. Newton (255 U. S. 438), decided that Newton was entitled to a patent on his homestead entry under the proviso to section 7 of the act of March 3, 1891, two years having elapsed from the date of the issuance of the receiver's final receipt upon final entry, and there being no contest or protest pending against the validity of the entry, but stated that the purpose of the statute was:

> To require that the right to a patent which for two years has been evidenced by a receiver's receipt, and at the end of that period stands unchallenged, shall be recognized and given effect by the issue of the patent without further waiting or delay, and thus to transfer from the land officers to the regular judicial tribunals the authority to deal with any subsequent controversy over the validity of the entry, as would be the case if the patent were issued in the absence of the statute.

Patent was issued to Newton in accordance with the said decision of the Supreme Court, but the department has been officially advised by the Department of Justice that a suit has been instituted to set aside the patent.

You will immediately carefully examine your records to determine the cases affected by said decisions, and divide such cases into two groups as follows:

(1) Entries in which the 2-year period will elapse during the coming field season.

---

[a] Instructions relating to the confirmation of entries are also printed under the title Board of Equitable Adjudication, p. 311.

[1] See instructions of May 26, 1924, p. 1247.

(2) Entries which are already confirmed under said court decisions.

In the matter of the first group you will have investigations made and reports submitted in time for this office to take action against such entries as are found bad, within the 2-year period, making your investigations special and your recommendations by wire as to cases nearing confirmation, if necessary.

As to entries within the second group, you will have investigations made as soon as practicable, and where it is found that an entryman did not comply with the law and made a false and fraudulent proof make recommendation as to whether, in the event patent is issued under the confirmatory proviso to the act of March 3, 1891, suit should be instituted to set it aside.

You will at once examine your dockets of cases pending for hearing and postpone hearings on any which appear to be confirmed and report them to this office for action.

This office has in the past proceeded against and canceled entries which could be held to be confirmed under said court decisions. Such cases will, upon proper application, be reinstated and patented as confirmed, provided the lands are not appropriated by a claimant under the homestead or desert land laws or patented to a claimant under other public land laws. This office will then consider the question as to whether the patents so issued shall be attacked and direct such field investigations as may be necessary. Where, however, the lands in such canceled entries have been patented to others or are appropriated by claimants under the homestead or desert land laws, no action will be taken by this office looking toward the reinstatement of the canceled entries, but the entrymen will be left to their remedy under the act approved January 27, 1922 (42 Stat. 359), which provides:

> In all cases where a final entry of public lands has been or may be hereafter canceled, and such entry is held by the Land Department or by a court of competent jurisdiction to have been confirmed under the proviso to section 7 of the act of March 3, 1891 (Twenty-sixth Statutes, page 1099), if the land has been disposed of to or appropriated by a claimant under the homestead or desert-land laws, or patented to a claimant under other public-land laws, the Secretary of the Interior is authorized, in his discretion, and under rules to be prescribed by him, to change the entry and transfer the payment to any other tract of surveyed public land, nonmineral in character, free from lawful claim, and otherwise subject to general disposition: Provided, That the entryman, his heirs, or assigns shall file a relinquishment of all rights, title, and interest in and to the land originally entered: Provided further, That no right or claim under the provisions of this paragraph shall be assignable or transferable.

Instructions under said act of January 27, 1922, are contained in Circular No. 817 (48 L. D. 595).

Respectfully,

William Spry,
Commissioner.

Approved March 9, 1923.

E. C. Finney,
First Assistant Secretary.

CIRCULAR NO. 474

REGULATIONS GOVERNING ENTRIES AND PROOFS UNDER THE DESERT-LAND LAWS

(Revised December 18, 1928)

(In this revision of the regulations of May 18, 1916 (45 L. D. 345), changes have been made in paragraphs 2, 3, 4, 5, 8, 9, 11, 13, 14, 15, 16, 18, 21, 22, 28, 30, 31, 32, 34, 35, 36, 41, and 51.)

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., May 20, 1924.

1. All the more important laws and portions of laws governing the making of desert-land entries, assignments thereof, and the proofs required, will be found printed in full at the end of this circular.

It seems to be the purpose of the statutes to encourage and promote the reclamation, by irrigation, of the arid and semiarid public lands of the Western States through individual effort and private capital, it being assumed that settlement and occupation will naturally follow when the lands have thus been rendered more productive and habitable.

Such reclamation is often a difficult and expensive undertaking, and desert-land entrymen sometimes find serious difficulty in complying with all the requirements of the law, particularly persons who possess little capital. All claimants should restrict their entries to only that quantity of land which they can reasonably expect to reclaim, even though such area be much less than may be lawfully entered. As the more accessible and easily appropriated streams become exhausted, it becomes necessary to convey water, often for very long distances, from more remote sources of supply: more elaborate and expensive systems of irrigation works are required, the cost of water rights is correspondingly increased, and individuals consequently find it necessary to unite their efforts in various forms of cooperative enterprise in order to secure the necessary capital. Nevertheless, a small tract of land, thoroughly reclaimed, with an adequate water supply obtained from a large, well-constructed irrigation system, may well be considered a very valuable piece of property, and more desirable than a larger tract only partially reclaimed or reclaimed from a small, private irrigation system less permanent and efficient in character.

ENTRIES AND PROOFS UNDER THE DESERT LAND LAWS—STATES IN WHICH DESERT-LAND ENTRIES MAY BE MADE

2. The act of March 3, 1877, as amended by the act of March 3, 1891, provides for the making of desert-land entries in the States of Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming.

LANDS THAT MAY BE ENTERED AS DESERT LAND

3. As the desert land law requires the artificial irrigation of any land entered thereunder, lands which are not susceptible of irrigation by practicable means are not deemed subject to entry as desert lands. The question as to whether any particular tract sought to be entered as desert land is in fact irrigable from the source proposed by the applicant will be investigated and determined before the application for entry is allowed. (See par. 13 of this circular.) In order to be subject to entry under the desert land law, public lands must be not only irrigable but also surveyed, unreserved, unappropriated, nonmineral (except lands withdrawn, classified or valuable for coal, phosphate, nitrate, potash, oil, gas, or asphaltic minerals, as hereinafter set forth), nontimbered, and such as will not, without artificial irrigation, produce any reasonably remunerative agricultural crop by the usual means or methods of cultivation. In this latter class are those lands which, one year with another for a series of years, will not without irrigation produce paying crops, but on which crops can be successfully grown in alternate years by means of the so-called dry-farming system. (37 L. D. 522 and 42 L. D. 524.)

Under the act of June 22, 1910 (36 Stat. 583), lands which have been withdrawn or classified as coal lands, or are valuable for coal, may, if desert in character as above defined, be entered under the desert land law, provided such entry is made with a view to obtaining title with a reservation to the United States of the coal in such lands and of the right to prospect for, mine, and remove the same. By the act of July 17, 1914 (38 Stat. 509), similar provisions are made with respect to all lands which have been withdrawn, classified, or reported as containing phosphate, nitrate, potash, oil, gas, or asphaltic minerals, or which are valuable for those deposits.

Applications to make desert-land entries of lands embraced in applications, permits, or leases under the act of February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. 437), if in all other respects complete, will be treated in accordance with departmental instructions authorized by section 29 of said act. (See Instructions of October 6, 1920, 47 L. D. 474.) Applications to make desert-land entries of lands within a naval petroleum reserve must be rejected, as no desert-land entry may be allowed for such lands.

WHO MAY MAKE DESERT-LAND ENTRY

4. Any citizen of the United States 21 years of age, or any person of that age who has declared his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States, and who can truthfully make the affidavit specified in paragraphs 8 and 9 of these regulations, can make a desert-land entry. Thus, a woman, whether married or single, who possesses the necessary qualifications can make a desert-land entry, and, if married, without taking into consideration any entries her husband may have made.

Under existing law (act of September 22, 1922, 42 Stat. 1022), a native-born woman does not lose her citizenship by marriage to an alien unless he be ineligible to become a citizen of the United States; nor does a woman of alien birth acquire citizenship by marriage to a citizen of the United States. The marriage of an alien woman to a citizen of the United States takes the place of a declaration of intention. Under the act of March 2, 1907 (34 Stat. 1228), the citizenship status of the wife is declared to be that of the husband. Any woman seeking to make a desert-land entry, therefore, must show whether she is married or single, and, if married, must give the date of her marriage and the citizenship of her husband. If married between the dates herein specified, and her husband is naturalized or has declared his intention to become a citizen, or if the marital relation has ceased to exist, she may show that fact and, also, that she has resumed her American citizenship by one of the methods prescribed by the act of March 2, 1907. If after initiating a claim under the desert land laws a woman marries, she must show at the time of submission of final proof whether or not her husband is eligible to become a citizen of the United States.

A certified copy of the certificate of naturalization or declaration of intention, as the case may be, should accompany the application in every instance where required by the foregoing rules.

At the time of making final proof claimants of alien birth must have been admitted to citizenship, but a certified copy of the certificate of naturalization need not be furnished if it has already been filed in connection with the original declaration or with the proof of an assignment of the entry.

QUANTITY OF LAND THAT MAY BE ENTERED

5. Under the act of March 3, 1877, desert-land entries to the maximum of 640 acres were allowed, but by the act of March 3, 1891, the maximum area that may be embraced in a desert entry was reduced to 320 acres. This limitation must, however, be read in connection with the act of August 30, 1890 (26 Stat. 391), which limits to 320 acres, in the aggregate, the amount of land to which title may be acquired under all the public land laws, except the mineral laws, and the amendment thereof by the act of February 27, 1917 (39 Stat. 946), allowing one who has entered 320 acres under the enlarged homestead laws to make a desert-land entry. Hence, a person having initiated a claim under the homestead, timber and stone, preemption, or other agricultural land laws, or under all such laws, since August 30, 1890, say, to 160 acres in the aggregate, or 320 acres under the enlarged homestead act, and acquired title to the land so claimed, or who is claiming such an area under subsisting entries at the date of his desert-land application, may, if otherwise qualified, enter 160 acres of land under the desert land laws. In other words, he may have a desert-land entry for such a quantity of land as, taken together with all land acquired and claimed by him under the other agricultural land laws since August 30, 1890, does not exceed 320 acres in the aggregate, or 480 acres if he shall have made an enlarged homestead entry of 320 acres. It is to be noted also that the act of June 22, 1910 (36 Stat. 583), provides that desert-land entries made for lands withdrawn or classified as coal lands, or valuable for coal, shall not exceed 160 acres in area, and that a like restriction is made by the act of July 17,

1914 (38 Stat. 509), with reference to desert-land entries made for land withdrawn, classified, or reported as containing phosphate, nitrate, potash, oil, gas, or asphaltic minerals, or valuable for those deposits.

Entry of lands within an irrigation district which the Secretary of the Interior has approved under the act of August 11, 1916 (39 Stat. 506), is limited to 160 acres. A special circular is issued under this act. (Circular No. 592,[a] approved March 6, 1918, 46 L. D. 307.)

SECOND ENTRY

A person's right of entry under the desert land law is exhausted either by filing an allowable application and withdrawing it prior to its allowance or by making an entry or by taking an assignment of an entry, in whole or in part, except, however, that under the act of September 5, 1914 (38 Stat. 712), if a person, otherwise duly qualified to make a desert-land entry, has previously filed an allowable application, or made such entry or entries and through no fault of his own has lost, forfeited, or abandoned the same, such person may make another entry. In such case, however, it must be shown that the prior application, entry, or entries were made in good faith, and were lost, forfeited, or abandoned because of matters beyond the applicant's control, and that the applicant has not speculated in his right, nor committed a fraud or attempted fraud in connection with such prior entry or entries. As the assignment of an entry involves no loss, forfeiture, or abandonment thereof, but carries a benefit to the assignor, it is held to exhaust his right of entry under the desert land law. Hence, no person who has assigned such entry, in whole or in part, will be permitted thereafter to make another entry or to take one or any part thereof by assignment. Applications to make second entry must not be allowed by the registers and receivers, but must be forwarded by them, with appropriate recommendations, to the General Land Office, accompanied by the applicant's affidavit giving data from which his former application, or applications, entry, or entries may be identified (preferably its series and number, as well as a description of the tract by section, township, and range), and showing (a) what examination of the land and what inquiries as to its character he made prior to filing his previous application or applications for entry, and what reason he had to believe that the required proportion of the tracts could be reclaimed by him through irrigation; (b) what improvements he made upon the land, describing in detail their nature and cost, the date of his abandonment of the claim or claims and the reason therefor, and whether he ever executed a relinquishment of the entry or entries; and (c) what consideration, if any, he received for abandoning or relinquishing the entry or entries, and whether he sold the improvements thereon, giving full details as to such sale, if any, including the date thereof and the consideration received. This affidavit must be executed before a proper officer (see par. 11 of this circular) and must be corroborated on all matters susceptible of corroboration by at least one witness having knowledge of the facts; or, there may be several witnesses, each testifying on some material point. The affidavits of the witnesses may be executed before any officer authorized to administer oaths and having an official seal.

[a] Circular No. 592 was revised June 3, 1927. See p. 729.

If the commissioner should find that the applicant is qualified to make a second entry, the application will be returned to the local officers for appropriate action in accordance with paragraph 13 of this circular.

LAND MUST BE IN COMPACT FORM

6. Land entered under these laws should be in compact form, which means that it should be as nearly a square form as possible. Where, however, it is impracticable, on account of the previous appropriation of adjoining lands or on account of the topography of the country, to take the land in a compact form, all the facts regarding the situation, location, and character of the land sought to be entered and the surrounding tracts should be stated, in order that the General Land Office may determine whether, under all the circumstances, the entry should be allowed in the form sought. Entrymen should make a complete showing in this regard and should state the facts and not the conclusions they derive from the facts, as it is the province of the Land Department of the Government to determine whether or not, from the facts stated, the entry should be allowed. Under no circumstances, however, can one entry be made for two or more separate tracts or for two tracts which touch each other at only a single point.

HOW PREFERENCE RIGHT MAY BE ACQUIRED ON UNSURVEYED LAND

7. Prior to the act of March 28, 1908, a desert-land entry could embrace unsurveyed lands, but since the date of that act desert-land entries may not be made of unsurveyed lands. This act provides, however, that any individual qualified to make entry of desert lands under the desert land acts who has, prior to survey, taken possession of a tract of unsurveyed desert land not exceeding in area 320 acres in compact form, and has reclaimed or has in good faith commenced the work of reclaiming the same, shall have the preference right to make entry of such tract under said acts, in conformity with the public-land surveys, within 90 days after the filing of the approved plat of survey in the district land office.

To preserve this preference right the work of reclamation must be continued up to the filing of the plat of survey, unless the reclamation of the land is completed before that time, and in that event the claimant must continue to cultivate and occupy the land until the survey is completed and the plat filed. A mere perfunctory occupation of the land, such as staking off the claim or posting notices thereof on the land claimed, will not secure the preference right as against an adverse claimant. While actual settlement and residence upon the land, as required under the homestead law, are not necessary, the possession and improvements must be such as to conform to the requirements of the desert land law and must evidence good faith on the part of the claimant.

HOW TO PROCEED TO MAKE A DESERT-LAND ENTRY

8. A person who desires to make entry under the desert land laws must file with the register and receiver of the proper land office a declaration or application, under oath, showing that he is a citizen of the United States, or has declared his intention to become such citizen; that he is 21 years of age or over; and that he is also a bona fide resident of the State in which the land sought to be entered is located, except in the State of Nevada, where the qualification as to citizenship is that of the United States only (41 Stat. 1086). He must also state that he has not previously exercised the right of entry under the desert land laws by filing an allowable application and withdrawing it prior to its allowance or by making an entry or by having taken one by assignment; that he has personally examined every legal subdivision of the land sought to be entered; that he has not, since August 30, 1890, acquired title, under any of the agricultural land laws, to lands which, together with the land applied for, will exceed in the aggregate 320 acres, or 480 acres in case he has made an enlarged homestead for 320 acres; and that he intends to reclaim the lands applied for by conducting water thereon within four years from the date of his application. This declaration must contain a description of the land by legal subdivisions, section, township, and range. If the application is made for lands, withdrawn or classified as coal lands or for lands withdrawn, classified, or reported as containing phosphate, nitrate, potash, oil, gas, or asphaltic minerals, or valuable therefor, the applicant must also state in his declaration that the same is made in accordance with and subject to the act of June 22, 1910 (36 Stat. 583), or the act of July 17, 1914 (38 Stat. 509), as the case may be.

As to lands embraced in applications, permits, or leases under the act of February 25, 1920, see paragraph 3 of this circular.

9. Special attention is called to the terms of this application, as they require a personal knowledge by the entryman of the lands intended to be entered. The affidavit, which is made a part of the application, may not be made by an agent or upon information and belief, and the register and receiver must reject all applications in which it is not made to appear that the statements contained therein are made upon the applicant's own knowledge, obtained from a personal examination of the land. The blank spaces in the application must be filled in with a complete statement of the facts showing the applicant's acquaintance with the land and how he knows it to be desert land. This declaration must be corroborated by the affidavits of two reputable witnesses, who also must be personally acquainted with the land, and they must state the facts regarding the condition and situation of the land upon which they base the opinion that it is subject to desert entry. The declaration of applicant and the affidavit of his two witnesses must in every instance be made at the same time and place and before the same officer. (As to officers authorized to administer oaths in such cases, see par. 11 of this circular.)

The statements in the blank form of declaration and accompanying affidavits as to present character of the land may be modified so as to show the facts in any case wherein application is made for entry of lands reclaimed or partially reclaimed, by applicant, before survey, under the provisions of the act of March 28, 1908; as to a former application or entry, in case application is made for a second entry under the provisions of the act of September 5, 1914; as to the character of the land with respect to coal deposits in case application is made under the provisions of the act of June 22, 1910, for lands withdrawn or classified as coal lands, or valuable for coal; and with respect to phosphate, nitrate, potash, oil, gas, and asphaltic minerals in case application is made under the provisions of the act of July 17, 1914, for lands withdrawn, classified, or reported as containing those substances, or valuable therefor.

As to lands embraced in applications, permits, or leases under the act of February 25, 1920, see paragraph 3 of this circular.

10. Applicants and witnesses must in all cases state their places of actual residence, their business or occupation, and their post-office addresses. It is not sufficient to name only the county or State in which a person lives, but the town or city must be named also; and where the residence is in a city the street and number must be given. It is especially important to claimants that upon changing their post-office addresses they promptly notify the local officers of such change, for in case of failure to do so their entries may be canceled upon notice sent to the address of record but not received by them. The register and receiver will be careful to note the post-office address on their records.

11. The application and corroborating affidavits and all other proofs, affidavits, and oaths of any kind whatsoever required by law to be made by applicants and entrymen and their corroborating witnesses may be executed before the register or receiver of the land district in which the land is located, or before a United States commissioner, or a judge or clerk of a court of record, or before a duly qualified deputy clerk of court who regularly acts for the clerk and performs duties of the office in the name of his principal at the county seat, in the county or land district in which the land is situated, without any showing as to the nearness or accessibility of such officer, or outside both the county and land district, upon a showing by affidavit, satisfactory to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, that the officer so acting was, because of topographic or geographic conditions, nearer or more accessible to the land. Reference is had to Circular No. 884,[b] dated March 23, 1923 (49 L. D. 497), and Circular No. 894, dated May 8, 1923 (49 L. D. 586).

The application is not acceptable if executed more than 10 days before its filing at the local office.

EVIDENCE AS TO WATER RIGHT MUST ACCOMPANY APPLICATION

12. No desert-land application will be allowed unless accompanied by evidence satisfactorily showing either that the intending entryman has already acquired by appropriation, purchase, or contract a right to the permanent use of sufficient water to irrigate and reclaim all of the irrigable portion of the land sought, or that he has initiated and prosecuted, as far as then possible, appropriate steps looking to the acquisition of such a right. If applicant intends to procure water from an irrigation district, corporation, or association, but is unable to obtain a contract for the water in advance of the allowance of his entry, then he must furnish, in lieu of the contract, some written assurance from the responsible officials of such district, corporation, or association that, if his entry be allowed, applicant will be able to obtain from that source the necessary water. All applications not accompanied by the evidence above indicated will be rejected.

PROPOSED IRRIGATION SYSTEM MUST BE PRACTICABLE

13. At the time of filing the declaration with the register and receiver the applicant must also file plans describing in detail the following: Source of water supply; character of the irrigation works constructed, in course of construction, or proposed to be constructed, i. e., reservoirs for storage, canals, flumes, or other methods by which water is to be conserved and conveyed to the land; if by direct diversion, the character and volume of the flow of the streams or springs whether perennially flowing or intermittent. If the works have not been constructed, it must be shown whether they are to be built by an irrigation district, a corporation, or an association, and a general description of the proposed plan must be furnished. It must be shown in connection with any proposed plan whether, and by whom, surveys and investigations have been made which demonstrate the existence of a sufficient water supply and the feasibility of the proposed works to convey water to the land. If the applicant individually, or in association with others, proposes to construct irrigation works, a sworn statement must accompany the declaration, containing a general description of the proposed works, an estimate of the cost, and such other data as will enable the department to determine the sufficiency of the water supply and the feasibility of the proposed works to convey water to the lands to be irrigated. If the irrigation is proposed by means of artesian wells or by pumping from nonartesian underground sources of water supply, sworn evidence must be submitted as to the existence of such water supply upon or near the land involved, including a statement as to other wells theretofore sunk and affording a water supply to adjoining or near-by lands.

With respect to the land itself, a specific showing must be submitted as to its approximate altitude, character of the soil, the approximate irrigable area of each legal subdivision, and the position and direction of the proposed permanent main and lateral ditches on the land, and that the land is of such contour that it can be irrigated from the proposed system. The map required to be filed by section 4 of the act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 1095), must be sufficiently definite and accurate (preferably, but not necessarily, prepared by a licensed engineer) to show the plan for conducting water to the land to be irrigated. The register and receiver will carefully examine the evidence submitted in such declarations, and either reject defective declarations or require additional evidence to be filed.

At the time of filing his declaration, plans, and the statements submitted therewith the applicant must pay the receiver the sum of 25 cents per acre for the lands therein described, the declaration to be given its proper serial number at that time, in accordance with existing regulations. No rights to the land are initiated by the filing of an application unless this sum is paid or tendered. The receiver will issue a receipt for the money, and after proper notations have been made on the local office records the application will be transmitted to the proper chief of field division for report as to the sufficiency of the alleged water supply and the feasibility of the proposed plans. The register and receiver will furnish the chief of field division any facts in their knowledge with respect to the land, the water supply, or the proposed plan of irrigation, including the financial responsibility and general ability of the irrigation districts, corporations, or associations which propose to construct works for the reclamation of such land. In all cases the register and receiver will certify as to the status of the lands as shown by their records, and when forwarding an application for report they will attach all papers filed by the applicant. No application will be forwarded to the chief of field division until all evidence required as aforesaid has been furnished by the applicant; nor, in the case of an application for second entry, until the application has been transmitted to the Commissioner of the General Land Office for consideration and returned by him to the local officers.

When an application is received by the chief of field division he will have same considered by a field examiner, who will make a written report thereon recommending the allowance or rejection of the application. If such report is favorable and the chief of field division is of the opinion that the entry should be allowed, he will return the application to the register and receiver, with the report and recommendation to that effect, whereupon the register and receiver will pass upon it in regular order in the light of the report, which is to be attached to the application and become a part of the record, and in the absence of any objection will sign the certificate at the end of the declaration under date of its allowance and advise the applicant.

If, however, the chief of field division is of the opinion that the entry should not be allowed, he will have a full report prepared on the application and transmit the entire record to the General Land Office for consideration and action, advising the register and receiver thereof.

In the event that an applicant alleges a company, an association, or an irrigation district as the proposed source of water supply, upon which report has not been submitted, the chief of field division will cause an investigation to be made of such project and have a report submitted thereon to the commissioner, making a definite recommendation as to the allowance of original entries under the project, and will transmit the application involved with the report.

If the project alleged as the source of water supply has been reported upon, but no action on such report has been taken by the commissioner, the chief of field division will transmit the application to the General Land Office with appropriate recommendation. In the event the applicant alleges a project which has been passed upon by the commissioner, the chief of field division will consider same in accordance with the conclusions reached, and in the event that favorable action is warranted will return the papers to the register and receiver with proper report and recommendation. In case adverse action is necessary, the chief of field division will transmit the application to the General Land Office with proper recommendation.

Should the commissioner, after consideration of the examiner's report and the showing made by the applicant, deny the right to make entry, the applicant will be allowed the right to apply for a hearing or to appeal, as he may desire.

If an application is not returned by the chief of field division in time to be considered and allowed by the register and receiver and transmitted with the returns for the month during which filed, the register will note "To C. F. D" (giving date), in the remarks column of the "General schedule of serial numbers," and will forward with the returns for that month a separate report on Form 4–030 for each application so held by the chief of field division.

Registers and receivers will render any reasonable assistance to applicants and witnesses in preparing their declarations and affidavits, but it is no part of the duty of these officers to prepare, or assist in preparing, the map, plans, or evidence of water right required to be filed with the declaration. Intending applicants should cause all such documents and papers to be prepared in advance and have them ready for filing with the declarations.

ASSIGNMENTS

14. While by the act of March 3, 1891, assignments of desert-land entries were recognized, the Land Department, largely for administrative reasons, held that a desert-land entry might be assigned as a whole or in its entirety, but refused to recognize the assignment of only a portion of an entry. The act of March 28, 1908, however, provides for an assignment of such entries, in whole or in part, but this does not mean that less than a legal subdivision may be assigned. Therefore no assignment, otherwise than by legal subdivisions, will be recognized. The legal subdivisions assigned must be contiguous. (With regard to the assignment of desert-land entries within Government reclamation projects, see General Reclamation Circular.)

15. The act of March 28, 1908, also provides that no person may take a desert-land entry by assignment unless he is qualified to enter the tract so assigned to him. Therefore, if a person is not at least 21 years of age and, excepting Nevada, a resident citizen of the State wherein the land involved is located; or if he is not a citizen of the United States, or a person who has declared his intention to become a citizen thereof; or, if he has made a desert-land entry in his own right and is not entitled under the act of September 5, 1914, to make a second entry, he can not take such an entry by assignment. The language of the act indicates that the taking of an entry by assignment is equivalent to the making of an entry, and this being so, no person is allowed to take more than one entry by assignment, unless it be done as the exercise of a right of second entry. The right of entry under the desert land law is exhausted either by filing an allowable application and withdrawing it prior to its allowance or by making an entry or by taking one by assignment, unless such entry be subsequently lost, forfeited, or abandoned because of matters beyond the claimant's control.

A person who has the right to make a second desert-land entry under the act of September 5, 1914, may exercise that right by taking an assignment of a desert-land entry, or part of such entry, if he is otherwise qualified to make a desert-land entry for the particular tract assigned. The right to make a second desert-land entry, however, is not possessed by any person who has assigned some former entry or part thereof. (See par. 5.)

The act of March 28, 1908, also provides that no assignment to or for the benefit of any corporation shall be authorized or recognized.

16. As stated above, desert-land entries may be assigned, in whole or in part, and as evidence of the assignment there should be transmitted to the General Land Office the original deed of assignment or a certified copy thereof. Where the deed of assignment is recorded a certified copy may be made by the officer who has custody of the record. Where the original deed is presented to an officer qualified to take proof in desert-land cases a copy certified by such officer will be accepted. Attention is called to the fact that copies of deeds of assignment certified by notaries public or justices of the peace, or, indeed, any other officer than those who are qualified to take proofs and affidavits in desert-land cases, will not be accepted.

An assignee must file with his deed of assignment an affidavit (Form 4–274c), showing his qualifications to take the entry assigned to him. He must show what applications or entries, if any, have been made by him or what entries assigned to him under the agricultural public land laws, and he must also show his qualifications as a citizen of the United States; that he is 21 years of age or over; and also that he is a resident citizen of the State in which the land assigned to him is situated, except in the State of Nevada, where citizenship of the United States only is required. If the assignee is not a native-born citizen of the United States, he should also furnish a certified copy of his declaration of intention to become a citizen or a certified copy of his certificate of naturalization, as the case may be. If the assignee is a woman, she should in all cases state whether or not she is married, and if so, show that in accordance with the rules explained in paragraph 4 her citizenship is not lost by reason of the alienage of her husband. In short, the assignee must prove that he possesses all the qualifications necessary to enable him to make a desert-land entry for the land proposed to be assigned were it subject to entry. Desert-land entries are initiated by the payment of 25 cents per acre, and no assignable right is acquired by the applicant prior to such payment. (6 L. D. 541, 33 L. D. 152.) An assignment made on the day of such payment, or soon thereafter, is treated as suggesting fraud, and such cases will be carefully scrutinized. The provisions of law authorizing the assignment of desert entries, in whole or in part, furnish no authority to a claimant under said law to make an executory contract to convey the land after the issuance of patent and thereafter to proceed with the submission of final proof in furtherance of such contract. (34 L. D. 383.) The sale of land embraced in an entry at any time before final payment is made must be regarded as an assignment of the entry, and in such cases the person buying the land must show that he possesses all the qualifications required of an assignee. (29 L. D. 453.) The assignor of a desert-land entry may execute the assignment before any officer authorized to take acknowledgments of deeds, but the assignee must execute the affidavit as to his qualifications, (Form 4—274c), and all other required oaths and affidavits before some one of the officers specified in paragraph 11 of this circular.

No assignments of desert-land entries or parts of entries are conclusive until examined in the General Land Office and found satisfactory and the assignment recognized. When recognized, however, the assignee takes the place of the assignor as effectively as though he had made the entry, and is subject to any requirement that may be made relative thereto. The assignment of a desert-land entry to one disqualified to acquire title under the desert land law, and to whom, therefore, recognition of the assignment is refused by the General Land Office, does not of itself render the entry fraudulent, but leaves the right thereto in the assignor. In such connection, however, see 42 L. D. 90 and 48 L. D. 519.

After final proof and payment have been made the land may be sold and conveyed to another person without the approval of the General Land Office, but all such conveyances are nevertheless subject to the superior rights of the United States, and the title so obtained would fall if it should be finally determined that the entry was illegal or that the entryman had failed to comply with the law.

Lands embraced in unperfected desert-land entries are not subject to taxation by the State authorities, nor to levy and sale under execution to satisfy judgments against the entrymen.

Lands embraced in desert-land entries within an irrigation district which the Secretary of the Interior has approved under the act of August 11, 1916 (39 Stat. 506), may be taxed and otherwise dealt with as provided by said act. (See Circular No. 592, referred to in par. 5.)

A desert-land entryman may, however, mortgage his interest in the entered land if, by the laws of the State in which the land is situated, a mortgage of land is regarded as merely creating a lien thereon and not as a conveyance thereof. The purchaser at a sale had for the foreclosure of such mortgage may be recognized as assignee upon furnishing proof of his qualifications to take a desert-land entry by assignment. Transferees, after final proof, mortgagees, or other encumbrancers may file in the proper local land office written notice stating the nature of their claims, and they will thereupon become entitled to receive notice of any action taken by the Land Department with reference to the entry. The register and receiver will report all such claims by separate letters, to be forwarded with their current returns to the General Land Office.

ANNUAL PROOF

17. In order to test the sincerity and good faith of claimants under the desert land laws and to prevent the segregation for a number of years of public lands in the interest of persons who have no intention to reclaim them, Congress, in the act of March 3, 1891, made the r quirement that a map be filed at the initiation of the entry showing the mode of contemplated irrigation and the proposed source of water supply, and that there be expended yearly for three years from the date of the entry not less than $1 for each acre of the tract entered, making a total of not less than $3 per acre, in the necessary irrigation, reclamation, and cultivation of the land, in permanent improvements thereon, and in the purchase of water rights for the irrigation thereof, and that at the expiration of the third year a map or plan be filed showing the character and extent of the improvements placed on the claim. Said act, however, authorizes the submission of final proof at an earlier date than four years from the time the entry is made in cases wherein reclamation has been effected and expenditures of not less than $3 per acre have been made. Proof of these expenditures must be made before some officer authorized to administer oaths in public-land cases. (See par. 11 hereof.)

This proof, which is known as yearly or annual proof, must consist of the affidavits of "two or more credible witnesses," each of whom must have personal knowledge that the expenditures were made for the purpose stated in the proof. The testimony of such witnesses may be supplemented by the affidavit of the claimant, at his option, but he is not required by law to make oath as to the annual expenditures upon or for the benefit of the land. (42 L. D. 165.) Annual proofs must contain itemized statements showing the manner in which expenditures were made.

ACCEPTABLE EXPENDITURES

18. Expenditures for the construction and maintenance of storage reservoirs, dams, canals, ditches, and laterals to be used by claimant for irrigating his land; for roads where they are necessary; for erecting stables, corrals, etc.; for digging wells, where the water therefrom is to be used for irrigating the land; for stock or interest in an approved irrigation company, or for taxes paid to an approved irrigation district, through which water is to be secured to irrigate the land; and for leveling and bordering land proposed to be irrigated, will be accepted. Expenditures for fencing all or a portion of the claim, for surveying for the purpose of ascertaining the levels for canals, ditches, etc., and for the first breaking or clearing of the soil are also acceptable.

The value to be attached to, and the credit to be given for, an expenditure for works or improvements is the reasonable value of the work done or improvement placed upon the land, according to the market price therefor, or for similar work or improvements prevailing in the vicinity, and not the amount alleged by a claimant to have been expended, nor the mere proof of expenditures, as exhibited by checks or other vouchers. (Bradley v. Vasold, 36 L. D. 106.) (See Circular No. 933,[c] dated April 26, 1924.)

EXPENDITURES NOT ACCEPTABLE

Expenditures for cultivation after the soil has been first prepared may not be accepted, because the claimant is supposed to be compensated for such work by the crops to be reaped as a result of cultivation. Expenditures for surveying the claim in order to locate the corners of same may not be accepted. The cost of tools, implements, wagons, and repairs to same, used in construction work, may not be computed in cost of construction. Expenditures for material of any kind will not be allowed unless such material has actually been installed or employed in and for the purpose for which it was purchased. For instance, if credit is asked for posts and wire for fences or for pump or other well machinery, it must be shown that the fence has been actually constructed or the well machinery actually put in place. No expenditures can be credited on annual proofs upon a desert-land entry unless made on account of that particular entry, and expenditures once credited can not be again applied. This rule applies to second entries as well as to original entries, and a claimant who relinquishes his entry and makes second entry of the same land under the act of September 5, 1914, can not receive credit on annual proofs upon the second entry for expenditures made on account of the former entry. (41 L. D. 601 and 42 L. D. 523.)

[c] Circular No. 933 added two paragraphs to section 18 of Circular No. 474, both of which are printed as a part of said section. Circular No. 933 is not carried in this publication.

Expenditures for the clearing of the land will not receive credit in cases where the vegetation or brush claimed to have been cleared away has not been actually removed by the roots. Therefore, expenditures for clearing, where as a matter of fact there has been only crushing, or rolling, or what is known in some localities as railing the land, will not be accepted. (See Circular No. 933,[c] dated April 26, 1924.)

No expenditures for stock or interest in an irrigation company, through which water is to be secured for irrigating the land, will be accepted as satisfactory annual expenditure until a special agent, or other authorized officer, has submitted a report as to the resources and reliability of the company, including its actual water right, and such report has been favorably acted upon by the General Land Office. The stock purchased must carry the right to water, and it must be shown that payment in cash has been made at least to the extent of the amount claimed as expenditure for the purchase of such stock in connection with the annual proof submitted, and such stock must be actually owned by the claimants at the time of the submission of final proof.

Registers and receivers are instructed to examine carefully all annual proofs filed and are authorized to suspend them, with notice to claimants to cure defects within 30 days, or to reject them, subject to the usual right of appeal to the Commissioner of the General Land Office. These proofs are to be forwarded with the regular monthly returns. However, no annual proof which alleges an expenditure for stock or interest in an irrigation company should be rejected merely because the expenditure was of that character unless such rejection be warranted under instructions issued by the Commissioner of the General Land Office in acting upon the special agent's report on the particular company in question. If no such instructions have been issued, and the company referred to in the annual proof be one on which the local officers have not previously requested a report from the proper chief of field division, they will immediately call for such report and advise the commissioner thereof by special letter.

[c] Circular No. 933 added two paragraphs to section 18 of Circular No. 474, both of which are printed as a part of said section. Circular No. 933 is not carried in this publication.

They will also indorse the fact and date of the call upon the margin of the annual proof and forward it to the General Land Office with the regular returns.

NOTICE TO DELINQUENT CLAIMANTS

Local officers will examine their records frequently for the purpose of ascertaining whether all annual proofs due on pending desert-land entries have been made, and in every case where the claimant is in default in that respect they will send him notice and allow him 60 days in which to submit such proof. If the proof is not furnished as required the fact that notice was served upon the claimant should be reported to the General Land Office, with evidence of service, whereupon the entry will be canceled. During the pendency of a Government proceeding initiated by such notice the entry will be protected against a private contest charging failure to make the required expenditures, and such contest will neither defeat the claimant's right to equitably perfect the entry as to the matter of expenditures during the 60 days allowed in the notice nor secure to the contestant a preference right in event the entry be canceled for default under said notice.

EXTENSION OF TIME FOR FILING ANNUAL PROOF NOT ALLOWED

The law makes no provision for an extension of time in which to file annual proof on desert-land entries not embraced within the exterior boundaries of any withdrawal or irrigation project under the reclamation act of June 17, 1902 (32 Stat. 388), and extensions for said purpose can not therefore be granted. However, where a township is suspended from entry for the purpose of resurvey thereof the time between the date of suspension and the filing in the local office of the new plat of survey will be excluded from the period accorded by law for the reclamation of land under a desert entry within such township and the statutory life of the entry extended accordingly (40 L. D. 223). During the continuance of the extension the claimant may, at his option, defer the making of annual expenditures and proof thereof.

19. Nothing in the statutes or regulations should be construed to mean that the entryman must wait until the end of the year to submit his annual proof, because the proof may be properly submitted as soon as the expenditures have been made. Proof sufficient for the three years may be offered whenever the amount of $3 an acre has been expended in reclaiming and improving the land, and thereafter annual proof will not be required.

FINAL PROOF

20. The entryman, his assigns, or, in case of death, his heirs or devisees, are allowed four years from date of the entry within which to comply with the requirements of the law as to reclamation and cultivation of the land and to submit final proof, but final proof may be made and patent thereon issued as soon as there has been expended the sum of $3 per acre in improving, reclaiming, and irrigating the land, and one-eighth of the entire area entered has been properly cultivated and irrigated, and when the requirements of the desert land laws as to water rights and the construction of the necessary reservoirs, ditches, dams, etc., have been fully complied with.

NOTICES OF INTENTION TO MAKE FINAL PROOF

When an entryman has reclaimed the land and is ready to make final proof, he should apply to the register and receiver for a notice of intention to make such proof. This notice must contain a complete description of the land, give the number of the entry and name of the claimant, and must bear an indorsement specifically indicating the source of his water supply. If the proof is made by an assignee, his name, as well as that of the original entryman, should be stated. It must also show when, where, and before whom the proof is to be made. Four witnesses may be named in this notice, two of whom must be used in making proof. Care should be exercised to select as witnesses persons who are familiar, from personal observation, with the land in question, and with what has been done by the claimant toward reclaiming and improving it. Care should also be taken to ascertain definitely the names and addresses of the proposed witnesses, so that they may correctly appear in the notice.

PUBLICATION OF FINAL-PROOF NOTICE

21. This notice must be published once a week for five successive weeks in a newspaper of established character and general circulation published nearest the lands (see 38 L. D. 131; 43 L. D. 216), and must also be posted in a conspicuous place in the local land office for the same period of time. The claimant must pay the cost of the publication, but it is the duty of registers to procure the publication of proper final-proof notices, and registers should accordingly exercise the utmost care in that behalf. (40 L. D. 459.) The date fixed for the taking of the proof must be at least 30 days after the date of first publication. Proof of publication must be made by the affidavit of the publisher of the newspaper or by some one authorized to act for him. The register will certify to the posting of the notice in the local office.

22. On the day set in the notice (or, in the case of accident or unavoidable delay, within 10 days thereafter), and at the place and before the officer designated, the claimant will appear with two of the witnesses named in the notice and make proof of the reclamation, cultivation, and improvement of the land. The testimony of each claimant should be taken separately and apart from and not within the hearing of either of his witnesses, and the testimony of each witness should be taken separately and apart from and not within the hearing of either the applicant or of any other witness, and both the applicant and each of the witnesses should be required to state, in and as a part of the final-proof testimony given by them, that they have given such testimony without any actual knowledge of any statement made in the testimony of either of the others. In every instance where, for any reason whatever, final proof is not submitted within the four years prescribed by law, or within the period of an extension granted for submitting such proof, an affidavit should be filed by claimant, with the proof, explaining the cause of delay.

OFFICERS QUALIFIED TO TAKE FINAL PROOF

The final proof may be made before any one of the officers named and under the conditions prescribed in paragraph 11.

No showing by affidavit need be made where final proof is taken outside the county or land district in which the land is located, if the proof be taken in the town or city where the newspaper is published in which the final-proof notice is printed.

SHOWING REQUIRED ON FINAL PROOF AS TO IRRIGATION, CULTIVATION, AND WATER RIGHTS

23. The final proof must show specifically the source and volume of the water supply and how it was acquired and how it is maintained. The number, length, and carrying capacity of all ditches to and on each of the legal subdivisions must also be shown. The claimant and the witnesses must each state in full all that has been done in the matter of reclamation and improvements of the land, and must answer fully, of their own personal knowledge, all of the questions contained in the final-proof blanks. They must state plainly whether at any time they saw the land effectually irrigated, and the different dates on which they saw it irrigated should be specifically stated.

24. While it is not required that all of the land shall have been actually irrigated at the time final proof is made, it is necessary that the one-eighth portion which is required to be cultivated shall also have been irrigated in a manner calculated to produce profitable results, considering the character of the land, the climate, and the kind of crops being grown. (Alonzo B. Cole, 38 L. D. 420.) The cultivation and irrigation of the one-eighth portion of the entire area entered may be had in a body on one legal subdivision or may be distributed over several subdivisions. The final proof must clearly show that all of the permanent main and lateral ditches necessary for the irrigation of all the irrigable land in the entry have been constructed so that water can be actually applied to the land as soon as it is ready for cultivation. If pumping be relied upon as the means of irrigation, the plant installed for that purpose must be of sufficient capacity to render available enough water for all the irrigable land. If there are any high points or any portions of the land which for any reason it is not practicable to irrigate, the nature, extent, and situation of such areas in each legal subdivision must be fully stated. If less than one-eighth of a smallest legal subdivision is practically susceptible of irrigation from claimant's source of water supply and no portion thereof is used as a necessary part of his irrigation scheme, such subdivision must be relinquished. (43 L. D. 269.)

25. As a rule, actual tillage of one-eighth of the land must be shown. It is not sufficient to show only that there has been a marked increase in the growth of grass or that grass sufficient to support stock has been produced on the land as a result of irrigation. If, however, on account of some peculiar climatic or soil conditions, no crops except grass can be successfully produced, or if actual tillage will destroy or injure the productive quality of the soil, the actual production of a crop of hay of merchantable value will be accepted as sufficient compliance with the requirements as to cultivation. (32 L. D. 456.) In such cases, however, the facts must be stated and the extent and value of the crop of hay must be shown, and, as before stated, that same was produced as a result of actual irrigation.

26. In every case where the claimant's water right is founded upon contract or purchase the final proof must embrace evidence which clearly establishes the fact and legal sufficiency of that right. If claimant's ownership of such right has already been evidenced in connection with the original entry or some later proceeding, then the final proof must show his continued possession thereof. If the water right relied on is obtained under claimant's appropriation, the final proof, considered together with any evidence previously submitted in the matter, must show that the claimant has made such preliminary filings as are required by the laws of the State in which the land is located, and that he has also taken all other steps necessary under said laws to secure and perfect the claimed water right. In all cases the water right, however it be acquired, must entitle the claimant to the use of a sufficient supply of water to irrigate successfully all the irrigable land embraced in his entry, notwithstanding that the final proof need only show the actual irrigation of one-eighth of that area.

In those States where entrymen have made applications for water rights and have been granted permits but where no final adjudication of the water right can be secured from the State authorities owing to delay in the adjudication of the watercourses or other delay for which the entrymen are in no way responsible, proof that the entrymen have done all that is required of them by the laws of the State, together with proof of actual irrigation of one-eighth of the land embraced in their entries, may be accepted. This modification of the rule that the claimant must furnish evidence of an absolute water right will apply only in those States where under the local laws it is impossible for the entryman to secure final evidence of title to his water right within the time allowed him to submit final proof on his entry, and in such cases the best evidence obtainable must be furnished. (35 L. D. 305.)

It is a well-settled principle of law in all of the States in which the desert land acts are operative that actual application to a beneficial use of water appropriated from public streams measures the extent of the right to the water, and that failure to proceed with reasonable diligence to make such application to beneficial use within a reasonable time constitutes an abandonment of the right. (Wiel's Water Rights in the Western States, sec. 172.) The final proof, therefore, must show that the claimant has exercised such diligence as will, if continued, under the operation of this rule result in his definitely securing a perfect right to the use of sufficient water for the permanent irrigation and reclamation of all of the irrigable land in his entry. To this end the proof must at least show that water which is being diverted from its natural course and claimed for the specific purpose of irrigating the lands embraced in claimant's entry, under a legal right acquired by virtue of his own or his grantor's compliance with the requirements of the State laws governing the appropriation of public waters, has actually been conducted through claimant's main ditches to and upon the land; that one-eighth of the land embraced in the entry has been actually irrigated and cultivated; that water has been brought to such a point on the land as to readily demonstrate that the entire irrigable area may be irrigated from the system; and that claimant is prepared to distribute the water so claimed over all of the irrigable land in each smallest legal subdivision in quantity sufficient for practical irrigation as soon as the land shall have been cleared or otherwise prepared for cultivation. The nature of the work necessary to be performed in and for the preparation for cultivation of such part of the land as has not been irrigated should be carefully indicated, and it should be shown that the said work of preparation is being prosecuted with such diligence as will permit of beneficial application of appropriated water within a reasonable time.

Desert-land claimants should bear in mind that a water right and a water supply are not the same thing and that the two are not always or necessarily found together. Strictly speaking, a perfect and complete water right for irrigation purposes is confined to and limited by the area of land that has been irrigated with the water provided thereunder. Under the various State laws, however, an inchoate or incomplete right may be obtained which is capable of ripening into a perfect right if the water is applied to beneficial use with reasonable diligence. A person may have an apparent right of this kind for land which he has not irrigated, and which, moreover, he never can irrigate because of the lack of available water to satisfy his apparent right. Such an imperfect right, of course, can not be viewed as meeting the requirements of the desert land law which contemplates the eventual reclamation of all the irrigable land in the entry. Therefore, and with special reference to that portion of the irrigable land of an entry not required to be irrigated and cultivated before final proof, an incomplete (though real) water right will not be acceptable if its completion appears to be impossible because there is no actual supply of water available under the appropriation in question.

27. Where the water right claimed in any final proof is derived from an irrigation project it must be shown that the entryman owns such an interest therein as entitles him to receive from the irrigation works of the project a supply of water sufficient for the proper irrigation of the land embraced in his entry. Investigations by field agents as to the resources and reliability, including particularly the source and volume of the water supply, of all irrigation companies, associations, and districts through which desert-land entrymen seek to acquire water rights for the reclamation of their lands are being made as rapidly as possible, and it is the purpose of the General Land Office to accept no annual or final proofs based upon such a water right until an investigation of the company in question has been made and report thereon approved. The information so acquired will be regarded as determining, at least tentatively, the amount of stock or interest which is necessary to give the entryman a right to a sufficient supply of water; but the entryman will be permitted to challenge the correctness of the report as to the facts alleged and the validity of its conclusions and to offer, either with his final proof or subsequently, such evidence as he can tending to support his contentions.

Entrymen applying to make final proof are required to state the source of their water supply, and if water is to be obtained from the works of an irrigation company, association, or district the local officers will indorse the name and address of the project upon the copy of the notice to be forwarded to the chief of field division. If the report on the company has been acted upon by the General Land Office and the proof submitted by claimant does not show that he owns the amount of stock or interest in the company found necessary for the area of land to be reclaimed, the local officers will suspend the proof, advise the claimant of the requirements made by the General Land Office in connection with the report, and allow him 30 days within which to comply therewith or to make an affirmative showing in duplicate and apply for a hearing. In default of any action by him within the specified time they will reject the proof, subject to the usual right of appeal. If application for hearing be filed, the local officers will transmit one copy thereof to the proper chief of field division and forward the other copy, with the final proof record, to the General Land Office.

FINAL PROOF EXPIRATION NOTICE

28. Where final proof is not made within the period of four years, or within the period for which an extension of time has been granted, the register and receiver should send the claimant a notice, addressed to him at his post-office address of record, informing him that he will be allowed 90 days in which to submit final proof; or if the death of the claimant of record be suggested, such notice should also be addressed to the claimant at the post office nearest the land. (44 L. D. 364.)

Should no action be taken within the time allowed, the register and receiver will report that fact, together with evidence of service, to the General Land Office, whereupon the entry will be canceled. The notice provided for in this paragraph must not be construed as an extension of time or as relieving the claimant from the necessity of explaining why the proof was not made within the statutory period or within such extensions of that period as have been specifically granted.

FINAL PROOF NOT REQUIRED WHILE TOWNSHIP IS SUSPENDED FOR RESURVEY, BUT MAY BE SUBMITTED AT CLAIMANT'S OPTION—PROCEDURE

No claimant will be required to submit final proof while the township embracing his entry is under suspension for the purpose of resurvey. (40 L. D. 223.) This also applies to annual proof. (See par. 18.) In computing the time when final proof on an entry so affected will become due the period between the date of suspension and the filing in the local office of the new plat of survey will be excluded. However, if the claimant so elects, he may submit final proof on such entry notwithstanding the suspension of the township. If submitted, the final proof will be received by the local officers, who will pursue the same course in regard thereto that would have been pursued in the absence of the suspension. Should final certificate be issued on any such proof, it will describe the entered land in terms of the original survey with reference to the plat of such survey and to the fact of a pending resurvey, as follows:

In accordance with official plat of survey approved ______; resurvey now pending under Group No. ______ G. L. O.; authorization dated ______

EXTENSION OF TIME FOR SUBMITTING FINAL PROOF

29. There are five general acts of Congress which authorize the allowance, under certain conditions, of an extension of time for the submission of final proof by a desert-land claimant. Said acts are the following: June 27, 1906 (34 Stat. 519, sec. 5); March 28, 1908 (35 Stat. 52, sec. 3); April 30, 1912 (37 Stat. 106); March 4, 1915 (38 Stat. 1138–1161, sec. 5); and February 25, 1925 (43 Stat. 982). The act of June 27, 1906, is applicable only to entries embraced within the exterior limits of some withdrawal or irrigation project under the reclamation act of June 17, 1902 (32 Stat. 388). For regulations governing extensions under said act of June 27, 1906, see General Reclamation Circular. The act of March 4, 1915, is applicable only to entries made prior to March 4, 1915; and while authorizing in certain cases an additional extension to claimants who have had one or more extensions under previous laws, this act denies any extension under its terms to claimants who can obtain such benefit under prior acts. For regulations governing extensions under the act of March 4, 1915, see paragraphs 34 to 36 of this circular.

30. Under the provisions of the act of March 28, 1908, the period of four years may be extended, in the discretion of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, for an additional period not exceeding three years, if, by reason of some unavoidable delay in the construction of the irrigating works intended to convey water to the land, the entryman is unable to make proof of reclamation and cultivation required within the four years. This does not mean that the period within which proof may be made will be extended as a matter of course for three years. The statute authorizes the Commissioner of the General Land Office to grant the extension, in his discretion, for such a period as he may deem necessary for the completion of the reclamation, not exceeding three years, but applications for extension under said act will not be granted unless it be clearly shown that the failure to reclaim and cultivate the land within the regular period of four years was due to no fault on the part of the entryman but to some unavoidable delay in the construction of the irrigation works for which he was not responsible and could not have readily foreseen. (37 L. D. 332.) It must also appear that he has complied with the law as to annual expenditures and proof thereof.

Under the provisions of the act of April 30, 1912, the Secretary of the Interior may, in his discretion, in addition to the extension authorized by previous legislation, grant to any entryman under the desert land laws a further extension of time for submitting final proof, not exceeding three years, where it is shown that, because of some unavoidable delay in the construction of irrigation works intended to convey water to the land embraced in his entry, the claimant is, without fault on his part, unable to make proof of the reclamation and cultivation of said lands within the time limited therefor, but such further extension can not be granted for a period of more than three years nor affect contests initiated for a valid existing reason. Said act also provided:

An entryman who has complied with the law as to annual expenditures and proof thereof and who desires to make application for extension of time under the provisions of the act of March 28, 1908, should file with the register and receiver an affidavit setting forth fully the facts, showing how and why he has been prevented from making final proof of reclamation and cultivation within the regular period. This affidavit should be executed before one of the officers named in paragraph 11 of this circular and must be corroborated by two witnesses who have personal knowledge of the facts; and the register and receiver, after carefully considering all of the facts, will forward the application to the proper chief of field division, with appropriate recommendation, and advise the Commissioner of the General Land Office of such reference.

The register and receiver are required to suspend any application for extension of time if they consider the affidavit defective in form or substance, allowing the applicant a reasonable time to make such amendments therein as may be deemed necessary to remove the defects or to file exceptions to the requirements made, and advising the applicant that upon his failure to take any action within the time specified appropriate recommendations will be made. After the expiration of the time thus granted the original application and the amended affidavits or exceptions, as the case may be, together with proper report and recommendations of the register and receiver, will be transmitted to the chief of field division.

Applications for further extension of time under the act of April 30, 1912, and February 25, 1925, may be made in the same manner, and the same procedure will be followed with respect to such applications as under the act of March 28, 1908, and the act of March 4, 1915, as amended.

PROCEDURE ON APPLICATIONS FOR EXTENSION OF TIME FOR FINAL PROOF WHERE CONTEST IS PENDING

31. A pending contest against a desert-land entry will not prevent the allowance of an application for extension of time, where the contest affidavit does not charge facts tending to overcome the prima facie showing of right to such extension. (41 L. D. 603.)

Consideration by the General Land Office of an application for extension of time will not be deferred because of the pendency of a contest against the entry in question unless the contest charges be sufficient, if proven, to negative the right of the entryman to an extension of time for making final proof. If the contest charges be insufficient, the application for extension, where regular in all respects, will be allowed and the contest dismissed subject to the right of appeal, but without prejudice to the contestant's right to amend his charges. (See Circular 174,[d] dated September 27, 1912.)

PAYMENTS—FEES

32. At the time of making final proof the claimant must pay to the receiver the sum of $1 per acre for each acre of land upon which proof is made. This, together with the 25 cents per acre paid at the time of making the original entry, will amount to $1.25 per acre, which is the price to be paid for all lands entered under the desert land law, except where the entry is perfected by commutation or purchase under the act of March 4, 1915. (See pars. 42 and 48 of this circular.) The receiver will issue a receipt for the money paid, and if the proof is satisfactory, the register will issue a certificate in duplicate and deliver one copy to the claimant and forward the other copy to the General Land Office with the regular returns.

If the entryman is dead and proof is made by anyone for the heirs, no will being suggested in the record, the final certificate should issue to the heirs generally, without naming them; if by anyone for the heirs or devisees, final certificate should issue in like manner to the heirs or devisees.

When final proof is made on an entry made prior to the act of March 28, 1908, for unsurveyed land, if the land is still unsurveyed and such proof is satisfactory, the register and receiver will approve same and forward it to the General Land Office without collecting the final payment of $1 an acre and without issuing final certificate. Fees for reducing the final-proof testimony to writing should be collected and receipt issued therefor if the proof is taken before the register and receiver. As soon as the plat or plats of any township or townships previously unsurveyed are filed in the local offices the registers and receivers will, without awaiting further instructions from the General Land Office, examine their records for the purpose of determining, if possible, whether or not, prior to the passage of the act of March 28, 1908, any desert-land entry of unsurveyed land was allowed in the locality covered by the said plats; and if any such entries are found intact, they will call upon the claimants thereof to file an affidavit of adjustment, corroborated by two witnesses, giving the correct description, in accordance with the survey of the lands embraced in their respective entries. The local officers will then note these adjustments on their tract books and plats and transmit the affidavits to the General Land Office with separate reports of all conflicts which may have been developed. They will also report any case in which the claimant has failed, after due notice, to file the required affidavit of adjustment.

If final proof has been made upon any desert-land entry so adjusted and the records show that such proof has been found satisfactory by the General Land Office and no conflicts or other objections are apparent, the register and receiver will allow claimant 60 days within which to make final payment for the land, and upon receipt of the same the register will issue final certificate which will be transmitted to the General Land Office with the returns for the current month.

[d] Section 31 of Circular No. 474 is based on instructions contained in Circular No. 174. Circular No. 174 is not carried in this publication.

33. No fees or commissions are required of persons making entry under the desert land laws except such fees as are paid to the officers for taking the affidavits and proofs. Unless the entry be perfected under the act of March 4, 1915 (see pars. 42 and 47 of this circular), the only payments made to the Government are the original payment of 25 cents an acre at the time of making the application and the final payment of $1 an acre, to be paid at the time of making final proof. Where final proofs are made before the register or receiver in California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Colorado, Idaho, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Wyoming, and Montana, they will be entitled to receive jointly 22½ cents for each 100 words of testimony reduced to writing; in all other States they will be allowed 15 cents per 100 words for such service. The United States commissioners, judges, and clerks are not entitled to receive a greater sum than 25 cents for each oath administered by them, except that they are entitled to receive $1 for administering the oath to each entryman and each final-proof witness where final-proof testimony has been reduced to writing by them.

RELIEF UNDER ACT OF MARCH 4, 1915 (38 STAT. 1138–1161), AMENDED BY ACT OF MARCH 21, 1918 (40 STAT. 458)

34. The last three paragraphs of section 5 of the act of Congress approved March 4, 1915 (38 Stat. 1138–1161), entitled "An act making appropriations to supply deficiencies in appropriations for the fiscal year 1915 and for prior years, and for other purposes,"[7] as amended by the act of March 21, 1918 (40 Stat. 458), authorize the Secretary of the Interior, under rules and regulations to be prescribed by him, to grant relief to certain classes of desert-land claimants. This new law provides that upon certain conditions such an entryman, or his duly qualified assignee, may obtain an extension of time, not exceeding three years from date of its allowance, in which to submit final proof; or that upon certain other conditions he may either complete his entry in the manner required of a homestead claimant or purchase the land on special terms. The following rules and regulations (approved April 13, 1915, Circular 399, and here printed without substantial change) will be observed in the administration of said provisions of law.

APPLICATIONS FOR RELIEF

35. All applications for the benefits of the new law should be filed prior to the expiration of the time within which the applicant would otherwise be required to make final proof on his desert-land entry in the land office for the district in which the entered land is situated, to be referred to the proper chief of field division with appropriate recommendation, and the Commissioner of the General Land Office to be advised of such reference. They must be supported by the affidavit of the applicant, corroborated by two witnesses, as to the material facts necessary to be shown. All such affidavits must be executed before an officer authorized to administer oaths in desert-land cases. (See par. 11.)

All such applications should contain the name of the entryman and the date of the entry, and, if the entry has been assigned, the name of the assignee and date of the assignment; the description of the land involved; a statement of the various sums of money expended by the applicant or his grantors in an endeavor to reclaim the land, and the particular purpose for which each sum was expended; the facts by reason of which it has been impossible for claimant to effect reclamation and cultivation and to submit final proof within the usual period, or such extensions thereof as may have been granted; and the facts by reason of which the applicant considers that there is or is not, as the case may be, a reasonable prospect that if an extension of time is granted him, he will be able to secure a sufficient water supply and make final proof of reclamation, irrigation, and cultivation, as required by the desert land law.

CONDITIONS FOR EXTENSION OF TIME

36. To entitle an entryman to the benefits of the first of the three paragraphs referred to, the following conditions must exist: (1) The entry must be a lawful, pending entry made prior to March 4, 1915; (2) the entryman must have complied with the requirements of the desert land law with reference to yearly expenditures and the submission of annual proofs thereof; (3) there must be a reasonable prospect that if an extension of time is granted the claimant will be able to make the final proof of reclamation, irrigation, and cultivation as required by law; (4) the case must be one in which an extension of time or a further extension can not properly be allowed under other laws; and (5) there must be established some fact or facts constituting a reasonable excuse for the applicant's failure to comply with the law within the usual time and fairly entitling him, in justice and equity, to this form of relief.

The existence of the first two of these conditions can be determined by examination of the records of the General Land Office, but in order that applicants may have the benefit of every possible circumstance entitling them to equitable consideration, they are privileged to make such further showing as they may desire as to any moneys which they may have expended in improving the land, but not used as the basis of annual proof.

The existence of the third, fourth, and fifth conditions above enumerated must be established in all cases by the affidavits filed in support of the application for relief.

With regard to the third condition, it must be shown what steps the applicant has taken to secure a water right; and either that he has secured such a right (so far as that is possible, under the State laws, in cases where beneficial application of the water to the land has not yet been made), or that there is no reason to doubt that he will be able to secure such a right before his final proof is due; that the source of water supply, if a natural stream, will, in ordinary seasons, furnish the amount of water needed by the claimant to reclaim the irrigable land in his entry after all appropriations prior to his have been satisfied; and, if water is to be taken from wells, that there is reason to believe that an adequate supply can be obtained from that source.

If water is to be obtained through an irrigation company, association, or district upon which a special agent or other officer has made a favorable report, and favorable action on such report has been taken, the existence of the third condition will be taken for granted, provided the applicant shows that he has become the owner of the required amount of stock or interest in the project, or taken the required steps to secure the inclusion of the land in the district, or that it will be entirely possible for him to do the one or the other, as the case may be.

If an adverse report has been made on the irrigation project in question, or if adverse action thereon has been taken, the applicant may present such showing of facts as may tend to refute the findings made and the conclusions reached, whereupon, if the allegations seem to warrant such action, a hearing will be ordered to determine the merits of the case.

The fourth condition above enumerated will be satisfied if the case does not come within the terms of any of the other acts of Congress providing for the allowance of extensions of time for submitting final proof on desert-land entries.

As explained in paragraph 29, the extension of time authorized by the act of March 4, 1915, is applicable only to entries made prior to the date of the act. Where the irrigation works intended to convey water to the land have been completed, or for any other reason, the claimant's inability to submit final proof can not be attributed to unavoidable delay in the construction of such irrigation works; where the cause of delay in submitting the final proof is the claimant's temporary inability to acquire water right; or where, on account of drought of greater or less duration, but not likely, in all probability, to be a permanent condition, the operation of a completed system of irrigation works has been hindered or delayed, an application for an extension of time under the first paragraph of the act of March 4, 1915, as amended by the act of March 21, 1918, above cited, can be entertained, except where the entered lands have been included within the exterior limits of a withdrawal or irrigation project under the act of June 17, 1902 (32 Stat. 388), and the submission of satisfactory final proof is being hindered or delayed thereby, so that the case comes within the provisions of the fifth section of the act of June 27, 1906.

No application for extension of time can be allowed, however, if it appears that the claimant's inability to submit final proof as required by the desert land law is due to his own neglect or default; nor will any such application be granted where it appears that there is no reasonable prospect that the applicant will be able to provide a supply of water sufficient to irrigate and permanently reclaim all the irrigable land embraced in his entry, because, in such a case, no extension of time can enable the entryman to comply with the requirements of the desert land law.

OTHER FORMS OF RELIEF

37. The second and third paragraphs of the new law are designed to afford relief in cases of the kind last above mentioned by authorizing the Secretary of the Interior, in his discretion, to permit the applicant to perfect his entry in the manner required of a homestead entryman, or to purchase the land on the terms specified, as the applicant may elect. The entry itself is not transmuted, however, but remains a desert-land entry, subject to a new kind of proof.

CONDITIONS AUTHORIZING HOMESTEAD PROOF AND PURCHASE

38. To entitle a claimant to relief under either of these paragraphs, it must be made to appear to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Interior, (1), that the entry in question is a lawful pending entry, made prior to March 4, 1915; (2), where application for relief is made on behalf of an assignee, that the entry was assigned to him prior to March 21, 1918; (3), that the applicant or his assignors have, in good faith, expended the sum of $3 per acre in the attempt to effect reclamation of the entered land; and, (4), that there is no reasonable prospect that if the extension of time authorized under the provisions of this act, or any other existing law, were granted the applicant would be able to secure water sufficient to effect reclamation of the land in his entry or any subdivision thereof. The first two of these conditions can be determined from the records of the General Land Office.

With regard to the third condition, any expenditure which the claimant can show that he has made in good faith and with a reasonable belief that it would tend to effect reclamation of the land will be acceptable even though such expenditure may not have been such as would satisfy the requirements for annual proof.

With regard to the fourth condition, the applicant should show what steps he has taken for the purpose of acquiring a water right and with what result, what has been done by himself or others toward the development of a water supply and the construction of an irrigation system to bring the water to the land, the reasons for his failure to secure an adequate water supply, and his grounds for believing that there is no reasonable prospect of final success in acquiring such a supply. In this connection consideration will be given to any special agent's reports on file regarding any irrigation company or irrigation district from which applicant has been endeavoring to secure water and if it appears therefrom that there is no reasonable prospect that the applicant can secure a sufficient water supply, the existence of that condition will be taken for granted.

NOTICE OF ALLOWANCE OF RELIEF—ELECTION TO PURCHASE

39. When any application for relief under the second paragraph shall have been allowed by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, notice thereof will be served through the proper local land office upon the claimant, advising him that he will be allowed five years from date of service of such notice within which to perfect his entry in the manner required of a homestead entryman, unless he shall, within 60 days from receipt of such notice, file in the local land office an election to perfect the entry within five years by purchase under the third paragraph, and pay to the receiver, at time of election, the sum of 50 cents for each acre embraced in the entry. Such election, if filed, must be in writing, signed by the claimant, and his signature thereto must be witnessed by two persons, whose post-office addresses shall be given. The election will be forwarded to the General Land Office with the regular monthly returns and must bear the serial number of the entry to which it relates, and also the number of the receipt issued for the money paid in connection therewith.

40. In the submission and consideration of final proofs under the second and third paragraphs, the usual course of procedure with regard to desert-land final proofs will be followed, so far as applicable. The notice of intention to submit proof, however, should indicate whether the entry is to be perfected as in homestead cases or by purchase.

41. After a desert-land entry has been authorized to be perfected either in the manner of a homestead entry or by purchase, no assignment thereof will be allowed, for the reason that the benefits of the second and third paragraphs of the act as amended by the act of March 21, 1918, are not available to assignees under assignments made subsequently to the date of the act as amended; and in the final adjudication of entries being perfected under the provisions of said paragraphs the same rules will be observed, as to proof of nonalienation, as in homestead cases.

ENTRIES PERFECTED BY COMPLIANCE WITH HOMESTEAD LAW

42. A claimant who has received permission to perfect his entry in the manner required of homestead entrymen may make proof at any time when he can show that residence and cultivation have been maintained in good faith for the required length of time and to the required extent.

However, inasmuch as the homestead laws do not authorize the commutation of homesteads made under the enlarged homestead acts, commutation proof will not be accepted upon any desert-land entry involving more than 160 acres. In addition to the original payment of 25 cents per acre at time of entry, a claimant who makes commutation proof must pay for the land at the regular " minimum price " of $1.25 per acre.

Failure to submit final proof within the 5-year period allowed by the law will be ground for the cancellation of the entry, unless good reason for the delay can be shown, in which event final certificate may be issued and the case referred to the board of equitable adjudication for confirmation.

Those provisions of the homestead law which define the personal qualifications required of entrymen do not apply to cases of this kind, but the final proof must show that the claimant possesses the same qualifications as to citizenship and the amount of land entered by him or assigned or patented to him, under the agricultural public land laws, as in the case of those who make ordinary final proof on desert-land entries.

43. If not already residing on his desert-land entry, the claimant must establish residence thereon within six months from the date of receiving the notice advising him that he will be permitted to perfect his entry under the second paragraph, unless such period be extended as permitted by the homestead law.

Residence upon the land must be continuously maintained for a period of three years from and after the date of its establishment. During each year the claimant may be absent for two periods only, the aggregate thereof not to exceed five months. Actual residence must be maintained for the remaining seven months of each year. If commutation proof is submitted, substantialy continuous residence upon the land for a period of 14 months must be shown, together with the cultivation of not less than one-sixteenth of the area of the entry, unless a reduction of the area required to be cultivated be allowed. The requirements made by this circular as to the period of residence and amount of cultivation are those of the act of June 6, 1912 (37 Stat. 123), or the "3-year homestead law."

If a claimant establishes residence upon his entry prior to the allowance of his application for relief, and continues to maintain it in good faith as required by the homestead law, full credit will be allowed for the period during which such residence is so maintained.

Leaves of absence and credit for military service will be allowed upon the same terms and conditions as in case of a homestead entry.

The claimant must have a habitable house upon the land at the time of submitting final proof. Other improvements should be of such character and amount as are sufficient to show good faith.

44. Cultivation of the land for at least two years is required, and this must generally consist of actual breaking of the soil, followed by planting, sowing of seed, and tillage for a crop other than native grasses. However, tilling of the land, or other appropriate treatment, for the purpose of conserving the moisture with a view of making a profitable crop the succeeding year, will be deemed cultivation within the terms of the act (without sowing of seed) where that manner of cultivation is necessary or generaly followed in the locality. During the second year not less than one-sixteenth of the area entered must be actually cultivated, and during the third year, and until final proof, cultivation of not less than one-eighth must be had. These requirements are applicable to all cases, without regard to the area or location of the entry. The period of cultivation, like that of residence, may begin before the allowance of the application for relief; credit for all cultivation, if in accordance with the provisions of the 3-year homestead law, will be allowed, without regard to the time when it was performed.

45. If the entry is situated in the States of Utah or Idaho, and the lands involved have been, or shall be, designated as being of the character subject to entry under the sixth sections of the act of February 19, 1909 (35 Stat. 639), as amended, or June 17, 1910 (36 Stat. 531), respectively, the entryman may avail himself of the privileges of these sections, upon a proper showing of the character of the land, as required of a homestead applicant thereunder, in which event residence need not be maintained upon the land, but the amount of cultivation required is double that in ordinary cases and must be shown during a period of four years. For further details, reference should be made to the circular of this office known as Suggestions to Homesteaders, copies of which may be obtained of this office or any local land office.

46. If an entryman dies before being authorized to exercise the rights conferred by the second and third paragraphs, or after such authorization but before he has perfected his entry, his rights will pass to those persons who would inherit his lands according to the laws of the State wherein the entry is located or, if he leaves a will, to those to whom he devises such rights. Applications for the benefits of the new law may be filed, and proofs thereunder may be submitted either by one of the heirs in behalf of all, by a guardian of the heirs' estate if they themselves are minors, or by the entryman's executor or administrator, acting under the supervision of the proper probate court.

The heirs or devisees will not be required to settle or reside upon the land, but must show that the land has been cultivated and improved by them or on their behalf, as required by the homestead law, for such period as will, when added to the entryman's period of compliance with the law, aggregate the required term of three years. If they desire to commute the entry, they must show a 14 months' period of such residence and cultivation on the part of themselves or the entryman, or both, as would have been required of him had be survived.

With regard to the reduction of the required area of cultivation, the same rules and procedure will be followed as in homestead cases.

47. The same fees, and no others, may be charged by registers and receivers upon submission of final proofs under the new law as upon submission of ordinary desert-land proofs. (See par. 33.) No commissions may be charged under any circumstances and no testimony fees unless the proof is taken at the land office.

ENTRIES PERFECTED BY PURCHASE

48. If claimant elects to perfect his entry under the third paragraph he must, within five years from the date of his election and payment of the sum of 50 cents per acre, make final proof and pay to the receiver the further sum of 75 cents for each acre of land embraced in his entry. The final proof, in order to be acceptable, must show that, at the date of the proof, the claimant has upon the tract permanent improvements conducive to the agricultural development thereof, of the value of at least $1.25 per acre, and that he has in good faith used the land for agricultural purposes for at least three years. Under this third paragraph grazing will be regarded as an agricultural use, provided it be established that the land is best suited to that purpose and has been so used in good faith. Actual residence on the land need not be shown.

49. Improvements made during the first three years of the life of the entry and used as the basis of annual proof, if permanent in character and conducive to the agricultural development of the land, may be counted as improvements required to be shown under this section, provided their character and continued existence are satisfactorily established by the final proof; but no water rights or irrigation ditches will be recognized for this purpose unless it is clearly shown that they have been made actually conducive to the agricultural development of the land, or a portion thereof, and that that fact is not inconsistent with the truth of the claimant's preliminary showing that there was no reasonable prospect that he could acquire a sufficient water supply to irrigate the irrigable land of his entry.

50. If a claimant fails to make final proof and payment, as required by the third paragraph, within the 5-year period, all sums theretofore paid by him will be forfeited and the entry canceled.

FORM OF PROOFS

51. Final proofs under the second paragraph may be made on the forms used in homestead cases. For final proofs to be made under the third paragraph special forms have been provided.

CONTESTS AND RELINQUISHMENTS

52. Contests may be initiated by any person seeking to acquire title to or claiming an interest in the land involved against a party to any desert-land entry because of priority of claim or for any sufficient cause affecting the legality or validity of the claim not shown by the records of the land department.

Successful contestants will be allowed a preference right of entry for 30 days after notice of the cancellation of the contested entry, in the same manner as in homestead cases, and the register will give the same notice and is entitled to the same fee for notice as in other cases.

53. A desert-land entry may be relinquished at any time by the party owning the same, and when relinquishments are filed in the local land office the entries will be canceled by the register and receiver in the same manner as in homestead, preemption, and other cases under the first section of the act of May 14, 1880 (21 Stat. 140). Conditional relinquishments will not be accepted.

54. All previous rulings and instructions not in harmony herewith are hereby vacated.

Circular No. 1188

RELIEF OF DESERT-LAND ENTRIES, ACT OF MARCH 4, 1929

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, April 19, 1929.

Registers, United States Land Offices.

Gentlemen: Your attention is directed to the act of March 4, 1929 (45 Stat. 1548), entitled "An act to supplement the last three paragraphs of section 5 of the act of March 4, 1915 (38 Stat. 1161), as amended by the act of March 21, 1918 (40 Stat. 458), which provides:

> That where it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Interior with reference to any lawful pending desert-land entry made prior to July 1, 1922, under which the entryman or his duly qualified assignee under an assignment made prior to the date of this act has in good faith expended the sum of $3 per acre in the attempt to effect reclamation of the land, that there is no reasonable prospect that he would be able to secure water sufficient to effect reclamation of the irrigable land in his entry or any legal subdivision thereof, the Secretary of the Interior may, in his discretion, allow such entryman or assignee ninety days from notice within which to pay to the register of the United States Land Office 50 cents an acre for the land embraced in the entry and to file an election to perfect title to the entry under the provisions of this act, and thereafter within one year from the date of the filing of such election to pay to the register the additional amount of $1.50 an acre, which shall entitled him to a patent for the land: Provided, That in case the final payment be not made within the time prescribed the entry shall be canceled and all money theretofore paid shall be forfeited.

This act applies to all pending desert-land entries made prior to July 1, 1922, under which the entryman or his duly qualified assignee under an assignment made prior to the date of this act has in good faith expended the sum of $3 per acre in the attempt to effect reclamation of the land and where there is no reasonable prospect that he would be able to secure water sufficient to effect reclamation of the irrigable land or any legal subdivision thereof.

Desert-land entries made prior to March 4, 1915, and pending March 4, 1929, are entitled to the relief granted by the act of March 4, 1915, as amended, or by the provisions of this act. Desert-land entries made since March 4, 1915, and prior to July 1, 1922, and pending March 4, 1929, are entitled only to the relief provided for in this act.

In all applications for relief of desert-land entries made prior to March 4, 1915, it should be specifically stated whether the relief is sought under the provisions of the act of March 4, 1915, or under the provisions of said act of March 4, 1929.

In the case of desert-land entries made since March 4, 1915, and prior to July 1, 1922, and pending March 4, 1929, the showing as to the right to such relief must be the same as that required by paragraph 35 of the regulations of May 20, 1924, Circular No. 474 (50 L. D. 443, 466).[e]

Applications for relief hereunder must be filed in the local land office for the district in which the land embraced in the particular entry is situated, and, after examination by the register as to statement of facts required by paragraph 35 of Circular No. 474, supra, and, where necessary, opportunity given applicants to supply data to cure defects, referred to the chief of field division for investigation and report. All reports by the chief of field division upon applications for relief under the provisions of this act should be made directly to the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

When any application for relief under the provisions of this act shall have been approved by the commissioner, notice by registered mail will be served through the proper local land office upon the claimant of such approval; that he will be allowed 90 days from date of receipt of such notice within which to pay to the register 50 cents an acre for the land embraced in the entry and to file an election to perfect title to the entry under the provisions of this act; that he will be allowed one year from the date of the filing of such election to pay to the register the additional amount of $1.50 an acre; and that in case the final payment be not made within the time prescribed the entry will be canceled and all money theretofore paid will be forfeited.

[e] Circular No. 474 of May 20, 1924, was revised Dec. 18, 1928. See par. 35, p. 438.

Should any claimant fail to pay said 50 cents per acre and file said election within the 90-day period, the register will report such facts to the commissioner, whereupon the approved application for relief will be canceled and the case closed without further notice.

To perfect title to the entry the claimant shall file with the register a notice of intention to do so, and the register will order the publication thereof in the same manner as in other desert-land cases and in substantially the following form:

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE AT ——— ———,
——— ———, 19—.

Notice is hereby given that ——— of ——— who, on ———, 19— made desert-land entry, No. ——— for ——— section ——— township ——— range ——— meridian, has filed notice of his intention to complete the purchase of said land under the provisions of the act of March 4, 1929.

Any and all persons claiming adversely the above-described land or desiring for any reason to object to the completion of the purchase and final entry thereof by the applicant, should file their affidavits of protest in duplicate in this office during the 30-day period of publication immediately following the first printed issue of this notice, otherwise the application may be allowed.

——— ———, Register.

Publication, proof thereof, and the required additional payment of $1.50 per acre should be made within one year from the date of the filing of the above-mentioned election, it being expressly stated in said act of March 4, 1929, that said additional payment of $1.50 per acre should be paid within one year from the date of the filing of the election to perfect title to the entry under said act, with the proviso " That in case the final payment be not made within the time prescribed, the entry shall be canceled and all money theretofore paid shall be forfeited." There is no provision of law whereby extension of time to make this payment may be granted.

These acts having been performed, and there being no protest, contest, or other objection, the register will issue the final certificate and transmit it to the General Land Office with the regular returns.

Where relief has heretofore been granted in desert-land entries made prior to March 4, 1915, and such entries are intact upon the records claimants may, if they so desire, take advantage of the provisions of this act.

Except as herein set forth, all legislation relating to the relief of desert-land entries and the regulations issued thereunder are in full force and effect.

Very respectfully,

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., February 21, 1908.[1]

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Gentlemen: In cases of applications to locate all scrips, warrants, certificates, soldier's additional homestead rights, or to make lieu selections of public lands of the United States, the following requirements will govern on and after April 1, 1908:

1. The location or selection must be accompanied, in addition to the evidence required by existing rules and regulations, by affidavit of the locator, selector, or some credible person possessed of the requisite personal knowledge of the premises, showing that the land located or selected is not in any manner occupied adversely to the locator or selector.

2. You will require the locator or selector, within 20 days from the filing of his location or selection, to begin publication of notice thereof, at his own expense, in a newspaper to be designated by the register as of general circulation in the vicinity of the land, and to be the nearest thereto. Such publication must cover a period of 30 days, during which time a similar notice of the location or selection must be posted in the local land office and upon the lands included in the location or selection, and upon each and every non-contiguous tract thereof.[a]

3. The notice must describe the land located or selected, give the date of location or selection, and state that the purpose thereof is to allow all persons claiming the land adversely, or desiring to show it to be mineral in character, an opportunity to file objection to such location or selection with the local officers for the land district in which the land is situate, and to establish their interest therein, or the mineral character thereof.

4. Proof of publication must consist of an affidavit of the publisher or of the foreman or other proper employee of the newspaper in which the notice was published, with a copy of the publication notice attached. Proof that the notice remained posted upon the land during the entire period of publication, must be made by the locator or selector or some credible person having personal knowledge of the fact.

REGULATIONS CONCERNING APPLICATIONS AND SELECTIONS FOR AND FILINGS AND LOCATIONS UPON UNSURVEYED LANDS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., November 3, 1909.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: To remedy the confusion and uncertainty arising from applications and selections for and filings and locations upon unsurveyed public lands, you will hereafter reject any such application, selection, filing, or location, under whatsoever law permitted, unless it conforms to the following rules:

1. It must contain a description of the land by metes and bounds, with courses, distances, and reference to monuments by which the location of the tract on the ground can be readily and accurately ascertained. The monuments may be of iron or stone, or of substantial posts well planted in the ground, or of trees or natural objects of a permanent nature, and all monuments shall be surrounded with mounds of stone, or earth when stones are not accessible, and must be plainly marked to indicate with certainty the claim to the tract located. The land must be taken in rectangular form, if practicable, and the lines thereof follow the cardinal points of the compass unless one or more of the boundaries be a stream or other fixed object. In the latter event only the approximate course and distance along such stream or object need be given, but the other boundaries must be definitely stated; and the designation of narrow strips of land along streams, water courses, or other natural objects will not be permitted.

2. The approximate description of the land, by section, township, and range, as it will appear when surveyed must be furnished; or, if this can not be done, an affidavit must be filed setting forth a valid reason therefor.

3. The address of the claimant must be given, and it shall be the duty of the register and receiver, upon the filing of the township plat in their office, to notify him thereof, by registered letter, at such address, and to require the adjustment of the claim to the public survey within 30 days. In default of action by the party notified the register and receiver will promptly adjust the claim and report their action to the General Land Office.

4. Notice of the application, selection, filing, or location, describing the land as directed in rule 1, must be posted in a conspicuous place upon the land, and a copy of such notice and proof of posting thereof filed with the application, selection, filing, or location, as the case may be.

5. Wherever, under existing regulations, notice of such application, selection, filing, or location is required to be posted elsewhere than upon the land and published in a newspaper, the description of the tract in the posted and published notice must conform to the requirements of rule 1.

Very respectfully,

FRED DENNETT, Commissioner.

Circular No. 726

RELATIVE TO THE CERTIFICATION OF ABSTRACTS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, October 13, 1920.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: Attention is called to the fact that of late many abstracts have been filed in this office especially in connection with exchanges under the various acts relating to exchange of lands in national forests. These abstracts are certified by an abstract company or by an individual abstracter, neither of whom has complied with that part of section 42 of the mining regulations of August 6, 1915 (44 L. D. 297), which provides that:

> No certificate from an abstracter or abstract company will be accepted until approval by the Commissioner of the General Land Office of a favorable report of the chief of field division or United States district attorney whose division or district embraces the land in question as to reliability and responsibility of such abstracter or company.

These regulations must be compiled with by the company or individual before an abstract certified by them can receive official recognition.

You will be careful to see that hereafter these regulations are complied with, calling the same to the attention of all companies or abstracters having business with your office.

Very respectfully,

Clay Tallman, Commissioner.

ACT OF JANUARY 27, 1922, AMENDING SECTION 2372, REVISED STATUTES, RELATIVE TO CHANGE OF ENTRIES

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., March 22, 1922.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: An act approved January 27, 1922 (42 Stat. 359), amended section 2372, Revised Statutes, by adding thereto the following:

> In all cases where a final entry of public lands has been or may be hereafter canceled, and such entry is held by the Land Department or by a court of competent jurisdiction to have been confirmed under the proviso to section 7 of the Act of March 3, 1891 (Twenty-sixth Statutes, page 1099), if the land has been disposed of to or appropriated by a claimant under the homestead or desert-land laws, or patented to a claimant under other public-land laws, the Secretary of the Interior is authorized, in his discretion, and under rules to be prescribed by him, to change the entry and transfer the payment to any other tract of surveyed public land, nonmineral in character, free from lawful claim, and otherwise subject to general disposition: Provided, That the entryman, his heirs, or assigns shall file a relinquishment of all right, title, and interest in and to the land originally entered: Provided further, That no right or claim under the provisions of this paragraph shall be assignable or transferable.

2. An application for the benefits of this act should describe a specific tract of nonmineral surveyed public land free from lawful claim and subject to general disposition, and should be accompanied by the formal relinquishment by the entryman, his heirs, or assigns of all right, title, and interest in and to the land in the entry on which the right is based, where application is made by heirs, satisfactory proof of heirship is required. This must be the best evidence that can be obtained, and must show that the parties applying are the heirs and the only heirs of the deceased entryman. Where applications are made by assignees, the applicants must show their interest in the land under the original entryman by furnishing properly authenticated abstracts of title, and they must show, by affidavits or otherwise, that they have not been indemnified by their grantors for the failure of title. The application should also state whether action has been instituted in the courts to have a subsequent entryman of the land in the former entry declared a trustee, and, if so, the status of the litigation.

3. Credit for payments made in connection with the relinquished entry will be allowed, but a tender of any additional sums due for the land applied for must accompany the application.

4. No rights under the act are assignable or transferable.

5. Applications should be suspended and transmitted to the General Land Office with the current monthly returns, and the applicants should be notified of such suspension. After consideration of the application, it will be submitted to the Secretary of the Interior with appropriate recommendations.

6. Applicants for the benefit of the act will be required to begin, within 30 days after notice of allowance, publication of a notice in a newspaper to be designated by the register as of general circulation in the vicinity of the land, which notice should be substantially as follows:

NOTICE OF CLAIM UNDER SECTION 2372, REVISED STATUTES, AS AMENDED BY THE ACT OF JANUARY 27, 1922

All persons claiming the land adversely or desiring to show it to be mineral in character will be allowed until ———, 19—, to file in this office their objections to the issuance of patent under the aforesaid application.

——— ———,

If the notice is published in a daily paper, the publication must be inserted in 30 consecutive issues; if daily except Sunday, in 26; if weekly, in 5 and if semiweekly, in 9.[a] During the period of publication, the notice as published must be posted in the local land office.

[a] See Instructions of Oct. 19, 1929, p. 1149.

If no objections appear, the register will, immediately after the date named in the notice, issue final certificate, using Form 4–196 if the former entry was a homestead or Form 4–200 if a desert-land entry, noting thereon references to the act of January 27, 1922, and to the letter allowing the application.

Very respectfully,

APPLICATIONS UNDER ACT OF JANUARY 27, 1922 (42 STAT. 359)

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, December 3, 1924.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Gentlemen: Under date of December 2, 1924, the Secretary of the Interior issued the following administrative ruling:

> The act approved January 27, 1922 (42 Stat. 359), provides that in all cases where a final entry of public lands has been or may be hereafter canceled, and such entry is held by the Land Department or by a court of competent jurisdiction to have been confirmed under the proviso to section 7 of the act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 1099), if the land has been disposed of to or appropriated by a claimant under the homestead or desert land laws, or patented to a claimant under other public land laws, the Secretary of the Interior is authorized, in his discretion, and under rules to be prescribed by him, to change the entry and transfer the payment to any other tract of surveyed public land, nonmineral in character, free from lawful claim, and otherwise subject to general disposition, provided that the entryman, his heirs, or assigns shall file a relinquishment of all right, title, and interest in and to the land originally entered. The act contains an inhibition against assigning or transferring any right or claim under the provisions of the act.

The debates in Congress, when the measure was pending, indicate that the object of the act was to afford protection to those persons who had entered the land after the cancellation of an entry as the result of proceedings instituted more than two years after the issuance of the receiver's receipt on final entry. In view of which, and of the discretion vested in the Secretary of the Interior by the act, and considering, also, that beneficiaries have had almost three years within which to present their claims, all applications thereunder filed after the date hereof will be treated as stale claims and rejected unless it appears that the statute of limitations of the State wherein the entered land is situated does not bar an action by the entryman, his heirs, or assigns to have the present holder of the land declared a trustee thereof.

Applications under the act involving two or more incontiguous tracts will not be approved unless none of the tracts is part of an area approximately equal to that embraced in the canceled entry, and subject to entry.

One application under the act, even if for an area less than that to which the claimant is entitled, exhausts his rights under the act.

Very respectfully,

WILLIAM SPRY, Commissioner.

CIRCULAR NO. 1070

REPEAL OF THE ACT OF JANUARY 27, 1922, ALLOWING CHANGES OF ENTRY

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, June 8, 1926.

Registers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: The act of May 21, 1926 (44 Stat. 591), entitled "An act to repeal the act approved January 27, 1922, providing for change of entry, and for other purposes," reads as follows:

> That the Act of Congress approved January 27, 1922, entitled "An act to amend section 2372 of the Revised Statutes," be and the same is hereby repealed: Provided, That any applications heretofore filed under the provisions of this Act, or any claim of which notice is filed within sixty days from the approval of this Act, upon which applications are presented within one year from the date of approval of this Act, may be perfected and patents issued therefor the same as if this Act had not been passed: Provided further, That when the selection in exchange fails for no fault on the part of the selector another selection in exchange may be made if filed within one year from notice to the selector of the rejection of the selection.

The present law repeals the act of January 27, 1922 (42 Stat. 359), authorizing changes of entry, except as to pending applications, and claims in which notice is filed within 60 days from the approval of the act, followed by selection within one year from the date of approval of the act, and claims where the selection fails for no fault of the selector, in which case a new selection may be made if the same is filed within one year from notice to the selector of the rejection of his selection.

The regulations governing applications under said act of January 27, 1922, are those of March 22, 1922 (48 L. D. 595, Circular No. 817), and your particular attention is called to paragraph 5 thereof, which reads as follows:

> Applications should be suspended and transmitted to the General Land Office with the current monthly returns and the applicants should be notified of such suspension. After consideration of the application, it will be submitted to the Secretary of the Interior with appropriate recommendations.

Said regulations have been added to by the administrative ruling of the Secretary of the Interior on December 2, 1924 (50 L. D. 684, Circular No. 967 of December 3, 1924).

All notices under the act of May 21, 1926, must identify the lands covered by the base entries from which changes of entries are contemplated by describing the lands by subdivision, section, township, and range, or by giving the number, date, and kind of entry and the land office where each entry was made. They may be filed direct in the General Land Office. Unless accompanied by applications for changes of entry to particular tracts of land, you should not assign serial numbers to the notices, but should stamp the date received thereon and promptly forward them to this office.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

Circular No. 386

REGULATIONS UNDER THE ACT OF APRIL 21, 1904 (33 STAT. 211), PROVIDING FOR THE EXCHANGE OF PRIVATE LANDS SITUATED WITHIN INDIAN RESERVATIONS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., February 27, 1915.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Gentlemen: The act of April 21, 1904 (33 Stat. 211), making appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the Indian Office and for fulfilling treaty stipulations with the various Indian tribes for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1905, provides, inter alia—

> That any private land over which an Indian reservation has been extended by Executive order may be exchanged, at the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior and at the expense of the owner thereof and under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, for vacant nonmineral, nontimbered, surveyed public lands of equal area and value and situate in the same State or Territory.

Preliminary to making relinquishment and selection of other lands under the provisions of the foregoing act, the owner of any private land over which an Indian reservation has been extended by Executive order must file with the Commissioner of the General Land Office an application addressed to the Secretary of the Interior requesting that he be permitted to surrender the lands by him owned and to select other lands in lieu thereof, pursuant to the provisions of the act of April 21, 1904 (33 Stat. 211), conformable to the rules and regulations adopted by the Secretary of the Interior and subject to the exercise of the Secretary's discretion. The land proposed to be surrendered must be accurately described by legal subdivisions if surveyed, or in the event that it is unsurveyed by such designation as will readily enable the Commissioner of the General Land Office to identify it. There may accompany such applications a brief, or argument, setting forth such reasons as the petitioner may see proper to offer why the application to accept such land as a basis of selection under the aforesaid act should be entertained by the Secretary of the Interior. This petition, with report thereon, will be submitted by the Commissioner of the General Land Office to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs for report as to whether the lands are needed for the use of the Indians, and for such other recommendations as the Commissioner of Indian Affairs may deem proper, and thereafter the applications, with all papers, and recommendation of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs and of the General Land Office will be submitted to the department for consideration and action. If the Secretary is of opinion, after considering the application, that it is inadvisable for the Government to acquire the title to the land described therein, under the provisions of the aforesaid act, he will deny the application.

If, however, the Secretary decides to entertain the proposition, subject to the further exercise of his discretion, he will so order, and thereafter selections may be made by the petitioner, or applicant, under the rules, regulations, restrictions, limitations, and conditions herein following:

PRIVATE LANDS SUBJECT TO EXCHANGE

1. Private lands subject to exchange under the provisions of this act include all lands within the limits of an Indian reservation established by Executive order to which the right to a patent or its equivalent has been earned by full compliance with the laws of the United States governing the disposal of said lands.

RELINQUISHMENT OR RECONVEYANCE

2. Relinquishment or reconveyance made in pursuance of this act must be executed and acknowledged in the same maner as conveyance of real property is required to be executed and acknowledged by the laws of the State in which the land is situated. Where the relinquishment or reconveyance is made by an individual it must show whether the person relinquishing is married or single; and if married, the wife or husband of such person, as the case may be, must join in the execution of the relinquishment or reconveyance in such maner as to effectually bar any right or estate of dower, courtesy, or homestead, or any other claim whatsoever to the land relinquished, or it must be fully shown that under the laws of the State in which the relinquished land is situated such wife or husband has no interest whatever, present or prospective, which makes her or his joinder in the relinquishment or reconveyance necessary. Where the relinquishment or reconveyance is by a corporation it should be recited in the instrument of transfer that it was executed pursuant to an order or by the direction of the board of directors or other governing body, a copy of which order or direction should accompany such instrument of transfer, which must follow in the matter of its execution strictly the laws of the State in which the land is situated relating to corporate conveyances, and should bear the impress of the corporate seal.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE

3. Each relinquishment or reconveyance must be accompanied by a duly authenticated abstract of title showing that at the time the relinquishment or reconveyance was executed the title was in the party making the same, and that the land was free from conflicting record claims, tax liability, judgment or mortgage liens, pending suits, or other incumbrances.

AUTHENTICATION OF ABSTRACT

4. The certificate of authentication of the abstract must be signed by the recorder of deeds under his official seal and must show that the title memoranda is a full, true, and complete abstract of all matters of record or on file in his office, including all conveyances, mortgages, or other incumbrances, judgments against the various grantors, mechanics or other liens, lis pendens, and all other instruments which are required by law to be filed with the recording officer, affecting in any manner whatsoever the title to the described land. The custodian of the tax records must certify that all taxes levied or assessed against the land or that could operate as a lien thereon have been fully paid and that there are no unredeemed tax sales and no tax deeds outstanding, as shown by the records of his office. The absence of judgment liens or pending suits against the various grantors which might affect the title of the land relinquished or reconveyed must be shown by the official certificates of the clerks of all courts of record whose judgments under the laws of the United States, or the State in which the land is situated, would be a lien on the land reconveyed or relinquished, without being transcribed other than on the court records.

LANDS SUBJECT TO SELECTION

5. Selections under the provisions of this act are restricted to surveyed nonmineral, nontimbered, vacant unreserved public lands situated in the same State as, and equal in area and value to, the lands relinquished.

SELECTIONS

6. Selections must be made by the owner of the land relinquished or in his name by a duly authorized agent or attorney-in-fact; and when made by an agent or attorney-in-fact proof of authority must be furnished.

APPLICATIONS TO SELECT

7. Applications to select hereunder must be filed in the proper local land office and must specifically describe the land desired to be surrendered and that sought to be selected. If more than minimum is selected, as provided for in paragraph 14, corresponding base for each tract must be shown. The county and State, as well as the Indian reservation, and the land district wherein situated must be given of the land relinquished. It must, in each instance, be shown that the applicant is the owner of the land relinquished and that he desires to surrender the same to the Government and select in lieu thereof public lands under the provisions of the act of April 21, 1904 (33 Stat. 211); that the land surrendered and that selected therein described are of equal area and value; that the land selected is nonmineral, nontimbered, vacant, and unoccupied public land; that the applicant will, without cost to the Government, place the deed of relinquishment of record and extend the abstract of title to the date of the recordation thereof upon being notified so to do by the land department; and that upon the request of the Secretary of the Interior he will deposit with him a reasonable amount of money to enable the Secretary to investigate and determine the legality of the selection.

8. The application must be accompanied by a deed or relinquishment or reconveyance to the land tendered as the basis of exchange, duly executed, and a properly authenticated abstract of title to the land, by the required commissions, and proof that the relinquished land and that selected are equal in area and value; that the selected land is nonmineral, nontimbered, vacant, and unoccupied adversely to the selector therein; that the land relinquished and offered in exchange is not the basis of another selection, and satisfactory evidence that the Secretary has, subject to the further exercise of his discretion, entertained the selector's preliminary application to reconvey the basis land and select other lands in lieu thereof.

9. The affidavit or affidavits to support a selection under this act must be made by the selector or by some credible person possessed of the requisite personal knowledge in the premises, and may be executed before any officer qualified to administer oaths, and must be corroborated by at least one person who has no personal interest in the exchange and who is familiar with the character and condition and value of the land selected and the value of the land relinquished. This affidavit or affidavits, duly corroborated, must show that the land selected is nonmineral and nontimbered in character; that it contains no salt springs or deposit of salt in any form sufficient to render it chiefly valuable therefor; that it is not in any manner occupied adversely to the selector; and that the lands selected and the lands relinquished are equal in area and value, and are situated in the same State.

10. Forms of application for selection under this act and accompanying affidavits as to relinquished and selected land, as set out hereinafter in these instructions, or their equivalents, should be used. All proofs and papers necessary to complete a selection must be filed at one and the same time, except as herein otherwise specially provided.

PUBLICATIONS

11. In all cases you will require the applicant, within 20 days from the filing of his application, to begin publication of notice thereof at his own expense in a newspaper to be designated by the register as of general circulation in the vicinity of the land and published nearest thereto. Such publication must cover a period of 30 days, during which time a similar notice of the application must be posted in the local land office and upon each and every noncontiguous tract included in the application.[b]

12. The notice should describe the land applied for and give the date of application, and state that the purpose thereof is to allow all persons claiming the land under the mining or other laws, desiring to show it to be mineral in character or adversely occupied, an opportunity to file objection to such application with the local officers of the land district in which the land is situated and to establish their interest therein or the mineral character thereof.

---

13. Proof of publication shall consist of an affidavit of the publisher, or of the foreman or other proper employee, of the newspaper in which the notice was published, with a copy of the published notice attached. Proof of posting upon the land, and that such notice remained posted during the entire period required, shall be made by the applicant or some credible person having personal knowledge of the fact. The register shall certify to posting in his office. The first and last dates of such publication and posting shall, in all cases, be given.

14. Owners of lands over which an Indian reservation has been extended by Executive order will not be permitted to make selection, or selections, which isolate intervening tracts of less than 160 acres, nor to make selection for noncontiguous tracts of less than 160 acres unless all the adjoining lands has been disposed of or are not subject to selection. Any attempt on the part of the owner of land within a reservation to avoid this rule by making surrender to the Government by separate deeds or by a sale of part of the land to another person after the approval of these regulations will defeat the proposed transfer.

15. Fees must be paid by the applicant at the time of filing his application in the local land office at the rate of $1 each to the register and receiver for each 160 acres or fraction thereof included in his application.

16. Selections made under this act will not be passed to patent until after four months following the filing of the application in the local office. This is to enable any person claiming an adverse right to the selected land to have full opportunity to regularly assert said right.

17. The land relinquished and the land selected must be, as nearly as practicable, equal in area, but the rules of approximation obtaining in other classes of entries will be observed.

18. Applications to select under the provisions of this act will not defeat the right of the Secretary of the Interior or of the President of the United States to withdraw or reserve the land for such proposed public purposes or uses as they may deem proper prior to the approval of the selection by the Secretary of the Interior, and the Secretary, acting within the exercise of his discretion, may reject any and all applications at any time prior to final approval of the same for any reason appearing to him good and sufficient, notwithstanding the application may have been received and certified by the local office and recommended for approval by the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

PRACTICE

19. Notices of additional or further requirements, rejections, or other adverse actions of registers and receivers, the commissioner, or the Secretary will be given, and the rights of appeal, review, or rehearing recognized in the manner now prescribed by the rules of practice, except as herein otherwise provided.

20. If application to contest or a protest or other objection shall at any time be filed against the selection or the application to select, you will forward the same to this office for its consideration and disposition.

21. Applications to enter filed subsequent to and in conflict with applications to select under this act will be rejected, except where such subsequent application to enter is supported by allegations of prior right, in which event you will transmit the conflicting application to enter to this office, with appropriate recommendation.

22. Applications presented to your office under the provisions of the foregoing act, not in substantial compliance with the requirements herein made, or not accompanied by the prescribed proofs, or if the land offered as a basis of exchange is not situated within the boundaries of an Indian reservation created by Executive order, will be rejected by you. All applications sufficient in form, accompanied by the required proofs, will be accepted for transmission as hereinbefore provided and you will note on your records against the land: "Application of ———, act April 21, 1904, pending." The register will certify the condition of your records on the applications, and you will transmit the papers to this office promptly after the filing of the proofs of publication in your office.

23. The commissioner will, upon the receipt of an application to select under the provisions of this act in the General Land Office, cause field examination to be made of both the selected and base land without expense to the Government, after which, if, in his judgment, the rules and regulations have been complied with, he will transmit the records to the Secretary with his report and recommendation. If, however, the commissioner finds that the selection is defective or that the rules and regulations have not been complied with, he will reject the selection or require further proofs.

24. If upon examination of an application to select under this act the Secretary decides that it should be allowed, the applicant will be required to have his relinquishment recorded in the manner prescribed by the State where the land is situated, and to have the abstract of title extended down to and including the date the deed of relinquishment or conveyance was recorded.

25. If the Secretary be of opinion that further evidence as to value and character of the land involved is necessary, he may institute such an inquiry as he may deem advisable, and may require the applicant to deposit a sum of money to defray the expense of the investigation. In any case where deposit shall be required to defray the expense of an investigation it will be made with the Secretary of the Interior, to be held and disbursed by him or under his directions.

26. If the Secretary approve the proposed exchange, the Commissioner of the General Land Office will, as soon as practicable, after the receipt of the advice of such approval, make suitable notations on the records of his office and notify the local office wherein the selected land is subject to disposal thereof. The commissioner in his letter to the local officer will require that the applicant be notified of the approval of his application, and informed that he will be allowed 30 days in which to place the deed of reconveyance or relinquishment of record and to extend the abstract of title down to and including the date of the recordation of such deed, and that he be further advised that in default of action within the time specified the application will be finally rejected without further notice.

27. Approval by the Secretary of the Interior will be subject to and conditioned upon the bona fide compliance on the part of the applicant with all the regulations and requirements herein or which may, by direction of the Secretary of the Interior, be hereafter promulgated.

THE SECRETARY'S DISCRETION

28. The Secretary of the Interior may, in the exercise of the discretion in him vested by law, withhold his approval from any application made under the provisions of this act, although the applicant may have complied with the rules and regulations herein prescribed. Owners of land situated within the boundaries of Indian reserves, created by Executive order, are hereby specifically informed that if, in the opinion of the Secretary, the approval of any application, made under the provisions of this act, would be inimical to the public interests, such application will be rejected.

Very respectfully,

Clay Tallman, Commissioner.

Circular No. 1012

REGULATIONS FOR EXCHANGE OF LANDS IN THE ADDITIONS TO THE NAVAJO INDIAN RESERVATION, ARIZ.

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, May 27, 1925.

Register and Receiver, Phoenix, Ariz.
Superintendent Leupp Agency, Leupp, Ariz.
Superintendent Western Navajo Agency, Tuba City, Ariz.

Gentlemen: The following regulations are issued for your guidance under the act of March 3, 1925 (43 Stat. 1115), authorizing reconveyances and relinquishments of lands, and lieu selections therefor, within the additions to the Navajo Indian Reservation in Arizona, by Executive orders of January 8, 1900, and November 14, 1901. The act reads as follows:

> That the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized, in his discretion, under rules and regulations to be prescribed by him, to accept reconveyances to the Government of privately owned and State school lands, and relinquishments of any valid filings under the homestead laws, or of other valid claims within the additions to the Navajo Indian Reservation, Arizona, by executive orders of January 8, 1900, and November 14, 1901, and to permit lieu selections within the boundaries of the said reservation additions by those surrendering their rights, so that the lands retained for Indian purposes may be consolidated and held in a solid area so far as may be possible: Provided, That the title or claim of any person or company who refuses to reconvey to the Government shall not be hereby affected.

As the "exchanges" permitted under the act for the purpose of consolidations can be made only with the mutual consent of all persons interested, and be brought to the point where approvals may be had of the Secretary of the Interior, there should be full preliminary cooperation as a preventive of adverse action and as a means of aiding prompt and favorable action by the Government. It would, therefore, be appropriate that you suggest to all prospective applicants that before any applications are actually filed in the local land office they go over the matter, as between themselves, with the view of arriving at some tentative agreement as to what lands they wish to relinquish and to determine the exact status of the land desired in exchange.

A person or corporation, or the State of Arizona, desiring to reconvey and select lieu lands should file in duplicate an application with the local land officers at Phoenix definitely describing by Government surveys the lands wanted and the lands offered in exchange; and notice of such application must be given in compliance with the circular of February 21, 1908 (36 L. D. 278), with the exception, that instead of beginning publication within 20 days of filing of selection, the selector will begin such publication within 30 days from date of service of notice by the register and receiver that the application has been placed of record.[c]

In all cases where the application involves land occupied, claimed, or owned by an Indian, the register and receiver will forward a copy of the application to the proper Indian superintendent; and in all such cases will furnish the superintendent with the serial number of the application, which serial number, together with the name of the land office, must be indorsed thereon as a means of identification and referred to in all correspondence concerning said application. It will be the duty of these officials to examine the land proposed to be relinquished or reconveyed by all Indian applicants, and the land proposed to be acquired by Indian applicants, and to submit reports of such examinations involving lands in their respective jurisdictions to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, with appropriate recommendation as to the allowance or disallowance of the application, a copy of which report must be forwarded to register and receiver at Phoenix.

The register and receiver will forward to the Commissioner of the General Land Office with their monthly returns all applications filed in their office for exchanges under the said act of March 3, 1925, supra, after noting the same on their records in the usual manner.

The inspection service of the department will cause to be made such investigations and examinations of the lands and claims described and set forth in applications for exchange as will enable the Secretary of the Interior properly to act in the premises. Applicants should specifically state in their applications that the same are made pursuant to the authority contained in the said act of March 3, 1925, and these instructions.

An affidavit showing that the land asked for in exchange is not adversely claimed should accompany each application, and in cases where the land is covered by an allotment, homestead, or desert entry, proper relinquishments should be filed. Where applications are submitted involving the reconveyance or relinquishment of lands selected by or patented to individual Indians, such applications may be considered jointly and not necessarily as separate applications; provided, in such cases, the lands to be acquired in exchange will consolidate the holdings of such Indians.

[c] See instructions of Oct. 19, 1929, p. 1149.

There should also accompany the application a warranty deed duly executed according to the laws of Arizona by the proponent conveying to the United States the land to be given in exchange, but such deed need not be recorded. An abstract of title brought down to show good title in the proponent, free from all encumbrances, must also be filed. Such abstract of title must be authenticated by the proper State and Federal officers and show that the land is free from all judgment claims, or liens, including taxes, or such abstract may be authenticated by an abstractor or abstract company as provided by General Land Office Circular No. 726. If the exchange is authorized, the deed will be returned for recording and the abstract to be brought down to show such recordation, whereupon patent will be issued in the regular order of business.

Where the land relinquished is covered by an unperfected bona fide claim for which no certificate for patent is outstanding, there must be filed with the selection a certificate by the recorder of deeds or official custodian of the records of transfers of real estate in the proper county that no instrument purporting to convey or in any way to encumber the title to the land or any part thereof is on file or of record in his office; or if any such instrument or instruments be on file or of record therein, the certificate must show the facts. A selection in lieu of an unperfected claim not covered by patent certificate must in all respects conform to the law under which such unperfected claim is held, and will be subject to the payment of such fees and commissions as would be required under the statutes to complete the unperfected claim in lieu of which the selection is made.

If the land relinquished is covered by an Indian allotment for which a trust patent has been issued, that trust patent should accompany the application for exchange and on the reverse side of the patent should be indorsed and relinquishment of the patentee witnessed by two persons or before a notary public or other official with a seal. If the trust patent has been lost or destroyed or for any reason can not be located, the relinquishment and application for exchange may be combined, including a sworn statement as to the loss of the patent, or reason given why it can not be furnished. In cases of this character no deed will be necessary, but the selector must make affidavit that he had not sold, assigned, mortgaged, or contracted to sell, assign, or mortgage the land covered by the unperfected claim or relinquished allotment.

The law makes no provision for reimbursing any persons for improvements on land relinquished or reconveyed. However, when any applicant receives notice that an exchange applied for has been authorized, he may, if he so desires, remove any buildings, fencing, or other movable improvements owned or erected by him on the land relinquished or conveyed, provided that such removal is accomplished within 90 days from receipt by him of said notice.

Respectfully,

William Spry,
Commissioner of the General Land Office

CIRCULAR NO. 1029

REGULATIONS FOR EXCHANGE OF LANDS IN THE WALAPAI INDIAN RESERVATION, ARIZ.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, September 8, 1925.

REGISTER,
Phoenix, Ariz.
SUPERINTENDENT TRUXTON CANYON AGENCY,
Valentine, Ariz.

GENTLEMEN: The following regulations are issued for your guidance under the act of February 20, 1925 (43 Stat. 954), authorizing reconveyances and relinquishments of lands, and lieu selections therefor, within the Walapai Indian Reservation in Arizona. The act reads as follows:

> That the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized, in his discretion, under rules and regulations to be prescribed by him, to accept reconveyances to the Government of privately owned and State school lands and relinquishments of any valid filings, under the homestead laws, or of other valid claims within the Walapai Indian Reservation in Mohave and Coconino Counties, Arizona, and to permit lieu selections within the boundaries of the said reservation by those surrendering their rights so that the lands retained for Indian purposes may be consolidated and held in a solid area so far as may be possible: Provided, That the title or claim of any person or company who refuses to reconvey to the Government shall not be hereby affected.

As the "exchanges" permitted under the act for the purpose of consolidations can be made only with the mutual consent of all persons interested, and be brought to the point where approvals may be had of the Secretary of the Interior, there should be full preliminary cooperation as a preventive of adverse action and as a means of aiding prompt and favorable action by the Government. It would, therefore, be appropriate that you suggest to all prospective applicants that before any applications are actually filed in the local land office, they go over the matter, as between themselves, with the view of arriving at some tentative agreement as to what lands they wish to relinquish and to determine the exact status of the land desired in exchange.

A person or corporation, or the State of Arizona, desiring to reconvey and select lieu lands should file in duplicate an application with the local land officer at Phoenix definitely describing by Government surveys the lands wanted and the lands offered in exchange; and notice of such application must be given in compliance with the circular of February 21, 1908 (36 L. D. 278), with the exception, that instead of beginning publication within 20 days of filing of selection, the selector will begin such publication within 30 days from date of service of notice by the register that the application has been placed of record.

In all cases where the application involves land occupied, claimed, or owned by an Indian, or where the land is occupied, claimed, or held by the Indians as a tribe, the register will forward a copy of the application to the Indian superintendent; and in all such cases will furnish the superintendent with the serial number of the application, which serial number together with the name of the land office must be indorsed thereon as a means of identification and referred to in all correspondence concerning said application. It will be the duty of this official to examine the land proposed to be relinquished or reconveyed by the Indian applicant or on behalf of the tribe and the land proposed to be acquired by or for the Indians, and to submit reports of such examinations to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs with appropriate recommendation as to the allowance or disallowance of the application, a copy of which report must be forwarded to the register at Phoenix.

The register will forward to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, with his monthly returns, all applications filed in his office for exchanges under the said act of February 20, 1925, supra, after noting the same on his records in the usual manner.

The inspection service of the department will cause to be made such investigations and examinations of the lands and claims described and set forth in applications for exchange as will enable the Secretary of the Interior properly to act in the premises.

Applicants should specifically state in their applications that the same are made pursuant to the authority contained in the said act of February 20, 1925, and these instructions. An affidavit showing that the land asked for in exchange is not adversely claimed should accompany each application, and in cases where the land is covered by homestead or desert entry or application, proper relinquishments should be filed.

There should also accompany the application a warranty deed duly executed according to the laws of Arizona by the proponent conveying to the United States the land to be given in exchange, but such deed need not be recorded. An abstract of title brought down to show good title in the proponent, free from all encumbrances, must also be filed. Such abstract of title must be authenticated by the proper State and Federal officers and show that the land is free from all judgment claims, or liens, including taxes, or such abstract may be authenticated by an abstractor or abstract company as provided by General Land Office Circular No. 726. If the exchange is authorized the deed will be returned for recording and the abstract to be brought down to show such recordation, whereupon patent will be issued in the regular order of business.

Where the land relinquished is covered by an unperfected bona fide claim for which no certificate for patent is outstanding, there must be filed with the selection a certificate by the recorder of deeds or official custodian of the records of transfers of real estate in the proper county that no instrument purporting to convey or in any way to encumber the title to the land or any part thereof is on file or of record in his office; or if any such instrument or instruments be on file or of record therein, the certificate must show the facts. A selection in lieu of an unperfected claim not covered by patent certificate must in all respects conform to the law under which such unperfected claim is held, and will be subject to the payment of such fees and commissions as would be required under the statutes to complete the unperfected claim in lieu of which the selection is made.

The law makes no provision for reimbursing any persons for improvements on land relinquished or reconveyed. However, when any applicant receives notice that an exchange applied for has been authorized, he may, if he so desires, remove any buildings, fencing, or other movable improvements owned or erected by him on the land relinquished or conveyed; provided, that such removal is accomplished within 90 days from receipt by him of said notice.

Respectfully,

THOS. C. HAVELL,
Acting Commissioner of the General Land Office.

Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

CIRCULAR NO. 850

REGULATIONS FOR EXCHANGE OF LANDS IN SAN JUAN, McKINLEY, AND VALENCIA COUNTIES, N. MEX.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, September 19, 1922.

REGISTER AND RECEIVER, Santa Fe, N. Mex.,
SUPERINTENDENT AT PUEBLO BONITO AGENCY, Crown Point, N. Mex., SUPERINTENDENT AT ZUNI SCHOOL, Blackrock, N. Mex.

GENTLEMEN: The following regulations are issued for your guidance under the act of March 3, 1921 (41 Stat. L. 1225–1239), authorizing reconveyances and relinquishments of lands, and lieu selections therefor, in San Juan, McKinley, and Valencia Counties.

The act mentioned contains this provision:

> The Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized in his discretion, under rules and regulations to be prescribed by him, to accept reconveyances to the Government of privately owned and State school lands, and relinquishments of valid homestead entries or other filings, including Indian allotment selections, within any township of the public domain in San Juan, McKinley, and Valencia Counties, New Mexico, and to permit lieu selections by those surrendering their rights so that the holdings of any claimant within any township wherein such reconveyances or relinquishments are made may be consolidated and held in solid areas: Provided, That the title or claim of any person who refuses to reconvey to the Government shall not be hereby affected.

As the "exchanges" permitted under the act for the purpose of consolidations can be made only with the mutual consent of all persons interested, and be brought to the point where approvals may be had of the Secretary of the Interior, there should be full preliminary cooperation as a preventive of adverse action and as a means of aiding prompt and favorable action by the Government. It would, therefore, be appropriate that you suggest to all prospective applicants that before any applications are actually filed in the local land office, they go over the matter, as between themselves, with the view of arriving at some tentative agreement as to what lands they wish to relinquish and take in exchange.

The question of whether the lands wanted by each interest is vacant public domain or railroad land, whether it is State land or Indian allotments patented or selected therefor, or whether leased, etc., should first be ascertained by such persons as nearly as may be possible; also, some understanding should be had between all the interests indicating their attitude. There are many small details connected with propositions of this character which must necessarily be worked out first by the applicants themselves, and that can be done promptly and satisfactorily by personal conferences among themselves, rather than to have applications filed indiscriminately with the expectation that the field force of this department will attempt to reconcile all the differences that will no doubt be found to exist.

A person or corporation, or the State of New Mexico, desiring to reconvey and select lieu lands should file in duplicate an application with the local land officers at Santa Fe definitely describing by Government surveys the lands wanted and the lands offered in exchange; and notice of such application must be given in compliance with the circular of February 21, 1908 (36 L. D. 278), with the exception, that instead of beginning publication within 20 days of filing of selection, the selector will begin such publication within 30 days from date of service of notice by the register and receiver that the application has been placed of record.

In all cases where the application involves land occupied, claimed, or owned by an Indian, the register and receiver will forward a copy of the application to the proper Indian superintendent; and in all such cases will furnish the superintendent with the serial number of the application, which serial number together with the name of the land office must be indorsed thereon as a means of identification and referred to in all correspondence concerning said application. Copies of applications covering lands occupied, claimed, or owned by Indians in San Juan and McKinley Counties will be filed with the Indian superintendent at Crown Point; and copies of applications covering such lands in Valencia County will be filed with the superintendent at Blackrock. It will be the duty of these officials to examine the land proposed to be relinquished or reconveyed by all Indian applicants, and the land proposed to be acquired by Indian applicants, and to submit reports of such examinations involving lands in their respective jurisdictions, to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs with appropriate recommendation as to the allowance or disallowance of the application, a copy of which report must be forwarded to the register and receiver at Santa Fe.

The register and receiver will forward to the Commissioner of the General Land Office with their monthly returns all applications filed in their office for exchanges under the said act of March 3, 1921, supra, after noting the same on their records in the usual manner. The application will be noted " suspended " by the register and receiver, and unless disallowed by the Secretary of the Interior, the lands applied for in exchange will not be subject to application or filing by any other applicant.

The Commissioner of the General Land Office, acting through the field service thereof, will cause to be made such investigations and examinations of the lands and claims described and set forth in applications for exchange as will enable the Secretary of the Interior properly to act in the premises. Applicants should specifically state in their applications that the same are made pursuant to the authority contained in the said act of March 3, 1921, and these instructions.

An affidavit showing that the land asked for in exchange is nonmineral in character and not adversely claimed should accompany each application; except that in cases where the land is covered by an allotment, homestead, or desert entry, a statement may be incorporated in the affidavit to the effect that the claimant to such land has filed an application to relinquish or reconvey the land to the United States under the provisions of the act of March 3, 1921, supra, if such be the fact. Where applications are submitted involving the reconveyance or relinquishment of lands selected by or patented to individual Indians, such applications may be considered jointly and not necessarily as separate applications; provided, in such cases, the lands to be acquired in exchange will consolidate the holdings of such Indians.

The lands selected must, in conjunction with other property owned by the party conveying, be in a compact body, as near as may be possible, regardless of township lines; but no application will be considered involving lieu lands in any township wherein the selector owns no land, and where the approval of such application will not affect a consolidation of the holdings of the applicant in such township or townships. Nonmineral, surveyed, unappropriated, and unreserved land, except as provided by the preceding paragraph, can be selected.

There should also accompany the application a warranty deed duly executed according to the laws of New Mexico by the proponent conveying to the United States the land to be given in exchange, but such deed need not be recorded. An abstract of title brought down to show good title in the proponent, free from all encumbrances, must also be filed. Such abstract of title must be authenticated by the proper State and Federal officers and show that the land is free from all judgment, claims, or liens, including taxes, or such abstract may be authenticated by an abstractor or abstract company as provided by General Land Office Circular No. 726 of October 13, 1920. If the exchange is authorized the deed will be returned for recording and the abstract to be brought down to show such recordation, whereupon patent will be issued in the regular order of business.

Where the land relinquished is covered by an unperfected bona fide claim for which no certificate for patent is outstanding, there must be filed with the selection a certificate by the recorder of deeds or official custodian of the records of transfers of real estate in the proper county that no instrument purporting to convey or in any way to encumber the title to the land or any part thereof is on file or of record in his office; or if any such instrument or instruments be on file or of record therein, the certificate must show the facts. A selection in lieu of an unperfected claim not covered by patent certificate must in all respects conform to the law under which such unperfected claim is held, and will be subject to the payment of such fees and commissions as would be required under the statutes to complete the unperfected claim in lieu of which the selection is made.

If the land relinquished is covered by an unperfected claim—such as a homestead or desert entry—for which certificate for patent has not been issued and the law under which the claim was initiated requires that land taken thereunder must be in one body, the same requirement must be observed in making the lieu selection irrespective of lands otherwise owned or claimed. If the land relinquished is covered by an Indian allotment for which a trust patent has been issued, that trust patent should accompany the application for exchange and on the reverse side of the patent should be indorsed the relinquishment of the patentee witnessed by two persons or before a notary public or other official with a seal. If the trust patent has been lost or destroyed or for any reason can not be located, the relinquishment and application for exchange may be combined, including a sworn statement as to the loss of the patent, or reason given why it can not be furnished. In cases of this character no deed will be necessary, but the selector must make affidavit that he has not sold, assigned, mortgaged, or contracted to sell, assign, or mortgage the land covered by the unperfected claim or relinquished allotment.

A selection of land in lieu of an unperfected entry under the settlement laws if credit for residence on the unperfected claim be desired, must in addition to other proofs be accompanied by the affidavit of the selector, corroborated by two witnesses, showing when residence was established on the unperfected claim and the duration of such residence. In such a case, unless the selector has resided upon, cultivated, and improved the relinquished unperfected claim for the full period required by law to earn a patent thereto, he must establish and maintain a residence on the land selected and cultivate and improve the same for the full period required by law to earn a patent, less the time spent upon the relinquished unperfected claim.

If the relinquished unperfected claim be not one held under the settlement laws, the affidavit as to the residence required by the preceding paragraph need not be furnished; but in either case the selector must make affidavit that he has not sold, assigned, mortgaged, or contracted to sell the land covered by the relinquished unperfected claim. No patent shall be issued for any lieu land selection until all parties in interest and involved in the exchange of their holdings with each other and with the Government shall have completed their selections and thereby and otherwise in accordance with applicable law and the regulations thereunder earned equitable title to the land involved therein.

The law makes no provision for reimbursing any persons for improvements on land relinquished or reconveyed. However, when any applicant receives notice that an exchange applied for has been authorized, he may, if he so desires, remove any buildings, fencing, or other movable improvements owned or erected by him on the land relinquished or conveyed: Provided, That such removal is accomplished within 90 days from receipt by him of said notice. Any land relinquished to the United States under these regulations, which tracts would ordinarily become subject to entry under the public land laws, shall be withheld from all forms of disposal until further specific action is taken thereon to make the said lands subject to settlement or entry, or to any form of disposal; and until otherwise directed the local land officers will not allow any entry or application for such lands.

William Spry,
Commissioner of the General Land Office.

Washington, February 17, 1923.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices at Burns, La Grande, Lakeview, Portland, Roseburg, The Dalles, and Vale, Oreg.

Gentlemen: Your attention is called to an act of Congress, approved March 8, 1922 (42 Stat. 416), entitled "An act authorizing the exchange of lands within the exterior boundaries of the Malheur National Forest, in the State of Oregon, and for other purposes," which is as follows:

[d] Circular No. 863 of Oct. 28, 1922, was revised Mar. 20, 1925. See p. 480.

> That the Secretary of the Interior be, and hereby is, authorized in his discretion to accept, on behalf of the United States, title to any lands in private ownership within the exterior boundaries of the Malheur National Forest which, in the opinion of the Secretary of Agriculture, are chiefly valuable for national forest purposes, and, in exchange therefor, may issue patent for an equal value of national forest land in the State of Oregon; or the Secretary of Agriculture may permit the grantor to cut and remove an equal value of timber from any national forest in the State of Oregon, the values in each instance to be determined by the Secretary of Agriculture and be acceptable to the owner as fair compensation. Timber given in such exchanges shall be cut and removed under the direction and supervision and in accordance with the requirements of the Secretary of Agriculture. Lands conveyed to the United States under this act shall, upon acceptance of title, become part of the Malheur National Forest.

This act is one of a number of acts passed by Congress, providing for exchanges of lands in national forests. Special regulations governing each of such acts have not been prepared, but procedure under all is intended to be in accordance with the instructions of Circular No. 863, approved October 28, 1922, entitled "Consolidation of National Forests," which defined the procedure in detail and which is sufficiently comprehensive to afford ample guidance in proceeding under any of such acts.

Therefore, in considering applications for exchanges under this act, you are directed to be governed by the instructions given in said Circular No. 863, with such modifications as may be necessary and proper to make applicable to this act.

Very respectfully,

Washington, April 23, 1923.

CHIEF OF FIELD DIVISION,

SUPERINTENDENT OF GLACIER NATIONAL PARK,
Belton, Mont.,
REGISTERS AND RECEIVERS,
United States Land Offices, Montana.

GENTLEMEN: The act of February 28, 1923 (42 Stat. 1324), entitled: "An act to authorize an exchange of lands with owners of private land holdings within the Glacier National Park," reads as follows:

> That the Secretary of the Interior, for the purpose of eliminating private holdings of land within the Glacier National Park, is hereby empowered, in his discretion, to obtain for the United States the complete title to any or all of the lands held in private ownership within the boundaries of said park by accepting from the owners of such privately owned lands complete relinquishment thereof and by granting and patenting to such owners, in exchange therefor, in each instance, like public land of equal value situate in the State of Montana, after due notice of the proposed exchange has been given by publication for not less than thirty days in the counties where the lands proposed to be exchanged or taken in exchange are located.
> SEC. 2. That the value of all patented lands within said park, including the timber thereon, offered for exchange, and the value of other lands of the United States elsewhere situated, to be given in exchange therefor, shall be ascertained in such manner as the Secretary of the Interior may direct; and the owners of such privately owned lands within said park shall, before any exchange is effective, furnish the Secretary of the Interior evidence satisfactory to him of title to the patented lands offered in exchange; and the lands conveyed to the Government under this act shall be and remain a part of the Glacier National Park.

Applications.—Applications for an exchange under the act must be filed in the local land office having jurisdiction over the land selected, the application describing the land to be conveyed as well as the land selected, according to Government subdivisions. Nothing less than a legal subdivision may be surrendered or selected. The selected land must be entirely within the State of Montana. Selections must be made by the owner of the land relinquished or in his name by a duly authorized agent or attorney in fact, and when made by an agent or attorney in fact proof of authority must be furnished. The application must be accompanied by the necessary relinquishment, abstract of title, affidavits, and fees, as set forth in Circular No. 863, dated October 28, 1922, entitled: "Consolidation of National Forests," and you will be governed thereby in acting on the applications, noting on your records that the selection is made under the act of February 28, 1923 (42 Stat. 1324).

Action by register and receiver.—If a selection appears regular and in conformity with the law and these regulations the selection will be referred by the register and receiver to the Chief of Field Division for field examination of both the selected and the base lands to determine whether or not their value is equal within the meaning of this act, with reference to their characteristics as mineral, prairie, grazing, agricultural, timber, desert land or otherwise, as the case may be, and to submit report with specific recommendation. A representative of the Field Division will cooperate with a representative of the Superintendent of the Glacier National Park in the examination and valuation of the base lands within the Glacier National Park. Should the report of the Chief of Field Division be adverse to the applicant opportunity will be given the party in interest to amend his application to conform with the recommendation of the Field Division by the register and receiver of the United States land office in which the application was filed.

Publication of notice.—If the Chief of Field Division recommends the approval of the exchange and the selection appears regular and in conformity with the law and these regulations, the register and receiver will notify the applicant and require him, within 30 days from receipt of notice, to begin publication of notice of his application in accordance with said Circular No. 863, and in due time to submit proof thereof.

Protests.—Protests will be disposed of as provided in said Circular No. 863.

Action on the application.—Should no objections appear on your records, you will certify the condition of the record on the application and will promptly transmit the original application and accompanying papers to this office by special letter.

Upon receipt of an application in the General Land Office the same will be examined at as early a date as practicable and if found defective an opportunity will be given the parties in interest to cure the defects, if possible. If the selection appears regular and in conformity with the law and these regulations the selection, with the record, will, in the absence of objections, be transmitted to the Secretary of the Interior with appropriate recommendation.

If the Secretary decides that the application should be allowed, the applicant will be required to have his relinquishment recorded in the manner prescribed by the laws of the State of Montana and to have the abstract of title extended down to and including the date the deed of relinquishment or conveyance was recorded.

If the Secretary be of the opinion that further evidence as to value and character of land involved is necessary, he may institute such inquiry as he may deem advisable.

The Secretary of the Interior may, in the exercise of his discretion, withhold his approval from any application made under the provisions of this act although the applicant may have complied with the rules and regulations herein prescribed.

Very respectfully.

William Spry,
Commissioner, General Land Office.

CONSOLIDATION OF NATIONAL FORESTS

(Reprint of regulations of October 28, 1922 (49 L. D. 365), with amendments of February 1, 1924, Circular 918 (50 L. D. 261); February 4, 1924, Circular 919 (50 L. D. 268), and February 14, 1925, Circular 980.)

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, March 20, 1925.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: 1. The act of March 20, 1922 (42 Stat. 465), entitled "An act to consolidate national forest lands," reads as follows:

> That, when the public interests will be benefited thereby, the Secretary of the Interior be, and hereby is, authorized in his discretion to accept on behalf of the United States title to any lands within exterior boundaries of the national forests which, in the opinion of the Secretary of Agriculture, are chiefly valuable for national forest purposes, and in exchange therefor may patent not to exceed an equal value of such national forest land, in the same State, surveyed and nonmineral in character, or the Secretary of Agriculture may authorize the grantor to cut and remove an equal value of timber within the national forests of the same State; the values in each case to be determined by the Secretary of Agriculture: Provided, That before any such exchange is effected notice of the contemplated exchange reciting the lands involved shall be published once each week for four successive weeks in some newspaper of general circulation in the county or counties in which may be situated the lands to be accepted, and in some like newspaper published in any county in which may be situated any lands or timber to be given in such exchange. Timber given in such exchange shall be cut and removed under the laws and regulations relating to the national forests, and under the direction and supervision and in accordance with the requirements of the Secretary of Agriculture. Lands conveyed to the United States under this act shall, upon acceptance of title, become parts of the national forest within whose exterior boundaries they are located.

The act of March 20, 1922, was amended by the act of February 28, 1925 (43 Stat. 1090), by adding thereto the following section:

> SEC. 2. Either party to an exchange may make reservations of timber, minerals, or easements, the values of which shall be duly considered in determining the values of the exchanged lands. Where reservations are made in lands conveyed to the United States the right to enjoy them shall be subject to such reasonable conditions respecting ingress and egress and the use of the surface of the land as may be deemed necessary by the Secretary of Agriculture; where mineral reservations are made in lands conveyed by the United States it shall be so stipulated in the patents, and that any person who acquires the right to mine and remove the reserved deposits may enter and occupy so much of the surface as may be required for all purposes incident to the mining and removal of the minerals therefrom, and may mine and remove such minerals upon payment to the owner of the surface for damages caused to the land and improvements thereon: Provided, That all property, rights, easements, and benefits authorized by this section to be retained by or reserved to owners of lands conveyed to the United States shall be subject to the tax laws of the States where such lands are located.

2. Initial application to forest officers.—All preliminary negotiations relating to an exchange under the act are to be conducted with the local representatives of the Forest Service, and any owner of land subject to exchange who desires to take advantage of the privileges conferred by this act must file with the local national forest officers an informal application describing the land to be conveyed as well as that to be selected, or if timber is desired in exchange the land on which such timber is located. The land must be specifically described according to Government subdivisions, and, as a rule, nothing less than a legal subdivision may be surrendered or selected. An exception to this rule may be made only where in the opinion of the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of the Interior such exception would be advantageous to the Government. The selected land or timber must be entirely within national forest boundaries and in the same State in which the relinquished lands are located.

The applicant must show by affidavit or other evidence satisfactory to the Forest Service that he is the owner of the land to be conveyed, and that the land relinquished and the land or timber selected are equal in value.

3. Approval of the exchange.—When a tentative agreement has been reached between the applicant and the local national forest officer the case will be submitted to the district forester and if approved by him to the forester at Washington, D. C., for consideration.

If the Forester finds the exchange to be in the public interest and that an equality of values exists, he will request the Secretary of Agriculture to advise the Secretary of the Interior that the acceptance of the certain described lands offered under the act and the granting in lieu thereof of other certain described lands, or of stumpage upon other described lands, meets with the approval of the Department of Agriculture; that the base lands are chiefly valuable for national forest purposes, and that the value of the offered and selected lands is approximately equal.

The Secretary of the Interior, upon receipt of such letter from the Secretary of Agriculture, unless he has reasons to do otherwise, will approve the exchange, subject to the submission of acceptable title to the lands tendered and to full compliance by the applicant with these regulations, and subject to any protests or other valid objections which may appear.

4. Formal application to district land officers.—The General Land Office will notify the district land officers of the district in which the land or timber to be selected is located of the approval of the exchange, and such district land officers will in turn notify the person desiring to make such exchange of the approval thereof and that he is allowed 60 days from receipt of notice within which to file his formal application specifically describing the land selected, or the land on which timber selected is located, and the land to be relinquished. The application must be accompanied by the necessary affidavits and fees.

No fixed forms of application for selection under this act and accompanying affidavits as to the relinquished and selected lands have been prepared, but these instructions should be followed as nearly as possible.

Each application will be given a serial number and have the hour and date of filing stamped thereon. You will note on your records against the land, " Selected under act of March 20, 1922 (42 Stat. 465), by ——— ——— (date ———, serial No. ——, pending)."

5. Affidavits required.—The applicant will be required to show by affidavit that he is 21 years of age, and otherwise legally capable of carrying through the transaction; that he is the owner of the land relinquished, and that said land is not the basis of another selection or exchange. He must also furnish his own affidavit or the affidavit of some credible person possessed of the requisite personal knowledge, showing that the land selected is nonmineral in character; that it contains no salt springs or deposits of salt in any form sufficient to render it chiefly valuable therefor; that it is not in any manner occupied or claimed adversely to the selector.

These affidavits may be executed before any officer qualified to administer oaths.

6. Fees.—Fees must be paid by the applicant at the rate of $1 each to the register and receiver for each 160 acres, or fraction thereof, of the base lands surrendered and conveyed to the Government.

7. Publication and posting.—Within 30 days from the filing of his application to select land or timber the applicant will begin publication of notice thereof, at his own expense, in a newspaper or newspapers having general circulation in the county or counties in which the land relinquished and the land or timber selected are situated, the newspapers to be designated by the register. Such notice must be published once each week for four successive weeks, during which time a similar notice of the application must be posted in the local land office. The notice should describe the land or timber applied for as well as the land to be given in exchange and give the date of filing the application and state that the purpose thereof is to allow all persons claiming the land selected or having bona fide objections to such application an opportunity to file their protests with the local officers of the land district in which the land selected is situated.

Proof of publication shall consist of an affidavit of the publisher or of the foreman or other proper employee of the newspaper in which the notice was published, with a copy of the published notice attached. The register shall certify to the posting in his office. The dates of such publication and posting must in all cases be given.

8. Action by district land officers.—Should a protest be filed, all the papers should be transmitted to the General Land Office for consideration; but should no protest be filed against the allowance of the selection within 30 days from the date of the first publication of notice, and no objection appear on your records, you will notify the selector that he is allowed 60 days from receipt of notice within which to file the relinquishment or reconveyance, and abstract of title, as prescribed in paragraphs numbered 9, 10, and 11.

The proof papers necessary to complete a selection should be filed at the same time. However, if additional time is necessary to complete the abstract, the same will be granted upon a proper showing.

After the filing of the required relinquishment, abstract of title, and other proof, the register will certify the condition of the record on the application and will promptly transmit the original application and accompanying papers to this office by special letter.

9. Relinquishment or reconveyance.—The deed of relinquishment or reconveyance of the land tendered as a basis of exchange must be executed and acknowledged in the same manner as a conveyance of real property is required to be executed and acknowledged by the laws of the State in which the land is situated. The deed should also be duly recorded.

Where the relinquishment or reconveyance is made by an individual it must show whether the person relinquishing is married or single, and if married the wife or husband of such person, as the case may be, must join in the execution of the relinquishment or reconveyance in such a manner as to effectually bar any right of curtesy or dower, or any claim whatsoever to the land relinquished, or it must be fully shown that under the laws of the State in which the relinquished land is situated such wife or husband has no interest whatsoever, present or prospective, which makes her or his joining in the relinquishment or reconveyance necessary.

Where the relinquishment or reconveyance is by a corporation, it should be recited in the instrument of transfer that it was executed pursuant to an order or by the direction of the board of directors or other governing body, a copy of which order or direction should accompany such instrument of transfer, and should bear the impression of the corporate seal.

10. Abstracts of title.—Each relinquishment or reconveyance must be accompanied by a duly authenticated abstract of title, showing that at the time the reconveyance was recorded the title was in the party making the conveyance and that the land was free from conflicting record claims, tax liabilities, judgment or mortgage liens, pending suits or other incumbrances.

The certificate of authentication of the abstract must be signed by the recorder of deeds or other proper official, under his official seal, and must show that the title memoranda is a full, true, and complete abstract of all matters of record or on file in his office, including all conveyances, mortgages, or other incumbrances, judgments against the various grantors, mechanics' liens, lis pendens, or other instruments which are required by law to be filed with the recording officers, affecting in any manner whatsoever the title to the described land. The authenticity of the tax records must be certified showing that all taxes levied or assessed against the land, or that could operate thereon as a lien, have been fully paid; or whether there is a tax lien although such tax is not assessed, due, or payable; that there are no unredeemed tax sales and no tax deeds outstanding as shown by the records of his office. The absence of judgment liens or pending suits against the various grantors which might affect the title of the land relinquished or reconveyed must be shown by the official certificate of the clerks of the courts of record, whose judgments, under the laws of the United States or the State in which the land is situated, would be a lien on the land reconveyed or relinquished. If it is preferred the abstract may be authenticated by an abstractor or by an abstract company, approved by the General Land Office, in accordance with section 42 of the Mining Regulations of April 11, 1922 (49 L. D. 15, 69).

11. Application for timber.—If timber is desired in exchange for the land to be conveyed to the United States, proof that notice has been published and posted will be all the evidence necessary to be filed in regard to the timber, but all the proof required in connection with the land offered as a basis for the exchange must be filed.

12. Action by the General Land Office.—The application and accompanying proof will, upon receipt by the General Land Office, be examined at as early a date as practicable, and if found defective opportunity will be given the parties in interest to cure the defects, if possible. If the selection appears regular and in conformity with the law and these regulations, the selection will, in the absence of objections, if for land only, be formally approved for patent by letter to the district land office, but if timber is taken in exchange the Secretary of Agriculture will, upon advice of the Secretary of the Interior that the regulations have been fully complied with, issue proper permit or certificate for timber.

13. Practice and procedure.—Notice of additional or further requirements, rejections, or other adverse actions of registers and receivers, the commissioner or the Secretary, will be given and the right of appeal, review, or rehearing recognized in the manner now prescribed by the Rules of Practice, except as otherwise herein provided. A protest or other objection against the selection or the application to select, must be filed in the district land office to be forwarded to the General Land Office for consideration and disposal. Application to enter filed subsequent to any conflicting application to select will be rejected, except where the subsequent application to enter is supported by allegations of prior right, in which event it will be transmitted to the General Land Office with appropriate recommendation. Applications presented under these regulations not in substantial conformity with the requirements herein made, not accompanied by the prescribed proof, or where land offered as basis of exchange or the land selected is not situated within the boundaries prescribed by the act will be rejected, subject to appeal or curing of the defect where possible.

14. Right reserved to reject any and all applications.—Applications to select either land or timber under the provisions of the act will not defeat the right of the United States to withdraw or reserve the land for such purposes or uses as may be proper prior to the filing in the district land office of an application complete in all particulars.

15. Other forest exchanges.—Other acts provide for exchanges of lands in national forests. Special regulations governing these acts have not been prepared, but exchanges thereunder must be made under the foregoing regulations, modified, however, to meet the limitations, conditions, and provisions of the acts mentioned. The acts referred to are as follows: January 9, 1903 (32 Stat. 765); February 28, 1911 (36 Stat. 960); March 4, 1911 (36 Stat. 1357); July 25,

INSTRUCTIONS RELATIVE TO FOREST-RESERVE LIEU LAND SELECTIONS, ACTS JUNE 4, 1897 (30 STAT. 36), AND JUNE 6, 1900 (31 STAT. 614)

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., July 7, 1902.[3]

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Gentlemen: The act of Congress approved June 4, 1897 (30 Stat. 34, 36), provides among other things with respect to forest reserves established and to be established under section 24 of the act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 1095)—

> That in cases in which a tract covered by an unperfected bona fide claim or by a patent is included within the limits of a public forest reservation, the settler or owner thereof may, if he desires to do so, relinquish the tract to the Government, and may select in lieu thereof a tract of vacant land open to settlement not exceeding in area the tract covered by his claim or patent; and no charge shall be made in such cases for making the entry of record or issuing the patent to cover the tract selected: Provided further, That in cases of unperfected claims the requirements of the law respecting settlement, residence, improvements, and so forth are complied with on the new claims, credit being allowed for the time spent on the relinquished claims.

By a subsequent act, approved June 6, 1900 (31 Stat. 614), it is declared—

> That all selections of land made in lieu of a tract covered by an unperfected bona fide claim, or by a patent, included within a public forest reservation, as provided in the act of June fourth, eighteen hundred and ninety-seven * * * shall be confined to vacant surveyed and nonmineral public lands which are subject to homestead entry not exceeding in area the tract covered by such claim or patent: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect the rights of those who, previous to October first, nineteen hundred, shall have delivered to the United States deeds for lands within forest reservations and make application for specific tracts of lands in lieu thereof.

This provision was reenacted March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. 1037).

GENERALLY

1. Relinquishments under the above acts may include any tract within the limits of a forest reserve covered by an unperfected bona fide claim under any of the general land laws of the United States, or to which the full legal title has passed out of the Government and beyond the control of the Land Department by a patent or by that which is the full legal equivalent of a patent.

2. Mineral lands, whether covered by patent or not, can not be relinquished as bases for lieu selections under said acts.

3. Relinquishments made in pursuance of said acts must be executed, acknowledged, and recorded in the same manner as conveyances of real property are required to be executed, acknowledged, and recorded by the laws of the State or Territory in which the lands are situated.

4. Selections after October 1, 1900, are authorized to be made only of vacant, surveyed, nonmineral lands which are subject to homestead entry.

[3] See circulars of May 16, 1905, p. 495, and Dec. 30, 1922 (No. 869), p. 497.

5. Selections filed prior to October 1, 1900, may embrace unsurveyed lands, but must, within 30 days from notice by the local officers of the filing in their office of the township plat of survey, be made to conform to such survey.

6. Selections of unsurveyed lands will not be passed to patent until after four months following the filing of said plat in the local office. This is to enable any person claiming an adverse right therein to regularly assert the same.

7. The land relinquished and the land selected must be, as near as practicable, equal in area.

8. In a selection made prior to the receipt by the local officers of the instructions of this office dated January 16, 1900, for less land than that relinquished, 90 days from notice is allowed the selector in which to make additional selection in full satisfaction of such relinquishment, or waive his right to do so, and in default thereof the relinquishment and the partial selection will be rejected. This is not a new rule, but rather a restatement of the existing practice.

9. The rule of approximation permitted in entries under the homestead and other public land laws may properly be applied to selections under the acts aforesaid. (See 31 L. D. 225.)

10. Should a selection be presented, based upon a relinquishment or reconveyance to the United States of lands which are not at the date of the filing of such selection within the limits of a forest reserve, the selection will be rejected, unless it appears that such lands were within the limits of such a reserve at the date of the recording on the proper records of such relinquishment or reconveyance.

11. Selections should be filed in the proper land office within a reasonable time after the relinquishment or reconveyance has been recorded in the manner indicated.

12. In all cases where the showing required in these instructions, both as to the title or claim to the land relinquished and as to the character and condition of the land selected, is not made by the selector at the time of filing the selection, you will reject the selection and give due notice thereof to the parties interested, in which notice the reasons for your action must be stated. Appeal from such action may be taken under the rules as in other cases. At the expiration of the time allowed for appeal, you will forward the record with your report thereon.

13. If protest or objection shall be at any time filed against the selection, you will forward the same to this office for consideration in connection with the selection.

LAND COVERED BY PATENT OR PATENT CERTIFICATE

14. Where the legal title to the relinquished land has passed out of the United States, there must be filed with each relinquishment a duly authenticated abstract of title showing that at the time the relinquishment was filed for record the legal title was in the party making the relinquishment and that the land was free from liability for taxes, pending suits, judgment liens, and from other encumbrance.

15. Where the legal title to the relinquished land has not passed out of the United States, but patent certificate therefor has issued and is outstanding, there must be filed with each relinquishment a duly authenticated abstract of title showing that at the time the relinquishment was filed for record the full equitable title was in the party making the relinquishment and that the land was free from liability for taxes, pending suits, judgment liens, and from other encumbrance.

16. A relinquishment by an individual of land the legal title to which has passed out of the United States, or for which patent certificate is outstanding, must show whether the person relinquishing is married or single; and if married, the wife or husband of such person, as the case may be, must join in the execution of the relinquishment in such manner as to effectually bar any right or estate of dower, curtesy, or homestead, or any other claim whatsoever to the land relinquished, or it must be fully shown that under the laws of the State or Territory in which the relinquished land is situated such wife or husband has no interest whatever, present or prospective, which makes her or his joinder in the relinquishment necessary.

17. Selections in lieu of lands covered by patent or patent certificate may embrace contiguous or noncontiguous tracts in the same land district.

18. All papers and proofs necessary to complete a selection must be filed at one and the same time, and until they are all presented, no right will vest under the selection.

19. A selection based upon land covered by a patent or by a patent certificate must be made by the owner of the land relinquished or by a duly authorized agent or attorney in fact; and when made by an agent or attorney in fact, proof of authority must be furnished.

20. No fees or commissions are required to be paid in any selection made in lieu of land covered by a patent or by a patent certificate.

21. The affidavit to support a selection based upon the relinquishment of land covered by a patent or by a patent certificate must be made by the selector, or by some credible person possessed of the requisite personal knowledge in the premises, and must be filed with and as a part of the selection. This affidavit must show that the selected land is nonmineral in character; that it contains no salt springs or deposits of salt in any form, sufficient to render it chiefly valuable therefor; and that it is not in any manner occupied adversely to the selector. (Form 4–061*a*.)

22. In making selections in lieu of relinquished lands covered by patent or patent certificate, Form 4–643, or its equivalent, should be used; and in every such selection the selector must show, to the satisfaction of the local officers, by affidavit or otherwise, in addition to the other proofs required, that the relinquished land does not constitute the basis for any other selection made by him, and also whether or not the selected land is situated within 6 miles of a mining claim.

23. Where the selection is within 6 miles of a mining claim or within a mineral township you will require the selector, within 20 days from the filing of his selection, to begin publication of notice thereof at his own expense in a newspaper to be designated by the register as of general circulation in the vicinity of the land and published nearest thereto. Such publication must cover a period of 30 days, during which time a similar notice of the selection must be posted in the local land office and upon each and every noncontiguous tract included in the selection.[g]

24. The notice should describe the land selected and give the date of selection, and state that the purpose thereof is to allow all persons claiming the selected land under the mining laws, or desiring to show it to be mineral in character, an opportunity to file objection to such selection with the local officers for the land district in which the land is situate and to establish their interest therein or the mineral character thereof.

25. Proof of publication shall consist of an affidavit of the publisher, or of the foreman or other proper employee, of the newspaper in which the notice was published, with a copy of the published notice attached. Proof of posting upon the land, and that such notice remained posted during the entire period required, shall be made by the selector or some credible person having personal knowledge of the fact. The register shall certify to posting in his office. The first and last dates of such publication and posting shall, in all cases, be given.

26. Where, at the time of the filing of a selection in lieu of relinquished land covered by a patent or by a patent certificate, the showing required by these instructions is fully made by the selector, the selection will be received by the register and receiver and proper notation thereof made upon their records. If publication of notice of the selection, as provided in paragraphs 23, 24, and 25 of these instructions, is not necessary, the selection, when so received and noted of record, will be forthwith forwarded to the Commissioner of the General Land Office for his action thereon. If publication shall be necessary under said paragraphs 23, 24, and 25, the selection will, after such publication is completed, be promptly forwarded to the Commissioner of the General Land Office for his action. The action of the register and receiver in receiving a selection and making notation of the same upon their records will not in itself operate to confer any right upon the selector, such as to prevent the subsequent rejection of the selection, where it is found that the selection as made was defective in any essential particular and for that reason should have been rejected.

UNPERFECTED BONA FIDE CLAIMS NOT COVERED BY PATENT CERTIFICATE

27. Where the land relinquished is covered by an unperfected bona fide claim, for which no certificate for patent is outstanding, there must be filed with the selection a certificate by the recorder of deeds or official custodian of the records of transfers of real estate in the proper county that no instrument purporting to convey or in any way encumber the title to the land, or any part thereof, is on file or of record in his office; or if any such instrument or instruments be on file or of record therein, the certificate must show the facts.

28. A selection in lieu of an unperfected claim not covered by patent certificate must in all respects conform to the law under which such unperfected claim is held, and will be subject to the payment of such fees and commissions as would be required under the statute to complete the unperfected claim in lieu of which the selection is made.

29. If the land relinquished is covered by an unperfected claim, such as a homestead or desert entry, to which certificate for patent has not issued, and the law under which the claim was initiated requires that land taken thereunder must be in one body, the same requirement must be observed in making the lieu selection.

30. A selection of land in lieu of an unperfected claim held under the settlement laws, if credit for residence on the unperfected claim be desired, must, in addition to other proofs, be accompanied by the affidavit of the selector, corroborated by two witnesses, showing when residence was established on the unperfected claim and the duration of such residence. In such a case, unless the selector has resided upon, cultivated, and improved the relinquished unperfected claim for the full period required by law to earn a patent thereto, he must establish and maintain a residence on the land selected, and cultivate and improve the same for the full period required by law to earn a patent, less the time spent upon the relinquished unperfected claim.

31. If the relinquished unperfected claim be not one held under the settlement laws, the affidavit as to residence required by the preceding paragraph need not be furnished; but in either case the selector must make affidavit that he has not sold, assigned, mortgaged, or contracted to sell the land covered by the relinquished unperfected claim.

32. In case a settler on an unsurveyed tract within a forest reserve desires to make a change of settlement to land outside of the reserve and receive credit for previous residence on the relinquished claim, he must file his selection in the same manner as provided with respect to selections in lieu of other unperfected claims, accompanied by the affidavit as to residence required in such cases, and should describe his unsurveyed claim with sufficient accuracy to enable the local land officers to approximately determine its location.

33. In making selections in lieu of relinquished unperfected bona fide claims, not covered by patent certificate, Form 4–634, or its equivalent, should be used; and every such selection must also be supported by affidavit the same as required by paragraph 21 of these instructions (Form 4–061*a*). In such selection special notice of the selection by publication or otherwise will not be required.

34. Selections in lieu of relinquished unperfected bona fide claims not covered by patent certificate, where the essential requisites shall have been fully complied with by selectors at the time of filing their selections, will be received and noted of record in the same manner and upon the same conditions as provided in paragraph 26 of these instructions, and will be forthwith forwarded to the Commissioner of the General Land Office for his action thereon.

35. A strict observance of these instructions will be required.

All previous circulars or instructions in conflict herewith are hereby revoked.

Very respectfully,

BINGER HERMANN,
Commissioner.

INSTRUCTIONS UNDER ACT MARCH 3, 1905, REPEALING ACT OF JUNE 4, 1897, AND ACTS AMENDATORY THEREOF, ALLOWING SELECTIONS IN LIEU OF LANDS SITUATED IN FOREST RESERVES, AND DEFINING THE SCOPE OF THE PROVISIONS RELATING TO CONTRACTS ENTERED INTO BETWEEN THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR, ETC., WITH DIRECTIONS THEREUNDER

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., May 16, 1905.[4]

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: The text of the act of Congress approved March 3, 1905, entitled "An Act prohibiting the selection of timber lands in lieu of lands in forest reserves" (33 Stat. 1264), is as follows:

> Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Acts of June fourth, eighteen hundred and ninety-seven, June sixth, nineteen hundred, and March third, nineteen hundred and one, are hereby repealed so far as they provide for the relinquishment, selection, and patenting of lands in lieu of tracts covered by an unperfected bona fide claim or patent within a forest reserve, but the validity of contracts entered into by the Secretary of the Interior prior to the passage of this Act shall not be impaired: Provided, That selections heretofore made in lieu of lands relinquished to the United States may be perfected and patents issue therefor the same as though this Act had not been passed, and if for any reason not the fault of the party making the same any pending selection is held invalid another selection for a like quantity of land may be made in lieu thereof.

From and after the date of the approval of said act there was no authority of law for the acceptance of relinquishments of lands within forest reserves, and the selection of other lands in lieu thereof under the acts of June 4, 1897 (30 Stat. 36), June 6, 1900 (31 Stat. 614), and March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. 1037), and no such selections should have been, or will hereafter be allowed, except as hereinafter specified.

In providing that "the validity of contracts entered into by the Secretary of the Interior prior to the passage of this act shall not be impaired" Congress referred to, recognized, and authorized the consummation of certain agreements entered into between the Secretary of the Interior and the owners of certain odd-numbered sections of land in the San Francisco Mountains and Grand Canyon Forest Reserves in Arizona, and the owners of certain lands, not therefore reserved but included by the President's proclamation of December 22, 1903, within the Santa Barbara Forest Reserve in California. Under this provision selections are still authorized to be made in satisfaction of tracts relinquished, or to be relinquished, as follows: First, of odd-numbered sections within the San Francisco Mountains Forest Reserve, Ariz., relinquished or to be relinquished to the United States, either by the Santa Fe Pacific Railroad Co., the Aztec Land & Cattle Co., the Saginaw & Manistee Lumber Co., William F. Baker, or Edward B. Perrin; second, of odd-numbered sections within the Grand Canyon Forest Reserve, Ariz., relinquished or to be relinquished to the United States by the Santa Fe Pacific Railroad Co., and third, lands of both even and odd numbered sections within the Santa Barbara Forest Reserve, Calif., as defined by the President's proclamation of December 22, 1903, but which were not included within the former Pine Mountain and Zaca Lake Forest Reserve nor within the former Santa Ynez Forest Reserve, and relinquished or to be relinquished to the United States by either the Santa Barbara Water Co. or Jed L. Washburn. Upon the presentation of such relinquishments, with applications to select lands in lieu thereof, in accordance with instructions of July 7, 1902 (31 L. D. 372), you will accept same if otherwise unobjectionable.

[4] See Circular No. 869, p. 497.

Under the proviso to the act all selections under the acts of June 4, 1897, and June 6, 1900, supra, made prior to and pending for adjudication on March 3, 1905, may be perfected and patented as though the said act of March 3, 1905, had not been passed; and if in the adjudication of any selection then pending same should be held invalid for any reason not the fault of the party making same, it is provided that another selection for a like quantity of land may be made in lieu thereof. Should application be presented under this provision of law you will be careful to see that same is in strict compliance with the instructions of July 7, 1902 (31 L. D. 372), except that instead of the showing specified in section 22 of such instructions the selector will be required to file his affidavit setting out the facts as to the prior selection in lieu of the relinquished tract, including the date when and place where such selection was made, the description of the land selected, the General Land Office number of such selection, and the date when finally rejected and canceled, so that it may clearly appear therefrom that the original selection was pending and not finally adjudicated on March 3, 1905.

The repealing act makes no provision for cases where lands within forest reserves may have been reconveyed to the United States, but no selections made in lieu thereof, or where such selections, if made, were finally rejected and canceled prior to March 3, 1905. Except as to the exceptional cases first above specified there is now no provision of law authorizing selections in lieu of such relinquished tracts.

Very respectfully,

W. A. RICHARDS, Commissioner.

FOREST LIEU SELECTIONS—CERTAIN RIGHTS REVIVED

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, December 30, 1922.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: 1. Your attention is invited to the act of Congress, approved September 22, 1922 (42 Stats. 1017), entitled "An act for the relief of certain persons, their heirs or assigns, who heretofore relinquished lands inside national forests to the United States," which provides as follows:

> That where any person or persons in good faith relinquished to the United States lands in a national forest as a basis for a lieu selection under the Act of June 4, 1897 (Thirtieth Statutes at Large, pages 11, 36), and failed to get their lieu selections of record prior to the passage of the Act of March 3, 1905 (Thirty-third Statutes at Large, page 1264), or whose lieu selections, though duly filed, are finally rejected, the Secretary of the Interior, with the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture, upon application of such person or persons, their heirs or assigns, is authorized to accept title to such of the base lands as are desirable for national-forest purposes, which lands shall thereupon become parts of the nearest national forest, and, in exchange therefor, may issue patent for not to exceed an equal value of national-forest land, unoccupied, surveyed, and non-mineral in character, or the Secretary of Agriculture may authorize the grantor to cut and remove an equal value of timber within the national forests of the same State. Where an exchange can not be agreed upon the Commissioner of the General Land Office is hereby authorized to relinquish and quitclaim to such person or persons, their heirs or assigns, all title to such lands which the respective relinquishments of such person or persons may have vested in the United States: Provided, That such person or persons, their heirs or assigns, shall within five years after the date of this Act, make satisfactory proof of the relinquishment of such lands to the United States by submitting to the Commissioner of the General Land Office an abstract of title to such lands showing relinquishment of the same to the United States, which abstract or abstracts shall be retained in the files of the General Land Office.
> SEC. 2. That if it shall appear that any of the lands relinquished to the United States for the purpose stated in the preceding section have been disposed of or appropriated to a public use, other than the general purposes for which the forest reserve within the bounds of which they are situate was created, such lands shall not be relinquished and quit-claimed as provided therein, unless the head of the department having jurisdiction over the lands shall consent to such relinquishment; and if he shall fail to so consent, or if any of the lands so relinquished have been otherwise disposed of by the United States, other surveyed, non-mineral, unoccupied, unreserved public lands of approximately equal area and value may be selected and patented in lieu of the lands so appropriated or disposed of in the manner and subject to the terms and conditions prescribed by said Act of June 4, 1897, and the regulations issued thereunder: Provided, That applications to make such lieu selections must be filed in the General Land Office within three years after the date of this Act.

2. Initial application to forest officers.—All preliminary negotiations relating to an exchange under section 1 of the act are to be conducted with the local representatives of the Forest Service. Any person or persons who in good faith relinquished to the United States lands in a national forest as a basis for a lieu selection under the act of June 4, 1897 (30 Stat. 36), and failed to get their lieu selections of record prior to the passage of the repealing act of March 3, 1905 (33 Stat. 1264), or whose selections, though duly filed, are finally rejected, or the heirs or assigns of such person or persons, and who desires to take advantage of the privileges conferred by section 1 of said act, must file with the local national-forest officers an informal application describing by Government subdivisions the land thus relinquished to the United States as well as the land desired to be selected. If timber is desired in exchange the land on which the timber is located must be described. The relinquishment of less than a legal subdivision will not be accepted, nor the selection of less than a legal subdivision approved. The selected land or timber must be entirely within national-forest boundaries, and where timber is applied for the land on which it is located must be in the same State as is the relinquished land.

The applicant must also show by affidavit, or other evidence satisfactory to the Forest Service, that, prior to March 3, 1905, he duly relinquished to the United States lands in a national forest as a basis for lieu selection under said act of June 4, 1897, and that he failed to get his lieu selection of record prior to the passage of said act of March 3, 1905, or that his selection, though duly filed, was finally rejected.

3. Approval of the exchange.—When a tentative agreement has been reached between the applicant and the local national-forest officer, the matter will be submitted to the district forester, and if approved by him will be forwarded to the Forester, Washington, D. C., for consideration.

If the Forester finds that the base lands are desirable for national-forest purposes; that the value of the base lands relinquished, and the selected lands, is equal; and that the lands selected are unoccupied, surveyed, and nonmineral in character, or the timber selected is equal in value to that land relinquished; that the selected land or timber is entirely within national-forest boundaries, and the lands on which the timber is located are in the same State as the relinquished lands, he will so report to the Secretary of Agriculture and will request that the Secretary of the Interior be advised that the acceptance of the title to the base lands offered under the act and the granting in lieu thereof of other described lands, or of stumpage upon other described lands, meets with the approval of the Department of Agriculture.

The Secretary of the Interior, upon receipt of such a letter from the Secretary of Agriculture, unless he has reasons to do otherwise, will approve the exchange, subject to the submission of acceptable title to the base land, and to full compliance by the applicant with these regulations, and subject to any protests or other valid objections which may appear, and will so advise the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

4. Formal application to district land officers.—The General Land Office will notify the district land officers of the district in which the land or timber to be selected is located, of the approval of the exchange, and such district land officers will in turn notify the person desiring to make such exchange of the approval thereof, and that he is allowed 60 days from receipt of notice within which to file his formal application specifically describing the land selected, or the land on which timber selected is located, and the land to be relinquished. The application must be accompanied by the necessary affidavits, relinquishments or reconveyances, abstract of title, and fees.

No fixed forms of application for selection under this act and accompanying affidavits as to the relinquished and selected lands have been prepared, but these instructions should be followed as nearly as possible.

The proof papers necessary to complete a selection should be filed at the same time. However, if additional time is necessary to complete the abstract, the same will be granted upon a proper showing filed with the application to select.

5. Affidavits required.—The applicant will be required to show by affidavit that he is 21 years of age, and otherwise legally capable of carrying through the transaction; that he is the owner of the land relinquished, and that said land is not the basis of another selection or exchange. He must also furnish his own affidavit or the affidavit of some credible person possessed of the requisite personal knowledge, showing that the land selected is nonmineral in character; that it contains no salt springs or deposits of salt in any form sufficient to render it chiefly valuable therefor; that it is not in any manner occupied or claimed adversely to the selector.

These affidavits may be executed before any officer qualified to administer oaths.

6. Relinquishment or reconveyance.—The original deed of relinquishment or reconveyance of the land tendered as a basis of exchange must have been executed and acknowledged in the same manner as a conveyance of real property is required to be executed and acknowledged by the laws of the State in which the land is situated. The original deed, duly recorded, should be tendered or a certified copy of the deed, as recorded on the county records.

Where the relinquishment or reconveyance is made by an individual it must show whether the person relinquishing is married or single, and if married, the wife or husband of such person, as the case may be, should have joined in the execution of the relinquishment or reconveyance in such a manner as to effectually bar any right of courtesy or dower, or any claim whatsoever to the land relinquished, or it must be fully shown that under the laws of the State in which the relinquished land is situated such wife or husband has no interest whatsoever, present or prospective, which makes her or his joining in the relinquishment or reconveyance necessary.

Where the relinquishment or reconveyance is by a corporation, it should be recited in the instrument of transfer that it was executed pursuant to an order or by the direction of the board of directors or other governing body, a copy of which order or direction should accompany such instrument of transfer and should bear the impression of the corporate seal.

7. Abstract of title.—Each relinquishment or reconveyance must be accompanied by a duly authenticated abstract of title, showing relinquishment of the base lands to the United States; that at the time the reconveyance was recorded the title was in the party making the conveyance; that at the present time title is in the United States, and that the land is free from conflicting record claims, tax liabilities, judgment or mortgage liens, pending suits, or other encumbrances.

The certificate of authentication of the abstract must be signed by the recorder of deeds or other proper official, under his official seal, and must show that the title memoranda is a full, true, and complete abstract of all matters of record or on file in his office, including all conveyances, mortgages or other encumbrances, judgments against the various grantors, mechanics' liens, lis pendens, or other instruments which are required by law to be filed with the recording officers, affecting in any manner whatsoever the title to the described land. The authenticity of the tax records must be certified by the officers having custody thereof showing that all taxes levied or assessed against the land, or that could operate thereon as a lien, have been fully paid, or whether there is a tax lien although such tax is not assessed, due or payable, that there are no unredeemed tax sales and no tax deeds outstanding as shown by the records of his office. The absence of judgment liens or pending suits against the various grantors which might affect the title of the land relinquished or reconveyed must be shown by the official certificate of the clerks of the courts of record, whose judgments, under the laws of the United States or the State in which the land is situated, would be a lien on the land reconveyed or relinquished. If it is preferred the abstract may be authenticated by an abstractor or by an abstract company, approved by the General Land Office, in accordance with section 42 of the Mining Regulations of August 6, 1915[h] (44 L. D. 297), or Circular No. 726 of October 13, 1920.

8. Applications for timber.—If timber is desired in exchange for the land conveyed to the United States, proof that notice has been published and posted will be all the evidence necessary to be filed in regard to the timber, but all the proof required in connection with the land offered as a basis for the exchange must be filed.

9.[6] Fees.—Fees must be paid by the applicant at the time of filing his application in the local land office at the rate of $1 each to the register and receiver for each 160 acres or fraction thereof included in his application.

10. Publication and posting.—Within 30 days from the filing of his application to select land or timber the applicant will begin publication of notice thereof, at his own expense, in a newspaper or newspapers having general circulation in the county or counties in which the land or timber selected is situated, the newspapers to be designated by the register. Such notice must be published once each week for four successive weeks during which time a similar notice of the application must be posted in the local land office and upon each and every noncontiguous tract included in the application. The notice should describe the land or timber applied for as well as the land to be given in exchange and give the date of filing the application and state the purpose thereof is to allow all persons claiming the land selected or having bona fide objections to such application an opportunity to file their protests with the local officers of the land district in which the land selected is situated.

Proof of publication shall consist of an affidavit of the publisher or of the foreman or other proper employee of the newspaper in which the notice was published, with a copy of the published notice attached. Proof of posting upon the land and that such notices remained posted during the entire period required must be made by the applicant or some credible person having personal knowledge of the facts. The register shall certify to the posting in his office. The dates of such publication and posting must, in all cases, be given.

11. Action by district land office.—All applications sufficient in form, accompanied by the required proof and fees, will be accepted, and you will note on your records against the land "Selected under the act of September 22, 1922 (42 Stat. 1017), by ______ (date) ______ serial No. ______ pending." Such application will be given a serial number and have the hour and date of filing stamped thereon.

The register will certify the condition of the record on the application, and you will promptly transmit the original application and accompanying papers to this office by special letter as soon as evidence of publication and posting is furnished.

12. Action by the General Land Office.—The application and accompanying proof will, upon receipt by the General Land Office, be examined at as early a date as practicable and, if found defective, opportunity will be given the parties in interest to cure the defects, if possible. If the selection appears regular and in conformity with the law and these regulations, the selection will, in the absence of objections, if for land only, be formally approved for patent by letter to the district land office, a copy of such letter to be furnished the Forest Service, but if timber is taken in exchange the Secretary of Agriculture will, upon advice of the Secretary of the Interior that the regulations have been fully complied with, issue proper permit or certificate for timber.

13. Relinquishment by the General Land Office.—Where the applicant and the forest officers can not agree upon an exchange in accordance with section 1 of said act of September 22, 1922, and where the lands relinquished have not been disposed of by the United States or appropriated to a public use other than the general purposes for which the forest reserve within the bounds of which they are situated was created, upon due proof of that fact, to consist of the letters of the forest officers and the affidavit of the applicant, accompanied by the required abstract of title showing relinquishment of the lands to the United States, under the said act of June 4, 1897, the Commissioner of the General Land Office will, in proper cases, relinquish and quitclaim to the person or persons, who thus relinquished to the United States, their heirs or assigns, all title to such lands which the respective relinquishments of such person or persons may have vested in the United States. A copy of such relinquishment and quitclaim and the abstract of title will be filed in the General Land Office.

Applications for such relinquishments or quitclaims may be filed in the district land office, for transmission by special letter, or the applications may be filed direct in the General Land Office. Such applications will not be given a serial number.

14. Rights of reselection granted in certain cases.—Where it appears that an exchange can not be agreed upon, and that the lands relinquished to the United States under said act of June 4, 1897, have been disposed of by the United States or appropriated to a public use, other than the general purposes for which the forest reserve within the bounds of which they are situated was created, such lands will not be relinquished and quitclaimed unless the head of the department having jurisdiction over the lands shall consent thereto.

If such head of department shall fail so to consent, or if any of the lands so relinquished have been otherwise disposed of by the United States, the person or persons so relinquishing, their heirs or assigns, may select other surveyed, nonmineral, unoccupied, unreserved public lands of approximately equal area and value, and the same shall be patented in lieu of the lands so appropriated or disposed of, in the manner and subject to the terms and conditions prescribed by said act of June 4, 1897, and the regulations issued thereunder. The principal circular giving instructions under this act is that of July 7, 1902 (31 L. D. 372), but this was modified by a large number of subsequent circulars and decisions. Publication is required by the circular of February 21, 1908 (36 L. D. 278).[1]

After the right of selection under section 2 of the act of September 22, 1922, has been granted, a compliance with the regulations of this circular, found in paragraphs Nos. 4, 5, 6, 7, and 10 will probably be sufficient. Before the application can be approved, a field examination will be necessary to determine if the values are approximately equal.

15. Statute of limitations.—Applicants desiring to make lieu selections under section 1 of said act, or desiring a relinquishment or quitclaim where an exchange can not be agreed upon, are, under the proviso to said section 1 allowed five years from and after the date of the act within which to make satisfactory proof of the relinquishment of their lands to the United States under said act of June 4, 1897, by submitting to the Commissioner of the General Land Office an abstract of title showing relinquishment of the same to the United States.

Applications to make lieu selections under section 2 of the act must be filed in the General Land Office within three years after the date of the act.

16. Lands to become part of national forest.—Where title to lands is accepted under section 1 of the act, the lands relinquished shall thereupon become a part of the nearest national forest.

17. Right reserved to reject any and all applications.—Applications to select either land or timber under the provisions of the act will not defeat the right of the United States to withdraw or reserve the land for such purposes or uses as may be proper prior to the filing in the district land office of an application complete in all particulars.

18. Practice and procedure.—Notice of additional or further requirements, rejections, or other adverse actions of registers and receivers, the commissioner or the Secretary will be given and the right of appeal or rehearing recognized in the manner now prescribed by the Rules of Practice, except as otherwise herein provided. A protest or other objection against the selection or the application to select must be filed in the district land office to be forwarded to the General Land Office for consideration and disposal. Application to enter filed subsequent to any conflicting application to select will be rejected except where the subsequent application to enter is supported by allegations of prior right, in which event it will be transmitted to the General Land Office with appropriate recommendation. Applications presented under these regulations not in substantial conformity with the requirements herein made or not accompanied by the prescribed proof and fees, or where land offered as basis of exchange or the land selected is not situated within the boundaries prescribed by the act will be rejected, subject to appeal or curing of the defect where possible.

Very respectfully,

WILLIAM SPRY, Commissioner.

CIRCULAR NO. 978

SELECTIONS UNDER THE ACT OF JANUARY 6, 1925

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., February 11, 1925.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices in Montana.

SIRS: The act (43 Stat. 722), approved January 6, 1925, and entitled " An act to extend relief to the claimants in township 16 north, ranges 32 and 33 east, Montana meridian, Montana," provides:

> That if by reason of the adjustment to the plat of resurvey of entries in Township 16 North of Ranges 32 and 33 East of the Montana Principal Meridian, Montana, entrymen or their assigns have heretofore acquired or may hereafter acquire patents to a less area than such entries when made were believed to contain, the Secretary of the Interior may, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, cause patents to issue to such entrymen or their assigns for such area of surveyed, unreserved, unappropriated, nonmineral public land in the State of Montana, not containing merchantable timber, as when added to the area to which the entries were adjusted will equal the area the entries were supposed to contain when made; Provided, that applications for such additional area shall be filed within six months from the date of the issuance of patent or within six months from the passage hereof if patent has already issued; Provided further, That patents for such additional area shall issue without further final proof and without payment of fees or commissions.

2. Within the townships named in the act are found entrymen occupying lands other than are described in their entries. Examination upon the ground made by a cadastral engineer employed by the General Land Office has developed that there are within these townships certain entries which are irrelated to the survey or which are actually in conflict with each other upon the ground. Following this examination it has been found necessary to make certain adjustments or amendments of these entries, and the act above quoted was intended to relieve those persons who lost a part of the area which they believed they were securing when they made their entries, by granting to them an amount of land equal to the area thus lost because of the adjustments.

3. Under the terms of the act, the indemnity may be selected anywhere in the State of Montana. It must be surveyed, unreserved, unappropriated, nonmineral public land, not containing merchantable timber.

4. A 40-acre tract which contains an excess of 25,000 feet of saw timber or its equivalent in poles, posts, or cordwood may not be selected under the act.

5. Selections of land in the townships named in the act may be made for less than a legal subdivision, if desired; otherwise must be for not less than a legal subdivision. If the subdivision selected contains a greater area than that to which the applicant is entitled, the difference must be paid for at the rate of $1.25 per acre.

6. The benefits of the act are limited to the persons in possession or vested with title to the adjusted entry at the time application is made hereunder.

7. If patent under the adjusted entry has been issued, application hereunder must be filed by the patentee or the transferee within six months from and after January 6, 1925. In other cases applications must be filed within six months from the issuance of patent under the adjusted entry. If persons entitled to the benefits of the act are unable to file an application for a specific tract of land within the time allowed by the act, and an affidavit to that effect is filed, the time within which to file a proper or supplemental application may be enlarged to the extent of not to exceed six months.

8. If an application hereunder is made by the entryman of a perfected but still unpatented entry, it must be supported by a certificate of the county recorder to the effect that the land in the entry is not shown by his records to have been transferred.

9. Applications made by a patentee, by the transferee of a patentee, or by the transferee of a perfected but unpatented entry, must be accompanied by an abstract of title showing ownership in the applicant.

10. Where an entry within the townships named in the act has been patented for an area which conflicts on the ground with another entry or entries, and it is found essential to an equitable adjustment that such patented entry be amended to cover an area less than that described in the patent, the patentee or his assignee may apply for amendment of the entry and patent, and may, if he so desires, at the same time apply for a patent under the act for indemnity lands in the amount equal to the loss which the patented entry will sustain.

11. If applications are presented by the assignee of a patented entry, it must appear that the applicant has not been compensated by his grantor for the loss of area, and that he purchased the patented land on the basis of the area named in the patent.

12. No printed forms of application will be furnished. The application should make the showing prescribed by the foregoing paragraphs, but an extension of time to furnish an abstract of title, in cases where such abstract is required, will be granted on request.

13. Upon the filing of an application, you will assign a serial number thereto, and forward it by special letter, with report as to the status of the selected tract. No fee or commissions will be collected in connection with the application.

14. Publication must be made in a newspaper for a period of four successive weeks if published weekly, or for 30 successive days if published daily and notice must also be posted in your office for a like period.[k] You will follow the rules laid down for publication in homestead and other agricultural cases in determining which newspaper is to carry the notice. The notice may merely recite that the applicant, (naming him), has applied for a certain tract of land under the act here in question and that the notice is given for the purpose of enabling any one with adverse interests to enter protest. A date on which protest may be offered must be named in the notice.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

Approved February 11, 1925.

First Assistant Secretary.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE TO LANDS TENDERED AS BASE FOR LIEU SELECTIONS

INSTRUCTIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, February 13, 1925.

FINNEY, First Assistant Secretary:

The department has considered your [Commissioner of the General Land Office] letter of the 8th instant requesting instructions as to whether the unreported departmental decision of July 12, 1923, involving three selections (Cheyenne 033257, 033259, 033260) under the exchange provisions of the act of June 4, 1897 (30 Stat. 11, 36), should be considered as overruling several reported decisions. You state that for more than 20 years last past it has been the practice of your office to require applicants for lieu selections under the acts of June 4, 1897, supra, June 6, 1900 (31 Stat. 588, 614), and March 3, 1905 (33 Stat. 1264), to bring their abstracts of title to the lands tendered as base up to the date of their selections, except where the base lands are situated in the State of Arizona, the theory being—> that the recording of a deed purporting to convey lands to the United States and tender thereof to this department constitute a mere assertion by the applicant of his title to the land and his right to make selection, and that no equitable right to the land vests in the United States until the title has been examined, approved, and accepted.

In support of the theory on which your office has proceeded you cite a paragraph from the case of C. W. Clarke (32 L. D. 233), wherein it was stated that it is a necessary deduction from the decision of the Supreme Court in Cosmos Exploration Company v. Gray Eagle Oil Company (190 U. S. 301), that all equitable right of property in the land relinquished remains in the proponent until the title is examined, approved, and accepted.

The reported decisions referred to by you are the cases of C. W. Clarke, supra, Thomas F. Arundell (33 L. D. 76), Mary E. Coffin (34 L. D. 564), and A. G. Strain (40 L. D. 108).

The decision of July 12, 1923, was rendered on a petition for the exercise of supervisory authority filed by the selector after your office had required him to furnish a supplemental abstract of title of the base land in each case. The three selections were filed January 2, 1923. The base land was deeded to the United States more than 20 years prior to the date of the selections, and the abstracts of title were brought down to May 20, 1922, October 21, 1922, and October 23, 1922, respectively, approximately the date of the selections. It was because thereof that the department vacated your requirement, holding—

> The base lands having been conveyed to the United States on the dates named, no subsequent act of the prior holder of the title or of any other person could invalidate the title thus acquired. * * *

It is apparent that the decision of July 12, 1923, did not overrule any prior decision, reported or unreported, but merely relieved the selector from a useless expense and unnecessary delay.

The act of June 4, 1897, supra, was repealed by the act of March 3, 1905 (33 Stat. 1264). Prior to the approval of the latter act, large areas within forest reserves had been relinquished to the United States, with the intention of taking advantage of the exchange provisions of the act of 1897. Many selections based on such reconveyances were pending, and the repeal act of 1905 provided—

> That selections heretofore made in lieu of lands relinquished to the United States may be perfected and patents issue therefor the same as though this act had not been passed, and if for any reason not the fault of the party making the same any pending selection is held invalid another selection for a like quantity of land may be made in lieu thereof.

The act of September 22, 1922 (42 Stat. 1017), provides—

> That where any person or persons in good faith relinquished to the United States lands in a national forest as a basis for a lieu selection under the Act of June 4, 1897 (Thirtieth Statutes at Large, pages 11, 36), and failed to get their lieu selections of record prior to the passage of the Act of March 3, 1905 (Thirty-third Statutes at Large, page 1264), or whose lieu selections, though duly filed, are finally rejected, the Secretary of the Interior, with the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture, upon application of such person or persons, their heirs or assigns, is authorized to accept title to such of the base lands as are desirable for national-forest purposes, which lands shall thereupon become parts of the nearest national forest, and, in exchange therefor, may issue patent for not to exceed an equal value of national-forest land, unoccupied, surveyed, and nonmineral in character, or the Secretary of Agriculture may authorize the grantor to cut and remove an equal value of timber within the national forests of the same State. Where an exchange can not be agreed upon the Commissioner of the General Land Office is hereby authorized to relinquish and quitclaim to such person or persons, their heirs or assigns, all title to such lands which the respective relinquishments of such person or persons may have vested in the United States: Provided, That such person or persons, their heirs or assigns, shall, within five years after the date of this Act, make satisfactory proof of the relinquishment of such lands to the United States by submitting to the Commissioner of the General Land Office an abstract of title to such lands showing relinquishment of the same to the United States, which abstract or abstracts shall be retained in the files of the General Land Office.
> SEC. 2. That if it shall appear that any of the lands relinquished to the United States for the purpose stated in the preceding section have been disposed of or appropriated to a public use, other than the general purposes for which the forest reserve within the bounds of which they are situate was created, such lands shall not be relinquished and quitclaimed as provided therein, unless the head of the department having jurisdiction over the lands shall consent to such relinquishment; and if he shall fail to so consent, or if any of the lands so relinquished have been otherwise disposed of by the United States, other surveyed, nonmineral, unoccupied, unreserved public lands of approximately equal area and value may be selected and patented in lieu of the lands so appropriated or disposed of in the manner and subject to the terms and conditions prescribed by said Act of June 4, 1897, and the regulations issued thereunder: Provided, That applications to make such lieu selections must be filed in the General Land Office within three years after the date of this Act.

The act last above quoted is clearly based on the theory that the deeds of reconveyance recorded prior to March 3, 1905, vested title in the United States, even though a selection based thereon had not been filed. However, it is now well established—notwithstanding some prior decisions of the department to the contrary—that upon the approval of selections the title of the base land relates back to the date the deed of conveyance to the United States was recorded. This was the purport of the decision of the Supreme Court of the State of Oregon in a suit to vacate various conveyances of school land made by officers of the State.

In view of the foregoing, unless it appears that your office has at some prior date formally disclaimed title to the land tendered as base, it is unnecessary to require a supplemental abstract brought down to the date of the selection if the abstract on file shows that at the date the deed of conveyance was recorded there were no adverse claims. All prior decisions of the department to the contrary are hereby overruled.

Circular No. 1088

RELIEF OF SETTLERS AND ENTRYMEN ON BACA FLOAT NO 3—EXTENSION OF TIME

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, August 2, 1926.

Register, Phoenix, Ariz.

Sir: The act of Congress approved April 17, 1926 (44 Stat. 299), extended for two years from the date of said act, the period for making selections and entries under the provisions of the act of July 5, 1921 (42 Stat. 107). The act of July 5, 1921, reads as follows:

> That where, prior to December 13, 1917, patents or patent certificates have issued under the homestead laws or preemption laws for land within the limits of a tract known as Baca Float Numbered Three, in the State of Arizona, and the patentees, their assigns, and legal representatives have been evicted by the local courts by reason of the prior grant to the legal representative of Luis Maria Baca, the patentee, his assigns or his legal representative, who under the laws and regulations would have been entitled to the return of the purchase money, fees, and commissions, shall be entitled to select in lieu thereof not exceeding twice the area of the lands lost, of any nonmineral unoccupied surveyed public lands in the State of Arizona subject to homestead entry.
> Sec. 2. That where any person had made homestead entry for land within Baca Float Numbered Three, and had fully complied with the homestead laws thereon as to residence and cultivation prior to June 22, 1914, in the bona fide belief that the land was public land, and has been evicted therefrom or prevented from making final entry by reason of the prior grant, said homestead entryman, or, in the case of his or her death, the successor to the right of entry under the homestead laws shall be permitted to make second homestead entry for other land situated in the State of Arizona and not exceeding twice the area of the original homestead entry lost as herein set forth, subject to the conditions, limitations, and benefits of the homestead laws applicable to such land; and upon submission of proof under his original entry that he had fully complied with the law as to residence and cultivation, shall on approval of such proof and payment at the office of second entry for the final fees and commissions due on a final entry for the land entered, receive a final certificate and patent without further residence and cultivation of the land embraced in the second entry.
> Sec. 3. That the right of selection and second entry hereby granted shall not be assignable, directly or through irrevocable power of attorney, and must be exercised within three years after the passage of this act by the persons entitled to such relief, or, in the case of the death of a homestead entryman who has not submitted final proof and received his final certificate, by the person or persons succeeding to his right of entry under the homestead laws: Provided, That no persons acquiring said land by sale or conveyance subsequent to December 13, 1917, shall be recognized, and the applicant shall submit proof that he has not sold, assigned, nor relinquished his homestead nor entered into any contract or agreement to sell, assign, or relinquish the same, nor abandoned the land for a valuable consideration; also that the land sought to be selected is for applicant's own exclusive use and benefit, and that he has not sold or contracted to sell, directly or indirectly, said selected land; And provided further, That the entire right of reselection under each entry shall be exercised at the same time, under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe, and on approval of the selection patent shall issue as on other entries.

SELECTIONS UNDER SECTION 1

Selections under section 1 of the act may be made by persons, their heirs or legal representatives, to whom patents or patent certificates issued under homestead or preemption laws for lands within the limits of the tract known as Baca Float No. 3, in the State of Arizona. The right is conditional upon the issuance of patents or final certificates, as well as eviction by the local courts by reason of the prior grant to the legal representative of Luis Maria Baca, prior to December 13, 1917.

The selector must surrender the patent or final certificate, or submit proof of its loss. He must show whether or not he has sold or conveyed the land; if conveyance of the land has been made he must show that he has indemnified his assignee, or perfected title in him through other sources, or produce a full reconveyance to himself from the last assignee. He must furnish evidence that he has been evicted by a local court.

Assignees must furnish abstracts of title, or certificates of title, setting forth clearly their interest in the land patented.

Mortgagees are not assignees within the meaning of the repayment laws, but may become such under the act of July 5, 1921, by foreclosure or deed from the mortgagor.

Where a patentee or a person to whom a final certificate issued, or his assignee, died after entry, his executor or devisee, or, if he died intestate, the person or persons succeeding to his interest in the land under the laws of Arizona, may make the selection.

Where the person evicted and entitled to make a lieu selection, had died since his eviction, his heirs or legal representatives may make the selection.

SECOND HOMESTEAD ENTRIES UNDER SECTION 2

Section 2 authorizes second homestead entries by any person who made a homestead entry for land within Baca Float No. 3, and fully complied with the homestead laws as to residence and cultivation prior to June 22, 1914, and has been evicted from the land or prevented from making final entry by reason of the prior grant.

In case of death, the successor to the entryman under the homestead laws succeeds to the right of second entry.

The homestead entryman is required, before patent issues, to submit evidence, corroborated by two witnesses, showing that the homestead laws had been fully complied with prior to June 22, 1914, as to residence and cultivation with respect to the land covered by the original entry. No testimony need be submitted of such compliance with respect to the lieu land selected.

PROVISIONS APPLICABLE TO BOTH SECTIONS

The area covered by a selection or second homestead entry authorized by the act shall not exceed twice the area of the land lost, and shall embrace nonmineral unoccupied surveyed public land in the State of Arizona subject to homestead entry.

The applicant's entire right of selection or second entry must be exercised at the same time.

Each applicant must submit his affidavit that he has not sold, assigned, nor relinquished the land in lieu of which the selection or entry is made, and that he has not entered into any contract or agreement to sell, assign, or relinquish the same, nor abandoned the land for a valuable consideration; also, that the land selected or entered in lieu thereof is for the applicant's own exclusive use and benefit, and that he has not sold, nor contracted to sell, directly or indirectly, the selected land.

Applicants must furnish the regular nonsaline and nonmineral affidavit, nonoccupancy affidavit, and an affidavit that no spring or waterhole exists on the selected land or on the land covered by the second entry.

The regular proof of publication and posting for 30 days must be furnished.[1] The notice of a selection under section 1 must describe the land selected. In the case of a second entry under section 2 the notice must describe the land covered by the original entry as well as the land selected in lieu thereof.

No fee or commissions are required under section 1 of the act, but persons who make second homestead entry under section 2 of the act will be required to pay the fee and commissions due on a final entry for the land originally entered.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

Approved August 2, 1926.

John H. Edwards, Assistant Secretary.

ISSUANCE OF DISCLAIMERS OF TITLE

Department of the Interior.
Washington, January 4, 1928.

The Commissioner of the General Land Office.

Dear Mr. Commissioner: The department has considered your letter ("K" LHD) of November 11, 1927, requesting instructions as to whether you should resume the practice which prevailed prior to September 22, 1922, of issuing disclaimers to lands conveyed to the United States under the exchange provisions of the act of June 4, 1897 (30 Stat. 36), in those cases where the selection has been canceled.

With your letter you forwarded an application (1274794–1910) filed on October 3, 1927, by the Standard Investment Co., of Oakland, Calif., for a quitclaim deed for 966.01 acres in California. You later informally submitted a like application (1275301–1910) filed by the same company on October 5, 1927, as to 23.85 acres in Washington.

Only 166.01 acres (described in the first application) are now within a national forest, and the Secretary of Agriculture has advised this department that no objection will be made as to the issuance of a quitclaim deed.

[1] See instructions of Oct. 19, 1929, p. 1149.

Abstracts of title have been filed by said company, showing good title in it except such title as may have been acquired by the United States through the deeds of conveyance.

The department has advised the applicant company that the Congress will be requested to authorize you to quitclaim the land to it.

It is presumed that almost everybody interested has taken advantage of the provisions of the act of September 22, 1922 (42 Stat. 1017). It is apparent that the Standard Investment Co. believed it was applying within the time allowed, its applications referring to "the act of December 30, 1922," which date is that of the regulations (49 L. D. 383).

It was because many examiners of abstracts of title attached no value to disclaimers of interest executed by your office that the department recommended the legislation which became the act of September 22, 1922, supra.

If other applications for quitclaim deeds are filed, you will submit them to the department with your recommendations. Disclaimers of interest should not be issued.

Very truly yours,

E. C. Finney,
First Assistant Secretary.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR LOCATING VALENTINE SCRIP

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
June 17, 1874.

To Registers and Receivers of United States Land Offices.

Gentlemen: In receiving applications to file, or locate, scrip issued by this office to Thomas B. Valentine, under the act of April 5, 1872 (17 Stat. 649), you will be governed by the following instructions:

First. You will observe that, by the terms of the said act, and by the face of the scrip itself, that scrip is applicable to any "unoccupied and unappropriated public lands of the United States not mineral."

Second. The scrip may be located by the said Thomas B. Valentine or his legal assignees.

Third. The scrip is in 40-acre pieces, and is required to be located in the same manner as are military bounty land warrants, viz: Each piece must apply to a separate 40-acre subdivision, be accompanied by a separate application, and receive a separate register's and receiver's number.

Fourth. When an immaterial excess of area occurs in the subdivision sought to be located, the applicant will be required to pay for such excess in cash, at the Government price per acre, and the receiver will issue an excess receipt therefor, and account for the same as in similar cases of military bounty land locations. The register, in such cases will append to the application his official statement, in red ink, that —— acres, (the excess), of said tract have been paid for, per receiver's receipt No. —.

Fifth. When application is made to file the said scrip upon unsurveyed land, a description by metes and bounds, together with a map or diagram of the tract applied for must be filed with the application. In such cases, the scrip, with the accompanying papers as aforesaid, will be retained in the careful custody of the receiver until such time as the township embracing the tract applied for shall be surveyed. Within three months from the date of the receipt by the register of the official plat of survey of the said township, the party who may have filed the said scrip will be required to appear before you and designate upon the official plat the specific subdivision embraced in the said filing, whereupon the location thereof will be consummated; and thereafter all the papers in the case will be transmitted to this office with your regular monthly returns. Should the applicant fail to so appear within the specified three months, you will immediately thereafter proceed to adjust the filing yourselves, as nearly as may be practicable, by the map and description filed by the party, and forward the same to this office as aforesaid. If you are unable to determine the locality of the land in the public surveys, you will report the fact, forwarding therewith all the papers in the case for my action. After a piece of the said scrip shall have been filed upon an unsurveyed tract, you will in no event allow the party to amend the description or diagram, or to reclaim the scrip, without express instructions from this office.

Sixth. The records of your proceedings in locating the said scrip, and your official returns of the same, are to be kept entirely separate and distinct from other sales, entries, and locations of public lands. At the close of each month you will make a separate official return of the scrip located during that month, with all the papers on file connected with such location, accompanied by a monthly abstract, as in the case of military warrant locations. You will also, at the end of each month, report, in an abstract similar to those used in cases of preemption filings, the numbers of such scrip as may have been filed during that month upon unsurveyed lands, together with the names of the parties filing the same, and the precise date of filing each piece.

Seventh. The fees of the register and receiver for the filing and location of the said scrip will be 50 cents to each officer on each piece of scrip filed, and the same amount on each piece located.

Eighth. The applications, certificates, and abstracts provided for military bounty land-warrant locations will be used for this scrip, care being taken to first correct, in writing, the style and title and date of act governing the same. For reports of filings of the same, the abstracts provided for declaratory statements under the preemption laws will be used, with the necessary corrections in writing.

Respectfully,

W. W. Curtis, Acting Commissioner.

Department of the Interior, June 26, 1874.

Approved.

C. Delano, Secretary.

CIRCULAR RESPECTING THE LOCATION OF DACOTAH OR SIOUX HALF-BREED SCRIP, UNDER ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED JULY 17, 1854 (U. S. STAT. AT LARGE, VOL. 10, PAGE 304)

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., May 28, 1878.

Registers and receivers, United States District Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: For the guidance of local officers and persons desiring to locate Dacotah or Sioux Half-breed Scrip, issued under the act of Congress approved July 17, 1854, this circular, amendatory of the circulars dated February 22, 1864, and January 29, 1872, is issued.

By the act of Congress referred to, the President was authorized to exchange with certain half-breeds or mixed-bloods of the Dacotah or Sioux Nation of Indians for a tract of land in Minnesota (which was set apart and granted for their use by the ninth article of the treaty of July 15, 1830), certificates or scrip for the same amount of land to which each individual would be entitled in case of a division of such tract of land pro rata among them.

In accordance therewith the certificates or scrip were issued as follows: 2 for 40 acres each; 1 for 80 acres; and 2 for 160 acres each; being an aggregate of 5 pieces of scrip representing 480 acres to each half-breed.

These pieces were designated thus, for example, in the first case: No. 1, A—40 acres; No. 1, B—40 acres; No. 1, C—80 acres; No. 1, D—160 acres; No. 1, E—160 acres.

By the terms of the statute, and as is declared upon the face of each piece, the certificates or scrip are locatable upon the following described classes of lands:

I. Upon lands within the limits of the reservation aforesaid, situated in townships 108 to 110 north of ranges 9 to 15 West, Minnesota.

Under this class the locations can be made—

First. By the half-breed upon any land upon which he was an actual bona fide settler, at the date of the approval of said act of July 17, 1854.

To constitute a half-breed or mixed-blood an actual bona fide settler within the meaning of the statute, it must be shown, by proof satisfactory to you, that he was an occupant by personal inhabitation within said reservation at or before the passage of the act of July 17, 1854, and in such case he will be entitled to locate his scrip, embracing his improvements, conforming to the legal subdivisions of the public surveys, unless such location interferes with another bona fide settler, when each will be allowed to take such subdivisions as will embrace his improvements.

Second. Upon any land which, at the date of said act, was not so occupied by a half-breed, or any other person who may have gone into said reservation under the authority of law.

The persons who have "gone into said Territory by authority of law" are, as the land officers in Minnesota will understand, only such white persons as, prior to the passage of said act of July 17, 1854, had entered said reservation under the Indian intercourse laws—such as licensed traders, authorized missionary teachers, and other persons in the employ of Government in connection with Indian affairs, and who inhabited the lands and made improvements thereon prior to said act. Beside these special stipulations in the law in regard to locations in the reservation, the statute authorizes the location of the scrip:

II. "Upon any other unoccupied lands subject to preemption or private sale."

Under this clause no mineral or reserved lands can be taken, nor can it be located upon any lands on which there is an actual settlement by an adverse claimant, but it may be located on lands held at $2.50 as well as minimum lands; and

III. "Upon any other unsurveyed lands not reserved by Government, upon which they have respectively made improvements."

Where the half-breed may make actual settlement, his improvements will be notice on the ground to any other settler, and in this respect he will stand on the same basis as a preemptor on unsurveyed land, and of course can not adjust his location until after the return of the township plat to the district land office. Within three months after the filing of the township plat of survey he should repair to such land office, file his scrip with his affidavit, designating specifically, in compact legal subdivisions, the tracts embracing his improvements, and should state in his affidavit the character and extent of these improvements, and file testimony of competent witnesses corroborative of his statement.

With the view to protect fully the Government interests and to carry out the law in its meaning, you are directed to see that the following requirements are strictly complied with, where application is made to file said scrip for unsurveyed lands:

First. That the application must be accompanied with the affidavit of the Indian, or other evidence that the land contains improvements made by or under the personal supervision or direction of said Indian, giving a detailed description of said improvements, and that they are for his personal use and benefit; in other words, you should be satisfied that the Indian has a direct connection with the land, and is claiming the same for his personal use. Unless such evidence is filed, you will reject the application.

Second. The filing of the scrip must be considered in the character of a location, and should such filing not be followed within the time prescribed by our circular of February 22, 1864, relating to the location of this scrip, by an adjustment to the official plat of survey, you will, immediately thereafter, adjust the same yourselves, as near as may be practicable, from the map and description filed by the party, and forward the same to this office with regular abstract and reference to your action; or, if you are unable to determine the locality of the land in the public surveys, you will report the fact, forwarding therewith all the papers in the case, for the action of this office.

The land selected in satisfaction of a certificate of scrip must of course be located in the name of the party in whose favor the scrip is issued, and the location may be made by him or her in person, or by his or her guardian or duly authorized agent. The application should be duly attested in each case by the register and receiver, and attached to each should be your certificate to the following effect:

LAND OFFICE AT ——— ———,
——— ———, 18—.

We hereby certify that the within scrip has, this ——— day of ———, been located on the ——— containing ——— acres, agreeably to the act of July 17, 1854, and by the party duly authorized to make the location.

Attest:

——— ———, Register.
——— ———, Receiver.

No receipt is to be issued to the locator, except in unavoidable cases, where there may be a small excess in the area of the location over the scrip, and in that case it must be paid for, and the receiver will issue his receipt, which he will number and account for, as in the case of bounty-land warrant excess. But no certificate of purchase is to be issued; the scrip and application, instead of certificates of purchase, being the instruments of title, which are to be returned to this office in this class of business.

The register, however, in the case of excess payments, will append to the application his official statement that ——— acres of said tract, (the excess), have been paid for, per receiver's receipt No. ———.

Your proceedings in locating the certificates, and your official returns, are to be kept entirely separate and distinct from other sales and locations. At the close of each month you will make a separate official return of scrip located, with all the papers on file connected with each location, accompanied by a monthly abstract; and in an addendum to such regular abstract you will report the number and name of scrip filed during the month for unsurveyed lands, retaining the scrip and papers on file for future adjustment.

You will notify all who may apply either to adjust claims now pending or to present new claims of the requirement herein.

You will observe that this scrip is not assignable, transfers of the same being held void; consequently each certificate, as hereinbefore stated, can only be located in the name of the half-breed, and such certificates or scrip are not to be treated as money, but located acre for acre.

No fees or commissions of any kind are allowed by this office for services of the land officers in this matter, such being an incident to their general duties; and you are therefore hereby interdicted from charging or receiving any compensation for such services. This scrip is, of course, not applicable to any class of Indian trust lands, but only to unreserved, unincumbered public lands.

Very respectfully,

J. A. WILLIAMSON, Commissioner.

Approved.

C. SCHURZ, Secretary of the Interior.

SUPREME COURT AND SURVEYOR GENERAL SCRIP

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, February 13, 1879.

The act of Congress approved June 22, 1860, entitled "An act for the final adjustment of private land claims in the States of Florida, Louisiana, and Missouri, and for other purposes" (Statutes, vol. 12, p. 85), provides, in its sixth section:

> That whenever it shall appear that lands claimed, and the title to which may be confirmed under the provisions of this act, have been sold in whole or in part by the United States prior to such confirmation, or where the surveyor-general of the district shall ascertain that the same can not be surveyed and located, the party in whose favor the title is confirmed shall have the right to enter, upon any of the public lands of the United States, a quantity of land equal in extent to that sold by the government: Provided, That said entry be made only on lands subject to private entry at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, and as far as may be possible in legal divisions and subdivisions, according to the surveys made by the United States.

The provisions of said act were extended and supplemented by the acts of March 2, 1867, and June 10, 1872, and they have been further supplemented by the act of January 28, 1879, entitled "An act defining the manner in which certain land scrip may be assigned and located, or applied by actual settlers, and providing for the issue of patents in the name of the locator or his legal representatives," a copy of which is hereto attached.

In pursuance of the provisions of these acts, scrip has been issued by this office, the several certificates of which, representing various quantities of land, according to the circumstances of the respective cases, may be located in legal subdivisions on any public land in your district subject to sale at private entry at $1.25 per acre, any small excess in such subdivisions over the area called for in the scrip to be paid for in money; or they may, under the second section of the act of January 28, 1879, be received from actual settlers in payment of pre-emption claims, or in commutation of homestead claims, even where the same embrace lands subject to entry at the double minimum price of $2.50 per acre, in the same manner and to the same extent as is now authorized by law in the case of military bounty land warrants. But the law authorizes no fees to be collected by the district land officers on account of locations made with this scrip.

When such scrip is presented in payment of a preemption claim composed of lands subject to entry at $2.50 per acre, the preemptor, in addition to the scrip surrendered, will be required to pay in cash the difference between the value of said scrip at $1.25 per acre, and that of the tract embraced in his claim; or to surrender additional scrip; thus 160 acres of double-minimum land may be paid for by the surrender of one piece of scrip for 160 acres, and the payment of $200, or by the surrender of two pieces of scrip for 160 acres each, or one piece for 320 acres. If the value of the scrip should exceed that of the lands entered therewith, the preemptor will receive no repayment thereof from the United States; but if the land, at its rated price, should exceed the scrip in value, such excess must be paid by the locator with cash. It will be required also, in the location of a tract subject to entry at a greater minimum than $1.25 per acre, that each piece of scrip shall be located upon a specific subdivision thereof, and that the excess in area of the land, if any, shall be paid for in cash. The same rules will govern in commutations of homestead claims.

You will in every case require the party desiring to locate to surrender the scrip and make application according to attached Form A;

when, if no objection should appear, you will allow the location to be made, properly fill up the heading of the application by inserting the number of the certificate of location, the register and receiver's number, the date of the decree, and the claim for which the certificate of location was issued, for which blanks are left in the form.

You will then issue a certificate of entry in duplicate according to Form B annexed, one of which you will deliver to the party, to be held by him as his evidence of title until the patent shall be issued.

The locations allowed, you will enter the same on your records, and at the expiration of the month will send up an abstract of all locations allowed during the same (Form C annexed). You will forward therewith the applications received, certificates of entry issued during the month, and also the scrip surrendered. Patents will be issued thereupon in regular course, as provided for in the third section of the act of January 28, 1879.

By the first section of that act it is declared that this scrip is "assignable by deed or instrument of writing according to the form and pursuant to regulations prescribed by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, so as to vest the assignee with all the rights of the original owners of the scrip." With regard to such form and regulations, the following is prescribed:

Entries with this scrip must be made by the confirmee or confirmees named in the scrip, or his or their duly authorized attorney, in the name of such confirmee or confirmees, or by the assignee or assignees of such confirmee or confirmees, or his or their duly authorized attorney, in the name of such assignee or assignees.

Each assignment must be attested by one or more subscribing witnesses; the mark of a witness will not be respected. Parties in interest as assignees are not recognized as legal attesting witnesses to an assignment, neither can an officer take an acknowledgment of an assignment to himself.

The execution of assignments is required to be acknowledged by the assignor, in the presence of a register or receiver of a land office, a judge or clerk of a court of record when authorized to take acknowledgments, a notary public, justice of the peace, a commissioner of deeds resident in the State from which he derives his appointment, or a commissioner of a circuit court of the United States, who shall certify to the fact of the acknowledgment and to the identity of the assignor, and the official seal of said court, notary public or commissioner, shall be affixed to the certificate. When the acknowledgment is taken before a justice of the peace or other officer without an official seal (except a register or receiver of a land office), it must be accompanied by an additional certificate, under seal of the proper authority, establishing the official character of the person before whom the acknowledgment was made, and the genuineness of his signature.

Powers of attorney must be acknowledged in like manner.

Assignments executed by unmarried females must be accompanied by evidence that they have attained the age of 21 years; and when married women assign, their husbands must unite with them in making the transfer.

When assignments are executed by a commissioner or other designated person, alleged to be acting under a decree of court, there must be procured and filed in this office a duly certified copy of such decree, in which all the proceedings had in the case should be recited, and from which it must appear that due notice of the pending suit had been given, by publication or otherwise, to all the parties interested.

When the assignment of this scrip is executed in a foreign country, and the acknowledgment thereof taken by an officer authorized by the laws thereof to perform such duties, the attestation of the American consul in such country should be obtained as to the official character and genuineness of the signature of the person before whom the acknowledgment of the said assignment was made, or if the official character, etc., of such foreign magistrate, is attested by a consular agent of such foreign government residing in this country, his official character must be certified by the diplomatic representative of such government in the United States.

When such assignments are executed in a foreign language, duly authenticated translations thereof must be furnished. Secretaries of legation and consular officers of the United States are authorized to take acknowledgments, but they must certify the same under their official seals.

When the persons named as confirmees are described in the scrip as being minors, their assignment thereof must be accompanied by satisfactory evidence that they had attained their majority at the date of the transfer.

When an assignment has been executed and witnessed but not acknowledged, it may be proved in open court, but a certified transcript of the proceedings in the case must be filed in this office. When, however, such assignment has not been properly attested, it must be made anew.

For general forms of assignment, and of powers of attorney and acknowledgment, see Forms D, E, F, G, H, I, K, L, M, N, O, P. In cases where the assignments, powers, or acknowledgments are written or printed and signed on the back of the certificate, the words, " the within certificate " may be used instead of the full description of such certificate provided for in these forms.

It will not be practicable in all cases to attach the assignment or power of attorney to each certificate of location, and it will not be required by this office.

When a single assignment or power of attorney covers a number of certificates, such assignment or power may be filed in this office, and will be referred to to perfect the assignment of any of the certificates named therein, whenever they or either of them shall have been located and returned to this office for patenting. Such assignment or power thus filed will also be referred to by this office for the purpose of attaching to any certificate of location named therein, a certificate (Form Q), relative to the validity of the certificate of location and the assignment thereof.

Upon the application of any assignee of this scrip, accompanied by the scrip and papers in his possession relative to the assignment thereof, this office will examine said scrip and assignments, and such assignments thereof as are found on the files of this office; and if the scrip be found free from objections, and the assignments sufficient in form, a certificate of approval of such scrip and the assignments thereof (Form Q), will be attached by this office to the scrip thus submitted.

Each piece of scrip thus transmitted to this office must be accompanied by the sum of $1, the legal fee for a certificate of verification.

The fourth section of the act of January 28, 1879, declares that its provisions respecting the assignment and patenting of scrip and its application to preemption and homestead claims shall apply to the indemnity certificates of location provided for in the act of June 2, 1858, entitled "An act to provide for the location of certain confirmed private-land claims in the State of Missouri," and for other purposes. The general principles hereinbefore laid down with regard to scrip issued under the act of June 22, 1860, are applicable to the class of certificates issued under the act of June 2, 1858, and you will be governed thereby in dealing with any of the latter presented for location. The same forms may be used, with such verbal alterations in them as may be necessary to adapt them to the case in hand. You will take care, however, in making returns for these two classes of locations, to keep them separate and distinct.

J. A. Williamson, Commissioner.

ABSENTEE WYANDOTTE INDIANS ENTITLED TO SELECTIONS—RULES GOVERNING APPLICATIONS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., October 28, 1904.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: The act of April 28, 1904 (33 Stat. 519), provides, among other things:

> That each living adult Absentee Wyandotte Indian, whose name appears upon a census roll of Wyandotte Indians made by Special Agent Joel T. Olive, as approved by the Secretary of the Interior December seventh, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, may select in person, under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe, from the surveyed public nonmineral domain, eighty acres of agricultural land wherever there may be such lands subject to entry; and the heirs of any deceased Absentee Wyandotte Indian so enrolled may in like manner select a like quantity of land in the name of their deceased ancestor, and the natural or legal guardian of any minor Absentee Wyandotte so enrolled may in like manner select eighty acres of agricultural land for his ward.

On the presentation of an application, under oath, to select not more than 80 acres unappropriated, surveyed agricultural public land, under the provisions of this act, signed by one of the Indians whose names appear on the census roll of the absentee Wyandotte Indians, a list of which names is hereto attached, with a proper nonmineral affidavit, sworn to by some person familiar with the land applied for, you will, after certification by the register as to the character of the land, place the same on record, and forward, with proper abstract, with your regular monthly returns.

The personal selection required is construed to mean that the application must be made for and signed by one of the persons named on the roll, but does not require personal examination of the land, or the presentation of the application in person at the local land office.

An application for one of the minor children mentioned in the act must be signed by his guardian for him, with a statement of relationship, if a natural guardian, or with a copy of appointment as guardian, certified to by the proper officer, if a legally appointed guardian.

In case of application by the heirs of a deceased absentee Wyandotte Indian so enrolled the application must be in the name of the deceased ancestor signed by all the heirs, or by one of them for all, in which case power of attorney to make such application, signed by all of the other heirs, must accompany the application.

If all or part of such heirs are minors, the same statement of relationship of the natural guardian, or evidence of appointment as legal guardian by the person acting for them, must be furnished as in the case of an enrolled minor provided for above.

As the act does not provide for the payment of any fees for filing, you will make no charge in any of these cases.

Very respectfully,

W. A. Richards,
Commissioner.

Approved October 28, 1904.

E. A. Hitchcock,
Secretary of the Interior.

[Reported, 47 L. D. 595]

CIRCULAR NO. 729 [1]

INSTRUCTIONS RELATIVE TO SECTION 24, FEDERAL WATER POWER ACT

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, November 20, 1920.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: Section 24 of the Federal water power act, reads as follows:

> SEC. 24. That any lands of the United States included in any proposed project under the provisions of this act shall from the date of the filing of application therefor be reserved from entry, location, or other disposal under the laws of the United States until otherwise directed by the commission or by Congress. Notice that such application has been made, together with the date of filing thereof and a description of the lands of the United States affected thereby, shall be filed in the local land office for the district in which such lands are located. Whenever the commission shall determine that the value of any lands of the United States so applied for, or heretofore or hereafter reserved or classified as power sites, will not be injured or destroyed for the purpose of power development by location, entry, or selection under the public-land laws, the Secretary of the Interior, upon notice of such a determination, shall declare such lands open to location, entry, or selection, subject to and with a reservation of the right of the United States or its permittees or licensees to enter upon, occupy, and use any part or all of said lands necessary, in the judgment of the commission, for the purpose of this act, which right shall be expressly reserved in every patent issued for such lands; and no claim or right to compensation shall accrue from the occupation or use of any of said lands for said purposes. The United States or any licensee for any such lands hereunder may enter thereupon for the purposes of this act, upon payment of any damages to crops, buildings, or other improvements caused thereby to the owner thereof, or upon giving a good and sufficient bond to the United States for the use and benefit of the owner to secure the payment of such damages as may be determined and fixed in an action brought upon the bond in a court of competent jurisdiction, said bond to be in the form prescribed by the commission: Provided, That locations, entries, selections, or filings heretofore made for lands reserved as water-power sites or in connection with water-power development or electrical transmission may proceed to approval or patent under and subject to the limitations and conditions in this section contained.

Action is being taken by this office on locations, entries, selections, and filings made prior to June 10, 1920, the date of the approval of the Federal water power act, in accordance with the proviso to said section.

Applications of any sort filed subsequent to June 10, 1920, looking toward the acquisition of title to public or reserved lands, within, or in conflict with power projects under this act, or which shall have been "reserved or classified as power sites," will be governed by the following rules:

[1] Amended by Circular No. 1044, p. 524.

ACTION TO BE TAKEN BY LOCAL OFFICERS

1. You will at once reject, subject to appeal, any application filed subsequent to June 10, 1920, which is wholly in conflict with lands reserved or classified as power sites, or covered by a power application under this act, except—

(a) A homestead application predicated upon settlement prior to the reservation, classification, or filing of the power application, and accompanied by corroborated affidavit of such prior settlement.

An application of this character should be received, noted in pencil on your records, and transmitted to this office by special letter, for consideration, without allowance.

(b) Any application which, were it not for the reservation, classification, or power application, would be allowable, wherein claim is made by way of corroborated affidavit, that applicant has acquired equitable rights antedating the withdrawal. Such applications should be received for transmission to this office for consideration, but should not be allowed by you.

2. Where any such application is only partially in conflict with lands reserved or classified as power sites, you will allow it only as to the subdivisions not in conflict.

3. Where any application is presented which conflicts with a transmission line withdrawal of a strip of land crossing the land applied for, you will, if otherwise regular, allow the entry, but will note upon the face of the entry papers, and upon your records, the following:

> Entry made subject to conditions and reservations of section 24, Federal water power act, approved June 10, 1920, in so far as transmission line withdrawal No. ——, created by Executive withdrawal of ——— (or water-power application heretofore filed under the act of June 10, 1920), may affect same.

4. Whenever you find it necessary to reject an application, in carrying out these instructions, you should inform the applicant that he is at liberty to file an application for the restoration of such withdrawn lands, under the provisions of section 24 of the Federal water power act, but that favorable action upon such application will not give the applicant any preference right, or right to preferential treatment if or when the lands are finally restored. The lands will be so restored in strict accordance with Circular No. 324 of May 22, 1914 (43 L. D. 254), as modified by Circular No. 678[a] of March 31, 1920.

GENERAL

Notify all inquirers that withdrawn public lands are not subject to lease, or other disposition, other than such as is specifically recognized by the Federal water power act; that there is no way to acquire preference rights, preferential treatment, or equitable or legal preference, excepting where legal or equitable rights were acquired before the withdrawal of the land, and that, in all cases where such rights are claimed, careful investigation as to its bona fides will be made before it is recognized.

---

[a] Circular No. 678 has been superseded by Circular No. 822, p. 779.

You will further observe that, while the act of June 25, 1910, allows metalliferous mineral explorations and applications based thereon, the act of June 10, 1920, makes no exceptions.

Therefore, in future, any mineral application or location, based upon discoveries made subsequent to June 10, 1920, which is in conflict with lands reserved or classified as power sites, should be rejected by you, subject to appeal.

If the application alleges discovery or location prior to the date of the act, it should be accompanied by corroborated affidavit, attesting the fact, and transmitted to this office for consideration, without allowance.[2]

Applications for permit under the oil leasing act of February 25, 1920, embracing lands applied for under the Federal water power act, or reserved or classified as power sites, should be received and transmitted, as heretofore, to this office. If, upon reference of such an application for permit to the commission, it shall determine that a permit may be granted without injury to or destruction of the value of the lands for the purpose of power development, the application will be considered and acted upon in accordance with section 2, circular 672.

Lands within final power permits under the act of February 15, 1901 (31 Stat. 790), or transmission-line permits or approved rights of way, whether under said act of February 15, 1901, or the act of March 4, 1911 (36 Stat. 1253), are deemed "classified as valuable for power purposes," and, whether withdrawn as power-site reserves or not, occupy the status of withdrawn lands for the purposes of these regulations.

Very respectfully,

C. M. Bruce,
Acting Commissioner.

Approved November 20, 1920.

Acting Secretary.

GENERAL DETERMINATION UNDER SECTION 24 OF FEDERAL WATER POWER ACT, AS TO CERTAIN LANDS

Federal Power Commission,
Washington, April 29, 1922.

Dear Mr. Spry: Recently your office submitted to the commission a number of requests for determination under section 24 of the Federal water power act, with respect to lands reserved or classified as power sites for transmission line purposes. You are advised that at its meeting of April 17, 1922, the commission made a general determination as to lands so withdrawn as indicated in the following quotation from the minutes of the meeting of said date:

> The executive secretary having called to the attention of the commission the desirability of making a general determination under the provisions of section 24 of the Federal water power act with respect to lands of the United States heretofore or hereafter reserved or classified as power sites which are applied for, or occupied and used for, transmission line purposes only, the commission voted as follows:

[2] See amendment, p. 524.

(a) That where lands of the United States have heretofore been, or hereafter may be, reserved or classified as power sites, such reservation or classification being made solely because such lands are either occupied by power transmission lines or their occupancy and use for such purposes has been applied for or authorized under appropriate laws of the United States, and such lands have otherwise no value for power purposes, and are not occupied in trespass, the commission determines that the value of such lands so reserved or classified, or so applied for or authorized, will not be injured or destroyed for the purposes of power development by location, entry or selection under the public land laws, subject to the reservation of section 24 of the Federal water power act.

(b) That when notice is given to the Secretary of the Interior of reservations made under the provisions of section 24 of the Federal water power act, such notice shall indicate what lands so reserved, if any, may, in accordance with the determination of the preceding paragraph, be declared open to location, entry, or selection subject to the reservation of said section 24.

The exception from the effect of this determination of lands withdrawn for transmission lines which are occupied in trespass by such lines does not imply that the commission is opposed to the restoration to entry of lands so occupied. Where you found that lands applied for are occupied in trespass, the application should be referred to this office for such action as it deems to be appropriate to the particular circumstances existing in the case. It is believed that all other lands withdrawn for transmission line purposes can be handled directly by your office under the above determination.

Very truly yours,
O. C. MERRILL, Executive Secretary.

The COMMISSIONER,
The General Land Office.

SIRS: So much of Circular No. 729, of November 20, 1920 (47 L. D. 595) (Federal water power act of June 10, 1920) (41 Stat. 1063), which reads "If the application alleges discovery or location prior to the date of the act, it should be accompanied by corroborated affidavit, attesting the fact, and transmitted to this office for consideration, without allowance," is hereby amended so as to read:

If the application alleges a valid location made prior to the date of the act and is accompanied by corroborated affidavit attesting the fact, the patent proceedings may be prosecuted to completion. The proof should be considered upon its merits, and, if found regular, final certificate may issue although a protest may have been filed by the division inspector; but the claimant should be advised in such cases that patent will be withheld by the General Land Office pending a report by the division inspector upon the bona fides of the claim; also, that when the case is adjudicated in the General Land Office determination will be made whether or not the claim is subject to the provisions of section 24 of the act.

INSTRUCTIONS IN COMPLIANCE WITH DEPARTMENTAL ORDER OF NOVEMBER 1, 1926

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, November 8, 1926.

Registers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: The executive secretary of the Federal Power Commission has agreed to adopt, and unless unforeseen obstacles arise, to continue indefinitely the following practice:

When applications under the Federal water power act involving public lands are filed with field representatives of the commission, copies of the application will be forwarded to the executive secretary, who will immediately notify the General Land Office of such filing, and of the date it was received by the commission, which will be considered as the date of priority for purposes of land withdrawal. A copy of the letter to the General Land Office will be mailed directly by the executive secretary to the register of the United States land district in which the public lands affected are located.

You will, upon receipt of such letter, make notation on your records to the effect that the public land described is withdrawn from entry, location, or other disposal until otherwise directed by the commission or by Congress, as provided by section 24 of the Federal water power act, the effective date being the date the power project application was filed with the commissioner. You should at once make careful examination of your records for applications, selections, entries, or other disposition of the lands affected filed or allowed after the effective date of priority, and prior to the receipt of the notice of withdrawal in your office, and report to this office any such conflict. If no such conflict exists, you should so state in your report.

Washington, June 13, 1925.

Register and Receiver, Gainesville, Fla.

GENTLEMEN: Public No. 499, Sixty-eighth Congress (43 Stat. 1012), an act authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to adjust disputes or claims by settlers, entrymen, selectors, grantees, and patentees of the United States against the United States and between each other, arising from incomplete or faulty surveys in T. 28 S., Rs. 26 and 27 E., Tallahassee Meridian, Polk County, in the State of Florida, approved February 27, 1925, reads as follows:

> SEC. 2. That the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to accept any and all conveyances of land for purposes of adjustment and to make all necessary rules and regulations in order to carry this act into effect.

In accordance with the provisions of the above act the following regulations are prescribed to govern the filing of applications preliminary to the adjudication of rights cognizable under said act:

1. Individuals or corporations seeking relief under this act are required to file an application within 90 days from the date of issuance of these regulations with the register and receiver at the Gainesville office, giving the description and area of the lands desired in accordance with the plat of resurvey and the act under which the application is filed, together with a comprehensive statement of the facts constituting the grounds for the relief sought. Where the grounds for relief are based on record evidence of title through purchase or otherwise, there must be filed with the application an abstract of title brought down to a day reasonably near the date of the presentation of the application, showing full title in the applicant, who must as soon as practicable thereafter file a supplemental abstract brought down so as to include the date of the filing of the application. No application for patent, based upon a claim which had its inception after July 5, 1921, will be deemed as falling within the purview of the above act. Patent, if and when issued, will be in the name of the applicant. Transfers made subsequent to the date of the application will be disregarded.

2. Under the provisions of the above act only applications based on rights acquired prior to July 5, 1921, the date of the withdrawal, can be considered; and only lands of the United States may be acquired, unless the applicant submits with his application an affidavit from the owner of the land sought authorizing an exchange or other method of adjustment.

3. In order to facilitate the administration of the adjustment the owner of the land on July 5, 1921, should as far as possible include in his application for relief all rights accruing by or through such ownership.

4. With respect to the Hamilton townsite, the advisability of issuing patent in trust to the owner of the land therein on July 5, 1921, for the benefit of transferees or the present owners in possession will be considered.

5. A representative or committee of this office will, if found advisable, be detailed to review the papers and visit the field for the purpose of compromising or otherwise adjudicating the claims to the area involved. Further field investigation will be made if deemed necessary or expedient.

6. The register and receiver at the Gainesville office will assign a serial number to each application and will after the expiration of the time allowed for the filing of applications forward all applications and other matters filed in connection therewith without action to the Commissioner of the General Land Office at Washington, D. C., who will thereafter as soon as may be submit to the department a complete report covering the whole situation pursuant to which the department will render a decision. The usual 30 days will be allowed from the date of such decision within which to apply to the Secretary of the Interior for a rehearing of the decision in case the party concerned has occasion to feel aggrieved thereby.

7. After the expiration of the period for the filing of motions for rehearing the Secretary of the Interior will render a final decision announcing the awards made.

8. Mimeographic copies hereof will in a short time be furnished you for distribution and interested parties may also secure same on request to the Commissioner, General Land Office, Washington, D. C.

9. You will post a copy hereof in your office; forward copies to post offices on or near the land with request that same be posted therein; and you will, furthermore, give all possible publicity to the promulgation of these regulations without expense to the Government.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

Circular No. 1164

ADJUSTMENT OF CLAIMS ARISING BY REASON OF CERTAIN INCOMPLETE OR FAULTY SURVEYS, LAKE COUNTY, FLA.

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, September 22, 1928.

Sir: The act of May 21, 1928 (45 Stat. 619), provides for the equitable adjustment of disputes and claims of settlers and others against the United States and between each other as to certain described land as follows:

> That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized to equitably adjust disputes and claims of settlers, entrymen, selectors, grantees, and patentees of the United States, their heirs or assigns, against the United States and between each other arising from incomplete or faulty surveys in township 19 south, range 26 east, and in sections 7, 8, 17, 18, 19, 30, 31, township 19 south, range 27 east, Tallahassee Meridian, Lake County, in the State of Florida, and to issue directly or in trust as may be found necessary or advisable patent to such settlers, entrymen, selectors, grantees, and patentees, their heirs or assigns, for land claimed through settlement, occupation, purchase or otherwise in said described area, preserving, as far as he may deem equitable, to those claimants now in possession of public land the right to have patented to them the areas so occupied: Provided, That a charge of not less than the appraised value of the land, exclusive of any improvements placed thereon, be made for each acre or fraction thereof of Government land patented under the provisions of this act, except that adjustment may be effected by exchange of lands patented for lands substantially equal in area, in which event payment shall be required of the difference in appraised values where the value of the land owned by the Government exceeds that of the land offered in exchange: Provided further, That rights acquired subsequent to the withdrawal of December 23, 1925, shall not be recognized or be subject to adjustment hereunder.
> Sec. 2. That the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to accept any and all conveyances of land and to cause all necessary surveys to be made, to effect the purposes of this act. All adjustments hereunder shall conform to the approved plats of such survey or resurvey, and no other survey will be recognized.
> Sec. 3. That in fixing the appraised price of such lands the Secretary of the Interior shall consider and give effect to the good faith and equities of the occupants of any of the areas found to be public land; and if the whole or any part of such land be within the corporate limits of the town of Tavares, the survey of the lots, blocks, streets, and alleys shall be considered as executed under the provisions of section 2384, Revised Statutes, but as far as practicable shall conform to the existing surveys and plats of the lots in such town: Provided, That the Secretary may, in his discretion, issue a patent to Lake County, Florida, to not exceeding one acre upon which the county courthouse is located, such patent to provide that the land shall revert to the Government of the United States if the county sells any part thereof or devotes it to any use other than as a site for a courthouse and grounds.
> Sec. 4. That the provisions of section 2382, Revised Statutes, as modified by sections 2384 and 2385, Revised Statutes, shall extend to all areas surveyed as within and a part of the town of Tavares: Provided, That subject to adverse rights any person entitled to a preference right to purchase under the provisions of this act may secure under this section lands in his actual possession, whether in a single tract or in surveyed lots, of a maximum area of eighty-four thousand square feet, upon payment therefor at a rate not exceeding $10 for four thousand two hundred square feet, but any applicant may elect to proceed under section 1 of this act: Provided further, That all the provisions hereof applicable to the town of Tavares shall be extended to any other established town within the area affected by this act.

1. The plats of recent surveys will be officially filed in the United States land office at Gainesville, Fla., in the usual manner, but the areas affected will be subject to disposition only in the manner herein indicated. Further directions will be given if any of such lands remain unappropriated after the termination of the period within which preference applications may be presented.

2. The Secretary of the Interior will, at as early a date as practicable, fix the appraised price of all the lands affected by the act and in such appraisal will consider and give effect to the good faith and equities of the occupants of the areas that have been found to be public lands of the United States.

3. To avoid delay, all applications to purchase should be accompanied with the appraised price of the land, which will be returned in the event the application is finally rejected. Applications will not, however, be refused because of the applicant's failure to make advance payment. Where the appraised price is not tendered with the application, payment under penalty of rejection will be required within 30 days from notice that the application has been approved subject to such payment.

4. All adjustments, whether through exchange, purchase, entry, or selection must be made in terms of Federal surveys, the plats of which may be found in the United States land office at Gainesville. If absolutely required, additional surveys will be directed, but it is believed that the present surveys will be found sufficient. Where public lands are exhibited on the Federal plats of survey as subdivided into lots, blocks, streets, and alleys, the official filing of the plats will constitute a dedication to the public of the areas shown as streets and alleys on such plats. The word "streets" as used in the act is a comprehensive term and includes ordinary streets, avenues, boulevards, driveways, roadways, etc., where appearing upon the official plat. The term, however, does not include private ways not shown on the plat nor railway rights of way, even though the location of such way is indicated on the plat. The areas designated "parks" on the plats will in like manner be reserved and devoted to the uses indicated.

5. Lake County, Fla., may, upon application of its duly constituted authorities and without payment, receive a patent for not exceeding 1 acre of land in the city of Tavares upon which its courthouse is situated. Such patent will contain the provision that the land shall revert to the Government of the United States if the county sells any part thereof or devotes it to any use other than as a site for a courthouse and grounds.

6. Individuals or corporations seeking relief under this act must file an application with the register at the Gainesville United States land office, which shall set forth (a) the name and address of the applicant; (b) description and area of the lands claimed in accordance with existing plats of survey, if practicable; (c) the section of the act upon which the application is based; and (d) a comprehensive statement of the facts constituting the grounds for the relief sought. Such application may be presented to the register immediately after the plats of the recent Federal survey are officially filed in the United States land office at Gainesville, and must be tendered within three months after the date of the official filing of such plat.

7. Titles to land not situated within the limits of established towns must be adjusted under section 1 of the act.

8. Lands within the limits of Tavares or any other established town are subject to disposition under section 4 of the act, but any applicant may elect to proceed under section 1. If no such election is presented with an application for lands in an established town, such application will be adjudicated under section 4. All such lots must be paid for at the rate of not to exceed $10 for 4,200 square feet, with the limitation of 84,000 square feet to any one applicant.

9. It will not be necessary for an equitable owner to prove actual residence on any lot or lots applied for under section 4, but he must show that he was in actual possession of the land and that he was holding it under claim of right or color of title. Applications to purchase under section 4 based on settlement alone must be accompanied by proof of settlement.

10. Where the grounds for relief are based on record evidence of title, through purchase or otherwise, there must be filed with the application an abstract of title brought down to a day reasonably near the date of the presentation of such application, showing full equitable title in the applicant, or in lieu of such abstract a certificate of the recorder of deeds that such applicant is the record owner of the land embraced in his application. Where, however, the form of relief sought is the exchange of privately owned lands for Government land, affected by the act, an abstract of title must be presented.

11. No deed reconveying lands in private ownership as a basis for exchange of Government lands affected by the act should be placed of record unless and until such proposed exchange has been approved by the department. In the event of such approval the proponent will be advised thereof and directed to duly execute and properly record a deed reconveying the privately owned land to the Government of the United States, to extend the abstract of title so as to include the record of such deed, and show that at the time of such record the land was free from adverse claim or any incumbrance whatsoever.

12. All applicants seeking relief under any provision of the act must for the period of 30 days, under direction of the register of the Gainesville United States land office, publish in a newspaper of general circulation notice of his application.[a] No particular form of notice is essential, but such notice must include the name and address of the applicant, an intelligible description of the land, a brief statement of the nature of the claim, and the date of the first publication. Where the areas affected are in an established town and have been subdivided into lots and blocks and are so exhibited on the Federal plats of survey, the numbers of the lots and blocks and the name of the town will suffice. Lands not subdivided into town lots must be described in terms of our recent surveys if practicable. Where part of the legal subdivision only is sought, that fact should appear in the notice. The register will designate as the medium of publication an established newspaper published nearest the land. Such publication must be made at the expense of the applicant. A copy of such notice will be posted in the usual manner in the United States land office.

[a] See instructions of Oct. 19, 1929, p. 1149.

13. Any protest against an application, notice of which was published in the manner required by paragraph 12, whether based on a conflicting right or otherwise, must be filed in the United States land office at Gainesville within 40 days from and after the first date of publication mentioned in the notice. Any such protest must be accompanied by evidence that a copy thereof was served on the applicant.

14. The register, if proper proofs of newspaper publication be furnished will as soon as practicable after the period of 40 days following the first date of publication, transmit the application to the General Land Office with all papers filed in connection therewith. He will report whether any protest was filed against such application and will recommend what disposition should be made thereof.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

CIRCULAR NO. 199 [1]

DAYS ON WHICH OFFICES CAN BE CLOSED

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., November 29, 1912.

United States Surveyors General, Registers and Receivers, and Chiefs of Field Divisions.

GENTLEMEN: It having come to the knowledge of this office that it is the practice of some subordinate officers of this bureau to suspend the public business and close their respective offices on days set apart as holidays by legislative or executive authority of the States in which the offices are located, your attention is called to circular of November 19, 1908, which directs the closing of all subordinate offices of this bureau on January 1, February 22, May 30, July 4, the first Monday in September, and December 25, which are declared public holidays by act of June 28, 1894 (28 Stats. 96). Also on such day as may be designated by proclamation of the President as Thanksgiving Day. Your attention is also called to Executive order of May 22, 1909, on page 11 of circular of February 1, 1910, regulating leaves of absence, which directs that all offices of the Government, etc., shall, when January 1, February 22, May 30, July 4, and December 25 fall on Sunday, be closed to public business on the following Monday, excepting that when a State law fixes for a holiday another day than the Monday following such legal holiday, Government offices situated in such States shall be closed on the day which is in conformity to State law.

By letter of June 6, 1904, the Assistant Attorney General of the Department of the Interior advised the Secretary of the Interior as follows:

> I advise you that the law authorizes the closing of Federal offices located in the several States on all days declared holidays by the law of the State in which the office is located, and that employees in such offices should not be required to perform services on such days unless the state of the public business demands it.

While this opinion was approved by the Secretary, it was never promulgated as a regulation of the department. On the contrary, the Secretary, by letter of May 19, 1905, informed this office that the matter of closing the subordinate offices of the General Land Office on such days as are set apart as holidays by legislative or executive authority of the State in which the offices are located is a matter for determination by the Commissioner of the General Land Office upon such report or information as may be furnished by the local officials.

[1] See order of Apr. 5, 1926, p. 535.

You are therefore instructed to refrain hereafter from closing your offices on any days other than those specified in circular of November 19, 1908, unless otherwise directed.

FRED DENNETT, Commissioner.

To all field officers of the General Land Office.

GENTLEMEN: My attention has been directed to the nonobservance of existing regulations governing hours of labor and leaves of absence.

You are therefore instructed that, Sundays and days declared legal holidays by law or Executive order excepted, all field offices are to be uniformly opened for official business at 9 o'clock a. m. and remain open continuously until 4.30 o'clock p. m., standard time, and that employees will be permitted one-half hour for lunch between the hours of 12 m. and 1 p. m.

No variation from these hours will be permitted without special authority from this office, upon such representations as may be made in specific cases, but in no event will a modification be made which will reduce the hours of labor of any employee below the seven hours required by law.

Upon return to duty this card must be filled out in all particulars, signed by you, and forwarded to this office for approval of the chief clerk and filing for record purposes.

In order to assure that no disbursing officer will pay salaries for any periods of leave in excess of the 30 days annual and 30 days sick, all offices should keep an accurate record of all leaves of absence of employees, which record shall be subject to inspection, and may be called for at any time by this office with your certification. Any disbursing officer paying an employee for any period of absence not covered by proper grant will be held responsible.

FINAL PROOFS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., May 9, 1906.[1]

Circular of July 17, 1889 (9 L. D. 123), is hereby revoked and the following rules substituted therefor, viz:

1. Final proofs in all cases where the same are required by the general land laws or regulations of the department, must be taken in accordance with the published notice; provided, however, that such testimony may be taken within 10 days following the time advertised in cases where accident or unavoidable delays have prevented the applicant or his witnesses from making such proof on the day specified. Section 7 of the act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. 854).

2. Where final proof or any part thereof has not been taken on the day advertised, or within 10 days thereafter under the exceptions and as required in rule 1, you will direct new advertisement to be made; and if no protest or objection is then filed the proof theretofore submitted, if in compliance with the law in other respects, may be accepted.

3. If the testimony of either claimant or witness is taken at a different place than that advertised the commissioner may, if in his opinion same is required, cause new advertisement for the proof to be taken at such place as he may deem advisable, or if in his opinion new advertisement is unnecessary, and no protest or objection has been filed, the proof theretofore submitted, if regular in all other respects, may be accepted without further testimony.

4. When a witness not named in the advertisement is substituted for an advertised witness, unless two of the advertised witnesses testify, require new advertisement of the names of the witnesses who do testify at such time and place as you may direct; and if no protest or objection is then filed, the proof theretofore submitted, if satisfactory in all other respects, may be accepted.

5. Where final proof is taken before an officer not named in the advertisement, it may be accepted if otherwise sufficient, provided the proof is taken at the time and place designated in the printed notice, or within 10 days thereafter under the exceptions provided in rule 1; and provided further, that both the officer advertised to take such proof and the officer taking same shall officially certify that no protest was at any time filed before him against the claimant's entry.

6. Evidence of declaration of intention to become a citizen of the United States or other evidence necessary to establish citizenship of foreign-born applicants should be received only when under the hand and seal of the proper officer of the court in which such papers appear of record. However, where it is shown that the judicial record has been lost or destroyed, proof of citizenship in such cases may be established under the rules governing the introduction of secondary evidence.

7. When proof is made before the register or receiver and the final certificate does not bear the date of proof, the register must indorse on the back of the final certificate of entry, at the time of its issuance, a brief statement of the reason for the delay in issuance of final papers, the indorsement to be in each instance signed by the register. If the delay was caused by failure of applicant to tender the money or other consideration at the time of making proof, additional evidence must be furnished showing that the claimant had not, at date of certificate, transferred the land, which evidence may consist of his affidavit taken before some officer authorized to administer oaths. In cases where it appears that the delay in issuance of final papers was not the fault of the claimant, the proofs being otherwise regular, the Commissioner of the General Land Office may in his discretion pass same to patent.

8. When proof is made before any officer other than the register or receiver a reasonable time will be allowed for the transmission of papers to the local office, and if a longer interval is shown between date of proof and date of certificate, if the proof is otherwise sufficient and the record contains no reason for the delay, the register will indorse upon the back of the final certificate the statement required by rule 7; and if such delay was the fault of the claimant, require the additional evidence prescribed by rule 7.

9. Where final proof has been accepted by the local officers prior to promulgation of this circular, if in other respects satisfactory except that the register and receiver have failed to submit an explanation as to delay in issuance of final papers as required by rule 7, the Commissioner of the General Land Office may, if in his opinion the facts and circumstances so warrant, pass the cases to patent in the absence of other objection.

ADDITIONAL HOMESTEAD ENTRIES—ACTS OF APRIL 28, 1904, AND MARCH 2, 1889

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., July 27, 1907.[2]

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Office.

Gentlemen: (1) Section 2 of the act of April 28, 1904 (33 Stat. 527), is substantially a reenactment of section 5 of the act of March 2, [2] See circulars of Sept. 11, 1908, p. 540, Oct. 2, 1912 (No. 177), p. 546, and Mar. 14, 1924 (No. 920), p. 602.

1889 (25 Stat. 854), only modified so as to apply to entries for less than 160 acres each, made after the date of the act (April 28, 1904), as well as those made before, and provides for an additional entry of land which shall be contiguous to the land embraced in the original entry, for which the final proof of residence and cultivation made on the original entry shall be sufficient, but of which no party shall have the benefit who does not, on the date of his application therefor, own and reside upon the land covered by his original entry, and which shall not be permitted, or if permitted shall be canceled, if the original should fail for any reason prior to patent or should appear to be illegal or fraudulent.

(2) Applicants for additional entries under this section will be required to produce evidence that they own and reside upon the land embraced in their original entries, which shall be described by legal subdivisions and by reference to the number and date of the original entry, the evidence to consist of their own affidavits corroborated by the affidavits of two disinterested witnesses, executed before any officer authorized to administer oaths in such cases in the county, parish, or land district in which the land applied for is situated, under section 2294, United States Revised Statutes, as amended by the act of March 4, 1904 (33 Stat. 59). These affidavits and the homestead application and statements required to be made in connection therewith may be upon form No. 4–018.

(3) Section 3 of the act of April 28, 1904, forbids the acquisition of title to lands entered under that act through commutation under the provisions of section 2301 of the Revised Statutes, and it follows that additional entries can not be made under section 2 of that act by persons who have, prior to their applications to make such additional entries, commuted their original entries; nor can title be acquired to lands embraced in such additional entries by the commutation of the original entries after the additional entries have been allowed. Any person who commutes his original entry after he has made an additional entry will forfeit his right to acquire title under his additional entry.

(4) Section 6 of the act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. 854), permits the entry, by a person otherwise qualified, who prior to the date of his application for additional entry has made homestead entry, submitted final proof thereon, and received receiver's final receipt, for a quantity of land less than 160 acres, of so much additional land, either contiguous or noncontiguous to the land originally entered by him, as shall not with it exceed a total of 160 acres.

(5) Applicants for additional homestead entries under this section must file applications to enter on the proper homestead form so modified as to describe, by number, section, township, and range, the original entry and give the date of issuance of receiver's final receipt thereupon. They are not required to show that they are still the owners or occupants of the land originally entered.

(6) Upon allowance of the additional entry, they will be required within the period prescribed by the homestead laws and regulations to establish residence upon the land entered and to reside upon and cultivate the land for the period required by the homestead laws, and within the period prescribed by statute, to submit proof of such residence and cultivation as in other homestead cases.

Very respectfully,

Gentlemen: Section 3 of instructions approved July 27, 1907 (36 L. D. 46), is hereby amended to read as follows:

(3) Section 3 of the act of April 28, 1904, forbids the acquisition of title to lands entered under that act through commutation, under the provisions of section 2301 of the Revised Statutes: Therefore, if the original homestead entry is commuted, no title will be passed to the entryman for the additional entry until he submits proof in the manner required by the homestead laws, showing that he has resided upon and cultivated the land included in the original entry for a period of five years or that he has resided upon and cultivated the land in the additional entry for such period as added to that of his residence and cultivation of the land in the original entry will make the full period of five years. ONE QUARTER SECTION—SECTION 2289, REVISED STATUTES

Instructions

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, December 1, 1908.

Commissioner Dennett to Registers and Receivers:

On and after January 1, 1909, the following rule will be in force and effect:

The term " one quarter section " as used in section 2289, United States Revised Statutes, is to be understood as meaning 160 acres. Therefore, an entry under said section must be limited to approximately 160 acres. Where such application is filed for lands in excess of 160 acres, it may be allowed if the area in excess of 160 acres is not greater than the deficiency would be if the smallest legal subdivision were eliminated.

Instructions and decisions in conflict with above rule will not be followed after December 31, 1908, and entries made thereafter must conform to said rule.

The above rule is adopted in view of the following considerations. In the cases of John W. Douglas (10 L. D. 116) and Wood v. Bick (13 L. D. 520), and other cases, it was held that preemption and homestead claims may embrace lands in excess of 160 acres if the same be for what is in such decisions termed a technical quarter section. In the said case of Douglas, a preemption claim, the lands consisted of six lots in the northeastern portion of the section aggregating an area of 201.05 acres. Following said decisions, this department has permitted such entries to be made for the entire portion of a section, so called a technical quarter section. It is not believed, however, that it is accurate to use the term, "a technical quarter section," in designating an aggregation of lots surveyed and numbered simply because they lie within a certain portion of the section. A number of townships in various places are so surveyed that the section lines in the north and west tiers have to be elongated to reach preexisting exteriors causing the areas of these fractional sections to aggregate as high as 2,000 acres each, and in such cases the so-called quarter sections or "technical" quarter sections run above 800 acres each. There are many townships in which so-called quarter sections run considerably above 200 acres. Sometimes these so-called quarter sections contain 6 lots, 2 of 20 acres each and the other 4 of 40 acres each. It will be seen that in such cases an even 160 acres may be obtained, and it appears that entries should be limited to that area where possible.

It is clear that Congress, in enacting the homestead law, intended to allow ordinary homestead entries to embrace only 160 acres. The language is:

> Shall be entitled to enter one quarter-section or less quantity * * * subject to pre-emption at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre; or eighty acres or less of such unappropriated lands at two dollars and fifty cents per acre, to be located in a body in conformity to the legal subdivisions of the public lands.

It is also provided in said section that any person owning and residing on land may make an entry under said section for lands contiguous to his land, which shall not, with the lands so already owned and occupied, exceed in the aggregate "160 acres."

The said section was amended by section 5 of the act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 1095), so as to provide that no person who is the proprietor of more than "160 acres of land in any State or Territory shall acquire any right under the homestead law."

Section 2306, Revised Statutes, also provides for the making of an additional entry where the quantity theretofore entered is less than 160 acres. In the act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. 854), sections 5 and 6, provision is made for the allowance of additional homestead entries to an aggregate area of 160 acres. A like provision is also in section 2 of the act of April 28, 1904 (33 Stat. 527).

It seems clear that Congress intended to grant the right to enter the quantity of 160 acres and not a particular part of any section regardless of area. A section of land contains 640 acres; a quarter section contains 160 acres. There seems no reason why an excess of that area should be allowed simply because the lands fall in a portion of the section designated as a technical quarter section. Where the lands are divided into subdivisions and given lot numbers, it is not believed that the term "quarter section" can properly be applied.

Very respectfully,

FRED DENNETT, Commissioner.

CIRCULAR No. 46

INSTRUCTIONS RELATING TO CONSTRUCTIVE RESIDENCE

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., August 18, 1911.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: Below is quoted the instructions dated August 4, 1911, from the Acting Secretary of the Interior, in regard to constructive residence during the first six months of entries:

> In the matter of proof submitted under the homestead law, it seems that a practice has existed according to entrymen, where residence is begun within six months following the date of the entry, credit for residence beginning with the date of the entry. The result is that where a party takes up an actual residence just at the expiration of the six months following the making of his entry, he is accorded a constructive residence for the intervening six months and is thus permitted to secure title on proof of residence for a period of only four years and six months.
> There is clearly no statutory authority recognizing the period of constructive residence referred to. On the contrary, the statute is specific in requiring five years' residence. By section 2291 of the Revised Statutes it is provided that—
> "No certificate, however, shall be given, or patent issued therefore, until the expiration of five years from the date of such entry; and if at the expiration of such time, or at any time within two years thereafter, the person making such entry; or if he be dead, his widow; or in case of her death, his heirs or devisee; or in case of a widow making such entry, her heirs or devisee, in case of her death, proves by two credible witnesses that he, she, or they have resided upon or cultivated the same for the term of five years immediately succeeding the time of filing the affidavit, and makes affidavit that no part of such land has been alienated, except as provided in section twenty-two hundred and eighty-eight, and that he, she, or they will bear true allegiance to the Government of the United States; then, in such case, he, she, or they, if at that time citizens of the United States, shall be entitled to a patent, as in other cases provided by law. That the proof of residence, occupation, or cultivation, the affidavit of nonalienation, and the oath of allegiance, required to be made by section twenty-two hundred and ninety-one of the Revised Statutes, may be made before the judge, or, in his absence, before the clerk, of any court of record of the county and State, or district and territory, in which the lands are situated; and if said lands are situated in any unorganized county, such proof may be made in a similar manner in any adjacent county in said State or Territory; and the proof, affidavit, and oath, when so made, and duly subscribed, shall have the same force and effect as if made before the register or receiver of the proper land-district; and the same shall be transmitted by such judge, or the clerk of his court, to the register and the receiver, with the fee and charges allowed by law to him; and the register and the receiver shall be entitled to the same fees for examining and approving said testimony as are now allowed by law for taking the same. That if any witness making such proof, or the said applicant making such affidavit or oath, swears falsely as to any material matter contained in said proof, affidavits, or oaths, the said false swearing being willful and corrupt, he shall be deemed guilty of perjury, and shall be liable to the same pains and penalties as if he had sworn falsely before the register."

Thereunder a homestead claim could only be initiated by entry, and, as a consequence, it is provided that no patent shall issue until the expiration of five years from date of the entry, and therein it is also plainly required that the party seeking to secure patent shall prove residence for the term of five years.

By the third section of the act of May 14, 1880 (21 Stat., 141), it was provided:

"That any settler who has settled, or who shall hereafter settle, on any of the public lands of the United States, whether surveyed or unsurveyed, with the intention of claiming the same under the homestead laws, shall be allowed the same time to file his homestead application and perfect his original entry in the United States land office as is now allowed to settlers under the preemption laws to put their claims on record, and his right shall relate back to the date of settlement, the same as if he settled under the preemption laws."

By this section for the first time the entryman's right was made to relate back to the time of his settlement, and while a party can now claim credit for a period of residence preceding the allowance of his entry, yet the 5-year period of residence required by the homestead law is in nowise affected thereby.

The practice of according credit for constructive residence covering the period of six months following the allowance of the entry is, perhaps, due to an erroneous interpretation of section 2297 of the Revised Statutes, by which section it is provided that on proof to the satisfaction of the register and receiver that a person had actually changed his residence or abandoned the land covered by his homestead entry for more than six months at any one time, then, in that event, the land so entered shall revert to the Government. While said section may protect a homesteader from contest for abandonment for a period of six months following the allowance of his entry, it is clearly not authority for according the entryman credit for constructive residence during that period.

After most careful and mature consideration of this matter I feel it my duty to disregard the erroneous practice heretofore obtaining in your office and to direct that you exact of homestead entryman proof of residence for the full period of five years, as required by the statute, before the same can be approved as a basis for the issuance of patent thereon. Because of the long practice heretofore prevailing, I believe it right and proper to give ample time for notice of the contemplated change before putting the same into effect. I have, therefore, to advise you that in all instances where ordinary final proof is submitted under the homestead laws on or after the 1st day of December next, the law as above interpreted be followed.

You will cause all registers and receivers to be immediately advised hereof.

Very respectfully,

Samuel Adams, Acting Secretary.

You are directed to carefully examine the above instructions, and you will be strictly governed thereby.

Very respectfully,

S. V. Proudfit, Assistant Commissioner.

INSTRUCTIONS RELATIVE TO RESIDENCE WHILE THE LAND IS COVERED BY A PREEXISTING ENTRY

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, August 21, 1911.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: Under instructions from the department dated September 24, 1910 (39 L. D. 230), it was held that (syllabus)—"Credit for residence will not be allowed during the time the land is not subject to entry by the person maintaining residence."

The above instructions were modified by the department under date of May 17, 1911; in the ex parte homestead case of Martha Sullivan, formerly Martha Feigum (unpublished), Lemmon series 020673, wherein it was held that the instructions of September 24, 1910, should not be considered retroactive so as to defeat proof which was offered and accepted in accordance with the practice theretofore prevailing.

The instructions in question were further modified by the department under date of August 7, 1911, in a letter to this office, wherein it is held that a contestant who established his residence and also filed his contest prior to September 24, 1910, and maintained his residence, may receive credit for the time he resided upon the land before the cancellation of the entry which he contested.

You will exercise care in adjudicating claims that are governed by the above instructions.

Very respectfully,

S. V. PROUDFIT, Acting Commissioner.

ENLARGED HOMESTEADS—ACT OF FEBRUARY 19, 1909 (35 STAT. 639), AND JUNE 17, 1910 (36 STAT. 531)

INSTRUCTIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., April 2, 1912.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices, Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming.

GENTLEMEN: Under date of March 22, 1912, the following instructions were issued by the department to this office:

The COMMISSIONER OF THE GENERAL LAND OFFICE.

SIR: I have your informal memorandum dated March 2, 1912, submitted in connection with a letter prepared in your office for my signature (P. R. S. 1071), addressed to Hon. Charles N. Pray, House of Representatives, the memorandum being in full as follows:

---

[3] Modified by Circular No. 309, p. 557.
[4] See Circulars Nos. 388, p. 563, and 746, p. 584.

> It is now held by the General Land Office that in cases such as are discussed in the accompanying letter an entry under the enlarged homestead act for the full area of 320 acres may be allowed when the deficit in area of the former perfected entry, under section 2289, Revised Statutes, was such as would entitle the entryman, under the rule of approximation, to make an additional entry under section 6 of the act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. 854), of a legal subdivision of 40 acres.

Differently stated, reference being had to the aforesaid draft of letter, this is the equivalent of saying that it is now held as a rule of administration in the General Land Office that in cases where a homestead entry has been allowed and perfected, under section 2289 of the Revised Statutes, for a quantity of land less than 160 acres, the entryman of the perfected homestead may make further or additional entry for 320 acres of land under the enlarged homestead act of February 19, 1909 (35 Stat. 639), in all cases where such deficiency would entitle him to make an additional entry under section 6 of the act of March 2, 1889, for 40 acres of land.

That this is an erroneous view of the law seems clear. The enlarged homestead act permits the entry of 320 acres or less of land by any person "who is a qualified entryman under the homestead laws of the United States." Section 6 of said act of March 2, 1889, qualified a person who has entered "a quantity of land less than 160 acres," and who is otherwise within its provisions, to enter under the homestead laws "so much additional land as added to the quantity previously so entered by him shall not exceed 160 acres." This does not restore such person to the full qualifications of a homestead entryman, but confers a special and limited privilege—limited to the right to make an additional entry for lands of area to be measured by the difference in acreage between 160 acres, the full homestead right given by section 2289 of the Revised Statutes, and the number of acres actually entered thereunder. In other words, the right granted by the act of March 2, 1889, is the right to enter additional land in amount limited to meet the deficiency existing between that originally entered under the homestead laws and 160 acres. The rule of approximation for administrative convenience may in actual practice either enlarge or reduce this right, but this does not affect the construction of the statute.

So the right of additional entry given by the act of March 2, 1889, is necessarily confined by its terms to an acreage wholly inconsistent with the theory that 320 acres may be entered under the enlarged homestead act. Nothing in the enlarged homestead act precludes the exercise of such right of additional entry within the area designated for entry under that act, but the grant of additional right is not thereby enlarged as to such cases. It is such right only as might be exercised elsewhere upon the public domain of the United States subject to homestead entry.

This question was presented in a somewhat different form in the case of ex parte Saavi Storaasli, decided by this department July 18, 1911 (40 L. D. 193). That case involved the right of Storaasli to make an entry of 320 acres or to retain an entry of 160 acres of land he had been allowed to make under the enlarged homestead act. It appeared that he had theretofore made and perfected an entry under section 2289 of the Revised Statutes for 157.33 acres, and he maintained his claim of right to make the enlarged homestead upon the ground that he was in that behalf a qualified entryman by reason of the deficiency of 2.67 acres of his original homestead and consequent additional entry privilege accorded by the act of March 2, 1889. That claim was denied upon the ground that—

> The fact that the land thus patented lacked a little more than 2 acres of making 160 acres did not give him the status of a qualified homestead entryman or the right to enter under the enlarged homestead act an additional 320 acres of land.

It was not intended by this to say, even inferentially, that the case would have been different if the deficiency in the original entry had been large enough under the act of March 2, 1889, as administered, to entitle him to an additional homestead entry for 40 acres of land. That case was decided upon its own facts. The discussion was confined to such facts, and nothing found therein justifies the rule which you say now obtains in your office with reference to this question.

I have to direct that in the further administration of the enlarged homestead act your office conform to the views herein expressed.

Very respectfully,

SAMUEL ADAMS, First Assistant Secretary.

The foregoing instructions supersede any former practice or instructions, and you will be governed accordingly.

Very respectfully,

FRED DENNETT, Commissioner.

ADDITIONAL HOMESTEAD ENTRIES—SECTION 2, ACT OF APRIL 28, 1904

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, October 2, 1912.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: Referring to circulars of May 20, 1904 (32 L. D. 639), July 27, 1907 (36 L. D. 46), and September 11, 1908 (37 L. D. 160), concerning additional entries under section 2 of the act of April 28, 1904 (33 Stat. 527), the following additional rule is hereby announced:

An applicant to make entry under this section, in each case wherein final (not commutation) proof upon the original entry has theretofore been made, will not be required to make further proof of compliance with law as to residence and cultivation as to the additional entry, but the applicant will be required to begin, within twenty days from the filing of his application, publication of notice thereof, at his own expense, in a newspaper to be designated by the register as of general circulation in the vicinity of the land, and to be the nearest thereto. Such publication must cover a period of 30 days, during which time similar notice of the application must be posted in the local land office. The notice must describe the land included in and give the date of the application, and state that the purpose thereof is to allow all persons claiming the land adversely or desiring to show it to be mineral in character an opportunity to file objection to the application with the local land officers for the land district in which the land is situate, and to establish their interest therein or the mineral character thereof.

In cases where the additional entry is made prior to the publication of notice of intention to submit proof upon the original entry, and proof upon both entries is made at the same time, both the original and additional entries must be described in the published notice of intention to submit proof and in the notice posted in the local land office.

In cases where proof is submitted upon the original and additional entries separately, the published and posted notices usual in homestead cases will be required.

Very respectfully,

FRED DENNETT, Commissioner.

CIRCULAR NO. 227

SETTLEMENT PRIOR TO JUNE 6, 1912—PROOF UNDER OLD LAW—ACT OF MARCH 4, 1913

INSTRUCTIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, April 3, 1913.

Registers and receivers, United States Land Offices:

Your attention is directed to the following provision in the deficiency act of March 4, 1913 (37 Stat. 912, 925).

> That any person entitled to enter lands under the homestead laws, who may have established residence upon unsurveyed lands (which were subject to homestead entry) prior to the passage and approval of the act of June sixth, nineteen hundred and twelve, entitled "An act to amend section twenty-two hundred and ninety-one and section twenty-two hundred and ninety-seven of the Revised Statutes relating to homesteads," may perfect his proof for such lands under said act of June sixth, nineteen hundred and twelve, or under the law existing at the time of the establishment of such residence, as he may elect, such election to be signified to the Department of the Interior in accordance with rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary.

The effect of this legislation is to confer upon those qualified to make homestead entry, who, prior to June 6, 1912, settled upon unsurveyed public lands of the character subject to such entry, the rights conferred by the act of June 6, 1912 (37 Stat. 123), upon those who, on that date, had unperfected entries of record. There is nothing in the act that modifies or changes existing law, with reference to the timely assertion of settlement claims after the filing of the plat of survey in the local office. Entries entitled to the benefits of the act under consideration will, when made, be adjudicated as provided by the circular of February 13, 1913 (41 L. D. 479),[a] with reference to homestead entries made prior to June 6, 1912.

Where a proof heretofore submitted upon an entry, made since June 6, 1912, shows settlement to have been made upon unsurveyed lands prior to that date, but has been rejected by you for failure to show the cultivation required by said act of June 6, 1912, you will, if the papers are still in your office, reconsider the case with a view to possible acceptance of the proof under the old law.

Respectfully,

Fred Dennett, Commissioner.

Approved.

Circular No. 254

REVISED REGULATIONS UNDER THE KINKAID ACTS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., July 17 1913.[5]

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: Section 7 of the act of Congress approved May 29, 1908 (35 Stat. 465), amended section 2 of the act of April 28, 1904 (33 Stat. 547), commonly known as the Kinkaid Act, to read as follows:

> Sec. 2. That entrymen under the homestead laws of the United States within the territory above described who own and occupy the lands heretofore entered by them may, under the provisions of this act and subject to its conditions, enter other lands contiguous to their said homestead entry, which shall not, with the land so already entered, owned, and occupied, exceed in the aggregate six hundred and forty acres; and residence continued and improvements made upon the original homestead, subsequent to the making of additional entry, shall be accepted as equivalent to actual residence and improvements made upon the additional land so entered, but final entry shall not be allowed of such additional land until five years after first entering the same, except in favor of entrymen entitled to credit for military service.

This amendment did not affect sections 1 and 3 of the Kinkaid Act, which read as follows:

> Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That from and after sixty days after the approval of this act entries made under the homestead laws in the State of Nebraska west and north of the following line, to wit: Beginning at a point on the boundary line between the States of South Dakota and Nebraska where the first guide meridian west of the sixth principal meridian strikes said boundary; thence running south along said guide meridian to its intersection with the fourth standard parallel north of the base line between the States of Nebraska and Kansas; thence west along said fourth standard parallel to its intersection with the second guide meridian west of the sixth principal meridian; thence south along said guide meridian to its intersection with the third standard parallel north of the said base line; thence west along said third standard parallel to its intersection with the range line between ranges twenty-five and twenty-six west of the sixth principal meridian; thence south along said line to its intersection with the second standard parallel north of the said base line; thence west on said standard parallel to its intersection with the range line between ranges thirty and thirty-one west; thence south along said line to its intersection with the boundary line between the States of Nebraska and Kansas, shall not exceed in area six hundred and forty acres, and shall be as nearly compact in form as possible, and in no event over two miles in extreme length: Provided, That there shall be excluded from the provisions of this act such lands within the territory herein described as in the opinion of the Secretary of the Interior it may be reasonably practicable to irrigate under the national irrigation law, or by private enterprise; and that said Secretary shall, prior to the date above mentioned, designate and exclude from entry under this act the lands, particularly along the North Platte River, which in his opinion it may be possible to irrigate as aforesaid; and shall thereafter, from time to time, open to entry under this act any of the lands so excluded which, upon further investigation, he may conclude can not be practically irrigated in the manner aforesaid.

SEC. 3. That the fees and commissions on all entries under this act shall be uniformly the same as those charged under the present law for a maximum entry at the minimum price. That the commutation provisions of the homestead law shall not apply to entries under this act, and at the time of making final proof the entryman must prove affirmatively that he has placed upon the lands entered permanent improvements of the value of not less than one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre for each acre included in his entry: Provided, That a former homestead entry shall not be a bar to the entry under the provisiions of this act of a tract which, together with the former entry, shall not exceed six hundred and forty acres: Provided, That any former homestead entryman who shall be entitled to an additional entry under section two of this act shall have for ninety days after the passage of this act the preferential right to make additional entry as provided in said section.

All general instruction heretofore issued under this act and the supplemental act of March 2, 1907 (34 Stat. 1224), including the circular of December 18, 1912 (41 L. D. 492), are hereby modified and reissued as follows:

1. It is directed by the law that in that portion of the State of Nebraska lying west and north of the line described therein, upon and after June 28, 1904, except for such lands as might be thereafter and prior to said date excluded under the proviso contained in the first section thereof, homestead entries may be made for and not to exceed 640 acres, the same to be in as nearly a compact form as possible, and must not in any event exceed 2 miles in extreme length.

2. Under the provisions of the second section, a person who within the described territory has made entry prior to May 29, 1908, under the homestead laws of the United States, and who now owns and occupies the lands theretofore entered by him, and is not otherwise disqualified, may make an additional entry of a quantity of land contiguous to his said homestead entry, which, added to the area of the original entry, shall make an aggregate area not to exceed 640 acres; and he will not be required to reside upon the additional land so entered, but residence continued and improvements made upon the original homestead entry subsequent to the making of the additional entry will be accepted as equivalent to actual residence and improvements on the land covered by the additional entry. But residence either upon the original homestead or the additional land entered must be continued for the period of five years from the date of the additional entry, except that entrymen may claim and receive credit on that period for the length of their military service, not exceeding four years.

3. A person who has a homestead entry upon which final proof has not been submitted, and who makes additional entry under the provisions of section 2 of the act, will be required to submit his final proof on the original entry within the statutory period therefor, and final proof upon the additional entry must also be submitted within the statutory period from date of that entry.

4. Such additional entry must be for contiguous lands, and the tracts embraced therein must be in as compact a form as possible; and the extreme length of the combined entries must not in any event exceed 2 miles.

5. In accepting entries under this act compliance with the requirement thereof as to compactness of form should be determined by the relative location of the vacant and unappropriated lands, rather than by the quality and desirability of the desired tracts.

6. By the first proviso of section 3 any person who made a homestead entry either within the territory above described or elsewhere prior to his application for entry under this act, if no other disqualification exists, will be allowed to make an additional entry for a quantity of land which, added to the area of the land embraced in the former entry, shall not exceed 640 acres, but residence upon and cultivation of the additional land will be required to be made and proved as in ordinary homestead entries. But the application of one who has an existing entry and seeks to make an additional entry under said proviso can not be allowed unless he has either abandoned his former entry or has so perfected his right thereto as to be under no further obligation to reside thereon; and his qualifying status in these and other respects should be clearly set forth in his application.

7. Under said act no bar is interposed to the making of second homesteads for the full area of 640 acres by parties entitled thereto under existing laws, and applications therefor will be considered under the instructions of the respective laws under which they are made.

8. Upon final proof, which may be made after five years and within seven years from date of entry, the entryman must prove affirmatively that he has placed upon the lands entered permanent improvements of the value of not less than $1.25 per acre for each acre, and such proof must also show residence upon and cultivation of the land for the 5-year period as in ordinary homestead entries, but credit for military service may be claimed and given under the supplemental act mentioned above. By the act of June 6, 1912 (37 Stat. 123), the period of residence necessary to be shown in order to entitle a person to patent under the homestead laws is reduced from five to three years, and the period within which a homestead entry may be completed is reduced from seven to five years. For information and instructions under that act reference is made to Circular No. 208, of February 13, 1913.[a]

9. In the making of final proofs the homestead-proof form will be used, modified when necessary in case of additional entries made under the provisions of section 2.

[a] Circular No. 208 of Feb. 13, 1913 (41 L. D. 479) was superseded by Circular No. 278 of Nov. 1, 1913 (42 L. D. 511). Neither circular is carried in this publication. Later instructions under the three-year homestead law are contained in Circular No. 541, p. 622.

10. It is provided by section 3 that the fees and commissions on all entries under the act shall be uniformly the same as those charged under the present law for a maximum entry at the minimum price, viz: At the time the application is made, $14, and at the time of making final proof, $4, to be payable without regard to the area embraced in the entry.

11. In case that the combined area of the subdivisions selected should, upon applying the rule of approximation thereto, be found to exceed in area the aggregate of 640 acres, the entryman will be required to pay the minimum price per acre for the excess in area.

12. Entries under this act are not subject to the commutation provisions of the homestead law.

13. In the second proviso of section 3 entrymen who had made their entries prior to April 28, 1904, were allowed a preferential right for 90 days thereafter to make the additional entry allowed by section 2 of the law.

14. The supplemental act approved March 2, 1907 (34 Stat. 1224), reads as follows:

> Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That all qualified entrymen who, during the period beginning on the twenty-eighth day of April, nineteen hundred and four, and ending on the twenty-eighth day of June, nineteen hundred and four, made homestead entry in the State of Nebraska within the area affected by an act entitled "An act to amend the homestead laws as to certain unappropriated and unreserved public lands in Nebraska," approved April twenty-eighth, nineteen hundred and four, shall be entitled to all the benefits of said act as if their entries had been made prior or subsequent to the above-mentioned dates, subject to all existing rights.
> SEC. 2. That the benefits of military service in the Army or Navy of the United States granted under the homestead laws shall apply to entries made under the aforesaid act approved April twenty-eighth, nineteen hundred and four, and all homestead entries hereafter made within the territory described in the aforesaid act shall be subject to all the provisions thereof.
> SEC. 3. That within the territory described in said act approved April twenty-eighth, nineteen hundred and four, it shall be lawful for the Secretary of the Interior to order into market and sell under the provisions of the laws providing for the sale of isolated or disconnected tracts or parcels of land any isolated or disconnected tract not exceeding three quarter sections in area: Provided, That not more than three quarter sections shall be sold to any one person.

ISOLATED OR DISCONNECTED TRACTS

GENERAL REGULATIONS

15. The sale of isolated tracts within the area affected by the terms of this act is to be governed by the provisions of the acts of March 2, 1907, section 3 (34 Stat. 1224), and March 28, 1912 (37 Stat. 77), and all sales shall be made in the manner and form hereinafter provided.

16. Applications to have isolated tracts ordered into market must be filed with the register and receiver of the local land office in the district wherein the lands are situated.

17. Applicants must show by their affidavits, corroborated by at least two witnesses, that the land contains no salines, coal, or other minerals; the amount, kind, and value of timber or stone thereon, if any; whether the land is occupied, and if so the nature of the occupancy; for what purpose the land is chiefly valuable; why it is desired that same be sold; that applicant desires to purchase the land for his own individual use and actual occupation and not for speculative purposes, and that he has not heretofore purchased, under section 2455, Revised Statutes, or the amendments thereto, isolated tracts the area of which, when added to the area now applied for, will exceed approximately 480 acres, and that he is a citizen of the United States. If applicant has heretofore purchased lands under the provisions of the acts relating to isolated tracts, same must be described in the application by subdivision, section, township, and range.

18. The affidavits of applicants to have isolated tracts ordered into market, and of their corroborating witnesses, may be executed before any officer having a seal and authorized to administer oaths in the county or land district in which the tracts described in the application are situated.

19. The officer before whom such affidavits are executed will cause each applicant and his witnesses to fully answer the questions contained upon the accompanying form and, after the answers to the questions therein contained have been reduced to writing, to sign and swear to same before him.

20. No sale will be authorized upon the application of a person who has purchased, under section 2455, Revised Statutes, or the amendments thereto, any lands the area of which, when added to the area applied for, shall exceed approximately 480 acres.

21. Only one tract may be included in an application for sale, and no tract exceeding approximately 480 acres in area will be ordered into the market.

22. No tract of land will be deemed isolated and ordered into the market unless, at the time application is filed, the said tract has been subject to homestead entry for at least two years after the surrounding lands have been entered, filed upon, or sold by the Government, except in cases where some extraordinary reason is advanced sufficient, in the opinion of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, to warrant waiving this restriction.

23. The local officers will on receipt of applications note same upon the tract books of their office, and if the applications are not properly executed, or not corroborated, they will reject the same, subject to the right of appeal. Applications found to be properly executed and corroborated will be disposed of as follows:

(a) If all or any portion of the land applied for is not subject to disposition under the provisions of paragraph 22, or by reason of some prior appropriation of the land, the application will be forwarded to the General Land Office with the monthly returns, accompanied by a report as to the status of the land applied for and the surrounding lands, and any other objection to the offering known to the local officers. Upon determining what portion, if any, of the lands applied for should be ordered into the market, the Commissioner of the General Land Office will call upon the local officers and the chief of field division for the report, as next provided for, concerning the value of the land.

(b) If all the land applied for is vacant, and not withdrawn or otherwise reserved from such disposition, and the status of the surrounding lands is such that a sale might properly be ordered under paragraph 22, the local officers, after noting the application on their records, will promptly forward the same to the chief of field division for report as to the value of the land and any objection he may wish to interpose to the sale, and the register will make proper notations on his schedule of serial numbers, in the event the application is not returned in time to be forwarded with the returns for the month in which it is filed. Upon receipt of the application from the chief of field division, with his report thereon, the local officers will attach their report as to the status of the land and that surrounding, the value of the land applied for, if they have any knowledge concerning the same, and any objection to the sale known to them, and forward the papers to the General Land Office with the returns for the current month.

24. An application for sale under these instructions will not segregate the land from entry or other disposal, for such lands may be entered at any time prior to the receipt in the local land office of the letter authorizing the sale and its notation of record. Should all of the land applied for be entered or filed upon while the application for sale is in the hands of the chief of field division, the local officers will so advise him and request the return of the application for forwarding to the General Land Office. Likewise should any or all of the land be entered or filed upon while the application for sale is pending before the General Land Office, the local officers will so report by special letter.

25. Upon receipt of letter authorizing the sale, the local officers will at once examine the records to see whether the tract, or any part thereof, has been entered. If the examination of the record shows that all of the tract has been entered or filed upon, the local officers will not promulgate the letter authorizing the sale, but will report the facts to the General Land Office, whereupon the letter authorizing the sale will be revoked. If a part of the land has been entered, they will so report and note on the tract book opposite such portion of the tract as is found to be clear that sale has been authorized, giving the date of the letter. Thereupon the land will be considered segregated for the purpose of sale. The minimum price set by the order for sale should also be noted on the records. In the event no sale is had, the price so noted will be effective as provided by Circular No. 212, dated March 11, 1913.

The local officers will prepare a notice for publication on the form hereinafter given, describing the land found to be unentered and fixing a date for the sale, which date must be far enough in advance to afford ample time for publication of the notice and for the affidavit of the publisher to be filed in the local land office prior to the date of the sale. The register will also designate a newspaper as published nearest to the land described in the notice. The notice will be sent to the applicant with instructions that he must publish the same at his expense in the newspaper designated by the register. Payment for publication must be made by applicant directly to the publisher, and in case the money for publication is transmitted to the receiver he must issue receipt therefor and immediately return the money to the applicant by his official check, with instruction to arrange for the publication of the notice as hereinbefore provided.

If, on the day set for the sale, the affidavit of the publisher, showing proper publication, has not been filed in the local land office, the register and receiver will report that fact to this office and will not proceed with the sale.

26. [b] Notice must be published once a week for 5 consecutive weeks (or 30 consecutive days, if in a daily paper) immediately prior to date of sale, but a sufficient time should elapse between the date of last publication and date of sale to enable the affidavit of the publisher to be filed in the local land office. The notice must be published in the paper designated by the register as nearest the land described in the application. The register and receiver will cause a similar notice to be posted in the local land office, such notice to remain posted during the entire period of publication. The publisher of the newspaper must file in the local land office, prior to the date fixed for sale, evidence that publication has been had for the required period, which evidence may consist of the affidavit of the publisher, accompanied by copy of the notice published.

27. At the time and place fixed for the sale the register or receiver will read the notice of sale, and allow all qualified persons an opportunity to bid. Bids may be made through an agent personally present at the sale as well as by the bidder in person. The register or receiver conducting the sale will keep a record showing the names of the bidders and the amount bid by each. Such record will be transmitted to this office with the other papers in the case.

The sale will be kept open for one hour after the time mentioned in the published notice. At the expiration of the hour, and after all bids have been offered, the local officers will declare the sale closed and announce the name of the highest bidder, who will be declared the purchaser, and he must immediately deposit the amount bid by him with the receiver, and within 10 days thereafter furnish evidence of citizenship, nonmineral and nonsaline affidavit, Form 4–062, or nonsaline affidavit, Form 4–062A, as the case may require. Upon receipt of the proof, and payment having been made for the lands, the local officers will issue the proper final papers.

28. No lands will be sold at less than the price fixed by law, nor at less than $1.25 per acre, but a minimum price will be set by the letter ordering the sale, based upon the report of the chief of field division. Should any of the lands offered be not sold, the same will not be regarded as subject to private cash entry (act of March 2, 1889, 25 Stat. 854), but may again be offered for sale in the manner herein provided.

29. After each offering where the lands offered are not sold, the local officers will report by letter to the General Land Office. No report by letter will be made when the offering results in a sale, but the local officers will issue cash papers as in ordinary cash entries, noting thereon the date of the letter authorizing the offering, and report the same in their current monthly returns. With the papers must also be forwarded the affidavit of publisher showing due publication, and the register's certificate of posting. In all cases where no sale is had the land will, in the absence of other objection, become subject to entry or filing at once, without action by this office.

(Act of March 28, 1912, omitted.)

REGULATIONS UNDER FIRST PROVISO TO ACT OF MARCH 28, 1912

The first proviso to the act of March 28, 1912, authorizes the sale of legal subdivisions not exceeding one quarter section, the greater part of which is mountainous or too rough for cultivation, upon the application of any person who owns or holds a valid entry of lands adjoining such tract, and regardless of the fact that such tract may not be actually isolated by the entry or other disposition of surrounding lands. It is left entirely to the discretion of the land department to determine whether a tract shall be sold, and it will not be practicable to prescribe a set of rules governing the conditions which would render a tract susceptible to sale under the proviso. Applications will be disposed of by you in accordance with the "General Regulations," except paragraph 22, which is not applicable, and no tract exceeding 160 acres in area will be ordered into the market under the proviso. Applications may be made upon the form provided (4–008c), and printed herein, properly modified as necessitated by the terms of the proviso. In addition the applicant or applicants must furnish proof of his or their ownership of the whole title in adjoining land, or that he holds a valid entry embracing adjoining land, in connection with which entry he has fully met the requirements of law; also detailed evidence as to the character of the land applied for, the extent to which it is cultivable, and the conditions which render the greater portion unfit for cultivation; also a description of any and all lands theretofore applied for under the proviso or purchased under section 2455 or the amendments thereto. This evidence must consist of an affidavit by the claimant, corroborated by the affidavits of not less than two disinterested persons having actual knowledge of the facts.

No sale will be authorized under the proviso upon the application of a person who has procured one offering thereunder except upon a showing of strong necessity therefor, owing to some peculiar condition which prevented original application for the full area allowed to be sold at one time, 160 acres. And in no event will an application be entertained where the applicant has purchased under section 2455, or the amendments thereto, an area which, when added to the area applied for, shall exceed approximately 160 acres.

In the notices for publication and posting, where sale is authorized under the proviso, you will add after the description of the land, "This tract is ordered into the market on a showing that the greater portion thereof is mountainous or too rough for cultivation."

ISOLATED TRACTS OF COAL LAND

The act of Congress approved April 30, 1912 (37 Stat. 105), provides:

> That * * * unreserved public lands of the United States, exclusive of Alaska, which have been withdrawn or classified as coal lands, or are valuable for coal, shall * * * be subject * * * to disposition * * * under the laws providing for the sale of isolated or disconnected tracts of public lands, but there shall be a reservation to the United States of the coal in all such lands so * * * sold, and of the right to prospect for, mine, and remove the same in accordance with the provisions of the act of June twenty-second, nineteen hundred and ten, and such lands shall be subject to all the conditions and limitations of said act.

In administering this act the foregoing regulations should be followed, in so far as they are applicable, and these additional instructions are prescribed:

An application to have coal land offered at public sale must bear across its face the notation provided by paragraph 7 (a) of the circular of September 8, 1910 (39 L. D. 179); in the printed and posted notice of sale will appear the statement:

> This land will be sold in accordance with, and subject to, the provisions and reservations of the act of June 22, 1910 (36 Stat. 583).

The purchaser's consent to the reservation of the coal in the land to the United States will not be required, but the cash certificate and patent will contain, respectively, the provisions specified in paragraph 7 (b) of said circular of September 8, 1910.

In cases where offerings have been had, and sales made, of lands coming within the purview of the act of April 30, 1912, the purchasers may furnish their consent to receive patents, containing the limitation provided by said paragraph 7 (b), and, thereupon, the entries may be confirmed, and patents, limited as indicated, may issue.

Very respectfully,

Clay Tallman, Commissioner.

Approved.

COMMUTATION PROOF—CITIZENSHIP

Gentlemen: Where commutation proof is submitted, under the original homestead law, in support of a homestead entry made prior to June 6, 1912, or initiated, prior to that date, by settlement on unsurveyed lands subject to homestead entry, it will be sufficient, in the matter of citizenship, if the entryman shows that he has declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States, or is by law given that status.

Paragraph 14, of Circular No. 208, dated February 13, 1913 (41 L. D. 479), and paragraph 36, of Circular No. 224, dated March 26, 1913, are modified accordingly.[c]

CREDIT FOR RESIDENCE DURING CONTEST

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, March 25, 1914.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: Your attention is invited to the communication printed below, and you will be governed accordingly.

Respectfully,

C. M. BRUCE,
Assistant Commissioner.

MARCH 14, 1914.

The Commissioner of the General Land Office.

SIR: It was stated in departmental instructions of September 24, 1910 (39 L. D. 230), that credit for residence will not be allowed in final proof in support of a homestead entry during the time the land is not subject to entry by the person maintaining the residence. Said instructions were modified August 19, 1911 (40 L. D. 236), so as to allow credit for such residence in cases where a contestant established residence prior to September 24, 1910, and has since maintained such residence and succeeded in procuring cancellation of the entry under contest and made entry in his own behalf following such cancellation.

The question of allowing credit for residence maintained prior to the time when the land has become subject to entry, has arisen in a somewhat different form in a case pending before the department and after very careful consideration it is believed that the instructions of August 19, 1911, supra, should not have limited credit for such residence to persons who had established residence prior to September 24, 1910. The rule is, therefore, redrafted in the form given below, viz:

A contestant who settles upon the land embraced in the entry under contest and maintains residence thereon, may be credited with the full period of such residence where the contested entry is afterwards canceled and the contestant is permitted to make homestead entry.

Very respectfully,

ANDRIEUS A. JONES,
First Assistant Secretary.

DIRECTS THE FURNISHING TO CHIEFS OF FIELD DIVISIONS COPY OF ALL PROTESTED PROOFS ON HOMESTEAD AND DESERT ENTRIES

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, August 1, 1914.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: Hereafter, and until further advised, you will furnish to the proper chief of field division a copy of the final proof submitted on all homestead and desert land entries, against which the chief of field division files a protest, or as to which he requests that certificate be withheld pending a field investigation.

[6] See Circular of Feb. 29, 1928, p. 648.

So far as the proofs which are submitted before the register and receiver are concerned, all that will be necessary will be the making of a carbon copy at the time the proof testimony is given.

As to those proofs which are made before proof-taking officers, other than the register and receiver, it will be necessary that you make a copy thereof, as it is desired that no additional burden or expense for the making of this copy shall be imposed on the claimant.

Very respectfully,

INDORSEMENTS ON PROOF NOTICES

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, August 3, 1914.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: I have to direct that hereafter, as to homestead entries under the acts of February 19, 1909 (35 Stat., 639), and June 17, 1910 (36 Stat. 531), you indorse on the duplicate notice of intention to submit proof which, under the existing regulations, is sent to the proper chief of field division, the act under which the entry is made, and whether same is under section 6 or sections 1 to 5 of the act.

This information is important to field officers in making investigations, and, if furnished in this way, will save them an inspection of local office records which is not always convenient.

Copies of this circular have been furnished chief of field divisions.

CIRCULAR No. 354

SECOND HOMESTEAD AND DESERT-LAND ENTRIES—ACT OF SEPTEMBER 5, 1914 (38 STAT 712)

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, September 26, 1914.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: Your attention is directed to the act of Congress, approved September 5, 1914 (38 Stat. 712), entitled, "An act providing for second homestead and desert-land entries," a copy of which is hereto appended. Said act governs the disposition of every application for second homestead or desert-land entry, where the applicant, at any time before filing same, had made an entry, or entries, of the same character, but failed to perfect same.

2. The question whether the first entry, or entries, were made before or after the passage of the act is entirely immaterial. Moreover, it will be seen that the act imposes upon the Land Department the duty of passing upon the good faith of the applicant, there being no hard and fast provision, as in the act of February 3, 1911, limiting its benefits to a clearly defined class of persons. In order that there may be uniformity of rulings thereon, no applications will be allowed by the local officers on their own initiative, but all will be forwarded to the General Land Office for consideration.

3. In order that the General Land Office may properly pass upon the right of an applicant for second entry, he must (besides filing in the proper local office an application to enter a specific tract) furnish his affidavit showing the following facts:

(a) Data from which his first entry (or entries) may be identified, preferably its series and number, as well as a description of the tract by section, township, and range.

(b) What examination of the land and what inquiries as to its character he made prior to filing his previous application (or applications) for entry and, in case of desert-land entries, what reason he had to believe that the required proportion of the tracts could be reclaimed by him through irrigation.

(c) With reference to a homestead entry, whether he established residence upon the tract, and, if so, how long he lived there and what cultivation he effected; as to a desert-land entry, whether he took possession of the tract, and, if so, how long he continued to exercise acts of ownership thereover.

(d) What improvements, if any, he made upon the land, describing in detail their nature and cost.

(e) The date of his abandonment of the claim and the reason therefor and whether he ever executed a relinquishment of the entry.

(f) What consideration, if any, he received for abandoning or relinquishing the entry; also whether he sold the improvements on the tract, giving full details as to said sale, if any, including the date thereof and the consideration received.

4. This affidavit must be executed before an officer authorized to administer oaths in homestead cases; that is, the register or receiver of the district where the land is situated, or a United States commissioner, or judge or clerk of a court of record within said district or within the county in which the tract lies. Its statements must be corroborated on all matters susceptible of corroboration by at least one witness having knowledge of the facts, or there may be several witnesses, each testifying on some material point; affidavits of witnesses may be executed before any officer authorized to administer oaths and having an official seal. Appropriate blank forms will be furnished in the near future.

5. If the affidavit of the claimant be not properly executed or be not corroborated by at least one witness, or if both do not appear to bear upon all the points above mentioned, you will call upon the applicant for supplemental evidence or for reexecution of the affidavit, as the case may be. After service of notice of your requirements and the lapse of the proper period, you will forward the application, together with such supplemental papers as may be filed.

6. You will be careful to note on your records the date and hour of the filing of each application, and in transmitting the same to this office make full report and recommendation.

Very respectfully,

Clay Tallman, Commissioner.

Circular No. 360

NATIONAL FORESTS—ENTRIES FOR LANDS PARTLY WITHIN AND PARTLY WITHOUT FOREST LIMITS—CIRCULAR NO. 300 REVOKED

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, November 3, 1914.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: By Circular No. 300, dated February 12, 1914, addressed to you, you were directed to reject any application to enter a tract of land, a portion of which is restored to homestead entry under the act of June 11, 1906 (34 Stat. 233), and the remainder of which is contiguous thereto but without the national forest limits. This circular was based on the decision in the case of Franklin P. Tingley, decided by the department November 14, 1913.

March 12, 1914, the department, in a letter of instructions to this office in the case of ex parte Nicholas Becker, Lemmon H. E. 028284, held that any entry may be made for a single tract, a portion of which is subject to the restrictions and reservations of the coal-land act of June 22, 1910 (36 Stat. 583), and the remainder of which is free from any coal-land withdrawals. This is based upon the fact that the same amount of cultivation is required in the one case as in the other.

In line with the said decision of March 12, 1914, entries may be allowed for tracts partly within and partly without national forest limits, and the said circular No. 300 is hereby revoked.

It must be understood, however, that an entry of this kind is not subject to commutation proof, in view of the restriction contained in the said act of June 11, 1906, and a person making such an entry thereby waives any right to submit commutation proof.

Very respectfully,

C. M. Bruce, Acting Commissioner.

Circular No. 364

PROOF ON HOMESTEAD ENTRY BY DESERTED WIFE—ACT OF OCTOBER 22, 1914 (38 STAT. 766)

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, November 13, 1914.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: By act of Congress approved October 22, 1914 (38 Stat. 766), it is provided that where the wife of a homestead settler or entryman, while residing upon the homestead claim and prior to the submission of final proof, has been abandoned and deserted by her husband for more than one year, she may submit proof (by way of commutation or otherwise), on the entry and secure patent in her own name, being allowed credit for all residence and cultivation had and improvements made, either by herself or by her husband.

2. Upon the wife's filing notice of intention to submit proof, together with an affidavit alleging desertion, as above stated, and all information in her possession as to the entryman's whereabouts, including his last known post-office address and the address near the land where he received his mail, the register will prepare and issue a summons in substantially the following form and deliver it to the wife for service:

To [here insert name] homestead entryman:

You are hereby notified that [here insert name], claiming that she is your wife, and that you have abandoned and deserted her for more than one year last past, has filed application to be allowed to submit proof upon your homestead entry, serial No ——, for [here insert description of the land], to the end that patent for the land may issue in her name. This proceeding is authorized by the provisions of an act of Congress approved October 22, 1914, and you will be allowed 30 days after notice hereof within which to file in this office your denial of the charges. If such denial be filed, you may, at the time to be set for taking of proof or on a date to be then fixed, offer testimony in support of such denial.

3. Personal service of the summons must be made if possible; such service may be made by any person over the age of 18 years, or by registered mail. When served by registered mail, proof thereof must be accompanied by post-office registry return receipt, showing delivery of the letter to the entryman; where service is made otherwise than by mail, proof thereof must be by written acknowledgment of the entryman, or by affidavit of the person serving the summons, showing its delivery to the entryman. If personal service can not be made, the summons must be sent by registered mail to the last known address of entryman and to the post office nearest the land, or to that near the land named by the wife in her preliminary affidavit; proof of such attempted service shall be by affidavit of the person mailing the letters, to which should be attached the postmaster's receipts therefor.

4. Within 30 days after service of summons, the entryman may file his affidavit denying the charge of abandonment and desertion. The denial must bear evidence that a copy thereof has been served on the wife.

5. After the expiration of 30 days from personal service of the summons, or 40 days from the date of mailing, unless a denial by entryman be sooner filed, the register will issue notice of intention to submit proof. The form in general use must be modified to show that the proof is to be submitted by the deserted wife, and must contain a paragraph as follows:

The entryman [here insert name] is notified that, by submission of said proof, his wife [here insert name] seeks to obtain patent for the land in her own name.

6. If the entryman shall have filed denial of the alleged desertion and abandonment, and appears, in person or by agent or attorney, on the day set for the taking of proof, testimony may be submitted to determine the facts relative to the alleged desertion, and the final proof testimony will be taken in accordance with existing regulations. But the register and receiver, for any reason deemed sufficient, may continue the hearing to a later date.

(a) At the hearing on the denial of desertion the entryman must pay the costs of taking the testimony.

(b) All hearings and subsequent proceedings shall be in accord with the rules of practice pertaining to contests.

7. If entryman fails to deny the charge of desertion, or if same be sustained and the case closed, final certificate shall issue in the name of the deserted wife, provided the proof be in all respects sufficient.

Very respectfully,

D. K. Parrott,
Acting Assistant Commissioner.

Approved.

A. A. Jones,
First Assistant Secretary.

REVISED FORMS FOR FINAL PROOFS ON HOMESTEAD ENTRIES

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., January 12, 1915.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: On November 14, 1914, the department approved a revision of Forms 4–369 (testimony of claimant) and 4–369a (testimony of witnesses) for final proofs on homestead entries. A supply of the revised forms is being sent to all district offices.

On and after March 1, 1915, you will not accept proofs made on other forms.

Because of the fact that many proof-taking officers have supplied themselves with the blank forms heretofore in use, you will, until further advised, during the last week of each month, forward to each officer enough of the new forms for the next month's business, the number to be sent to be determined by an actual count of the cases theretofore set before each officer. Under no circumstances should the number be estimated, and you are cautioned to exercise great care in carrying out the above directions.

A copy hereof should be sent to each proof-taking officer in your respective districts.

VALIDATION OF ENLARGED HOMESTEAD ENTRIES, ACT OF MARCH 4, 1915 (38 STAT. 1162)

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices, Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming.

Sirs: In order that you may be properly informed, and in view of entries now pending in your offices, which may be validated thereby, your attention is directed to the act of Congress approved March 4, 1915 (38 Stat. 1162), which, after the enacting clause, reads as follows:

> That all pending homestead entries made in good faith prior to January 1, 1914, under the provisions of the enlarged homestead laws, by persons who before making such enlarged homestead entry had acquired title to land under the homestead laws and therefore were not qualified to make an enlarged homestead entry, be, and the same are hereby, validated, if in all other respects regular, in all cases where the original homestead entry was for less than 160 acres of land.

CERTIFICATE FROM INDIAN OFFICE REQUIRED OF INDIAN HOMESTEAD ENTRYMEN

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, March 29, 1915.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: The regulations of this office require that no Indian allotment applications be allowed unless a certificate from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs that the applicant is entitled, under the fourth section of the act of February 8, 1887 (24 Stat. 388), to such allotment is filed by or for the applicant.

In conformity with this practice, you will hereafter require an Indian homestead applicant under the act of July 4, 1884 (23 Stat. 96), to submit a certificate from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs that he is entitled, as an Indian, to make such an entry.

When such an application is presented without this certificate you will suspend the same and notify the applicant that 90 days are allowed within which to submit such certificate as to the right to allotment, and that upon failure to submit the same within the time allowed the application will be rejected.

Where an Indian has filed an allotment application and the application has been rejected for the reason that the applicant is not entitled as an Indian to an allotment, such action will not prejudice the right of such applicant to file a homestead application, provided that a certificate from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, showing that the applicant is entitled to the benefits of the said act of July 4, 1884, is presented.

Very respectfully,

CLAY TALLMAN, Commissioner.

CIRCULAR No. 401

ENLARGED HOMESTEAD ACT—ADDITIONAL ENTRY AFTER PROOF ON THE ORIGINAL—ACT OF MARCH 3, 1915 (38 STAT. 956)

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., April 17, 1915.

Registers and Receivers, United States land offices, Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Kansas, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming.

SIRS: The act of Congress approved March 3, 1915 (38 Stat. 956), amends sections 3 and 4 of the enlarged homestead acts of February 19, 1909 (35 Stat. 639), and June 17, 1910 (36 Stat. 531), so as to permit an additional entry thereunder to be made, though proof has already been submitted on the original, provided the applicant still owns and occupies the tract first entered, and it defines the residence and cultivation required in connection therewith.

[9] See Circular No. 427, p. 569.

2. The act does not change the law as to additional entries made before submission of proofs on the originals; therefore there is, as to such entries, no alteration in the rules heretofore in force, as explained in the instructions of March 17, 1913 (42 L. D. 345), the substance whereof is embodied in paragraph 47 of the homestead circular of January 2, 1914 (43 L. D. 1).[d] As to entries permitted by the present act, the following instructions are issued:

3. Who may make entry.—The act confers the right of entry only upon one who " still owns and occupies the land " first entered; it is not required that the claimant be residing on said tract, and the occupancy thereof may be by agent or through a tenant. A statement showing continued ownership and occupancy must be inserted in Form 4–004, in case of applications under this act. It should be observed that no change has been made in the requirement of law that the tracts be contiguous; and this would not be fulfilled by the fact that they corner on each other.

4. Residence.—The claimant is allowed credit for residence on the original tract and can not, in any event, be required to show residence continued for a greater period than is prescribed by section 2291 of the Revised Statutes. In other words, if the proof on the original entry has been accepted as sufficient under either the five-year or the three-year act, no further residence is needed; but, if the proof was by way of commutation, claimant must show such further residence, before or after the date of the additional entry, as will make up the aggregate amount required by the provisions of the act of June 6, 1912 (37 Stat. 123).

5. Cultivation.—The law regarding cultivation, with reference to additional entries made before submission of proofs on the originals, has no application to the entries allowed under this act. The claimant is required to show cultivation of the additional tract itself, to the extent and for the period required by the act of June 6, 1912, that is, one-sixteenth of its area during the second year of the entry, and one-eighth during the third and until submission of proof, which must occur within five years after the date of the additional entry.

Very respectfully,

CLAY TALLMAN, Commissioner.

Approved.

First Assistant Secretary.

ENLARGED HOMESTEAD ACT—PETITIONS FOR DESIGNATION—ACT OF MARCH 4, 1915 (38 STAT. 1162)

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., April 17, 1915.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices, Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Kansas, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming.

Sirs: Section 1 of the act of Congress approved March 4, 1915 (38 Stat. 1162), copy of which is appended, confers a preference right of entry under sections 1 to 5, or under section 6, of either of the enlarged homestead acts upon a qualified person, pursuant to whose petition land is designated as subject thereto. These instructions are explanatory of the act and of the procedure prescribed for its execution.

2. The act applies to cases where the party is seeking to make an original entry and to all cases where he seeks to make additional entry, regardless of the question whether proof has or has not been already submitted on his original filing.

It does not affect the right of any person or persons interested in designation of land to forward to the Director of the United States Geological Survey or to the Secretary of the Interior a petition therefor.

3. (a) Where a preference right under the act is sought there must be filed at the proper local land office the usual application for entry, original or additional, as the case may be, executed by the applicant and two witnesses, and the fee and commissions must be then paid; it must be accompanied by the applicant's affidavit, executed in duplicate and corroborated by at least two witnesses, setting forth the character of the land involved—both tracts, if additional entry is sought.

(b) This affidavit, which will be entitled "Petition for Designation," must give the name and post-office address of the applicant and a description by legal subdivisions of all the land involved; in case of additional applications it should give the serial number (or numbers) of the old claim.

(c) In case of applications for entry under sections 1 to 5, commonly known as the general provisions, of the enlarged homestead act, the affidavit should set forth fully the conditions governing the irrigability of the land. If any part or parts thereof are irrigated, their location, area, source of water supply, and other pertinent facts should be stated. If any part or parts thereof are under constructed or proposed irrigation ditches or canals, or adjacent thereto, the relation of the lands to same and the reasons for applicant's belief that the lands are not irrigable therefrom should be explained. The relation of the tract to surface streams or springs rising on or flowing across them or in their vicinity should be indicated. If such sources of water supply are inadequate for the irrigation of the applicant's lands, or are not available to him, full particulars should be given.

[10] See Circular No. 736, p. 582.

The location and depth of wells, elevation of water plane relative to the surface, and other pertinent facts which will disclose the quantity and quality of the water supply, obtainable from either ordinary or artesian wells on the land, should be given. If there are no wells thereon, such information should be furnished as to any other wells in that vicinity, and the possibility of irrigating the tract involved from underground sources should be fully discussed. If any attempts have been made to irrigate and reclaim the tract, or if it has been included in a desert-land entry, the reasons for lack of success should be stated.

The affidavit should be supplemented by a map or diagram in cases where the facts may be advantageously presented thereby.

(d) In cases of applications for entry under section 6 of the enlarged homestead acts, applicable to Utah and Idaho, the affidavit should give information regarding the possibility of securing on the land a supply of water suitable for domestic use. If there are on the tract, or in its immediate vicinity springs or streams which would furnish such supply, a complete statement should be made as to the quantity, quality, and availability of the water. A statement should also be made as to the location, depth, elevation of water plane relative to the surface, depth at which water was first obtained, and other pertinent facts as to wells situated either in the vicinity of the tract or nearest thereto, and as to the relation of the tract thereto. If unsuccessful attempts have been made to secure a domestic water supply on the land itself, the facts concerning them should be set forth.

If the tract has not theretofore been designated by the Secretary of the Interior under sections 1 to 5 of the act, applicants for designation under section 6 thereof should, in addition to the above, furnish the information required of applicants for designation under said sections 1 to 5, as hereinabove explained.

(e) The filing of an affidavit, as above indicated, will not be conclusive as to the character of the land therein described, and the applicant may be required by the Geological Survey to furnish additional evidence with regard thereto. Moreover, the filing of an application and petition does not give the party the right to fence the land or place other improvements thereon, and the erection of improvements will not confer upon him any right to equitable consideration of the application in the event the land is found not to be of the character contemplated by those provisions of the enlarged homestead act under which the claim is filed.

4. The applications for entry (when regular) will be suspended by you and retained in your office, but you will promptly forward both copies of the affidavit by special letter to this office, which will transmit one to the United States Geological Survey for consideration. Where defects appear in the papers—especially (as to additional entries) failure to refer in the affidavit to the tract originally entered—you will call for supplemental evidence, as in other cases; if this is not furnished, you will forward all the papers to this office for consideration, making proper recommendations in connection therewith.

5. No other appropriation of the land will be allowed before the application has been finally disposed of. However, later applications therefor should be received and suspended. If withdrawal of an application under the act of March 4, 1915, be filed, you will promptly notify this office thereof, inviting special attention to the pendency of the petition for designation, and will close the case on your records. Prior to final action on the application the party's homestead right will be in abeyance, and he will not be entitled to exercise same elsewhere, nor will he be permitted to have two applications under this act pending at the same time.

6. [As amended April 11, 1916—Circular No. 469.] Where designation is made of all the land involved you will, when it becomes effective, place the entry of record.

Where the Geological Survey advises this office that it is unable to classify the land, or some part thereof, as subject to designation, this office will, through the proper local land office, furnish the applicant with a copy of the survey's report, and will allow him 30 days within which to file response. At the applicant's option, he may either appeal from the finding to the Secretary of the Interior, alleging errors of law, or he may present further showing as to the facts, accompanied by such evidence as is desired, tending to disprove the adverse conclusion reached by the survey.

Such appeal or response, if filed, will be forwarded by you to this office, whence it will be transmitted to the Geological Survey for further consideration. That bureau will consider the evidence submitted and, if it warrants such action, will recommend designation of the land; or, if its conclusion be still adverse, will transmit the record to the Secretary with report. The case will thereafter be considered as having the status of an appeal pending before the Secretary's office.

In cases where the applicant fails to furnish a showing, or to appeal from the order of this office requiring him to furnish it, within the 30 days limited, or where the Secretary refuses designation, final action will be taken, and the case closed, by this office, on the basis of the designations which may have been theretofore made.

7. The benefits of the act do not extend to a person who has filed a petition for designation elsewhere than at the local land office of the district where the land is situated, nor to one whose petition was filed at the place indicated, unless accompanied by application for entry of the land. In every case where there is now pending an application for original or additional entry under the enlarged homestead act, not allowable because part or all of the land has not been designated, you will promptly advise the applicant of the passage of the act of March 4, 1915, forwarding a copy of these instructions, and allowing him 30 days after notice within which to furnish the required corroborated affidavit in duplicate; if this be done, you will take action as directed in paragraphs 2 to 5 hereof, reporting as to adverse claim, if any there be.

8. Where you have knowledge that a person has filed a petition for designation of land, but no application for entry thereof, you will advise him of the passage of the act, forwarding him a copy hereof and informing him that he will be obliged to comply with its provisions in order to obtain the preference right provided thereby.

Very respectfully,

CLAY TALLMAN, Commissioner.

Approved.

ANDRIEUS A. JONES,
First Assistant Secretary.

INDIAN HOMESTEADERS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, July 27, 1915.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: Certain local land officers having interpreted Circular No. 394, dated March 29, 1915, as requiring all Indians who submit applications to make homestead entry, under authority of the act of July 4, 1884 (23 Stat. 96), or under the general homestead act, to furnish a certificate from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs that the applicant is entitled, as an Indian, to make such entry, you are hereby informed that this certificate should be required only of applicants under the act of July 4, 1884 (23 Stat. 96), from whom no fee or commissions are required.

If an Indian making application under the general homestead act makes affidavit that he is a citizen of the United States, having abandoned his tribal relations and adopted the habits and customs of civilized persons, you will allow such an Indian, if otherwise qualified, to make entry under the regular homestead act, without further questioning and without requiring any certificate from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

CIRCULAR NO. 466

PROOF-TAKING OFFICERS TO BE NOTIFIED OF DATE SET FOR PROOF

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., March 25, 1916.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: Responses made to Circular No. 454 disclose that some offices do not advise proof-taking officers of the date set for the submission of final proof before them, while other offices have issued notices in various ways—some by using card 4–192, others by sending a carbon copy of the notice, others by sending a list with the supply of forms, and others using a form printed at their own expense.

It has come to the attention of this office that much inconvenience has been caused because of the absence from the office of the officer who was advertised to take the proof, he not having been advised of the date set.

In the future, notice should be given the officer named in the notice of the date set, in all cases. The form of the notice is not material, and officers are at liberty to continue any practice now in vogue which conveys the necessary information. Offices which have not adopted any system may use Form 4–192 (card), modified to give the information needed; or, in forwarding a supply of proof blanks, may send a schedule of the proofs set before the officer, or may send a carbon copy of the notice (4–348a).

Very respectfully,

CLAY TALLMAN, Commissioner.

ENLARGED HOMESTEAD ACT—ADDITIONAL ENTRIES FOR INCONTIGUOUS LANDS—ACT OF JULY 3, 1916 (39 STAT. 344)

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., July 8, 1916.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices, Arizona, California, Colorado, Kansas, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming.

SIRS: The act of July 3, 1916 (39 Stat. 344), added a seventh section to the enlarged homestead act, to permit an additional entry for land not contiguous to the tract originally entered—after submission of proof on the original entry. It reads as follows:

> That the act entitled "An act to provide for an enlarged homestead," approved February 19, 1909, be amended by adding thereto an additional section to be known as section 7:
> "SEC. 7. That any person who has made or shall make homestead entry of less than three hundred and twenty acres of lands of the character herein described, and who shall have submitted final proof thereon, shall have the right to enter public lands subject to the provisions of this act, not contiguous to his first entry, which shall not with the original entry exceed three hundred and twenty acres: Provided, That the land originally entered and that covered by the additional entry shall first have been designated as subject to this act, as provided by section one thereof: Provided further, that in no case shall patent issue for the land covered by such additional entry until the person making same shall have actually and in conformity with the homestead laws resided upon and cultivated the lands so additionally entered, and otherwise complied with such laws, except that where the land embraced in the additional entry is located not exceeding twenty miles from the land embraced in the original entry no residence shall be required on such additional entry if the entryman is residing on his former entry: And provided further, That this section shall not be construed as affecting any rights as to location of soldiers' additional homesteads under section twenty-three hundred and six of the Revised Statutes."

2. This act has no application unless the first entry was made in one of the States where the enlarged homestead act is in force, as listed above, and the additional entry can not be allowed until both tracts shall have been designated thereunder. However, in considering allowance of the entry it is not material whether the applicant owns or occupies the original tract. A person whose two incontiguous entries do not make up 320 acres, who has submitted proof on the first and occupies his unperfected second claim, may amend the latter by adding land contiguous thereto, so as to aggregate that area, subject to the requirements of this act respecting residence and cultivation. Also the benefits of this act may be claimed by a person who has made and perfected more than one homestead entry, but the aggregate area of the land thus acquired with that applied for is limited to 320 acres.

3. The only qualifications required of an applicant under this act are that he has not already made an additional entry thereunder, and that the tract applied for will not, with other lands which he has entered and acquired title to under any of the nonmineral public land laws, or which he is then claiming thereunder, make an aggregate of more than 480 acres.

4. It is not necessary that any of the land be designated under the enlarged homestead act when the application for additional entry is filed. The applicant must state that both tracts have been so designated, or he must file petition for designation of the undesignated land, as provided by the act of March 4, 1915 (38 Stat. 1162), and separate petitions must be filed for the different tracts if both be undesignated. These will be forwarded by the local officers, as directed by the regulations under said act.

Where an original tract, outside of the land district, is said to have been designated you will at once make inquiry of the proper office. If the response be satisfactory, action will be taken accordingly; but, if part or all of the original tract appears not to have been designated, the applicant will be allowed 30 days within which to file a petition for its designation.

5. On the notice of allowance of an application, and on the application itself, you will stamp, "This additional entry is within 20 miles of the original," or that it is not, as the fact may be. To ascertain whether two tracts are within 20 miles of each other, the shortest distance in a straight line between the nearest points will be considered as controlling.

6. There must be shown in proof on the entry the usual residence and cultivation and the existence of a habitable house upon the land entered, exception to these rules being made only where said tract is within 20 miles of that embraced in the original entry and the entryman is residing on the latter. In that event the homesteader need not reside on the additional entry nor have a habitable house thereon, if he owns and resides upon the original tract when applying for said entry, and continues both ownership and residence until submission of proof.

In the proof, to be submitted within five years after the date of the additional entry, there must be shown residence on the additional tract—or on the original, if permitted under the 20-mile exception above explained—for not less than three years, subject to the privilege of being absent five months in each year, as provided by the three-year homestead act; also cultivation of not less than one-sixteenth of the additional tract during the second year after the date of the entry and of not less than one-eighth of its area during the third year and until submission of proof. Credit for military service will be allowed as in other cases.[12]

7. As in other cases, a petition for designation, filed in connection with an entry under this act, must consist of an affidavit—executed in duplicate by the applicant and at least two witnesses—setting forth a description by legal subdivisions of all the land involved, its character, and the conditions governing the irrigability of both tracts.

If any part or parts thereof are irrigated, their location, area, source of water supply, and other pertinent facts should be stated. If any part or parts thereof are under constructed or proposed irrigation ditches or canals, or adjacent thereto, the relation of the lands to same and the reasons for applicant's belief that the lands are not irrigable therefrom should be explained. The relation of the tract to surface streams or springs rising on or flowing across them or in their vicinity should be indicated. If such sources of water supply are inadequate for the irrigation of the applicant's lands, or are not available to him, full particulars should be given. The location and depth of wells, elevation of water plane relative to the surface, and other pertinent facts which will disclose the quantity and quality of the water supply, obtainable from either ordinary or artesian wells on the land, should be given. If there are no wells thereon such information should be furnished as to any other wells in that vicinity, and the possibility of irrigating the tract involved from underground sources should be fully discussed. If any attempts have been made to irrigate and reclaim the tract, or if it has been included in a desert-land entry, the reasons for lack of success should be stated. The petition should be supplemented by a map or diagram in cases where the facts may be advantageously presented thereby.

Where the Geological Survey advises this office that it is unable to classify the land, or some part thereof, as subject to designation, this office will, through the proper local land office, furnish the applicant with a copy of the Survey's report, and will allow him 30 days within which to file response. At the applicant's option he may either appeal from the findings to the Secretary of the Interior, alleging errors of law, or he may present further showing as to the facts, accompanied by such evidence as is desired, tending to disprove the adverse conclusion reached by the Survey. Such appeal or response, if filed, will be forwarded by you to this office, whence it will be transmitted to the Geological Survey for further consideration. That bureau will consider the evidence submitted and, if it warrants such action, will recommend designation of the land; or if its conclusion be still adverse, will transmit the record to the Secretary with report. The case will thereafter be considered as having the status of an appeal pending before the Secretary's office. In cases where the applicant fails to furnish a showing, or to appeal from the order of this office requiring him to furnish it within the 30 days limited, or where the Secretary refuses designation, final action will be taken and the case closed by this office on the basis of the designations which may have been theretofore made.

[12] See amendment, p. 586.

8. The act does not apply in any manner to the State of Idaho. Therefore entries can not be made thereunder in that State.

9. The provisions of this act do not apply to entries under section 6 of the enlarged homestead act.

Very respectfully,

CLAY TALLMAN, Commissioner.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE TO HOMESTEAD SETTLERS ON UNSURVEYED LANDS—ACT OF JULY 3, 1916 (39 STAT. 341)

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., July 27, 1916.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: The act of July 3, 1916 (39 Stat. 341), provides as follows:

> That any qualified person who has heretofore or shall hereafter in good faith make settlement upon and improve unsurveyed, unreserved, unappropriated public lands of the United States with intention, upon survey, of entering same under the homestead laws shall be entitled to a leave of absence in one of two periods not exceeding in the aggregate five months in each year after establishment of residence: Provided, That he shall have plainly marked on the ground the exterior boundaries of the lands claimed and have filed in the local land office notice of the approximate location of the lands settled upon and claimed, of the period of intended absence, and that he shall upon the termination of the absence and his return to the land file notice thereof in the local land office.

2. You will give the current serial numbers to notices filed under this act, and make due record of them on your serial number registers, plainly noting at the top of the page that no entry has been made. You will not make any note of such papers on your tract books, even though the description of the land be given therein by section, township, range, and legal subdivisions. The notices, both of leaving and of returning to the land will be forwarded with your monthly returns. When a township plat of survey is filed in your office, you will be careful to assign to applications for entry of lands therein the same serial numbers which have been already given the notices of absences under this act.

3. A settler upon unsurveyed, unreserved, and unappropriated public land is entitled to one or two leaves of absence during each residence year, aggregating not more than five months in each year, after establishing of residence, in the same manner and upon the same conditions as persons having entries of record. If he has returned after an absence of less than five months and filed notice of his return, he may, without any intervening residence, again absent himself—pursuant to new notice—for the remaining part of five months within the residence year. However, two absences in different residence years, reckoned from the date when residence was established, must be separated by substantial periods if they together make up more than five months. The notices will follow the forms appended to these instructions.

4. The act does not authorize the filing of a notice of a settlement claim except as included in a notice of absence from the land; unless the paper tendered shows the beginning or ending of an absence, you will decline to receive it.

Very respectfully,

CLAY TALLMAN, Commissioner.

First Assistant Secretary.

THE INITIALS OF THE PERSON WHO PREPARES AN AFFIDAVIT TO BE INDORSED ON THE PAPER

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., October 4, 1916.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: For reasons not necessary here to relate, the initials of the person who prepares an affidavit or takes the testimony in final proof on an entry should be written on the upper left-hand corner of the first page of the affidavit or proof testimony, preceded by " Prepared by " or " Taken by," as may be appropriate.

It is expected that the foregoing will be strictly complied with as to all affidavits prepared and proofs taken at your offices. While a compliance therewith by other offices is urged, you will not reject any affidavit or final proof merely because no initials appear in the place indicated.

Sirs: Under date of December 21, 1916, the Secretary of the Interior issued the following order:

> As a result of the passage of the act of July 3, 1916 (39 Stat. 344), it has become possible for applicants to make additional homestead entries in the arid portions of the States subject to the act, based on original homesteads situated in the more humid eastern portions of North Dakota, South Dakota, and Kansas.

CIRCULAR NO. 535

ADDITIONAL ENTRIES—ACT OF FEBRUARY 20, 1917 (39 STAT. 925)—INSTRUCTIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., March 19, 1917.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: Your attention is directed to the act of Congress of February 20, 1917 (39 Stat. 925), which provides:

> That any person otherwise qualified who has obtained title under the homestead laws to less than one quarter section of land may make entry and obtain title under the provisions of the act entitled "An act to provide for enlarged homesteads," approved February nineteenth, nineteen hundred and nine, and an act of June seventeenth, nineteen hundred and ten, entitled "An act to provide for an enlarged homestead," for such an area of public land as will, when one-half of such area is added to the area of the lands to which he has already obtained title, not exceed one quarter section: Provided, That this act shall not be construed to apply to soldiers' additional homestead entries made under section twenty-three hundred and six, United States Revised Statutes, or acts amendatory thereof or supplemental thereto.

2. This act permits an additional entry under the enlarged homestead act to be made for a tract designated as subject thereto, although the land included in the applicant's perfected entry be not thus designated; it is immaterial whether he owns the original tract, and the additional tract may be contiguous thereto or at any distance therefrom.

3. The application must contain a description of all entries theretofore made by the applicant or such data as will serve to identify them.

4. Under section 6 of the act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. 854), a person who has partially exhausted his homestead right through a perfected entry is entitled to make an additional entry for so much land as will with the area of the completed entry make 160 acres. The present act supplements that legislation by providing that the additional land, if designated under the enlarged-homestead act, shall be estimated at only one-half its actual area in the calculation under the act of March 2, 1889. To illustrate: If the person has obtained title to 40 acres, he may make additional entry for not exceeding 240 acres of enlarged-homestead land, that is, twice 120; if he has had 80 acres, he may still take 160 acres of such land; if he has had 120 acres, he may now take an additional 80 acres.

5. In connection with an application pursuant to the provisions of this act, a petition for designation of the land sought may be filed as provided in other cases of applications under the enlarged-homestead act, and the proceedings with relation to the application and petition will be as in other cases.

6. Where an application is filed for additional entry under either section 3 or section 7 of the enlarged-homestead act, and the Secretary of the Interior refuses to designate thereunder the tract included in the original perfected entry, the application may be allowed for so much of the land sought as the claimant is entitled to enter under this act, provided said land be designated as subject to the enlarged-homestead act.

7. In proof on an entry allowed pursuant to the provisions of the present act there must be shown the existence of a dwelling house upon the land entered and the usual residence and cultivation. Residence must be for not less than three years, subject to the privilege of being absent five months in each year, in two periods if desired. There must be cultivation of not less than one-sixteenth of the land entered during the second year after the date of the entry, and not less than one-eighth of its area during the third year and until submission of proof. However, credit for military service will be allowed as in other cases. Proof must be submitted within five years after the date of the entry.

8. The present act does not in anywise affect the right of additional entry under the stock-raising homestead act; under the provisions of that law no additional entry can be made unless the land originally entered has been designated as subject thereto.

Very respectfully,

CLAY TALLMAN, Commissioner.

Approved.

ALEXANDER T. VOGELSANG,
First Assistant Secretary.

SECOND HOMESTEAD ENTRIES—ACT OF FEBRUARY 20, 1917 (39 STAT. 926)—INSTRUCTIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., March 24, 1917.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: Your attention is directed to the act of Congress approved February 20, 1917 (39 Stat. 926), which provides:

> That from and after the passage of this act any person who has heretofore entered under the homestead laws, and paid a price equivalent to or greater than $4 per acre, lands embraced in a ceded Indian reservation, shall, upon proof of such fact, if otherwise qualified, be entitled to the benefits of the homestead law as though such former entry had not been made: Provided, That the provisions of this act shall not apply to any person who has failed to pay the full price for his former entry, or whose former entry was canceled for fraud.

2. A person claiming the right of second homestead entry, pursuant to the provisions of this act, must furnish a description of the land included in his perfected entry or data from which it can be identified; and he must state that he paid $4 or more per acre for the tract; but it is not necessary that he name the precise price paid.

3. A second entry is not allowable unless the first entry was made prior to February 20, 1917, and unless satisfactory final proof has been submitted thereon and the entire price of the land included therein has been paid prior to the date of the application for second entry.

4. The act has no application if the first entry be canceled. Such cases will be governed by the general statutes allowing second entries.

5. If the original tract lies within your district, you will pass upon the application and will allow the entry if such action be proper; if said tract be not in your district, you will forward the application to this office for consideration.

6. A person who is entitled to the benefits of this act may at his option make second entry either under the general homestead law, under the enlarged homestead act, or under the stock-raising homestead act. Compliance with the law must be shown as though it were an original entry.

Clay Tallman, Commissioner.

ADDITIONAL ENTRIES—APPLICATION BY WIDOW, HEIRS, OR DEVISEE OF DECEASED HOMESTEADER NOT TO BE ALLOWED

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, August 4, 1917.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: By decision rendered May 8, 1917, in the case of Timothy Sullivan, guardian of Juanita Elsenpeter, the Secretary of the Interior overruled the department's decisions in the cases of Lillie E. Stirling (39 L. D. 346), Susan A. Davis (40 L. D. 573), and Bertha M. Birkland (45 L. D. 104), in which it had been held that under certain circumstances the widow or heirs of a homestead entryman might make entry, under the enlarged homestead act, additional to that made by him. This overruled also the decision in Samuel T. B. Himes (43 L. D. 388), wherein it had been held that the widow or heirs might make additional entry under section 2 of the act of April 28, 1904 (33 Stat. 527). Following the said construction of the law, you are instructed:

(1) You will reject, subject to the usual right of appeal, all applications filed by the widow, heirs, or devisee of a homesteader to make entry additional to his claim. This order will govern your action not only on applications hereafter filed but on those which are now pending in your office, and it applies to applications under the stock-raising homestead law as well as to those under the acts above referred to. The circular of January 27, 1917,[e] issued under said law, as amended by the circular of March 23, 1917, is modified accordingly.

[e] Circular of Jan. 27, 1917, as amended, has been superseded by circular of Jan. 2, 1925 (No. 523), p. 603.

(2) Additional entries heretofore allowed in accordance with the prior rulings will be submitted to the board of equitable adjudication for consideration, if they shall first have been perfected by the submission of final proof. Therefore, you will not reject proofs upon such additional entries on the sole ground that they were improperly allowed.

Very respectfully,

CLAY TALLMAN, Commissioner.

CIRCULAR No. 636

PROLONGED ABSENCES FROM HOMESTEADS ON ACCOUNT OF CLIMATIC CONDITIONS—ACT OF FEBRUARY 25, 1919 (40 STAT. 1153)—INSTRUCTIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., March 25, 1919.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: Under the homestead law, as it has heretofore stood, a homesteader is entitled to a leave of absence in one or two continuous periods not exceeding in the aggregate five months in each year after establishing residence, being required to file notice at the beginning and end of each period. It is provided that in case of commutation 14 months' actual residence must be shown, no credit being allowed for the periods of these allowable absences.

By the act of February 25, 1919 (40 Stat. 1153), the following clause is inserted in the law:

> Provided, That the register and receiver of the local land office under rules and regulations made by the Commissioner of the General Land Office may, upon proper showing, upon application of the homesteader, and only for climatic conditions, which makes residence on the homestead for seven months in each year a hardship, reduce the term of residence to not more than six months in each year, over a period of four years, or to not more than five months each year over a period of five years, but the total residence required shall in no event exceed twenty-five months, not less than five of which shall be in each year; proof to be made within five years after entry.

2. An entryman desiring to avail himself of the privilege accorded by this act must, within one year after the allowance of his entry, file in the local land office an application (preferably on the approved form) consisting of his affidavit, corroborated by two witnesses, setting forth the climatic conditions which would render it a hardship to reside upon the land for as much as seven months in each year, and stating whether he wishes the requirement in his case to be fixed at six months' residence in four successive years or at five months' residence in five successive years. The affidavit of claimant and the witnesses may be executed before any officer authorized to administer oaths and using an official seal. If the showing is satisfactory, you will promptly forward the application to this office with notation of your allowance thereof, by special letter. If it is not satisfactory, you will reject the application, subject to the usual right of appeal, and all appeals will be promptly forwarded by special letters.

If the application requests a reduction to five months' residence in each year, you may, if proper, grant partial relief; that is, fix the residence period at six months in each year, your decision being subject to review by this office on appeal from your decision, of which the party will be notified with all promptness.

3. Where a homesteader has secured a reduction of the residence requirements to six months in each year, he may, at or before the termination of the second year of his entry, file application for further reduction; that is, to five months in each of five years.

4. To entitle a homesteader to the benefits of this act, he must show that the climatic conditions in the vicinity of the land entered are ordinarily—not in exceptional years—such as would render it a hardship for him to reside there for a greater part of each year than for five or for six months, as the case may be.

5. Under this provision of the law there is no authority to allow two absence periods, but the five months' residence or the six months' residence, as the case may be, must be in one continuous period.

6. Proof on an entry must be made within five years after its allowance, notwithstanding the fact that relief may have been granted under this act; but the homesteader need not wait until the termination of his fifth residence year before submitting proof, provided he has had the last required period of residence.

7. An entry which is otherwise subject to commutation may be commuted, notwithstanding the granting of relief to the homesteader under this provision of law; but the periods of actual residence on the claim must aggregate at least 14 months and cultivation of not less than one-sixteenth of the area must be shown, unless a reduction has been granted in the requirements in that regard.

8. Credit on account of a period of military service will be allowed as on other entries, but at least one year's compliance with the homestead laws must be shown in every case.

Very respectfully,

CLAY TALLMAN, Commissioner.

Approved.

ALEXANDER T. VOGELSANG,
First Assistant Secretary.

INSTRUCTIONS IN RE FURNISHING CHIEFS OF FIELD DIVISIONS NOTICE OF INTENTION TO SUBMIT FINAL PROOF ON STOCK-RAISING HOMESTEADS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR.
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, April 13, 1920.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: In view of the fact that the requirements necessary to perfect title in stock-raising homestead entries made under the act of December 29, 1916 (39 Stats. 862), are different from those required in the case of homestead entries made under other acts, it is important that the carbon copies of notices of application to make final proof which you transmit to the Chief of Field Division shall indicate by indorsement, if not in the notice itself, whether or not the application is a stock-raising homestead entry.

It is accordingly directed that if the entry on which proof is to be submitted is a stock-raising homestead entry the carbon copy of the notice which you send to the Chief of Field Division shall in every case bear the following indorsement:

Stock-raising homestead entry, act December 29, 1916 (39 Stats. 862).

Rubber stamps for this purpose will be transmitted to you.

Very respectfully,

Clay Tallman, Commissioner.

Circular No. 697

INSTRUCTIONS RELATING TO PETITIONS FOR DESIGNATION OF LANDS UNDER THE STOCK-RAISING HOMESTEAD LAW

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, May 26, 1920.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: The present procedure in handling petitions for the designation of lands under the stock-raising law is not entirely satisfactory, and in order that there may be more cooperation in the work relating thereto between your office, this office and the Geological Survey, and to facilitate the action on such petitions, the following instructions are given to be effective beginning July 1, 1920, and regulations in conflict herewith will not be followed after that date.

1. When applications to enter land under the stock raising act are filed in your office, together with petitions for designation of the lands in duplicate, you will note on each paper filed the date of the filing thereof, compare the petitions with the applications as to serial numbers and the description of the lands involved. The facing sheet to be attached to each petition as heretofore, should be made from the application and petitions, the greatest care being used to have it state correctly the serial numbers of each application and entry and the description of the lands in each by parts of sections, township, and range.

2. Instead of forwarding the petitions in duplicate to this office, you will, at the end of the month in which filed, send the duplicate petitions with facing sheets in each case direct to the Director, United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C., noting on the original petition, which will be forwarded to this office with your monthly returns as heretofore, a statement as follows: "Duplicate petition to Geological Survey," giving date thereof. The applications to enter will be held by you as heretofore until you are advised of the designation of the lands through this office. In cases of applications to make second homestead entries and applications to amend, of course, the applications themselves should be forwarded to this office with the original petition for designation, the duplicate petition and facing sheet having been sent to the Geological Survey as above stated.

3. Before transmitting petitions for designation to this office and to the Geological Survey under these instructions, you will carefully examine your records to determine whether or not the lands applied for have been designated. If so, you should proceed to act upon the application to enter and the petition should not be forwarded to the Geological Survey, but should be attached to the application to make entry and forwarded to this office after appropriate action has been taken by you.

4. Because of the fact that many applications are pending in your offices involving the designation of lands under the stock raising law, of which the Geological Survey has no record, and because of the withdrawal or final closing out of cases, petitions in which have been sent the Geological Survey and no notice given of such withdrawal or closing, it is contemplated that registers and receivers will be called upon at least twice every year for a list of all stock-raising applications in their suspended files; your records should, therefore, be so kept as to enable you to furnish this data when called upon with the least possible trouble and expenditure of time. Said semiannual calls will be made probably about November 1 and May 1, of each year. Such list will contain the serial numbers and the names of the applicants.

5. Protests as to the character of the land in stock-raising applications and stock-raising entries received in your office should be sent direct to the Director, United States Geological Survey for consideration and report to this office.

Very respectfully,

CLAY TALLMAN, Commissioner.

Approved.

ALEXANDER T. VOGELSANG,
First Assistant Secretary.

RELATIVE TO TRANSMITTAL OF PETITIONS TO DESIGNATE

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, February 26, 1921.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: The Director of the United States Geological Survey has advised this office that petitions for designations, under both the enlarged and stock-raising homestead acts, are being received from your respective offices for lands already designated and, sometimes, for lands which are in whole or in part not subject to appropriation and entry because embraced in stock-driveway or other withdrawals or reservations. This indicates that the petitions are being transmitted without examination of your records.

You are directed, that where an application to enter accompanied by a petition to designate is received in your office, before transmitting the petition, to examine the records of your office for the status of the land involved and, if it is found that the land is already designated or an objection is shown which prevents the entry of the land or part thereof, not to forward the petition but to take appropriate action on the application for entry.

These instructions are not intended to affect the present practice under circular 729, relative to withdrawals or reservations under the Federal water power act.

Very respectfully,

Clay Tallman, Commissioner.

AMENDMENT TO STOCK-RAISING HOMESTEAD APPLICATION AND AFFIDAVIT

Instructions

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, March 7, 1921.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: On February 18, 1921, the department approved an amendment of the application and affidavit stock raising homestead entry, original and additional, Forms 4–016 and 4–016a, by making an additional requirement in the original entry—

> That no part of said land is claimed, occupied, or being worked under the mining laws; that said land is unoccupied and unappropriated by any person claiming the same under the public land laws other than myself.

And in the additional—

> That no part of said land is claimed, occupied, or being worked under the mining laws.

Inasmuch as there are at this time a large number of these blanks on hand, new forms will not be printed until the present supply is exhausted. You will, therefore, before allowing any new application under the stock raising law, require the applicant to furnish an additional affidavit as set out in the amendment above mentioned.

Very respectfully,

Clay Tallman, Commissioner.

SIRS: In order that you may be properly informed, and in view of entries now pending in your offices, which may be validated thereby, your attention is invited to section 1 of the act of Congress approved March 4, 1921 (41 Stat. 1433), which reads as follows:

> That all pending homestead entries made in good faith prior to January 1, 1916, under the provisions of the enlarged homestead laws, and all rights to enter land under said laws, based on settlement made thereon in good faith before said date, and while the land was unsurveyed, by persons who, before making such enlarged homestead entry, had acquired title to land under the homestead laws, and therefore were not qualified to make an enlarged homestead entry, or such settlement, be, and the same are hereby, validated, if in all other respects regular, in all cases where the original homestead entry was for less than one hundred and sixty acres of land: Provided, That no settlement claim shall be validated hereby where adverse claim for the land has been initiated before the passage of this Act.

CIRCULAR No. 753

ACT OF APRIL 6, 1914 (38 STAT. 312), AS AMENDED BY THE ACT OF MARCH 1, 1921 (41 STAT. 1193)—INTERMARRIAGE OF HOMESTEADERS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, May 2, 1921.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: Your attention is invited to the act of Congress of March 1, 1921 (41 Stat. 1193), adding a second proviso to the act of April 6, 1914 (38 Stat. 312). Said act now reads as follows:

> That the marriage of a homestead entryman to a homestead entrywoman after each shall have fulfilled the requirements of the homestead law for one year next preceding such marriage shall not impair the right of either to a patent, but the husband shall elect, under rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, on which of the two entries the home shall thereafter be made, and residence thereon by the husband and wife shall constitute a compliance with the residence requirements upon each entry: Provided, That the provisions hereof shall apply to existing entries: Provided further, That in the administration of this act the terms "entryman" and "entrywoman" shall be construed to include bona fide settlers who have complied with the homestead law for at least one year next preceding such marriage.

2. The amended act applies to entries and settlement claims initiated before or after its date, and before or after the date of the amendatory act; to become entitled to its benefits, it is required that each of the parties shall have complied with the requirements of the homestead laws for not less than one year next preceding their marriage. It is not necessary that either the husband or the wife shall have had an entry placed of record before the marriage.

3. The law confers upon the husband the privilege of electing on which of the two entries of the family shall reside. His election must be supported by the affidavits of both the parties, describing their entries and showing the facts as to the residence, cultivation, and improvements already had in connection therewith. Only in cases where the tracts involved are situated in different districts will it be necessary that the election and affidavits be executed in duplicate; then copies of all papers must be filed in each office.

4. The local officers will make due notation of the filing of the election on their records as to the entry or entries within their district, and will at once forward the papers with their recommendations, to the General Land Office, which will promptly pass upon the question of accepting the election. In cases where one or both of the claims are based on settlement only, they will assign the current serial number to the election, unless a serial number has been theretofore assigned to the claim.

5. Though the election be accepted, proofs on the entries will be submitted separately, as in other cases; it will be necessary to show residence on the selected homestead from approximately the date of the marriage, and on the entries of the respective parties before that time. The act makes no change whatever in the requirements as to cultivation or improvements, as the case may be, or as to the necessity of having a habitable dwelling on the land; compliance with the homestead law in these regards must be shown as to each entry, precisely as though the marriage had not taken place. In no case can proof be made on a claim before an entry for the land involved shall have been duly placed of record in accordance with an approved survey.

If proof be made on the entry selected as the home before title to the other is earned, residence may nevertheless be continued on the perfected entry and credited to the other. However, the act has no application to cases where the requirements of law have been fulfilled, and proof made, as to one of the entries prior to the marriage.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

Approved.

E. C. Finney,
First Assistant Secretary.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, August 6, 1921.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: On July 22, 1921, the department amended the second paragraph of section 6 of the regulations (Circular No. 486), of July 8, 1916 (45 L. D. 208), under the act of July 3, 1916 (39 Stat. 344), adding a seventh section to the enlarged homestead act, to read as follows:

> In the proof, to be submitted within five years after the date of additional entry, there must be shown residence on the additional tract—or on the original, if permitted under the 20-mile exception above explained—for not less than three years, subject to the privilege of being absent five months in each year, as provided by the 3-year homestead law; also cultivation of not less than one-sixteenth of the additional tract during the second year after the date of the entry, and of not less than one-eighth of its area during the third year and until submission of proof; but residence and cultivation for the requisite period after the date of the application and until the submission of proof will be accepted. If the land is most valuable for grazing, and an order entered relieving entryman from cultivating the required area, proof that the tract has been grazed for three years will be accepted. Credit for military service will be allowed as in other cases.

INSTRUCTIONS IN RE METHOD OF HANDLING APPLICATIONS ALLEGING SETTLEMENT PRIOR TO DRIVEWAY WITHDRAWALS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, October 8, 1921.

Registers and Receivers and Chiefs of Field Divisions.

SIRS: Hereafter when nonmineral applications are presented for lands embraced in a stock driveway withdrawal by persons claiming settlement prior to such withdrawal, you will refer such applications to the proper chief of field division for investigation and report before final action is taken thereon, in accordance with the practice established under circular of March 6, 1911 (39 L. D. 544), governing applications of alleged settlers for lands withdrawn under the act of June 25, 1910 (36 Stat. 847).

In certain instances heretofore entries of alleged settlers have been allowed for lands withdrawn for driveway purposes, owing to the exception in the orders of withdrawal, with a view to investigation if deemed advisable at the time final proof is submitted. The procedure hereby adopted will supersede that practice and protect applicants from the loss that might be sustained should their residence then be found insufficient to defeat the withdrawal.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

Sirs: The department, on July 30, 1921, modified the Ernest Muller decision (46 L. D. 243), in so far as it related to excess payments, and held—

> Upon mature consideration, the department has reached the conclusion that to give full effect to the provisions of sections 2289 and 2298, Revised Statutes, it must be held that any excess over 160 acres embraced in an original entry—the entryman having paid for such excess—must be disregarded in computing the area which the entryman may embrace in an additional entry under either the enlarged or the stock raising homestead act.

In the future, after indorsing thereon their recommendations and making the necessary notations on their records, local officers will at once forward such applications to this office, without letter of transmittal.

If final proof on the entry involved has been submitted, the same should be forwarded with the application for reduction.

FORMS FOR FINAL PROOFS ON STOCK-RAISING HOMESTEAD ENTRIES

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., February 9, 1922.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: On January 7, 1922, the department approved Forms 4–369b, (testimony of claimant), and 4–369c, (testimony of witnesses), for final proof on stock-raising homestead entries. A supply of these forms is being sent to all district offices.

On and after April 1, 1922, you will not accept such proofs made on other forms except as hereinafter provided.

Because of the fact that unofficial forms for stock-raising homestead proofs, not differing materially from the official forms now furnished, have been published and no doubt widely distributed among among proof-taking officers, you are authorized to accept, until October 1, 1922, proofs made on such forms.

In the interest of economy and good administration, you will not hereafter furnish official forms of affidavits, applications, proofs, etc., to agents, attorneys, proof-taking officers, or others, except that sample copies may be supplied for printing. You will, however, furnish any necessary form to an actual applicant or claimant for public land upon his request.

Circulars 374 (43 L. D. 494), 443, and any other circulars or instructions in conflict herewith are modified accordingly.

A copy hereof should be sent to each proof-taking officer and recognized agent or attorney in your respective districts.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, February 18, 1922.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: In view of the departmental decision of July 21, 1919, in Dominquez v. Cassidy (47 L. On receipt of such an application to contest, you will transmit the papers to this office by special letter with a request for instructions, making appropriate reference hereto.

Such applications to contest will be rejected where it appears, from the records of the department, that the designation of the land was preceded by and based on a field investigation.

[Revision of regulations of August 19, 1913 (42 L. D. 331)]

REGULATIONS GOVERNING ENTRIES WITHIN NATIONAL FORESTS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., May 2, 1922.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: Your attention is called to the act of June 11, 1906 (34 Stat. 233), a copy of which is hereto attached as Appendix A. This act authorizes homestead entries for lands within national forests, and you are instructed thereunder as follows:

1. Both surveyed and unsurveyed lands within national forests which are chiefly valuable for agriculture and not needed for public use may, from time to time, be examined, classified, and listed under the supervision of the Secretary of Agriculture, and lists thereof will be filed by him with the Secretary of the Interior, who will then declare the listed lands subject to settlement and entry.

2. By an act approved August 10, 1912 (37 Stat. 269), the Secretary of Agriculture was directed to select, classify, and segregate all lands within the boundaries of national forests that may be opened to entry under the homestead laws applicable thereto. Any person interested in securing a classification or review of a classification previously made by the Secretary of Agriculture should present his request to the supervisor of the national forest in which the land is located, and should state the reasons which he may have for believing the land has not been properly classified.

3. When any lands have been declared subject to settlement and entry under this act, a list of such lands, together with a copy of the notice of restoration thereof to entry and authority for publication of such notice, will be transmitted to the register and receiver for the district within which the lands are located. Upon receipt thereof the register will designate a newspaper published within the county in which the land is situated and transmit to the publishers thereof the letter of authority and copy of notice of restoration, said notice to be published in the designated newspaper once each week for four successive weeks. You will also post in your office a copy of said notice, the same to remain posted for a period of 60 days immediately preceding the date when the lands are to be subject to entry. If no paper is published within the county, publication should be made in a newspaper published nearest the land.

4. The cost of publishing the notice mentioned in the preceding paragraph will not be paid by the receiver, but the publisher's vouchers therefor, in duplicate, should be forwarded to the Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C., by the publisher, accompanied by a duly executed proof of publication. The register will require the publisher to promptly furnish him with a copy of the issue of the paper in which such notice first appears, will compare the published notice with that furnished by this office, and in case of discrepancy or error cause the publisher to correct the printed notice and thereafter publish the corrected notice for the full period of four weeks.

5. In addition to the publication and posting above provided for, you will, on the day the list is filed in your office, mail a copy of the notice by registered letter to any person known by you to be claiming a preferred right of entry on any of the lands described therein, and also at the same time mail a copy of the notice by registered letter to each of the persons named after each tract in the restoration notice and advise each of them of his preferred right to make entry during the 60-day period prior to the date of restoration. Upon receiving evidence of service of such notice or notices you will forward same to this office.

6. Any person qualified to make a homestead entry who, prior to January 1, 1906, occupied and in good faith claimed any lands listed under this act for agricultural purposes, and who has not abandoned the same, and the person upon whose application such land was listed, or a qualified ex-service man of the war with Germany, has, each in the order named, the preferred right to enter the lands so settled upon or listed at any time within 60 days prior to restoration of the land, or in the case of an ex-service man of the World War at any time within 90 days prior to date of restoration. Should an application be filed by such settler during the 60-day period you will, upon his showing by affidavit the fact of such settlement and continued occupancy, allow the entry. If an application is filed during the said period by the party upon whose request the lands were listed, or by an ex-service man of the World War, during the 90-day period, you will retain said application on file in your office until the date of restoration or until an entry has been made by a claimant having the superior preference right. If no application by a bona fide settler prior to January 1, 1906, is filed within the preference-right period, you will allow the application of the party upon whose request the lands were listed. If entry by a person claiming a settler's preference right is allowed, other applications should be rejected without waiting the expiration of the preferred period. Of the applicants for listing, only the one upon whose request a tract is listed secures any preference right. Other applicants for the listing of the same tract acquire no right by virtue of such applications.

While the preference-right period of ex-service men of the war with Germany begins to run 90 days prior to the date of the restoration of the land to entry, filings may be presented during the 20 days preceding such preference-right period; that is, from the one hundred and tenth day to the ninetieth day prior to date of restoration, and such filings will be treated as simultaneously filed at 9 a. m., on the ninetieth day of prior to date of restoration in the manner provided by Circular No. 324, approved May 22, 1914 (43 L. D. 254). The filings of the successful ex-service applicant may thereafter be allowed only in the event prior claimants do not exercise their preference right before the date of restoration.

All applications by others than the classes above referred to, which are filed prior to the date of opening, should be rejected forthwith notwithstanding the fact that an attempted transfer of the preference right of entry may have been made, but applications may be filed by the general public within 20 days prior to the date of restoration, and all such applications will be treated as simultaneously filed at 9 a. m. on the date of restoration, in accordance with said Circular No. 324.

The approved form of notice of restoration reads as follows:

RESTORATION TO ENTRY OF LANDS IN NATIONAL FOREST

Notice is hereby given that the lands described below, embracing ——— acres, within the ——— ——— National Forest, ———, will be subject to settlement and entry under the provisions of the homestead laws of the United States and the act of June 11, 1906 (34 Stat. 233), at the United States land office at ———, on ———, by any qualified person, except that for a period of 90 days prior to said date the land will be subject to a preference right of ex-service men of the war with Germany. Such ex-service men, in order to avail themselves of their preference rights, must file their applications on or after (one hundred and tenth day prior to restoration) but prior to (date of restoration). All such applications filed on or after (one hundred and tenth day prior to restoration) but prior to (ninetieth day prior to restoration) will be treated as simultaneously filed at 9 a. m. on (ninetieth day prior to restoration). All such applications filed on or after (ninetieth day prior to restoration) but prior to (date of restoration) will be treated in the order in which filed.

Applications may be filed by the general public within 20 days prior to (date of restoration) and will be treated as simultaneously filed at 9 a. m. on (date of restoration).

(Date.)

This form should be modified to cover notice to bona fide settlers prior to January 1, 1906, and to applicants for listing under the act of June 11, 1906, where it appears that the rights of such parties are involved.

7. The fact that a settler prior to January 1, 1906, has already exercised or lost his homestead right will not prevent him from making entry of the lands settled upon if he is otherwise qualified to make entry, but he can not obtain patent until he has complied with all of the requirements of the homestead law as to residence and cultivation and paid $2.50 per acre for the land entered by him.

8. When an entry embraces unsurveyed lands or irregular fractional parts of a subdivision of a surveyed section, a metes-and-bounds survey of such lands and fractional parts must be made at some time before the entryman applies to make final proof. Survey will not be required where the tract can be described by legal subdivisions or as a quarter or a half of a surveyed quarter-quarter section or rectangular-lotted tract, or as a quarter or half of a surveyed quarter-quarter-quarter-section or rectangular-lotted tract.

9. Under the act of August 10, 1912 (37 Stat. 287), and subsequent acts making appropriations for the Department of Agriculture, authority is given for the making of metes-and-bounds surveys by the forest officers under the direction of the surveyor general. (See Circular No. 235 of April 30, 1913.)

10. Application for survey should be made by the entryman to the district forester of the district in which the lands lies, and upon execution of same and filing of the approved plat in the local land office a copy of same will be sent to the entryman for posting upon the land during the period of publication, and upon receipt of his plat the entryman may apply to submit proof.

11. The commutation provisions of the homestead laws do not apply to entries made under this act, but all entrymen must make final proof of residence and cultivation within the time, in the manner and under the notice prescribed by the general provisions of the homestead laws, except that all entrymen who are required by the preceding paragraphs to have their lands, or any portion of them, surveyed must, within five years from the date of their settlement, present to the register and receiver their application to make final proof of all of the lands embraced in their entries.

Entries made under the said act of June 11, 1906, are subject to the provisions of sections 2291 and 2297, United States Revised Statutes, as amended by the 3-year homestead act of June 6, 1912 (37 Stat. 123), whether made before or after June 6, 1912.

12. In all cases where a survey of any portion of the lands embraced in an entry made under this act is required, the register will, in addition to publishing and posting the usual final-proof notices, keep a copy of the final-proof notice, with a copy of the field notes and the plat of such survey attached, posted in his office during the period of publication, and the entryman must keep a copy of the final-proof notice and a copy of the plat of his survey prominently posted on the lands platted during the entire period of publication of notice of intention to submit final proof, and at the same time his final proof is offered he must file an affidavit showing the date on which the copies of the notice and plat were posted on the land and that they remained so posted during such period, giving dates.

13. Section 1 of the said act of June 11, 1906, having been amended by the act of May 30, 1908 (35 Stat. 554), the only counties in southern California in which entries thereunder can not be made are San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara, to which counties the act of June 11, 1906, does not apply. Entries made of lands in the Black Hills National Forest can be made only under the terms and upon the conditions prescribed in sections 3 and 4 of the act of June 11, 1906, as amended by the act of February 8, 1907 (34 Stat. 883), and the act of July 3, 1912 (37 Stat. 188).

14. This act does not authorize any settlements within forest reserves except upon lands which have been listed, and then only in the manner mentioned above, and all persons who attempt to make any unauthorized settlement within such reserves will be considered trespassers and treated accordingly.

15. The act of June 11, 1906, provides that nothing shall be done to impair in any way the legal rights of any bona fide homestead settler who has or shall establish residence upon public lands prior to their inclusion within a forest reserve and maintains his settlement claim as required by law.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

PROCEDURE IN CONNECTION WITH FINAL PROOFS SUBMITTED IN ADVANCE OF NATURALIZATION

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, November 6, 1922.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Gentlemen: My attention has been called to the fact that the practice appears to be prevalent amongst certain of the local land offices to permit homesteaders to make final proof on their homestead entries in advance of their naturalization and then holding said proofs in their offices awaiting completion of citizenship and furnishing of evidence thereof.

The regulation under the homestead law, paragraph 38a, Circular No. 541, reads as follows:

> Final proof can be made only by citizens of the United States.

Therefore, the practice of submitting final proofs in advance of naturalization should be discouraged as much as possible exception being made, however, in those cases where entryman is not able to complete his citizenship within the statutory life of the entry, and the proof is submitted in advance of naturalization in order that it be in time.

Where final proof is made and not accompanied with record evidence of naturalization and no showing is made that naturalization will be procured at some future date you will reject the proof subject to appeal, and if response is made thereto but the desired citizenship evidence not furnished you will transmit the record hereof for consideration.

Where such proofs are received and accompanied by showing that record of evidence of naturalization is to be furnished at some future date, you will notify the parties that the proofs are suspended and forward to this office for consideration, if otherwise satisfactory.

If you are holding final proofs in your office awaiting furnishing of record evidence of naturalization, you will promptly transmit the same to this office for consideration.

Very respectfully,

GEO. R. WICKHAM,
Acting Commissioner.

INSTRUCTIONS RELATIVE TO ADDITIONAL STOCK-RAISING APPLICATIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, March 3, 1923.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: Until further instructed, you will, when an additional application under the stock-raising homestead act of December 29, 1916 (39 Stat. 862), is filed, be particular, if the application is not one under section 4 of the act, to secure facts from the applicant sufficient to enable determination of whether the application is to be allowed under section 3 or section 5 of the act.

With this end in view you will require the applicant to state whether or not he owns and resides upon the land in his original entry. If this is the case the application will be allowed under section 5 of the act.

If the applicant does not own his original entry, or owns the same and does not reside thereon, or fails, after due notice, to make response, the application will be allowed under section 3 of the act.

CIRCULAR No. 886

DESIGNATION UNDER ENLARGED AND STOCK-RAISING HOMESTEAD LAWS OF ENTERED LANDS WITHIN NATIONAL FORESTS AS BASIS FOR ADDITIONAL ENTRY OUTSIDE SUCH FORESTS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, March 30, 1923.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: By act of March 4, 1923 (42 Stat. 1445), provision has been made whereby the Secretary of the Interior may now designate under the enlarged homestead act and the stock raising act national-forest lands embraced in subsisting or perfected homestead entries of 160 acres or less so that such forest homestead entries may be the basis for additional entries under said acts. The act reads as follows:

> That any homestead entryman of one hundred and sixty acres or less of lands which have been or may hereafter be designated or classified by the Secretary of the Interior as subject to entry under the provisions of the enlarged homestead act of February 19, 1909, or June 17, 1910, who has not submitted final proof upon his existing entry, and any homestead entryman who has submitted final proof, or received patent, for such an amount of lands which have been or may hereafter be designated or classified by the Secretary of the Interior as of the character described in said act, and who owns and resides upon the said homestead entry, where said lands are within a national forest, may make an additional entry for and obtain patent to such an amount of land, of that same character, not in a national forest, and within a radius of twenty miles from said homestead entry, as, when the area thereof is added to the area of the original entry, will not exceed three hundred and twenty acres, and residence upon the original entry shall be credited on both entries; but cultivation must be made on the additional entry as required by said act. For the purposes of this act the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to designate as subject to the enlarged homestead acts lands embraced, at the time of such designation, within valid subsisting entries within national forests.

Sec. 2. That any homestead entrymen of one hundred and sixty acres or less of lands which have been or may hereafter be designated or classified by the Secretary of the Interior as subject to entry under the provisions of the stock raising homestead act of December 29, 1916, who has not submitted final proof upon his existing entry, and also any homestead entryman who has submitted final proof or received patent, for such an amount of lands that are of the character described as subject to entry under the provisions of the said stock raising homestead act, and who owns and resides upon the said homestead entry, where said lands are within a national forest, may make an additional entry for and obtain patent to such an amount of land of that same character, not in a national forest and within a radius of twenty miles from said homestead entry, as, when the area thereof is added to the area of the original entry, will not exceed six hundred and forty acres, and residence upon the original entry shall be credited on both entries; but improvements must be made on the additional entry equal to $1.25 for each acre thereof. For the purposes of this act the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to designate under the stock raising homestead act lands embraced, at the time of such designation, within valid subsisting entries within national forests.

2. The intent and purpose of said act is to permit persons holding existing or perfected homestead entries for lands within national forests of a character subject to designation which the applicant owns and on which he resides, to make additional entries for such a quantity of land outside of the national forest and within 20 miles of the original entry as when added to the area of the original entry will not exceed 320 acres, if under section 1 thereof, or 640 acres if under section 2 thereof.

3. The procedure in making and perfecting an entry under section 1 of this act will be in all respects similar to that explained in paragraphs 43 to 47, inclusive, of Circular No. 541, approved January 16, 1922[f] (48 L. D. 389), covering additional entries under the enlarged homestead acts, the only difference being that at the time of making the entry hereunder after proof on an original entry, the applicant must show ownership of and residence on the land in the original entry, instead of ownership and occupancy, and an additional hereunder may be made for land not adjoining that in the original entry. Residence on the original entry may be credited on both entries, but cultivation of the land in the additional entry must be as indicated in said paragraph 47.

4. The procedure in making and perfecting an entry under section 2 of this act will be governed by the instructions in paragraphs 8, 9, 11, and 12 of Circular No. 523,[g] approved December 4, 1922. Residence on the original entry may be credited on both entries, but stock-raising improvements must be placed on the additional entry equal to $1.25 per acre.

HOMESTEAD ENTRIES UNDER KINKAID ACT—ADDITIONAL ENTRIES

INSTRUCTIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, D. C., April 7, 1923.

REGISTER, UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE,
Lincoln, Nebr.:

The Commissioner of the General Land Office has forwarded to the department your letter of March 7, 1923, in which you refer to the departmental decision in the case of Earl A. Mann (49 L. D. 286), and request instructions on the matters hereinafter discussed.

It is apparent from your inquiries that you have heretofore failed to take cognizance of section 2 of the act of March 2, 1907 (34 Stat. 1224), the last phrase of which (referring to the so-called Kinkaid Act), reads as follows:

> and all homestead entries hereafter made within the territory described in the aforesaid act shall be subject to all the provisions thereof.

On April 27, 1907 (35 L. D. 542), the department approved instructions under said act of 1907, but the last word of the quoted phrase was treated as " hereof," resulting in a failure to give proper effect to said section 2. The error was carried into the revised regulations of October 28, 1908 (37 L. D. 225), and the revision of June 7, 1910 (39 L. D. 18). It was not until January 19, 1912, that the department correctly quoted said section 2, but in the revised regulations approved that date (40 L. D. 369), nothing was said as to the effect thereof. As a result, local officers in the Kinkaid territory allowed entries for 160 acres or less upon payment of less fees and commissions than are provided for by the Kinkaid Act, and the commutation of such entries was permitted. The General Land Office has passed the entries to patent. As such entrymen proceeded under the departmental interpretation of the act of 1907, entries already made for 160 acres or less in the Kinkaid territory will be allowed to proceed to patent as if section 2 of the act of 1907 had not been enacted, but such action will not be treated as conferring on the entrymen any additional rights under the Kinkaid Act.

[g] Circular No. 523 of Dec. 4, 1922, has been superseded by Circular No. 523 of Jan. 2, 1925, p. 603.

From and after the receipt hereof by you, you will be governed by the following:

1. All homestead entries (other than entries under the stockraising homestead act), for lands in the so-called Kinkaid territory will be governed by the provisions of the Kinkaid Act as amended. At the time an application is made, $14 should be collected as fee and commissions, and at the time of final proof, $4, without regard to the area embraced in the entry.

2. Section 7 of the act of May 29, 1908 (35 Stat. 465), amended section 2 of the Kinkaid Act so as to bring the right of additional entry of contiguous land under said act up to the date of the amendment; hence, an entry made after March 2, 1907, but prior to May 29, 1908, for less than 640 acres would be proper basis for additional entry under said section 2.

3. A person who, since May 29, 1908, made an entry for land within the territory, of any area, has exhausted his right under the Kinkaid Act, except that, if contiguous lands become vacant, he can amend his unperfected entry to embrace such lands to the limit of 640 acres; or, if the entry has been perfected and embraces less than 160 acres, he can make an additional entry of contiguous land under section 2 of the act of April 28, 1904 (33 Stat. 527), or he can make an additional entry under section 6 of the act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. 854), either within or outside the Kinkaid territory. If the additional entry be made for land within the territory, the fee and commissions exacted by the Kinkaid Act must be collected, and the final proof must comply with the provisions of the Kinkaid Act.

4. A person who has, at any time, entered under the homestead laws less than 640 acres outside the Kinkaid territory may make an entry under the first proviso to section 3, provided he is not the owner of more than 160 acres of land in the United States acquired under other than the homestead law.

5. A person who made a homestead entry in the Kinkaid territory prior to June 28, 1904, is entitled to the benefits of the first proviso to said section 3, but said proviso can not be invoked by a person who has already had the benefit of the Kinkaid Act.

First Assistant Secretary.

Circular No. 891[17]

SUSPENSION OF FINAL PROOFS ON HOMESTEAD ENTRIES TO AWAIT NATURALIZATION OF ENTRYMEN

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, April 23, 1923.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Gentlemen: The Commissioner of Naturalization, Department of Labor, has advised this office that it frequently happens that homestead entrymen who have delayed applying for admission to citizenship until the lifetime of their entries has almost expired have been able to influence hasty action by the courts by stating that unless they secure evidence of naturalization their entries will be canceled.

[17] See Circular No. 861, p. 594.

The Naturalization Service, which objects to favorable action on an application of a foreign-born for American citizenship before the applicant has been instructed in the principles of our Government, is desirous of this office taking such action as will assure homestead entrymen who are acting in good faith that their entries will not be canceled merely because they have not been admitted to citizenship prior to the expiration of the statutory life of their entries.

You are therefore instructed as follows:

Where final proof on a homestead entry has been submitted by a person who has not received a certificate of naturalization, but whose application therefor is pending in court, you will, should such proof be found otherwise satisfactory, advise the claimant that the proof will be suspended to await action on his application for admission to citizenship. The claimant should be also advised that with a certified copy of his certificate of naturalization, when issued, should be filed a new final affidavit and an affidavit, corroborated preferably by his final-proof witnesses, showing what use he has made of the land since the date of the final proof, upon receipt of which, if all be found satisfactory, final certificate will issue.

In the event an entryman seeks time beyond the statutory life of his entry within which to submit final proof, on the ground that he is unable to furnish evidence of his admission to citizenship, you will require him to take the proper steps, within 30 days from notice, looking to the submission of final proof, under penalty of cancellation of the entry, and with such proof to submit a showing as to his citizenship status. Should it be made to appear that an application for admission to citizenship is pending, you will proceed as above directed; if none, you will advise the party that he should at once apply for admission and inform you that he has done so, whereupon the proof, if otherwise satisfactory, will stand suspended for such reasonable time as may be needed to complete the citizenship proceedings, and furnish the evidence specified in the preceding paragraph.

Final proof so suspended should be forwarded with your regular returns with a copy of your letter to the claimant.

In any case where you are in doubt as to the proper course of action you will forward the papers to this office for consideration, notifying the claimant of your action.

Respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

Approved April 23, 1923.

First Assistant Secretary.

APPLICATIONS FOR REDUCTION OF THE REQUIRED AREA OF CULTIVATION ON ENTRIES UNDER SECTION 6, ENLARGED HOMESTEAD ACT

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, September 21, 1923.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices, Idaho and Utah, and Chiefs of the Portland and Salt Lake Field Divisions.

Gentlemen: By Circular No. 796, of December 20, 1921, to registers and receivers, United States land offices, Circular No. 195, dated November 16, 1912, directing that all applications for reduction of the required area of cultivation be transmitted to chiefs of field divisions, was revoked, and it was directed that such applications be forwarded to this office for action. By order of the same date, chiefs of field divisions were directed to report on the applications for reduction then in their offices without field investigations, and were informed that in the future field investigations would be made only when so directed by this office.

Since said orders of December 20, 1921, a great many applications for reduction of the required area of cultivation, some seeking relief from any cultivation whatever, have been filed and allowed in connection with entries made under sections 6 of the acts of February 19, 1909, and June 17, 1910, known as the enlarged homestead acts, the entrymen being thus enabled to obtain title to the lands without residence and with little or no cultivation. In view of this, and certain information which has come into the possession of the land department, it is believed that field investigation should be made in these cases to determine whether reduction should be allowed.

Hereafter you will promptly forward to the proper chief of field division, making necessary notations on your records, all applications filed by homestead entrymen for reduction of the required area of cultivation involving entries made under section 6 of the enlarged homestead act. The chief of field division will cause investigations to be made as soon as practicable, and submit report direct to this office. In each case you will advise this office of the filing of such application and its reference to the chief of field division.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

Approved.

LAND IN PETROLEUM RESERVES NOT SUBJECT TO ENTRY UNDER THE STOCK-RAISING HOMESTEAD ACT

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, February 2, 1924.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Gentlemen: It appears that many local officers have allowed applications to make entry under the stock-raising homestead act for land within the limits of petroleum reserves. As said act is limited by its terms to "unappropriated unreserved public lands," you will reject, subject to the right of appeal, all applications to make entry under said act for land within the limits of petroleum reserves, even though the land may be designated as of the character contemplated by the said act.

---

[18] Modified by Circular No. 983, p. 620.

As to stock-raising entries heretofore allowed for land within the limits of petroleum reserves, you will, on the submission of satisfactory final proof, forward all papers to this office, without the issuance of final certificate.

Applications to make entry under section 2289, Revised Statutes, or under the enlarged-homestead act for unappropriated land within petroleum reserves may be allowed if made subject to the provisions and reservations of the act of July 17, 1914 (38 Stat. 509), as to oil and gas, provided the land is not also within the limits of the geologic structure of a producing oil or gas field.

Lands within naval reserves are not subject to any form of appropriation.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

RELATIVE TO ISSUANCE TO FINAL CERTIFICATES ON COMBINED FINAL HOMESTEAD PROOFS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, February 20, 1924.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: Hereafter, where satisfactory final proof is received involving several homestead entries, and one or more of the entries involved are under the stock-raising act, separate final certificate covering the stock-raising entry or entries will be issued.

For example:

If the final proof is in support of an original entry under section 2289 or enlarged homestead act and an additional entry or entries under the stock-raising act, or on an original entry under section 2289 and additional entries under both the enlarged and stock-raising homestead acts, two final certificates will issue, one for the entries not under the stock-raising act, the other for the entry or entries under said act.

Each final certificate, in addition to carrying appropriate mineral reservation, should contain a reference to the other.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

Circular No. 920

REGARDING DISPOSITION OF ADDITIONAL HOMESTEAD APPLICATIONS UNDER SECTION 2 OF THE ACT OF APRIL 28, 1904 (33 STAT. 527)

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, March 14, 1924.[19]

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Gentlemen: The purpose of this circular is to correct an erroneous practice adopted by some of the local land officers in disposing of applications to make homestead entries under section 2 of the act of April 28, 1904 (33 Stat. 527), as additionals to original entries perfected under the three or five-year homestead law.

The additional rule relating to additional entries under the act of April 28, 1904, as set forth in Circular No. 177, dated October 2, 1912 (41 L. D. 292), in part, reads as follows:

> but the applicant will be required to begin within 20 days from the filing of his application, publication of notice thereof, * * * that the purpose thereof is to allow all persons claiming the land adversely or desiring to show it to be mineral in character an opportunity to file objection to the application with the local land officers for the land district in which the land is situated and to establish their interests therein, or the mineral character thereof.

A number of the local land officers are allowing the applications and then ordering publication and some are allowing the applications without following with publication.

The correct procedure upon the filing of such applications, if regular, is to examine the records of your office for any objections to their allowance and in event none are shown to issue the notice for publication with the instruction that the publication must begin within 20 days from the date the homestead application was filed.

The publication should show that the homestead applications are made, if such be the case, subject to whatever mineral or other reservation is properly applicable thereto.

If the party fails to begin publication within the period prescribed, or fails to furnish evidence of such publication when made, you will reject the application subject to the right of appeal.

Not until the expiration of the publication period and then only after proper evidence of publication has been furnished your office and no objection to the allowance of the applications has been received, should the homestead applications be allowed.

Promptly upon the allowance of the homestead applications the final certificate should be issued, therefore, the final commissions should be paid with the applications to be earned and applied only after publication, in the absence of any objection to the issuance of the final certificate.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., January 2, 1925.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: The following instructions are issued under the provisions of the act of December 29, 1916, relating to stock-raising homesteads as amended by the act of October 25, 1918 (40 Stat. 1016), act of September 29, 1919 (41 Stat. 287), act of March 4, 1923 (42 Stat. 1445), and the act of June 6, 1924 (43 Stat. 469):

WHAT LANDS SUBJECT TO ACT

1. The Secretary of the Interior is authorized, pursuant to application or otherwise, to designate unreserved public lands in any of the public-land States, but not in Alaska, as "stock-raising lands." This includes ceded Indian lands, unless entries therefor are limited to a smaller area by the acts governing their appropriation; but it does not include lands in national forests. From time to time lists of land thus designated will be sent to the registers and receivers in the districts wherein the land is situated, and they will be advised of the dates when the designations become effective.

2. The lands to be designated are those the surface of which is, in the opinion of the Secretary of the Interior, chiefly valuable for grazing and raising forage crops, which do not contain merchantable timber, are not susceptible of irrigation from any known source of water supply, and are of such character that 640 acres are reasonably required to support a family. The classification will be made, so far as practicable, to exclude lands that are not chiefly valuable for grazing and raising forage crops, either because too valuable for such use or too poor for such use. Lands which are capable of producing valuable crops of grain or other food cereal or fruit are not subject to designation, being, if otherwise subject to entry, disposable under the 160-acre or 320-acre homestead law, according to their character. No tract may be designated which contains a water hole, or other body of water, needed or used by the public for watering purposes, and such tracts may be reserved by the President and kept open to the public use under rules prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior. Whether the land will or will not support a family is not guaranteed in any manner by the designation of the land as subject to this act. The homesteader himself must take the burden of accepting the land designated as of a character that meets the requirements of the law.

---

Even though designated under the stock raising act, lands within the limits of petroleum reserves are not subject to entry under this act.

FEES AND COMMISSIONS

3. The fee and commissions on all entries under this act are calculated on the same basis as other entries. For a tract of less than 81 acres the fee is $5, and for that area or more it is $10. The commissions, both on making the entry and on submitting final proof, amount to 3 per cent on the Government price ($1.25 or $2.50 per acre, as the case may be), of the land in Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming, and to 2 per cent in the other States. For example, on an entry for 640 acres in Washington, not within granted railroad limits, and therefore $1.25 land, the payment on making entry would be $34 and on submitting proof would be $24, in addition to testimony fees and publication fees payable to a newspaper.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR ENTRYMEN

4. (a) Any person qualified under the general laws to make homestead entry (that is, who has not exercised his right, or who is entitled to restoration of his right under general provisions of law) may make a stock-raising homestead entry for not exceeding 640 acres of unappropriated unreserved surveyed land, in reasonably compact form, which has been designated by the Secretary as above indicated. No rights can be acquired by an application for unsurveyed land; but where a tract of unsurveyed land has been designated a settlement right on not more than 640 acres may be established and maintained if the boundaries are plainly marked on the ground.

(b) A person otherwise qualified who has partially exhausted his right under the homestead laws other than this act, securing title to a tract of land, is entitled to make an original entry under the stock raising act for such an area as will not, with said tract, make up more than 640 acres; and the distance between the two tracts involved is immaterial. To illustrate, if he has a patented entry covering 120 acres he may make original stock-raising entry for as much as 520 acres; if his patented entry covers 240 acres of land designated under the enlarged homestead act, he is still a qualified entryman under that act and is, therefore, entitled to enter under the stock raising act as much as 400 acres; if he has entered 160 acres of land not designated under the enlarged homestead act, he may file petition for its designation thereunder, and his right to make original stock-raising entry will be contingent on designation as indicated.

(c) A person who has perfected, or has pending, an entry or entries initiated since August 30, 1890, under the desert land, timber and stone or preemption laws for 320 acres in the aggregate is disqualified from making any kind of entry under this act. If he made entries under said laws for not more than 160 acres they do not affect his right under this act. If he has entered under the desert land, timber and stone, or preemption laws more than 160 acres but approximately 40 acres less than 320 acres, he is entitled to make an original or an additional entry under this act; but the tract entered hereunder (which in no case must exceed approximately 640 acres), together with the land entered under the other laws mentioned, and his prior uncanceled homestead entry or entries, if any, must not aggregate more than 800 acres. In other words, a person who is qualified to make an original or an additional homestead entry under other laws for as much as approximately 40 acres can enter hereunder such an amount of land as will, with the area theretofore entered under the homestead laws, not exceed 640 acres, but the total of all entries under the agricultural public land laws (i. e., timber and stone, desert land, preemption, and homestead) must not exceed 800 acres.

COMPACTNESS OF ENTRY

5. With respect to compactness, no entry, nor any claim comprising an original entry and an additional entry under this act, shall entirely surround an unappropriated tract of public land, nor shall it have an extreme length of more than 2 miles if there be available land of the character described in the act the inclusion of which in the claim would reduce such length. An additional entry may not include an incontiguous tract if there is vacant unreserved land of the proper character available contiguous to the original tract. If there is not sufficient land thus available, two or more incontiguous tracts of designated land within a radius of 20 miles may be entered if in reasonably compact form, but an applicant will not be permitted to include a third tract in his entry while leaving unentered any part of a second, nor a fourth while leaving unentered any part of a third, etc. In other words, an original or an additional entry may embrace two or more incontiguous tracts, but not more than one of the tracts may have adjoining it vacant land of the character contemplated by the stock raising act. The applicant is at liberty to file an affidavit, corroborated by two witnesses, to the effect that land which should otherwise be included in his application but which is omitted therefrom is not of the character contemplated by the act, and all facts upon which that allegation is based should be fully set forth therein.

ADDITIONAL ENTRIES WITHIN 20 MILES

6. Any person otherwise qualified who has a pending or perfected homestead entry for less than 640 acres of land, which shall be designated as stock-raising land, may, under the first proviso to section 3 of the act, as amended, make an additional entry for a tract of designated land within a radius of 20 miles from the tract originally entered, and making up therewith an area of not more than 640 acres.

One who has made a stock-raising entry, whether original or additional, is not qualified to make a section 3 additional entry even though he has not obtained the maximum acreage allowed by the stock raising law.

Any person otherwise qualified who, when making an original entry under the stock raising homestead act, is unable to secure the maximum area permitted by reason of adjoining lands or lands within a radius of 20 miles from the lands originally entered being reserved or covered by prior filings or entries may, if the reservation be vacated, or if the intervening filings and entries be canceled as the result of relinquishment, contest, or otherwise, be permitted to enlarge his original entry, through amendment or by the filing of additional entry of designated lands within a radius of 20 miles from the tract originally entered, making up, with his first entry, an area of not more than 640 acres.

If he applies for land which is incontiguous to the original entry, he must furnish an affidavit that there is no unappropriated, unreserved land contiguous thereto of the character described in the act other than that for which he applies; however, this affidavit will not be necessary if your records show that there is no other vacant contiguous land. The same limitation as to compactness of form will be enforced as with respect to original entries as specified in paragraph 5 hereof. It is immaterial whether a person applying for additional entry under this provision of the law resides upon or owns the land first entered.

An application for additional entry not supported by an original entry or by an application for original entry allowable in whole or in part at the time of filing will be rejected unless the original application is for second entry and is accompanied by a second entry showing in which case action in the matter will be suspended pending determination of the applicant's second entry qualifications. If the original second entry application is allowed in whole or in part, the additional application will be considered; otherwise it will be rejected.

A married woman may make an additional entry under section 3 of the stock raising act, provided her husband is not holding an unperfected entry requiring residence. In order to perfect such additional entry, three years' actual residence thereon, together with the required improvements and use of the land for raising stock and forage crops for not less than three years, must be shown.

Where an original or additional entry is made under the general homestead law or the enlarged homestead act for land which at date of filing application to make entry was enterable under the stock raising act, and the homesteader finds the physical condition of the land such that he can not comply with the cultivation requirements, he will not be granted a reduction in the required area of cultivation. In such cases the homesteader should file application for change of the character of the entry to one under the stock raising act, showing therein the nonadaptability of the land for cultivation; that the land does not contain any water holes, or other body of water needed or used by the public for watering purposes, and his consent to the entry being made subject to the reservation to the United States of all coal and other minerals in the land, together with the right to prospect for, mine, and remove the same. The application of the entryman should be in affidavit form, and the showing therein as to the character of the land should be corroborated by the affidavits of two witnesses.

Even though a person has two pending or perfected homestead entries, he may nevertheless make an additional entry under the proviso to section 3, provided all the other lands involved lie within 20 miles of the tract first entered. Where proof has been submitted on the original entry, the person may make an additional entry for land contiguous thereto, or within 20 miles, under section 5 of the act, provided he still owns and resides upon the original tract. (See par. 9 as to method of perfecting title to an entry under said section.)

A person whose right has been restored by a second entry act is in the position of never having made a homestead entry.

PROOFS ON ABOVE ENTRIES

7. The entries hereinbefore explained may be perfected by proofs submitted within five years after their dates on a showing of compliance with the provisions of the three year law (act of June 6, 1912, 37 Stat. 123), except that expenditures for improvements must be shown in lieu of the cultivation required by that act. The entryman must show that he has actually used the land for raising stock and forage crops for not less than three years, and that he has made permanent improvements upon the land, having an aggregate value of not less than $1.25 per acre, and tending to increase the value of the land for stock-raising purposes; and at least one-half of the improvements must be placed upon the tract within three years after the date of the entry.

As to residence, this must be continued for three years, subject to the privilege of a five months' absence in each year, divisible into two periods, if desired, but credit on the residence period on account of military service during time of war will be allowed as on other homestead entries; where an entry has been made, additional to a pending entry, or to a perfected entry for a tract, still owned by the claimant, the residence may be had on either of the tracts involved for three years after the additional is allowed, or becomes allowable. In other cases such residence must be on the land additionally entered. It must appear at the time of proof that there is then a habitable house on the land; but it will not be counted in estimating the value of the permanent improvements required to be placed on the tract, as above stated. If the entry comprises two noncontiguous tracts, the residence may be on either.

Where satisfactory final proof is received involving several homestead entries and one or more of the entries involved is under the stock raising act, separate final certificate covering the stock raising entry or entries will be issued in accordance with Circular No. 917.

ADDITIONAL ENTRIES BEFORE PROOF

8. (a) Under section 4 of the act any person having a homestead entry for land which shall have been designated under this act, upon which he has not submitted final proof, may make entry of contiguous designated lands, which, with the area of his original entry, shall not exceed 640 acres; if there is not sufficient vacant unreserved land of the proper character adjoining his pending claim unapplied for by any other person, he may make up the deficiency by entering one or more other tracts lying within a radius of 20 miles from said claim, but the rule of compactness specified in paragraph 5 hereof must be complied with.

One holding an entry under section 7 of the enlarged homestead act upon which residence is required, or an additional entry under section 6 of act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. 854), may make an additional entry under this section for such an area of designated land as when added to the area in the former entries will not exceed 640 acres, regardless of whether or not the land in the original perfected entry may be designated under the stock raising act.

Section 2 of the act of March 4, 1923 (42 Stat. 1445), provides that a person who made a homestead entry for 160 acres or less of land in a national forest which is of the character contemplated by the stock raising act, who has not submitted final proof upon his existing entry, may make an additional entry under this section of the act for such an area not in a national forest and within a radius of 20 miles from the original entry as, when added to the area of the original entry, will not exceed 640 acres.

(b) On submission of proof on the additional entry, claimant must show residence on one of the tracts to the extent ordinarily required, but will be entitled to credit for residence on the original tract before or after the date of the additional entry; he must also show improvements on the additional tract or tracts to the value of $1.25 for each acre thereof. Proof on the additional entry may be submitted within five years after its allowance, when the requisite residence can be shown, but not before submission of proof on the original. Proof on the original entry must be submitted under the provisions of the law pursuant to which it was made, and within its life, as limited thereby; but, subject to that condition, one proof may be submitted on the two entries jointly.

The marriage of a woman does not disqualify her from making an additional entry under this section; and husband and wife may make entries thereunder, additional to their respective pending entries, if an election as to residence on one of the original entries, as provided by the act of April 6, 1914 (38 Stat. 312), as amended by act of March 1, 1921 (41 Stat. 1193), has been accepted.

ADDITIONAL ENTRIES AFTER PROOF

9. (a) Under section 5 of the act any person who has submitted final proof on an entry under the homestead laws for land designated under this act, who owns and resides upon said land, may enter lands so designated contiguous thereto, which, with the area of his original entry shall not exceed 640 acres; the entry may be made to cover land incontiguous to the original claim, in whole or in part, under the same rules set forth in paragraph 5 hereof.

Section 2 of act of March 4, 1923 (42 Stat. 1445), provides that a person who made a homestead entry for 160 acres or less of land in a national forest which is of the character contemplated by the stock raising act, who has submitted final proof and who owns and resides upon said homestead entry, may make an additional entry for such an area outside of a national forest and within 20 miles of the perfected entry as, when added to the area of the original entry, will not exceed 640 acres.

One who perfected an entry, by residence thereon, under section 7 of the enlarged homestead act or section 6 of the act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. 854), and who owns and resides on the land thus acquired, may make an additional entry hereunder for such an area of designated land as when added to the area in the former entries will not exceed 640 acres, regardless of whether or not the land in the entry first perfected may be designated under the stock raising act. However, the entry last perfected must be so designated.

If the applicant does not own his last entry perfected by residence thereon or owns same and does not reside thereon, he is not qualified to make additional entry under this section.

One who has made an additional entry under either section 4 or section 5 of the act is qualified to make an additional entry for such a quantity of designated land within 20 miles of the original entry as when added to the area formerly acquired will not exceed approximately 640 acres.

A married woman may make entry under section 5 of the act.

(b) In order to acquire title to the land it is necessary only that claimant show the expenditure on the additional tracts of $1.25 per acre for improvements of the kind described in paragraph 7. At least half of such expenditures must be made within three years after allowance of the entry. Proof may be submitted at any time within five years after the entry is allowed.

Where satisfactory proof has been submitted on the original entry the additional entry may be perfected under this section of the act regardless of the question whether it was 3-year, 5-year, or commutation proof.

ENTRIES IN LIEU OF RELINQUISHED LANDS

10. (a) Under section 6 of the act a person, otherwise qualified to make homestead entry, who has a perfected or an unperfected homestead entry for less than 640 acres of land which shall have been designated under this act, on which he resides, and which he has not sold, and who is unable to make a full additional entry under the provisions of section 3 thereof, for the reason that there is not sufficient available land within the 20-mile limit to afford him the area to which he is otherwise entitled (as above indicated), may make an entry for the full area of 640 acres within the same land district, provided he shall relinquish the original entry, if not perfected, or reconvey the land to the United States, if final certificate has issued therefor.

(b) If proof has not been submitted on the original entry he must with his relinquishment furnish his affidavit, corroborated, so far as possible, by two witnesses, showing that at the time of filing application under this act he resided upon the land covered by said entry; that he has not sold, transferred, or conveyed the land or any interest therein, or made a contract or agreement so to do; and that there is not within 20 miles of the land embraced in his original entry a tract of land of the character described in this act of area sufficient to make up, with such original entry, the area he is entitled to enter.

(c) If final certificate has issued on the first entry, it must be shown by a certificate from the proper recording officer of the county in which the land is situated, or by satisfactory abstract of title, that the applicant has not transferred any interest in the land sought to be reconveyed and that there are no liens, unpaid taxes, or other encumbrances charged against it. Moreover, reconveyance of the land must be made by deed executed by the entryman, and also by his wife if he be married, in accordance with the laws governing the execution of deeds for the conveyance of real estate in the State in which the land is situated. The deed of reconveyance should accompany the application but should not be recorded until directed by this office. On acceptance of an application of this character the deed will be returned for recording and refiling in your office before the entry is allowed.

(d) Where proof has been submitted but final certificate has not issued, the relinquishment must be accompanied by an abstract of title or certificate of recording officer, as above specified.

(e) Where the former entry for land already designated under this act has not been perfected and is relinquished, you will allow the application for entry under this act if no other objection appears. Where final certificate has issued on the former entry you will promptly forward the application and accompanying papers for consideration by this office.

(f) Where the original entry was pending and is relinquished, the land will become subject to appropriation (if not embraced in a withdrawal) when the new entry is allowed. Where the original entry was patented and is reconveyed, an order for restoration of the land will be made upon receipt of a report that the substitute entry has been placed of record.

(g) An application under this provision of the law may be accompanied by petition for designation under the act of the land sought and of the tract covered by the former entry, as hereinafter explained.

(h) Proof on an entry allowed under this section is governed by the same rules as though it were an original entry under this act.

(i) The fact that an applicant owns more than 160 acres of land, acquired otherwise than through homestead entry, does not exclude him from the privileges granted by this section.

PETITIONS FOR DESIGNATION

11. (a) The proviso to section 2 of the act confers a preference right of entry upon a person pursuant to whose petition land has been designated. Any person qualified to make an original or an additional entry under this act may file an application to enter a compact body of unappropriated, unreserved, surveyed public land of the character described, which has not already been designated under this act, accompanied by petition, in duplicate, for the designation of such land and of the tract included in any former entry.

(b) He must, when he files said application, pay the regular fee and commissions; and if the tract is ceded Indian land he must at that time pay that part of its price ordinarily required when entry is made. The entire amount paid will be carried in the "Unearned money" account and will be repaid by the receiver if the application be not allowed.

(c) All petitions for the designation of lands presented on behalf of individual applicants should be filed in the local land office. Individual petitions for designation will not be considered unless they are filed in connection with applications to make entry under the act.

12. (a) The petition must be in the form of an affidavit, executed in duplicate and corroborated by at least two witnesses who are familiar with the character of the land. For convenience in filing it is desired that petitions be prepared on sheets not over 8½ by 11 inches in size, with margins of 1 inch on the top and the left-hand side. The petition must contain the name and the post-office address of the applicant, a description by legal subdivisions of all the lands involved properly listed by entries with the serial number of each former entry. If the application contemplates the making of an original entry under this act, or if the application relates to a contiguous original and additional entry, only one petition need be filed. If, however, the lands which it is desired to have designated are comprised in two noncontiguous tracts, an additional copy of petition should be filed for each such tract.

(b) The petition should set forth in detail the character of each legal subdivision included in an application to make entry under this act and in any former homestead entries made under other acts. The information called for may be shown by means of a map or diagram whenever the facts can be advantageously presented thereby. Photographs of the land, where available, are useful in indicating its character and topography, and when presented should be located with reference to the land lines and to the direction in which they were taken. The location of corners of the public survey by which the applicant has determined the situation or legal description of the land should be indicated on the map or stated in the petition. It is believed that the requirements of these regulations as to furnishing a description of the land can properly be met only by a careful examination of the lands by the applicant, preferably assisted by a competent surveyor. Petitions which are deficient will be returned to the applicant for correction, or he may be required to furnish supplemental affidavits concerning matters not discussed or which have not been described in sufficient detail. Care should be exercised in the preparation of petitions, as inaccuracies and omissions will tend to retard action, while false or misleading statements may lead to the rejection of the application.

(c) In the preparation of petitions attention should be given to the following considerations:

Surface water supply.—The relation of the lands to surface streams or springs rising on or flowing across or along them should be indicated, and the location of such water supplies should be accurately described with relation to the lines of the public surveys. If there is no surface water on the land, the location of such near-by sources of water supply upon which the applicant relies or which he proposes to use for stock-watering purposes should be described.

Underground water supply.—The location of any well or wells which may be present on the land should be described and information furnished in each instance concerning the depth of well, present depth of water, and yield. If there are no wells on the land, information should be furnished concerning any wells in the vicinity which may afford an indication of the probable depth of water on the lands applied for.

Irrigability.—If any part or parts of the land is irrigated, the location and source of water supply of such areas should be stated and the area irrigated in each legal subdivision indicated. If any portion of the land is under constructed or proposed irrigation ditches or canals, is crossed thereby, or is adjacent thereto, the relation of the lands to such water conduits and the possibility of their irrigation therefrom should be explained. If the lands are situated near or are crossed by streams which might afford a water supply for their irrigation, full particulars should be given as to the quantity of water available for this purpose and as to whether or not it can be applied to the lands. If artesian wells exist on or near the land or underground water is found under any part of the land at depths of less than 50 feet, the practicability of irrigating the land from underground sources should be fully discussed.

If the applicant has filed a notice of water appropriation or has acquired a right to use water for domestic, stock-watering, or irrigation purposes on the lands under the State law, a copy of such notice of water appropriation or water right should be furnished. Any attempts to irrigate and reclaim the land under the provisions of the desert land act should be described and the reasons for lack of success stated.

Timber and vegetation.—The character of the surface of the land in both the original and the additional entry as it is at the time of application under this act and of the tree and plant growth thereon should be described and the approximate area in each legal subdivision which is of such character that it is included in each of the following general classes should be shown: Lands containing merchantable timber; lands containing timber which is not merchantable; lands covered with mesquite or similar growth; lands covered with sagebrush; open grass lands; lands covered with greasewood and allied plants; rocky wastes; alkali flats; sand dunes; lands in agricultural crops or under cultivation. If none of the above terms are applicable to any portion of the land, details of its character should be furnished. Where timber occurs an estimate of the amount of such timber on each legal subdivision should be made.

Agricultural value.—The acreage in each legal subdivision which is capable of producing agricultural or forage crops by cultivation should be stated by the applicant, as well as the number of acres which have actually been cultivated. If the applicant or his predecessors in interest have made agricultural use of the land in the original entry, the area planted, the kind of crops raised, the yield, and the value should be stated for the last five seasons, or such part thereof as may have been under cultivation.

Grazing value.—The applicant should indicate the grazing character of all the lands involved by describing them as winter, summer, spring, fall, or permanent range. If the land or any part thereof has been used for grazing, the nature and extent of such use should be stated. The applicant should also furnish an estimate of the number of head of cattle or other livestock which, in his opinion, can be maintained on the land throughout the year.

(d) The applications for entry, if otherwise allowable and accompanied by petitions for designation which are in all respects regular, will be suspended by you and retained in your office. You will forward the two copies of the petition to this office and to the Geological Survey, respectively. Where defects appear in the petitions—especially (as to additional entries) failure to refer in the petition to the tract originally entered—you will call for supplemental evidence, as in other cases; if this is not furnished, you will forward all the papers to this office for consideration, making proper recommendations in connection therewith. If there are defects in an application, aside from the accompanying petition, you will take action in the same manner as with other defective applications for entry.

(e) No other entry of the land will be allowed before the application has been finally disposed of. However, later applications therefor should be received and suspended. If withdrawal of an application under this act be filed, you will promptly notify this office thereof, inviting special attention to the pendency of the petition for designation, and will close the case on your records. Prior to final action on the application the applicant's homestead right will be in abeyance, and he will not be entitled to exercise same elsewhere, nor will he be permitted to have two applications under this act pending at the same time.

When designation of all the land involved has become effective you will allow the entry unless the records show that there is possibility of a claim of preferential right for some part of the land under section 8 of the act, in which case the application will remain suspended until the expiration of the preferential right.

Where the land has been designated by the Secretary without deception or fraud on the part of the entryman and the entry has been allowed as a result thereof it will not be subject to contest on a charge that such designation was improperly or erroneously made.

(f) If the Geological Survey advises this office that it is unable to classify the land, or some part thereof, as subject to designation, this office will, through the proper local land office, furnish the applicant with a copy of the survey's report and will allow him 30 days within which to file response. At the applicant's option, he may either appeal from the finding to the Secretary of the Interior, alleging errors of law, or he may present further showing as to the facts, accompanied by such evidence as is desired tending to disprove the adverse conclusion reached by the survey.

Such appeal or showing, if filed, will be forwarded by you to this office, whence it will be transmitted to the Geological Survey for further consideration. That bureau will consider the evidence submitted, and if it warrants such action will recommend designation of the land, or, if its conclusion be still adverse, will transmit the record to the Secretary with report. The case will thereafter be considered as having the status of an appeal pending before the Secretary's office.

In cases where the applicant fails to furnish a showing or to appeal from the order of this office requiring him to furnish it within the 30 days prescribed or where the Secretary refuses designation final action will be taken and the case closed by this office on the basis of the designations which may have been theretofore made.

PREFERENTIAL RIGHTS FOR ADJOINING LAND

13. (a) Under section 8 of the act any person who, as the holder of a homestead entry or as patentee thereunder, is entitled to make additional entry under this act has a preferential right to enter lands lying contiguous to his original tract and designated as subject to the act, said right extending for a period of 90 days after the designation takes effect; it covers such contiguous land as the person is qualified to enter under section 4 or section 5 of the act. This right is superior to the right of entry accorded a person who had filed application for entry of the land under this act accompanied by petition for its designation. However, before a designation has been made the land is subject to settlement and entry under any other laws applicable thereto unless there is pending such application and petition.

(b) After the designation of land takes effect no application therefor will be allowed under this act or under any other law until 90 days shall have elapsed if the records show that it may conflict with a preferential right to be claimed on account of an entry for adjoining land. Otherwise an application under this act may be allowed immediately on the taking effect of the designation.

Where there is conflict between an application for a tract by a holder of adjoining land claiming a preferential right and an application by one asserting no such right you will allow the former and reject the latter, subject to the usual right of appeal.

Where there is conflict between the applications of two or more persons claiming such preferential right of entry you will, after the expiration of the 90-day period, notify the various applicants that they will be allowed 30 days from receipt of notice within which to agree among themselves upon the division of the tracts in conflict, by subdivisions and that such division will be made by this office in the absence of an agreement. Unless an amicable adjustment is made, you will, pursuant to this notice, forward all the papers to this office for consideration, making on your schedules the necessary notations as to the method of transmittal. This office will thereupon make an equitable division of the different subdivisions among the applicants so as to equalize as nearly as possible the areas which the different applicants will have acquired by adding the tracts thus allotted to those originally held or owned by them. An appeal will be allowed from the action of this office.

(c) Where there is but one subdivision adjoining the lands of two or more entrymen or patentees entitled to exercise preferential right of entry and seeking to assert same, said subdivision will be awarded to that person who first files application therefor with an assertion of such right.

(d)[21] A preferential claim can not be recognized unless, on the date the designation of the land in question becomes effective, the land originally entered by the claimant has been designated under the act or there is pending a petition by such claimant for the designation of the land originally entered by him.

(e) A settlement right under any other applicable law, if initiated prior to designation or application and petition, will, if asserted in time, defeat a claim of preference right hereunder. This right may not be defeated by settlement pursuant to an unallowed stock-raising application.

(f) The preference right of entry accorded to contestants by the act of May 14, 1880 (21 Stat. 140), is in no way affected by any of the provisions of this act.

(g) The fact that a person presents, with his application for entry, under this act, the relinquishment of a former entry covering the tract sought confers upon him no preference right for entry of the land, and such application is subject to the preferential right given by section 8 of the stock-raising homestead law.

(h) An applicant for additional entry can not assert a preferential right as against a claimant whose application was filed before the date of the original entry of the former.

(i) The preferential right granted by section 8 of this act is superior to the preferential right granted to ex-service men of the war with Germany by Public Resolution No. 36, approved January 21, 1922, which amended joint resolution of February 14, 1920 (41 Stat. 434).

(j) A person holding an additional entry under section 6 of the act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. 854), or an additional entry under section 7 of the enlarged homestead act, on which additional entry claimant is residing, or who owns and resides on land acquired under such entries, is entitled to a preferential right to enter stock-raising land adjoining such entries regardless of whether or not the land in the original entry under the general homestead laws may be designated under the stock raising act.

DISPOSAL OF COAL AND OTHER MINERAL DEPOSITS

14. (a) Section 9 of the act provides that all entries made and patents issued under its provisions shall contain a reservation to the United States of all coal and other minerals in the lands so entered and patented, together with the right to prospect for, mine, and remove the same; also that the coal and other mineral deposits in such lands shall be subject to disposal by the United States in accordance with the provisions of the coal and mineral land laws in force at the time of such disposal.

Said section 9 also provides that any person qualified to locate and enter the coal or other mineral deposits, or having the right to mine and remove the same under the laws of the United States, shall have the right at all times to enter upon the lands entered or patented under the act, for the purpose of prospecting for the coal or other mineral therein, provided he shall not injure, damage, or destroy the permanent improvements of the entryman or patentee and shall be liable to and shall compensate the entryman or patentee for all damages to the crops on the land by reason of such prospecting.

[21] In adopting this rule on Aug. 29, 1921, the department directed that it was to be effective only from Sept. 1, 1921.

It is further provided in said section 9 that any person who has acquired from the United States the coal or other mineral deposits in any such land or the right to mine and remove the same, may reenter and occupy so much of the surface thereof as may be required for all purposes reasonably incident to the mining or removal of the coal, or other minerals, first, upon securing the written consent or waiver of the homestead entryman or patentee; or, second, upon payment of the damages to crops or other tangible improvements to the owner thereof under agreement; or, third, in lieu of either of the foregoing provisions, upon the execution of a good and sufficient bond or undertaking to the United States for the use and benefit of the entryman or owner of the land, to secure payment of such damages to the crops or tangible improvements of the entryman or owner as may be determined and fixed in an action brought upon the bond or undertaking in a court of competent jurisdiction against the principal and sureties thereon. This bond, the form whereof will be found printed in the appendix hereto, must be executed by the person who has acquired from the United States the coal or other mineral deposits reserved, as directed in said section 9, as principal, with two competent individual sureties, or a bonding company which has complied with the requirements of the act of August 13, 1894 (28 Stat. 279), as amended by the act of March 23, 1910 (36 Stat. 241), and must be in the sum of not less than $1,000. Qualified corporate sureties are preferred and may be accepted as sole surety. Except in the case of a bond given by a qualified corporate surety there must be filed therewith affidavits of justification by the sureties and a certificate by a judge or clerk of a court of record, a United States district attorney, a United States commissioner, or a United States postmaster as to the identity, signatures, and financial competency of the sureties. Said bond, with accompanying papers, must be filed with the register and receiver of the local land office of the district wherein the land is situate, and there must also be filed with such bond evidence of service of a copy of the bond upon the homestead entryman or owner of the land.

If at the expiration of 30 days after the receipt of the aforesaid copy of the bond by the entryman or owner of the land no objections are made by such entryman or owner of the land and filed with the register and receiver against the approval of the bond by them, they may, if all else be regular, approve said bond. If, however, after receipt by the homestead entryman or owner of the lands of copy of the bond, such homestead entryman or owner of the land timely objects to the approval of the bond by said local officers, they will immediately give consideration to said bond, accompanying papers, and objections filed as aforesaid to the approval of the bond, and if, in consequence of such consideration by them, they shall find and conclude that the proffered bond ought not to be by them approved, they will render decision accordingly and give due notice thereof to the person proffering the bond, at the same time advising such person of his right of appeal to the Commissioner of the General Land Office from their action in disapproving the bond so filed and proffered. If, however, said local officers, after full and complete examination and consideration of all the papers filed, are of the opinion that the proffered bond is a good and sufficient one and that the objections interposed as provided herein against the approval thereof by them do not set forth sufficient reasons to justify them in refusing to approve said proffered bond, they will, in writing, duly notify the homestead entryman or owner of the land of their decision in this regard and allow such homestead entryman or owner of the land 30 days in which to appeal to the Commissioner of the General Land Office. If appeal from the adverse decision of the register and receiver be not timely filed by the person proffering the bond, the local officers will indorse upon the bond "disapproved" and other appropriate notations, and close the case. If, on the other hand, the homestead entryman or owner of the lands fails to timely appeal from the decision of the register and receiver adverse to the contentions of said homestead entryman or owners of the lands, said register and receiver may, if all else be regular, approve the bond.

The coal and other mineral deposits in the lands entered or patented under the act will become subject to existing laws, as to purchase or lease, at any time after allowance of the homestead entry, unless the lands or the coal or other mineral deposits are, at the time of said allowance, withdrawn or reserved from disposition.

(b) Every application to make homestead entry under this act must contain a statement to the effect that the entry is made subject to a reservation to the United States of all the coal or other minerals in the land, together with the right to prospect for, mine, and remove the same; that no part of the land is claimed, occupied, or being worked under the mining laws; and that the land is unoccupied and unappropriated by any person claiming the same under the public land laws other than the applicant. (See Forms 4-016 and 4-016a.) The face of final certificates issued on every homestead entry made under the provisions of this act must bear the following:

> Patent to contain reservation of coal and other minerals, and conditions and limitations as provided by act of December 29, 1916 (39 Stat. 862).

There will be incorporated in patent issued on homestead entries under this act the following:

> Excepting and reserving, however, to the United States all the coal and other minerals in the lands so entered and patented, and to it, or persons authorized by it, the right to prospect for, mine, and remove all the coal and other minerals from the same upon compliance with the conditions, and subject to the provisions and limitations, of the act of December 29, 1916 (39 Stat. 862).

Mineral applications and coal-declaratory statements and applications under the coal and mining laws for the reserved deposits disposable under the act must bear on the face of the same, before being signed by the declarant or applicant and presented to you, the following notation:

> Patents shall contain appropriate notations declaring same subject to the provisions of the act of December 29, 1916 (39 Stat. 862), with reference to disposition, occupancy, and use of the land as permitted to an entryman under said act.

Like notation will be made by the register and receiver on final certificates issued by them for the reserved mineral deposits disposable under and subject to the provisions of this act.

DRIVEWAYS FOR STOCK

15.[22] The reservation of driveways for stock provided for in section 10 of the act will be considered on application of parties interested, on recommendation of other departments of the Government, or on the reports of agents of this department. Lands withdrawn for driveways for stock or in connection with water holes can not thereafter be entered, and all applications to make entry under this act for land so withdrawn, whether filed before or after the withdrawal, will be rejected.

SETTLEMENT AND IMPROVEMENT PRIOR TO DESIGNATION

16. The act of June 6, 1924 (43 Stat. 469), permits a person who applies to make entry under the stock-raising homestead act for an undesignated tract of land and files therewith a petition for its designation to occupy the land prior to its designation, provided he actually establishes residence on the land and continues to reside thereon during such occupation; and if the petition for designation be denied, the settler may change his application to one under the enlarged homestead act or to one under the ordinary provisions of the homestead law, provided he is qualified to make such an entry.

An applicant who desires to change his application to one under the enlarged homestead act must file in the local office before final action is taken on the stock-raising homestead application, a supplemental application on the form prescribed by the department for making such entries, and, if there be pending a junior application to make entry under any law other than the stock-raising homestead act, the applicant must also file his affidavit, corroborated by two persons, setting forth therein the date when he established actual residence on the land and to what extent the residence was thereafter maintained. The affidavit should describe the legal subdivisions on which residence was maintained and on which the improvements are located. An entry under the enlarged homestead act may not include two incontiguous tracts, except additional entries may embrace two or more incontiguous tracts if they are contiguous to the original entry.

If the land sought under a change of application has not been designated under the enlarged homestead act, a proper petition for its designation must be filed in accordance with existing regulations.

[22] See amendment, p. 1594. Also see Circular No. 1189, p. 848.

An entryman under the stock-raising homestead act may claim credit for residence on the land and improvements made after the date of his application and petition for designation.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

17. Proofs on entries under this act must be submitted within five years after the dates of their allowance, and no such entry is subject to commutation.

18. Every person applying for entry under this act who has heretofore made entry or entries under the homestead laws must furnish a description thereof or such data as will enable this office to identify it or them.

19. A person who has made entry under section 6 of one of the enlarged homestead acts may make an additional entry under the provisos to section 3 or under section 4 or 5 of this act, provided all be designated as stock-raising land; but he must reside on the land entered under this act or on that originally entered, to the extent required by the 3-year homestead act.

20. Where a person made an additional entry under section 6 of the act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. 854), for lands stock-raising in character, it may be used as a basis for an additional entry under the stock-raising act for the difference in area between the area in the former homestead entries and 640 acres, even though the land in such section 6 entry be more than 20 miles from the land in the original entry, but the land in the additional stock-raising entry must be within 20 miles of the land in such section 6 entry, and it is immaterial as to whether or not the land in the first or original entry is stock-raising in character.

21. A section 7 additional entry under the enlarged homestead act on which residence is being maintained may be the basis for an additional entry under the stock raising act, regardless of whether or not the land in the original entry may be designated under the stock-raising act and whether or not the land in the section 7 entry is more than 20 miles from that in the original entry.

22. You will not allow, without instructions from this office, any application to contest an entry under the stock-raising homestead act where fraud and misrepresentation in securing the designation of the land are alleged. On receipt of such an application to contest, you will transmit the papers to this office by special letter with a request for instructions, making appropriate reference hereto. Such applications to contest will be rejected where it appears, from the records of the department, that the designation of the land was preceded by and based on a field investigation.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

Approved.

E. C. Finney,
First Assistant Secretary.

Washington, March 12, 1925.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: Section 12 of an act of Congress (43 Stat. 809), approved February 7, 1925, reads as follows:

> That existing entries allowed prior to April 1, 1924, under the Stock Raising Homestead Act of December 29, 1916 (Thirty-ninth Statutes at Large, page 862), for land withdrawn as valuable for oil or gas, but not otherwise reserved or withdrawn, are hereby validated, if otherwise regular: Provided, That at date of entry the land was not within the limits of the geologic structure of a producing oil or gas field.

In view thereof, paragraph 2 of Circular No. 913, dated February 2, 1924, entitled "Land in petroleum reserves not subject to entry under the stock-raising homestead act," which reads—is hereby modified to read:

> As to stock-raising entries heretofore allowed for land within the limits of petroleum reserves, you will, on the submission of satisfactory final proof, forward all papers to this office, without the issuance of final certificate—

> As to entries allowed prior to April 1, 1924, under the stock-raising homestead act of December 29, 1916 (39 Stat. 862), for land withdrawn as valuable for oil or gas but not otherwise reserved or withdrawn, if otherwise regular, on submission of satisfactory final proof, you will issue final certificate and note on the face thereof "Validated by section 12, act of February 7, 1925." However, if at date of the entry, the land was within the limits of the geologic structure of a producing oil or gas field, you will not issue the final certificate but will forward all papers to this office.

This act does not validate or protect any stock-raising homestead entries allowed after April 1, 1924. You will report such cases, if any be pending in your office, for appropriate action. Care should be exercised in future not to allow any stock-raising homestead entries within the limits of lands withdrawn or designated as valuable for oil or gas, and applications for such lands should be rejected when presented.

Very respectfully,

WILLIAM SPRY, Commissioner.

Approved March 12, 1925.

E. C. FINNEY,
First Assistant Secretary.

[23] This circular amended Circular No. 913, of Feb. 2, 1924 (50 L. D. 261), so as to provide, among other things, that—

Care should be exercised in future not to allow any stock raising homestead entries within the limits of lands withdrawn or designated as valuable for oil or gas, and applications for such lands should be rejected when presented.

In the case of Clifton W. McCoy, Vernal 09771, the department by decision of June 16, 1927, referring to the statement above quoted, said:

The clause "designated as valuable for oil or gas" as used in the instructions quoted refers only to areas which have been designated as within the limits of producing oil or gas fields, and has no application to lands which have been merely classified as mineral valuable as a source of petroleum and nitrogen.

CIRCULAR NO. 990

SECOND HOMESTEAD ENTRIES—ACT OF FEBRUARY 25, 1925 (43 STAT. 981)

INSTRUCTIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., April 2, 1925.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: Your attention is directed to the act of Congress approved February 25, 1925 (43 Stat. 981), which provides:

> That from and after the passage of this act any person who has heretofore entered under the homestead laws and paid a price equivalent to or greater than $2.50 per acre, lands embraced in a ceded Indian reservation, shall, upon proof of such fact, if otherwise qualified, be entitled to the benefits of the homestead law as though such former entry had not been made: Provided, That the provisions of this act shall not apply to any person who has failed to pay the full price for his former entry or whose former entry was canceled for fraud.

2. A person claiming the right of second homestead entry pursuant to the provisions of this act must furnish a description of the land included in his perfected entry or data from which it can be identified, and he must state that he paid $2.50 or more per acre for the tract, but it is not necessary that he name the precise price paid. If the former entry embraced tracts appraised at less than $2.50 per acre and tracts appraised at more than $2.50 per acre, a second entry hereunder is not allowable unless the aggregate sum of the appraised prices of the former entry equals $2.50 per acre or more.

3. A second entry is not allowable unless the first entry was made prior to February 25, 1925, and unless satisfactory final proof has been submitted thereon and the entire price of the land included therein has been paid prior to the date of the application for second entry.

4. The act has no application if the first entry be canceled. Such cases will be governed by the general statutes allowing second entries.

5. If the original tract lies within your district, you will pass upon the application and will allow the entry if such action be proper; if said tract be not in your district you will forward the application to this office for consideration.

6. A person who is entitled to the benefits of this act may at his option make second entry under either the general homestead law, the enlarged homestead act, or the stock-raising homestead act. Compliance with the law must be shown as though it were an original entry.

Very respectfully,

WILLIAM SPRY, Commissioner.

Approved April 2, 1925.

First Assistant Secretary.

CIRCULAR No. 1037

HOMESTEAD ENTRYMEN PLACED UNDER JUDICIAL RESTRAINT—CIRCULAR NO. 570 (46 L. D. 224) MODIFIED

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., October 31, 1925.

Registers, United States Land Offices:

Departmental decision of July 31, 1925 (51 L. D. 174), upon the appeal of George L. Kile, modified instructions of October 20, 1917 (46 L. D. 224), relating to homestead entrymen who are placed under judicial restraint.

Pursuant to the said decision, General Land Office Circular No. 570 (unpublished), issued November 3, 1917, which promulgated the instructions of October 20, 1917, supra, is hereby amended as follows:

> Since under said decision the period of suspension of an entry is no longer to be concurrent with the period of the entryman's incarceration but is left to the discretion of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, you will hereafter, upon the filing of evidence of judicial restraint, refer the case to this office for consideration and appropriate action.

This office will then grant a period of suspension, having regard to the facts and circumstances adduced, with a view to affording the entryman full opportunity to perfect or dispose of his entry.

CIRCULAR No. 541

SUGGESTIONS TO HOMESTEADERS AND PERSONS DESIRING TO MAKE HOMESTEAD ENTRIES

(In this revision of Suggestions to Homesteaders of February 18, 1924, necessary changes were made in paragraphs 1, 3, 4, 14, 16, 22, and 41)

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., July 16, 1926.

1. Persons desiring to make homestead entries should first fully inform themselves as to the character and quality of the lands they desire to enter, and should in no case apply to enter until they have visited and fully examined each legal subdivision for which they make application, as satisfactory information as to the character and occupancy of public lands can not be obtained in any other way.

As each applicant is required to swear that he is well acquainted with the character of the land described in his application, and as all entries are made subject to the rights of prior settlers, the applicant can not make the affidavit that he is acquainted with the character of the land, or be sure that the land is not already appropriated by a settler, until after he has actually inspected it.

Information as to whether a particular tract of land is subject to entry may be obtained from the register of the land district in which the tract is located, either through verbal or written inquiry, but this officer must not be expected to give information as to the character and quality of unentered land or to furnish extended lists of lands subject to entry, except through plats and diagrams which he is authorized to make and sell as follows:

For a township diagram showing entered land only	$1.00
For a township plat showing form of entries, names of claimants, and character of entries	2.00
For a township plat showing form of entries, names of claimants, character of entry, and number	3.00
For a township plat showing form of entries, names of claimants, character of entry, number and date of filing or entry, together with topography, etc	4.00

Purchasers of township diagrams are entitled to definite information as to whether each smallest legal subdivision, or lot, is vacant public land. Registers are therefore required in case of an application for a township diagram showing vacant lands to plainly check off with a cross every lot or smallest legal subdivision in the township which is not vacant, leaving the vacant tracts unchecked. There is no authority for registers to charge and receive a fee of 25 cents for plats and diagrams of a section or part of a section of a township.

If, because of the pressure of current business relating to the entry of lands, registers are unable to make the plats or diagrams mentioned above, they may refuse to furnish the same and return the fee to the applicant, advising him of the reason for not furnishing the plats requested; that he may make the plats or diagrams himself or have same made by his agent or attorney; and that he may have access to the plats and tract books of the district land office for this purpose, provided such use of the records will not interfere with the orderly dispatch of the public business.

A list showing the general character of all the public lands remaining unentered in the various counties of the public-land States on the 30th day of the preceding June may be obtained at any time by addressing The Commissioner of the General Land Office, Washington, D. C.

All blank forms of affidavits and other papers needed in making application to entry or in making final proofs can be obtained by applicants and entrymen from the land office for the district in which the land lies.

In those public-land States having no district land office all business formerly handled by the district land offices is now being conducted by the General Land Office at Washington, D. C.

2. Kind of land subject to homestead entry.—All unappropriated surveyed public lands adaptable to any agricultural use are subject to homestead entry if they are not mineral or saline in character, are not occupied for the purposes of trade or business, and have not been embraced within the limits of any withdrawal, reservation, or incorporated town or city; but homestead entries on lands, within certain areas (such as lands in Alaska, lands withdrawn under the reclamation act, certain ceded Indian lands, lands within abandoned military reservations, agricultural lands within national forests, lands in western and central Nebraska, and lands withdrawn, classified, or valuable for coal, phosphate, nitrate, potash, oil, gas, or asphaltic minerals), are made subject to the particular requirements of the laws under which such lands are opened to entry. None of these particular requirements are set out in these suggestions, but information as to them may be obtained by either verbal or written inquiries addressed to the register of the land office of the district in which such lands are situated.

HOW CLAIMS UNDER THE HOMESTEAD LAW ORIGINATE

3. (a) Claims under homestead laws may be initiated by settlement on either surveyed or unsurveyed lands of the kind mentioned in the foregoing paragraph. Claims may also be initiated on surveyed lands of that kind by the filing of a soldier's or sailor's declaratory statement, or by the presentation of an application to enter.

(b) Under the law relating to ordinary lands a homestead entry is limited to 160 acres, but this area may sometimes be slightly exceeded where the tract is made up of irregular subdivisions. However, an entry of land which has been designated under one of the enlarged homestead acts may contain 320 acres (see par. 43), and an entry of land designated under the stock-raising act may contain 640 acres. In western Nebraska 640 acres may be entered under the Kinkaid Act (explained in a special circular) without any designation of the land.

4. (a) Settlement is initiated through the personal act of the settler placing improvements upon the land or establishing residence thereon; he thus gains the right to make entry for the land as against other persons. A settlement on any part of a surveyed quarter section subject to homestead entry gives the right to enter all of that quarter section, but if a settler desires to initiate a claim to surveyed tracts which form a part of more than one technical quarter he should define his claim by placing some improvements on each of the smallest subdivisions claimed. When settlement is made on unsurveyed lands the settler must plainly mark the boundaries of all lands claimed. Within a reasonable time after settlement actual residence must be established on the land and continuously maintained. Entry should be made within three months after settlement upon surveyed lands or within that time after the filing in the district land office of the plat of survey of lands unsurveyed when settlement was made. Otherwise, the preference right of entry may be lost. Under the act of August 9, 1912 (37 Stat. 267), settlement right on not exceeding 320 acres of lands designated by the Secretary of the Interior as subject to entry under the enlarged homestead law may be obtained by plainly marking the exterior boundaries of all lands claimed, whether surveyed or unsurveyed, followed by the establishment of residence, except as to lands designated under section 6 of said acts, where residence is not required, but where the settlement right is required to be initiated by plainly marking the exterior boundaries of the land claimed and the placing and maintenance of valuable improvements thereon. A settlement right on not exceeding 640 acres of unsurveyed land designated as subject to the stock-raising act may be obtained by establishment and maintenance of residence thereon, provided the boundaries of the tract claimed are plainly marked on the ground.

(b) Where a settlement claim has been duly initiated upon a tract of unsurveyed, unreserved, unappropriated public land by a person qualified to make homestead entry therefor, the settler is entitled to one or two leaves of absence during each residence year, aggregating not more than five months in each year after establishment of residence, in the same manner and upon the same conditions as persons having entries of record, as explained in paragraph 26. Detailed information regarding such leaves of absence is given in a special circular.

(c) Application for the survey of unsurveyed lands may be made in affidavit form and be addressed to the district cadastral engineer having local jurisdiction by any settler or settlers who can show the necessary qualifications. The applicant must show the location of the township by giving its approximate number, range, and meridian; that he is a bona fide settler therein; under what law he wishes to acquire the land; what the character of the land is and for what it is suitable; the number of the settlers residing upon the land desired to be surveyed; when his residence began and to what extent he has cultivated and improved the land claimed; that his application for survey of the lands described is made in good faith and not at the instance or in the interest or for the benefit of any other person.

5. Soldiers' and sailors' declaratory statements may be filed in the land office for the district in which the lands desired are located by any persons who have been honorably discharged after 90 days' service in the Army or Navy of the United States during the War of the Rebellion or during the Spanish-American War or the Philippine insurrection. Declaratory statements of this character may be filed either by the soldier or sailor in person or through his agent acting under a proper power of attorney, but the soldier or sailor must make entry of the land in person, and not through his agent, within six months from the filing of his declaratory statement, or he may make entry in person without first filing a declaratory statement if he so chooses. Such declaratory statements may also be filed in person by those who have been honorably discharged after 90 days' service in the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps during the operations on the Mexican border or in the war with Germany, but they can not file such statements by agent. If a declaratory statement is filed by a soldier or sailor in person, it must be executed by him before one of the officers mentioned in paragraph 16, in the county or land district in which the land is situated; if filed through an agent, the affidavit of the agent must be executed before one of the officers above mentioned, but the soldier's affidavit may be executed before any officer using a seal and authorized to administer oaths and not necessarily within the county or land district in which the land is situated. If the soldier dies without having filed application for entry following his declaratory statement, such entry may be made by his widow, or in case of her death or remarriage by his minor orphan children, but not by his heirs or devisees.

BY WHOM HOMESTEAD ENTRIES MAY BE MADE

6. Homestead entries may be made by any person who does not come within either of the following classes:

(a) Married women, except as hereinafter stated.

(b) Persons who have already made homestead entry, except as hereinafter stated.

(c) Foreign-born persons who have not declared their intention to become citizens of the United States.

(d) Persons who are the owners of more than 160 acres of land in the United States.

(e) Persons under the age of 21 years who are not the heads of families, except minors who make entry as heirs, as hereinafter mentioned; or minors who served in the Army or Navy during the World War, who may make entry under section 8 of the act of August 31, 1918 (40 Stat. 955).

(f) Persons who have acquired title to or are claiming, under any of the agricultural public land laws, through settlement or entry made since August 30, 1890, any other lands which, with the lands last applied for, would amount in the aggregate to more than 320 acres. Exception is made, however, as to an entry under one of the enlarged homestead acts, which may be allowed provided applicant's claims under the timber and stone, desert land, and preemption laws do not make up approximately 320 acres, and do not with the homestead claim aggregate more than 480 acres; also, as to an entry under the stock-raising law, which may be allowed, provided its area does not make up with such other claims more than 800 acres, and that said claims do not contain as much as 320 acres. The rules as to limitation on the area of additional entries under the last-mentioned act are set forth in the special circular issued thereunder.

EFFECT OF MARRIAGE ON WOMEN'S RIGHTS

7. A married woman who has all of the other qualifications of a homesteader may make a homestead entry under any one of the following conditions:

(a) Where she has been actually deserted by her husband.

(b) Where her husband is incapacitated by disease or otherwise from earning a support for his family and the wife is really the head and main support of the family.

(c) Where the husband is confined in a penitentiary and she is actually the head of the family.

(d) Where the married woman is the heir of a settler or contestant who dies before making entry.

(e) Where a married woman made improvements and resided on the lands applied for before her marriage, she may enter them after marriage if her husband is not holding other lands under an unperfected homestead entry at the time of the marriage; and this last condition does not apply if each party has had compliance with the law for one year next before the marriage and neither one abandons the land prior to filing application for entry.

8. The marriage of an entry woman will not defeat her right to acquire title to the land if she continues to reside thereon and otherwise comply with the law; but ordinarily the failure of her husband to live upon the homestead with her is treated as an evidence of bad faith, requiring testimony for its rebuttal. Husband and wife can not maintain separate residences on their respective homestead entries, and if at the time of marriage each is holding an unperfected entry on which residence must be had in order to acquire title, they can not hold both entries unless they are entitled to the benefits of the act of April 6, 1914, as amended by the act of March 1, 1921 (41 Stat. 1193), explained in the next paragraph.

9. Where a homestead entryman or settler and a homestead entry woman or settler intermarry after each has fulfilled the requirements of the law for one year, the husband may (under the provisions of the act mentioned, Appendix No. 18) elect on which of the entries the home shall be made, after which their residence there shall constitute compliance with the residence requirements as to both homesteads. Instructions regarding the method of procedure under the act are found in a special circular.

10. Where the wife of a homestead settler or entryman, while residing upon the homestead claim and prior to the submission of final proof, has been abandoned and deserted by her husband for more than one year, she may, under the provisions of the act of October 22, 1914 (38 Stat. 766), submit proof (by way of commutation or otherwise) on the entry and secure patent in her own name, being allowed credit for all residence and cultivation had and improvements made either by herself or by her husband. As to the method of procedure under that act, a special circular is issued.

11. A widow, if otherwise qualified, may make a homestead entry notwithstanding the fact that her husband made an entry and notwithstanding she may be at the time claiming the unperfected entry of her deceased husband.

ENTRIES BY SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

12. A person serving in the Army or Navy of the United States may make a homestead entry if some member of his family is residing on the lands applied for, and the application and accompanying affidavits may be executed before the officer commanding the branch of the service in which he is engaged.

ADDITIONAL ENTRIES

13. (a) Regardless of the question whether the land involved has been designated as subject to the enlarged homestead act or the stock raising homestead law, any person otherwise qualified who has made final proof on an entry for less than 160 acres under the homestead laws may make an additional entry for such an amount of public lands as will, when added to the amount for which he has already made proof, not exceed in the aggregate 160 acres; the applicant therefor must give such data as will serve to identify his first filing. Residence, cultivation, and improvements must be performed as in the case of an original entry.

(b) Regardless, also, of designation of the land involved, an additional homestead entry may be made by a person for such an amount of public lands adjoining lands then owned and occupied by him under his original entry as will, when added to such adjoining lands, not exceed in the aggregate 160 acres. An entry of this kind may be made by any person who has not acquired title to and is not, at the date of his application, claiming under any of the agricultural public land laws, through settlement or entry made since August 30, 1890, any other lands which, with the land then applied for, would exceed in the aggregate 320 acres, but the applicant will not be required to show any of the other qualifications of a homestead entryman. In connection with such an entry, all residence and cultivation may be had (before or after its date) on the original tract, provided the entryman continues to own it during the period in question.

(c) Where a person is entitled to make additional entry, as explained in paragraph 13 (a), he may enter land which has been designated under the enlarged homestead act of an area double that to which he would be otherwise entitled. (Appendix No. 13.)

(d) A person who has perfected a homestead entry for land of the character contemplated by the enlarged homestead acts, or who has a pending entry for such land, may make an additional entry for land of like character, as explained in paragraphs 47 and 48.

(e) A person who has perfected a homestead entry for land of the character contemplated by the stock raising act, or who has a pending entry for such land, may make an additional entry for land of like character to make up in the aggregate not more than 640 acres, as explained in a special circular issued under said act. (See par. 51.)

SECOND ENTRIES

14. (a) Where a person commuted a homestead entry before June 5, 1900, or paid the Indian price of the land entered before May 17, 1900, his homestead right is restored. See acts of June 5, 1900, and May 22, 1902 (31 Stat. 267, Sec. 2; and 32 Stat. 203, Sec. 2), and the act of May 17, 1900 (31 Stat. 179).

(b) Where a person has made a homestead entry or entries but failed to perfect them, his right to make another homestead entry is governed by the act of Congress of September 5, 1914, which provides that the applicant must show to the satisfaction of the Secertary of the Interior that the prior entry or entries were made in good faith, were lost, forfeited, or abandoned because of matters beyond his control, and that he has not speculated in his right, nor committed a fraud or attempted fraud in connection with such prior entry or entries. A special circular is issued regarding the procedure under said act.

(c) Where a person before February 25, 1925, made entry for land embraced in a ceded Indian reservation, and has at any time submitted proof thereon and has paid the full price of the land, being $2.50 or more per acre for the tract, he is entitled to make a second homestead entry. (Appendix No. 5.)

(d) Where a person's homestead right is restored under the conditions mentioned in this paragraph, he may make an entry under the general law, under the enlarged-homestead act, or under the stock-raising law, at his option.

ADJOINING FARM HOMESTEAD

15. An adjoining farm entry may be made for such an amount of public lands lying contiguous to lands owned and resided upon by the applicant as will not, with the lands so owned and resided upon, exceed in the aggregate 160 acres; but no person will be entitled to make entry of this kind who is not qualified to make an original homestead entry. A person who has made one homestead entry, although for a less amount than 160 acres, and perfected title thereto, is not qualified to make an adjoining farm entry. In connection with an entry of this character, there must be shown the required amount of residence and cultivation after the date thereof, but both residence and cultivation may be had on the original tract.

HOW HOMESTEAD ENTRIES ARE MADE

16. A homestead entry may be made by the presentation to the land office of the district in which the desired lands are situated of an application properly prepared on blank forms prescribed for that purpose and sworn to before either the register or acting register, or before a United States commissioner, a notary public, a judge or clerk or prothonotary of a court of record, or the deputy of such clerk or prothonotary, or before any magistrate, authorized by the laws of or pertaining to any State, District, or Territory of the United States to administer oaths, in the county, parish, or land district in which the land lies, or before any officer of the classes named who resides nearest or most accessible to the land although he may reside outside the county and land district in which the land is situated. Except as to the register or acting register the official character of any officer not using a seal of office must be certified to under seal by the clerk of the court having the record of his appointment and qualification. If the application is executed before a qualified officer within the boundaries of either the county or land district in which the land is located, no additional showing as to nearness or accessibility of such officer need be made, but if executed outside of both the county and land district the applicant must show by affidavit satisfactory to the Commissioner of the General Land Office that the officer before whom the application was executed was because of topographic or geographic conditions nearer or more accessible to the land. An application is not acceptable if executed more than 10 days before its deposit in the mails for filing in the district land office.

17. Each application to enter and the affidavits accompanying it must recite all the facts necessary to show that the applicant is acquainted with the land; that the land is not, to the applicant's knowledge, either saline or mineral in character; that the applicant possesses all of the qualifications of a homestead entryman; that the application is honestly and in good faith made for the purpose of actual settlement and cultivation, and not for the benefit of any other person, persons, or corporation; that the applicant will faithfully and honestly endeavor to comply with the requirements of the law as to settlement, residence, and cultivation necessary to acquire title to the land applied for; that the applicant is not acting as the agent of any person, persons, corporation, or syndicate in making such entry, nor in collusion with any person, corporation, or syndicate to give them the benefit of the land entered or any part thereof; that the application is not made for the purpose of speculation, but in good faith to obtain a home for the applicant, and that the applicant has not directly or indirectly made, and will not make, any agreement or contract in any way or manner with any person or persons, corporation, or syndicate whatsoever by which the title he may acquire from the Government to the lands applied for shall inure, in whole or in part, to the benefit of any person except himself. Additional statements as to the character of the land must be made in applications under the enlarged homestead acts and under the stock-raising law; but in the latter case, as the mineral in the land is reserved to the Government, no allegation as to same is made, but claimant must state that no part of the land is claimed, occupied, or being worked under the mining laws.

18. All applications by persons claiming as settlers must, in addition to the facts required in paragraph 17, state the date and describe the acts of settlement under which they claim a preferred right of entry, and applications by the widows, devisees, or heirs of settlers must state facts showing the death of the settler and their right to make entry, that the settler was qualified to make entry at the time of his death, and that the heirs or devisees applying to enter are citizens of the United States or have declared their intentions to become such citizens; but they are not required to state facts showing any other qualifications of a homestead entryman, and the fact that they have made a former entry will not prevent them from making an entry as such heirs or devisees, nor will the fact that a person has made entry as the heir or devisee of the settler prevent him from making an entry in his own individual right if he is otherwise qualified to do so.

19. All applications by soldiers, sailors, or their widows, or the guardians of their minor children should be accompanied by proper evidence of the soldier's or sailor's service and discharge and of the fact that the soldier or sailor had not, prior to his death, made an entry in his own right. The application of the widow of the soldier or sailor must also show that she is unmarried and that the right has not been exercised by any other person. Applications for the children of soldiers or sailors must show that the father died without having made entry, that the mother died or remarried without making entry, and that the person applying to make entry for them is their legally appointed guardian.

20. Applications for entry must be accompanied by the proper fee and commissions. (See par. 41.) A receipt for the money is at once issued, but this is merely evidence that the money has been paid and as to the purpose thereof. If the application is allowed and the entry placed of record, formal notice of this fact is issued on the prescribed form; if the application is rejected or suspended, notice of such action is forwarded to the applicant as soon as practicable.

RIGHTS OF WIDOWS, HEIRS, OR DEVISEES UNDER THE HOMESTEAD LAWS

21. If a homestead settler dies without having filed application for entry, the right to enter the land covered by his settlement passes to his widow. If there be no widow, said right passes to his heirs or devisee. See paragraph 4 for the general rules regarding settlement claims.

22. If a homestead entryman dies without having submitted final proof, his rights under the entry pass to his widow, or, if there be none, and the children if any are not all minors, then to his heirs or devisees. However, if all the heirs be minor children of the entryman or entrywoman, and their other parent be dead, the entry is not subject to devise. In such a case the right to a patent vests in the children at once upon proof only of the death of both parents and that they are the only children of the homesteader, provided, as to a male homesteader, that there be no widow. The law provides, in the alternative, that the executor, administrator, or guardian may, within two years after the death of the surviving parent, sell the land for the benefit of the children, in accordance with the law of the State where they are domiciled. In such cases it is required that there be furnished record evidence of an order for the sale made by a court of competent jurisdiction. In any event, publication and posting of notice of intention to submit proof or to ask issuance of patent to the purchaser is required.

23. If a contestant dies after having secured the cancellation of an entry, his right as a successful contestant to make entry passes to his heirs; and if the contestant dies before he has secured the cancellation of the entry he has contested, his heirs may continue the prosecution of his contest and make entry if they are successful in the contest. In either case, to entitle the heirs to make entry they must show that the contestant was a qualified entryman at the date of his death; and in order to earn a patent the heirs must comply with all the requirements of the law under which the entry was made, to the same extent as would have been required of the contestant had he made entry.

24. The unmarried widow, or, in case of her death or remarriage, the minor children of soldiers and sailors who were honorably discharged after 90 days' actual service during the War of the Rebellion, the Spanish-American War, or the Philippine insurrection may file a declaratory statement in the manner explained in paragraph 5 and make entry as such widow or minor children, if the soldier or sailor died without making entry or failed to perfect an entry and was, at the time of his death, qualified to make another. The minor children must make a joint entry through their duly appointed guardian. If the widow files a declaratory statement and dies without having applied for entry, entry may be made on behalf of the minor children, but not by her devisees or other heirs.

RESIDENCE AND CULTIVATION REQUIRED UNDER THE HOMESTEAD LAWS

25. With the exception of adjoining farm homestead entries and additional entries allowed under certain conditions pursuant to the general law, the enlarged homestead acts and the stock-raising law, a homestead entryman must establish residence upon the tract entered within six months after date of the entry, unless an extension of time is allowed, as explained in paragraph 35, and must maintain residence there for a period of three years. However, he may have credit for residence as well as cultivation before the date of entry if the land was, during the period in question, subject to appropriation by him or included in an entry against which he had initiated a contest resulting afterwards in its cancellation. Moreover, he may absent himself for a portion or portions of each year after making entry and establishing residence, as more fully explained in paragraph 26.

When proof is submitted it must be shown that the homesteader is a citizen of the United States, provided, however, that a homestead entrywoman who is a citizen when she makes her filing and thereafter marries an alien need not show that her husband is an American citizen, but must show that he is entitled to become one.

The act of September 22, 1922 (42 Stat. 1021), provides for the naturalization and citizenship of women married since that date, and in all cases of applications for entry or proofs in support of entries by married women otherwise duly qualified to make such entry or proof, a showing must be made of such facts concerning the marital status and citizenship as may be rendered necessary by the provisions of that act, the text of which is printed in Appendix 19.

26. During each year, beginning with the date of establishment of actual residence, the entryman may absent himself from the land for not more than two periods, aggregating as much as five months. In order to be entitled to such absences the entryman need not file applications therefor, but must each time he leaves the land file at the local land office (by mail or otherwise) notice of the time of leaving; and upon his return to the land he must notify said office of the date thereof. If he has returned after an absence of less than five months and filed notice of his return, he may, without any intervening residence, again absent himself—pursuant to new notice—for the remaining part of five months within the residence year. However, two absences in different residence years, reckoned from the date when residence was established, must be separated by substantial periods if they together make up more than five months.

27. (a) Cultivation of the land for a period of at least two years is required, and this must generally consist of actual breaking of the soil, followed by planting, sowing of seed, and tillage for a crop other than native grasses. However, tilling of the land, or other appropriate treatment, for the purpose of conserving the moisture with a view of making a profitable crop the succeeding year, will be deemed cultivation within the terms of the act (without sowing of seed) where that manner of cultivation is necessary or generally followed in the locality.

During the second year not less than one-sixteenth of the area entered must be actually cultivated, and during the third year, and until final proof, cultivation of not less than one-eighth must be had. These requirements are the same as to homesteads under the general law and under the enlarged homestead acts, and the years in question begin to run, not from the establishment of residence, but from the date of the entry. A larger amount of cultivation is required on entries under section 6 of the enlarged homestead acts (see pars. 49 and 50), and the above-mentioned rules are not applicable to entries under the reclamation act. No cultivation whatsoever is required under the so-called Kinkaid Act, which affects only Nebraska, while the stock-raising homestead law requires no specific area of cultivation, only that the land has been actually used for raising stock and forage crops, and that it has been improved under certain conditions.

(b) The Secretary of the Interior is authorized to reduce the requirements as to cultivation. This may be done if the land entered is so hilly or rough, the soil so alkaline, compact, sandy, or swampy, or the precipitation of moisture so light as not to make cultivation of the required amounts practicable, or if the land is generally valuable only for grazing. An application for reduction upon the grounds indicated must be filed at the proper local land office on the form prescribed therefor, and should set forth in detail the special physical conditions of the land on which claimant bases his right to a reduction.

A reduction may be allowed also if the entryman, after making entry and establishing residence, has met with misfortune which renders him reasonably unable to cultivate the prescribed area. In this class of cases an application for reduction is not to be filed, but notice of the misfortune and of its nature must be submitted to the register of the local land office, under oath, within 60 days after its occurrence; upon satisfactory proof regarding the misfortune at the time of submitting final proof a reduction in area of cultivation during the period of disability following the misfortune may be permitted.

No reduction in area of cultivation will be permitted on account of expense in removing the standing timber from the land. If lands are so heavily timbered that the entryman can not reasonably clear and cultivate the area prescribed by the statute, such entries will be considered speculative and not made in good faith for the purpose of obtaining a home. The foregoing applies to lands containing valuable or merchantable timber and will not preclude the reduction of area of cultivation on proper showing in cases where the presence of stumps, brush, lodge pole pine, or other valueless or nonmerchantable timber prevents the clearing and cultivation of the prescribed area. Nor will a reduction in the area of cultivation based on the physical conditions of the land be permitted if, at the date of the application to enter, the land was designated and subject to entry under the stock-raising act. In such cases, the homesteader should file application for change of the character of the entry to one under the stock-raising act, showing therein the nonadaptability of the land for cultivation; that the land does not contain any water holes, or other body of water needed or used by the public for watering purposes, and his consent to the entry being made subject to the reservation to the United States of all coal and other minerals in the land, together with the right to prospect for, mine, and remove the same. The application of the entryman should be in affidavit form, and the showing therein as to the character of the land should be corroborated by the affidavits of two witnesses.

(c) The homestead entryman must have a habitable house upon the land entered at the time of submitting proof. Other improvements should be of such character and amount as are sufficient to show good faith.

CREDIT ON ACCOUNT OF MILITARY SERVICE

28. (a) A soldier or sailor of one of the classes mentioned in paragraph 5 who makes entry must begin his residence on the land entered by him within six months from the date of filing his declaratory statement, but if he makes entry without filing a declaratory statement he must begin his residence within six months after the date of the entry. Thereafter he must continue both residence and cultivation for such period as will, when added to the time of his military or naval service (under enlistment or enlistments covering war periods), amount to three years; but if he was discharged on account of wounds or disabilities incurred in the line of duty, credit for the whole term of his enlistment may be allowed; however, no patent will issue to such soldier or sailor until there has been residence by him for at least one year, nor until a habitable house has been place upon the land.

(b) In each year of residence required of the soldier he is entitled to the same absence privilege as is enjoyed by other homesteaders.

(c) A soldier with 19 months' or more military service will be required to reside on the land at least 7 months during the first entry year; with more than 12 and less than 19 months, he must reside on the land 7 months during the first year and such part of the second year as, added to his excess over 12 months' service, will equal 7 months, and must cultivate one-sixteenth of the area the second year; with 7 and not more than 12 months, he must reside upon the land 7 months during each of the first and second years, and cultivate one-sixteenth of the area the second year; with 90 days and less than 7 months, he must reside upon the land 7 months during each year for the first and second years, and such part of the third year as, added to his service, will equal 7 months, and cultivate one-sixteenth of the area the second year and one-eighth the third year; and with less than 90 days' service, will receive no credit therefor in lieu of residence and cultivation. If he delays the submission of proof beyond the period of residence required, the cultivation necessary for the years elapsing before the submission of proof must be shown. He may apply for and receive a reduction in the area to be cultivated in the same manner and under the conditions required of other applicants. Where the entry is made under the stock-raising homestead act, the above rule with respect to residence will be applicable, but the soldier must make the improvements on the land required of other persons under that law, and show in lieu of cultivation that he actually used the land for raising stock and forage crops during the period that he was required to reside on the land. He must show, in any entry under the homestead laws, that he had a habitable house on the land at the date of submitting proof. These rights are conferred by section 2305 of the United States Revised Statutes as amended by act of June 6, 1912 (37 Stat. 123), act of February 25, 1919 (40 Stat. 1153), act of April 6, 1922 (42 Stat.

491), and by Public Resolution No. 79, approved December 28, 1922 (42 Stat. 1067).

(d) The act of June 16, 1898 (30 Stat. 473), copied in Appendix No. 21, provides that where a person has settled on the public lands under the homestead laws, his service in the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps during any war in which the United States may be engaged shall be construed as equivalent to residence and cultivation for the same length of time upon the tract entered or settled upon; also that no contest initiated against a homestead entry on the ground of abandonment shall be sustained, unless it be alleged and proved that the settler's alleged absence from the land was not due to his employment in such service.

(e) By the joint resolution of August 29, 1916 (39 Stat. 671), the provisions of said act are made " applicable in all cases of military service rendered in connection with operations in Mexico or along the borders thereof, or in mobilization camps elsewhere, whether such service be in the military or naval organization of the United States or the National Guard of the several States now or hereafter in the service of the United States."

(f) Section 1 of the act of July 28, 1917 (40 Stat. 248), grants credit for constructive residence and cultivation to homesteaders absent because of military or naval service during the World War and protects them from a charge of abandonment during such period; and section 2 of said act provides that where a homestead settler, applicant, or entryman dies while actually engaged in the military or naval service of the United States during any war in which the United States may be engaged, his widow, if unmarried, or in case of her death or marriage, his minor orphan children, or his or their legal representatives may proceed forthwith to make final proof upon the entry or application thereafter allowed, the death of the soldier or sailor while so engaged in the service of the United States being equivalent to a performance of all requirements as to residence and cultivation upon such homestead.

(g) The act of March 1, 1921 (41 Stat. 1202), authorizes homestead settlers, applicants, or entrymen who enlisted prior to November 11, 1918, in the United States Army, Navy, or Marine Corps during the war with Germany and were honorably discharged or separated because of physical incapacities due to service and for that reason are unable to return to the land, to make proof without further residence, improvements, and cultivation, at such time and place as may be authorized by the Secretary of the Interior.

(h) The act of September 29, 1919 (41 Stat. 288), as amended by section 2 of the act of April 6, 1922 (42 Stat. 491), grants to ex-service men of the late war who made or may hereafter make entry under the homestead laws or who initiate valid homestead claim by settlement or application, and thereafter enter upon a course of training under the vocational rehabilitation act or are furnished hospital treatment by the Government for wounds received or disabilities incurred in line of duty, a leave of absence from the homestead for the purpose of taking such course, or to receive hospital treatment by the Government, and allows the time while so engaged to be credited as constructive residence upon and cultivation of the homestead, subject to the condition that before title by patent may be granted the claimant shall have resided upon, improved, and cultivated the homestead for a period of at least one year. A person who is entitled to the benefits of this act should forward to the local district land office notice of his absence from the land and of the fact that he has been admitted to take a course of vocational training under the act of June 27, 1918 (40 Stat. 617), or that he is receiving hospital treatment by the Government, together with a certificate to that fact by the proper official. He should also file notice of his return to the land so that the local offices may make due notation on their records.

(i) No credit can be allowed for military service where commutation proof is offered.

29. A soldier or sailor making entry during his enlistment in time of peace is not required to reside personally on the land, but may receive patent if his family maintain the necessary residence and cultivation until the entry is three years old or until it has been commuted; but a soldier or sailor is not entitled to credit on account of his military service in time of peace. If such soldier has no family, there is no way by which he can make entry and acquire title during his enlistment in time of peace.

30. Widows and minor orphan children of soldiers and sailors who make entry based on the husband's or father's military or naval service must conform to the requirements specified for the soldier or sailor. The unmarried widow of a soldier or sailor of the Mexican border operations or of the war with Germany, or the unmarried widow or minor orphan children of a veteran of the Civil War, the Spanish-American War, or the Philippine insurrection, is entitled to the same privileges, under the homestead laws, as the deceased soldier or sailor if he died possessed of a homestead right. The adult child of a soldier has no special privileges in connection with the homestead laws on account of his father's military service.

COMPLETION OF ENTRY BY WIDOW OR HEIRS

31. Persons who make entry as the widows, heirs, or devisees of settlers are not required to reside upon the land entered by them, but they must improve and cultivate it for such period as, added to the time during which the settler resided on and cultivated the land, will make the required period of three years, and the cultivation must be to the extent required by the law under which the proof is offered. Commutation proof may, however, be made upon showing 14 months' actual residence and cultivation had either by the settler or the heirs, devisee, or widow, or in part by the settler and in part by the widow, heirs, or devisee.

32. Persons succeeding as widow, heirs, or devisees to the rights of a homestead entryman are not required to reside upon the land covered by the entry, but they must cultivate it as required by law for such period as will, added to the entryman's period of compliance with the law, aggregate the required term of three years. They are allowed a reasonable time after the entryman's death within which to begin cultivation, proper regard being had to the season of the year at which said death occurred. If they desire to commute the entry they must show a 14 months' period of such residence and cultivation on the part of themselves or the entryman, or both, as would have been required of him had he survived. They must in all cases show that they are citizens of the United States regardless of the question whether the entryman was himself a citizen. Moreover, the entry may not be completed by the widow, heirs, or devisee of a homestead entryman unless he himself had complied with the law in all respects to the date of his death, and they must also show, at the time of final proof, that there is a habitable house on the land.

HOLDERS OF PUBLIC OFFICE

33. Homestead entrymen are not entitled to any special privileges whatsoever in connection with their claims by reason of the fact that they are appointed or elected to public office, the duties of which require their residence elsewhere than on the homesteads. This also applies to civil-service employees.

ENTRYMEN WHO BECOME INSANE

34. Neither residence nor cultivation by an insane homestead entryman is necessary after he becomes insane, if such entryman made entry and established residence before he became insane and complied with the requirements of the law up to the time his insanity began. Proof on the entry may be submitted by his duly appointed guardian or committee. However, if the entryman regains his sanity before the expiration of three years after the date of the entry, he is required to reestablish residence on the land and comply with the law; and he must himself submit proof unless the unsoundness of mind recurs.

LEAVES OF ABSENCE

35. (a) Where, for climatic reasons, or on account of sickness, or other unavoidable cause, residence can not be established on the land within six months after the date of the entry, additional time, not exceeding six months, may be allowed. An application for such extension must include the affidavits of the entryman, and two witnesses acquainted with the facts, which may be executed before any officer authorized to administer oaths and having a seal of office, though outside of the county or land district where the entry is situated. The application should set forth in detail the grounds upon which it is based, including a statement as to the probable duration of the hindering causes and the date when the claimant may reasonably expect to establish his residence.

If the extension is granted, it protects the entry from contest on the ground of the homesteader's failure to establish residence within the first six months' period, unless it be shown that the order for extension was fraudulently obtained. But the failure of the entryman to apply for an extension of time does not forfeit his right to show, in defense of a contest, the existence of conditions which might have been made the basis for such an application.

(b) Leave of absence for one year or less may be granted by the register of the district land office to entrymen who have established actual residence on the lands in cases where total or partial failure or destruction of crops, sickness, or other unavoidable casualty has prevented the entryman from supporting himself and those dependent on him by cultivation of the land. Application for such leave of absence must be sworn to by the applicant and corroborated by at least one witness in the land district or county within which the entered lands are located before an officer authorized to administer oaths and having a seal. It must describe the entry and show the date of establishing residence on the land and the extent and character of the improvements and cultivation performed by applicant. It must also set forth fully the facts on which the claimant bases his right to leave of absence, and where sickness is given as the reason a certificate signed by a reputable physician should be furnished if practicable. The period during which a homesteader is absent from his claim pursuant to a leave duly granted can not be counted in his favor.

(c) The act of February 25, 1919 (40 Stat. 1153), authorizes the register of the district land office to grant to such homesteaders as make proper showing in their applications that the climatic conditions make residence on the homestead for 7 months in each year a hardship a reduction in the terms of residence to 6 months in each year over a period of 4 years, or to 5 months in each year over a period of 5 years; but the total residence required need not exceed 25 months, not less than 5 of which shall be in each year and proof must be submitted within 5 years. Instructions under said act are printed in Circular No. 636.

COMMUTATION OF HOMESTEAD ENTRIES

36. (a) All original, second, and additional homestead, and adjoining farm entries may be commuted, except such entries as are made under particular laws which forbid their commutation.

(b) The entryman, or his statutory successor, must, as a general thing, show substantially continuous residence upon the land was maintained until the submission of the proof or filing of notice of intention to submit same, the existence of a habitable house upon the claim and cultivation of not less than one-sixteenth of its acreage. However, the proof may be accepted where actual residence for the required period is shown, even though slightly broken, provided it be in reasonably compact periods; and the failure to continue the residence until filing of notice to submit proof will not prevent its acceptance if the Land Department be fully satisfied of entryman's good faith, and provided no contest or adverse proceeding shall have been initiated for default in residence, or other good cause, prior to filing such notice. Credit for residence and cultivation before the date of entry may be allowed under the conditions, explained in paragraph 25, as to three-year proof.

(c) Where a contest is initiated against an entry, prior to filing of notice to submit commutation proof, the entry will be considered under sections 2291 and 2297, Revised Statutes, as amended, and the homesteader's absence will not be excused upon the ground that he has complied with the law for 14 months and is under no obligation to further reside upon the land. However, a contest for abandonment can not be maintained if the absence after the 14 months' residence is pursuant to a leave of absence regularly and properly granted under the act of March 2, 1889, or under conditions which would have entitled the entryman to such leave upon formal application therefor, and such absence will not prevent the submission of acceptable commutation proof.

(d) An entryman submitting commutation proof may add together, to make up the 14 months, periods of residence before and after an absence under a leave of absence regularly granted, or an absence of not exceeding five months of which he had given notices as provided by the act of June 6, 1912.

(e) A person submitting commutation proof must, in addition to certain fees, pay the price of the land; this is ordinarily $1.25 per acre, but is $2.50 per acre for lands within the limits of certain railroad grants. The price of certain ceded Indian lands varies according to their location, and inquiry should be made regarding each specific tract.

(f) The claimant must show full citizenship, as in case of 3-year proof.

(g) The provisions of law explained in paragraph 27 (f) apply to commutation proof also.

(h) Commutation proof can not be made on homestead entries allowed under the act of April 28, 1904 (33 Stat. 547), known as the Kinkaid Act; entries under the reclamation act of June 17, 1902 (32 Stat. 388); entries under the enlarged-homestead act (post, par. 43 et seq.); entries allowed on coal lands under the act of June 22, 1910 (36 Stat. 583), so long as the land is withdrawn or classified as coal; additional entries allowed under the act of April 28, 1904 (33 Stat. 527; Appendix No. 4); second entries allowed under the act of June 5, 1900 (31 Stat. 267; Appendix No. 4); second entries allowed under the act of May 22, 1902 (32 Stat. 203; Appendix No. 4), when the former entry was commuted; entries within forests under the act of June 11, 1906 (34 Stat. 233); or entries under the stock-raising act of December 29, 1916 (39 Stat. 862).

WHEN PROOF MAY BE SUBMITTED

37. Either final or commutation proof may be made at any time when it can be shown that there is a habitable house upon the land and that the required residence and cultivation have been had. Proof must be submitted within five years. Failure to submit proof within the proper period is ground for cancellation of the entry unless good reason for the delay appears; satisfactory reasons being shown, final certificate may be issued, and the case referred to the board of equitable adjudication for confirmation.

WHO MAY SUBMIT PROOF

38. (a) Final proof must be made by the entrymen personally or their widows, heirs, or devisees, and can not be made by agents, attorneys in fact, administrators, or executors, except as explained in paragraphs 10, 22, and 34. Final proof can be made only by citizens of the United States.

(b) Where entries are made and proof offered for minor orphan children of soldiers or sailors the minors may be represented by their guardian.

HOW PROOFS MAY BE MADE

39. Final or commutation proofs may be made before any of the officers mentioned in paragraph 16 as being authorized to administer oaths to applicants.

Any person desiring to make homestead proof should first forward a written notice of his desire to the register of the land office, giving his post-office address, the number of his entry, the name and official title of the officer before whom he desires to make proof, the place at which the proof is to be made, and the name and post-office addresses of at least four of his neighbors who can testify from their own knowledge as to facts which will show that he has in good faith complied with all the requirements of the law.

40.[h] The register will issue a notice naming the time and place for submission of proof and cause same to be published at entryman's expense for 30 days preceding submission of proof in the newspaper designated by the register. If this be a daily paper, the publication must be inserted in 30 consecutive issues; if daily, except Sunday, in 26; if weekly, in 5; and if semiweekly, in 9 consecutive issues.

The first day of publication must be at least 30 days before the date set for proof, and a copy of the notice must be posted in a conspicuous place in the office of the register for at least 30 days before said date.

The homesteader must arrange with the publisher for publication of the notice of intention to make proof and make payment therefor directly to him. The register will be responsible for the correct preparation of the notice.

On the day named in the notice the entryman must appear before the officer designated to take proof with at least two of the witnesses named in the notice; but if for any reason the entryman and his witnesses are unable to appear on the date named, the officer should continue the case from day to day until the expiration of 10 days, and the proof may be taken on any day within that time when the entryman and his witnesses appear, but they should, if it is possible to do so, appear on the day mentioned in the notice.

FEES ON ENTRIES AND FINAL PROOFS

41. Fees and commissions.—When a homesteader applies to make entry he must pay in cash to the register a fee of $5 if his entry is for less than 81 acres, or $10 if he enters 81 acres or more. And in addition to this fee he must pay, both at the time he makes entry and final proof, a commission of $1 for each 40-acre tract entered outside of the limits of a railroad grant and $2 for each 40-acre tract entered within such limits. Fees under the enlarged homestead act and under the stock raising homestead act are the same as above, but the commissions are based upon the area of the land embraced in the entry. (See par. 43.) Where an entry is commuted no commissions are payable, except in connection with certain ceded Indian lands, as to which inquiry must be made specifically at the proper district land offices. On all final proofs made before the register, or before any other officer authorized to take proofs, the register is entitled to receive 15 cents for each 100 words reduced to writing, and no proof can be accepted or approved until all fees have been paid.

In all cases where lands are entered under the homestead laws in Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming the commissions due to the register and receiver on entries and final proofs, and the testimony fees under final proofs, are 50 per cent more than those above specified, but the entry fee of $5 or $10, as the case may be, is the same in all the States.

Remittances of moneys to the district land offices must be made in cash or currency; but certified checks when drawn in favor of the register of United States Land Office on National and State banks and trust companies, which can be cashed without cost to the Government, can be used. Likewise, the United States post-office orders are acceptable when they are made payable to the register and are drawn on the post office at the place where the register is located.[1]

ALIENATION OF LAND BY HOMESTEADER

42. The alienation of all or any part of the land embraced in a homestead prior to making proof, except for the public purposes mentioned in section 2288, Revised Statutes (see Appendix No. 1), will prevent the entryman from making satisfactory proof, since he is required to swear that he has not alienated any part of the land except for the purposes mentioned in section 2288, Revised Statutes.

A mortgage by the entryman prior to final proof for the purpose of securing money for improvements, or for any other purpose not inconsistent with good faith, is not considered such an alienation of the land as will prevent him from submitting satisfactory proof. In such a case, however, should the entry be canceled for any reason prior to patent, the mortgagee would have no claim on the land or against the United States for the money loaned. A mortgagee who files notice of his interest in the district land office becomes entitled to receive and be given the same notice of any contest or other proceeding thereafter had affecting the land which is required to be given the original entryman or claimant.

The right of a homestead entryman to patent is not defeated by the alienation of all or a part of the land embraced in his entry after the submission of final proof and prior to patent, provided the proof submitted is satisfactory. Such an alienation is, however, at the risk of the entryman, for if the reviewing officers of the Land Department subsequently find the final proof so unsatisfactory that it must be wholly rejected and new proof required, the entryman can not then truthfully make the nonalienation affidavit required by section 2291, Revised Statutes, and his entry must in consequence be canceled. The purchaser takes no better title than the entryman had, and if the entry is canceled the purchaser's title must necessarily fail.

Relinquishments run to the United States alone, and no person obtains any right to the land by the mere purchase of a relinquishment of a filing or entry.

ENLARGED HOMESTEADS

43. The acts of February 19, 1909 (extended by later legislation to additional States), and of June 17, 1910 (36 Stat. 531), provide for the making of homestead entries for areas of not exceeding 320 acres of public land in the States of Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Kansas, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming designated by the Secretary of the Interior as nonmineral, nontimbered, nonirrigable. As to Idaho, the act of June 17, 1910, provides that the lands must be " arid."

The terms " arid " or " nonirrigable " land, as used in these acts, are construed to mean land which, as a rule, lacks sufficient rainfall to produce agricultural crops without the necessity of resorting to unusual methods of cultivation, such as the system commonly known as dry farming, and for which there is no known source of water supply from which such land may be successfully irrigated at a reasonable cost.

Lands containing merchantable timber, or valuable minerals other than coal, phosphate, nitrate, potash, oil, gas, or asphaltic minerals, and lands within a reclamation project, or lands which may be irrigated at a reasonable cost from any known source of water supply may not be entered under these acts. Entry may be allowed for the surface only of lands containing any of the minerals named. A legal subdivision will not be regarded as irrigable and excluded from designation under these acts because a minor portion of it is susceptible of irrigation unless said portion is at least one-eighth thereof. Where there is an application for additional entry after submission of final proof on the original the land covered by the original will not be regarded as irrigable, and excluded from designation, upon the ground that more than one-eighth of any subdivision is irrigable, unless said original embraces the equivalent of 20 or more acres of land in a reasonably compact body that can be thoroughly irrigated and reclaimed.

DESIGNATION OF LANDS—PETITIONS

44. From time to time lists designating the lands which are subject to entry under these acts are sent to the registers in the States affected, and they are instructed immediately upon the receipt of such lists to note the same upon their tract books. In the order of designation, a date is fixed on which it will become effective, and at that time the land becomes subject to entry under the act.

Under the act of March 4, 1915 (38 Stat. 956, Appendix No. 17), a person may file an application for entry under the enlarged-homestead act of a tract of surveyed land which has not been designated thereunder, accompanied by a petition for its designation, or he may file application for additional entry, though part of the land involved has not been designated, accompanied by like petition. He thus secures a preference right of entry if the land be thereafter designated. Attention is directed to the fact that an additional entry can not be allowed unless the tract first entered, as well as the one sought to be added, is designated, and therefore petitions should in all cases cover so much of both tracts as has not already been designated. Instructions prescribing the procedure under the act mentioned are found in a special circular; the act itself is copied in Appendix No. 17.

The fact that lands have been designated as subject to entry is not conclusive as to the character of such lands, and should it afterwards develop that the land is not of the character contemplated by the above acts the designation may be canceled; but where an entry is made in good faith under the provisions of these acts, such designation will not thereafter be modified to the injury of anyone who in good faith has acted upon such designation. Each entryman must furnish affidavit as required by section 2 of the acts.

COMPACTNESS—FEES

45. A tract included in an entry under the enlarged-homestead act or in an entry under the general law, and an additional under said act, should be in compact form, and such claim may not be permitted to entirely surround a subdivision of unappropriated lands subject to entry under said act.

The acts provide that the fees shall be the same as those now required to be paid under the homestead laws; therefore, while the fees may not in any one case exceed the maximum fee of $10 required under the general homestead law, the commissions will be determined by the area of the land embraced in the entry. (See par. 41.)

FILING OF APPLICATIONS

46. Applications to make entry under these acts must be submitted on forms prescribed by the General Land Office; in case of an original entry, Form 4–003, and of an additional entry, Form 4–004.

The affidavit of an applicant as to the character of the land must be corroborated by two witnesses. It is not necessary that such witnesses be acquainted with the applicant, and if they are not so acquainted their affidavit should be modified accordingly.

The affidavit of the witnesses, as well as that of the applicant, must be executed before an officer authorized to administer oaths in homestead cases. (See par. 16.)

ADDITIONAL ENTRY FOR CONTIGUOUS LAND

47. (a) Under section 3 of the enlarged-homestead acts a person who has entered less than 320 acres of land which is of the character described therein, and which has been so designated by the Secretary of the Interior, may make entry of adjoining lands, also so designated, which will not, together with the tract first entered, exceed 320 acres in area. Where proof has not already been submitted on the original claim at the time application for additional entry is filed, residence upon and cultivation of the tract first entered will be accepted as equivalent to residence upon and cultivation of the additional. Credit for compliance with the law as to the additional entry may be allowed from the date of the filing of the application to enter.

(b) Where a person makes entry under the general provisions of the homestead laws, and before submission of proof on said entry makes an additional entry under said section 3, the following rules govern the requirements as to the cultivation and residence to be shown by him on submission of proof:

(c) He may show compliance with the requirements of the law applicable to his original entry, and that, after the date of additional entry, he cultivated, in addition to such cultivation as was relied upon and used in perfecting title to the original entry, an amount equal to one-sixteenth of the area of the additional entry for one year, not later than the second year of such additional entry, and one-eighth the following year and each succeeding year until proof submitted; however, the rules explained in paragraph 27 (b) are applicable to such cases. The cultivation in support of the additional entry may be maintained upon either entry.

(d) When proof is submitted on both entries at the same time, he may show the cultivation of an amount equal to one-sixteenth of the combined area of the two entries for one year, increased to one-eighth the succeeding year, and that such latter amount of cultivation has continued until offer of proof. If cultivation in these amounts can be shown, proof may be submitted without regard to the date of the additional entry, i. e., the required amount of cultivation may have been performed in whole or in part on the original entry before the additional entry was made, and proof on the additional need be deferred only until the showing indicated can be made. Such combined proof may be submitted not later than seven years from the date of the original entry.

(e) In instances where proof is first made on the original entry meeting the requirement of the homestead law respecting residence, no further showing in this particular will be exacted in making proof upon the additional entry; neither will a period of residence be exacted in proof upon the combined entry in excess of that required under the original entry.

(f) As above indicated, persons who have already submitted proof on their original entries are not, for that reason, deprived of the privilege of making additional entries. However, if a person makes entry for a tract contiguous to the one originally entered, he is required to show that he still owns and occupies (not necessarily resides upon) the tract first entered; in submitting proof on the additional filing, he is accorded credit for all residence on either tract, but must show cultivation of the additional tract itself to the extent and for the period (after the filing of the additional application) required by law. A special circular is issued under the act of March 3, 1915, allowing such additional entries (38 Stat. 956, Appendix No. 13).

ADDITIONAL ENTRY FOR INCONTIGUOUS LAND

48. (a) Under section 7 of the enlarged-homestead acts, added thereto by the act of July 3, 1916 (39 Stat. 344), and the act of September 5, 1916 (39 Stat. 724), a person who has submitted final proof on a homestead entry for less than 320 acres of land of the character contemplated by said acts, has the right to enter sufficient land of similar character, not contiguous to his first entry, to make up therewith not more than 320 acres. He is required to have the same residence and cultivation and a habitable house on the additional entry as though it were an original filing, except where the second tract is within 20 miles of the first, in which case residence and a habitable house on either tract will be accepted. A special circular is issued relating to such additional entries. The act of July 3, 1916 (extended to Idaho by that of Sept. 5, 1916), is printed in Appendix No. 13.

A qualified person who owns and continues to reside on his original entry may make entry for two or more incontiguous tracts within 20 miles of his original entry, if unable to secure in one tract the entire area he is entitled to enter; but one who no longer owns his original entry, or who seeks land not within 20 miles therefrom, can not be allowed to enter incontiguous tracts under this act.

(b) Where a person has perfected a homestead entry for less than 160 acres and is entitled to an additional entry for sufficient land to make that area, he may enter under the enlarged homestead act a tract designated thereunder of an amount double that which he would be entitled to appropriate of land not so designated. (Act of Feb. 20, 1917, 39 Stat. 925, Appendix No. 13.)

Section 1 of the act of March 4, 1923 (42 Stat. 1445), provides that a person who has a subsisting or perfected homestead entry for 160 acres or less of land in a national forest which is of the character contemplated by the enlarged homestead act may make an additional entry for such an amount of land of the same character not in a national forest and within 20 miles from such entry as when the area thereof is added to the area of the original entry will not exceed 320 acres, but at time of making entry thereunder, after proof on the original entry, the applicant must show ownership of and residence on the land in the original entry.

ENTRIES NOT REQUIRING RESIDENCE

49. The sixth section of the act of February 19, 1909 (35 Stat. 639, Appendix No. 15), provides that not exceeding 2,000,000 acres of land in the State of Utah, which do not have upon them sufficient water suitable for domestic purposes as will render continuous residence upon such lands possible, may be designated by the Secretary of the Interior as subject to entry under the provisions of that act; with the exception, however, that entrymen of such lands need not reside thereon. This act provides in such cases that all entrymen must reside within such distance of the land entered as will enable them successfully to farm the same as required by the act; and no attempt will be made at this time to determine how far from the land an entryman will be allowed to reside, as it is believed that the proper determination of that question will depend upon the circumstances of each case.

During the second year of the entry at least one-eighth of the area must be cultivated, and during the third, fourth, and fifth years, and until submission of final proof, one-fourth of the area entered must be cultivated. Proof may be submitted on entries of this class within seven years after their dates.

The rules relating to petitions for designation of lands, referred to in paragraphs 44 and 47, apply to section 6 of the enlarged-homestead act; applications to make entry thereunder will not be received until the date fixed in the order designating the land as subject to entry under said section, except when accompanied by petitions for designation, complying with the rules with reference thereto.

50. The sixth section of the act of June 17, 1910 (36 Stat. 531), as amended by the act of August 10, 1917 (40 Stat. 273), provides for the designation of 1,000,000 acres of land in the State of Idaho of the same character contemplated by section 6 of the act of February 19, 1909. One-sixteenth of the cultivatable area of the entry must be cultivated during the first year of the entry, one-eighth of the area during the second year, and one-fourth of the area during the third and each succeeding year. Entries made under section 6 of the act prior to August 10, 1917, may be perfected without a showing as to cultivation during the first year, but entryman must show cultivation of one-eighth of the area of the entry during the second year, one-fourth of the area of the entry during the third, fourth, and fifth years and until submission of final proof; but in such cases the entryman must show that he resided within 20 miles from the land in his entry, whereas under the act as amended it is required that "after six months from the date of entry and until final proof the entryman shall be a resident of the State of Idaho." Proof may be submitted on entries of this class within seven years after their dates.

STOCK-RAISING HOMESTEADS

51. (a) The act of December 29, 1916 (39 Stat. 862), provides that the Secretary of the Interior may designate unappropriated, unreserved public lands as "stock-raising lands," where the surface thereof is, in his opinion, chiefly valuable for grazing and raising forage crops, provided they do not contain merchantable timber, are not susceptible of irrigation from any known source of water supply, are of such character that 640 acres are reasonably required for the support of a family, and contain no water holes or other bodies of water needed or used by the public for watering purposes.

(b) Where lands are thus designated any person qualified to make entry under the homestead laws may make a homestead entry for not exceeding 640 acres thereof, and the fact that the tract sought may be valuable for coal or other minerals is not material, since all minerals are reserved to the United States.

(c) There is required compliance with the provisions of the general law with respect to residence and the erection of a habitable house. No specific amount of cultivation is required, but it must be shown, on submission of proof, that the entryman has made permanent improvements upon the tract, tending to increase its value for stock-raising purposes, of the value of not less than $1.25 per acre, half of which improvements must be placed there within three years after entry; also that the land has been used for three years for raising stock and forage crops.

(d) Preference right of entry through applications accompanied by petitions for designation may be secured in substantially the same manner as under the enlarged homestead law.

(e) The act provides for additional entries and for entries conditioned on the surrender of former filings. These matters, as well as the preferential right for additional entry of contiguous lands, are explained in a special circular issued under this act.

(f) Section 2 of the act of March 4, 1923 (42 Stat. 1445), provides that a person who made a homestead entry for 160 acres or less of land in a national forest which is of the character contemplated by the stock-raising act, who has not submitted final proof upon his existing entry, may make an additional entry under this section of the act for such an area not in a national forest and within a radius of 20 miles from the original entry as, when added to the area of the original entry, will not exceed 640 acres. An additional stock-raising entry may also be made after proof on such forest homestead entry if the applicant can show he is owner of and residing on the land in his original entry at the time of filing application for additional entry.

(g) An additional entry under section 6, of the act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. 854), or under the act of July 3, 1916 (39 Stat. 344), upon which residence has been or is maintained, may be the basis for a stock-raising additional entry for land within 20 miles of such additional entry.

SURFACE HOMESTEAD ENTRIES FOR COAL, OIL, OR GAS LANDS

52. Homestead applications for lands embraced in applications for coal, oil, or gas prospecting permits or leases when filed in the local land office must be suspended and forwarded to the General Land Office for consideration and instructions and all homestead applications for lands, classified as or known to be valuable for coal, oil, or gas, must be accompanied with the consent of the applicant that his application be allowed in accordance with and subject to the provisions and reservations of the act of June 22, 1910 (36 Stat. 583), as to coal, or of the act of July 17, 1914 (38 Stat. 509), as to oil or gas. A stock-raising entry can not be allowed for lands included in a petroleum reserve or Naval petroleum reserve, but lands within such reserve other than a Naval petroleum reserve are subject to entry under section 2289 of the United States Revised Statutes, or under the enlarged homestead acts with a reservation of the mineral deposits in the land to the United States under the said act of July 17, 1914. All nonmineral applications for lands which have been or shall be designated by the department as being within the known geological structures of producing oil or gas fields, or for lands in an approved lease, must be rejected (by the register). Nonmineral applications found to be in conflict with prior coal, oil, or gas prospecting permit applications may be returned to the district office by the Commissioner of the General Land Office for allowance, if after due notice the mineral applicants make no objections and after proper consents to the reservation to the United States of the mineral in the land have been obtained from the homestead applicants together with consent that the application be subject to the rights of the prior permittees or lessees, as the case may be, to use so much of the surface of the land applied for as is necessary in extracting and removing the mineral deposits without compensation to the homestead applicants for such use in accordance with section 29 of the act of February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. 437).

FURNISHING COPIES OF CLAIMANT'S TESTIMONY IN PROTESTED STOCK-RAISING PROOFS—AMENDMENT OF CIRCULAR NO. 340

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, February 29, 1928.

Registers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: In connection with the investigation of the improvements on stock-raising homestead entries our inspectors need a copy of the final proof testimony of the claimant, but not of the witnesses. You will, therefore, arrange to furnish a copy of the claimant's testimony to the division inspector, either by having the proof-taking officer make a carbon copy thereof or by having a copy made in your office. It is believed that in the great majority of cases the proof-taking officer will furnish you with a carbon copy without additional expense to the claimant.

Very respectfully,

THOS. C. HAVELL, Acting Commissioner.

CIRCULAR NO. 1170

INSTRUCTIONS RELATIVE TO PUBLICATION OF PROOF NOTICES UNDER ACT OF JUNE 11, 1906 (34 STAT. 233), IN HOMESTEAD ENTRY SURVEY CASES

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, October 12, 1928.

Registers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: Your attention is called to paragraph 12, Circular No. 263 (42 L. D. 331), which is the circular of instructions governing entries under the act of June 11, 1906 (34 Stat. 233).

It is observed that in publishing the notice of intention to submit final proof on entries for lands covered by homestead entry surveys the survey number is given followed by the description by metes and bounds. This results in a lengthy description, the cost of which often causes a real hardship to the entryman.

As a plat of the survey is posted on the land and in the respective United States district land offices, it is deemed sufficient in such publications to give the homestead entry number, list number, survey number, acreage, and the approximate description by section, township, and range numbers.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

PROTECTION AGAINST CONTEST TO ENTRYMEN IN CERTAIN COUNTIES IN COLORADO WHILE ABSENT FROM HOMESTEAD ENTRY BECAUSE OF GRASSHOPPER OR CRICKET INVASION—ACT OF FEBRUARY 9, 1929 (45 STAT. 1156)

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, March 22, 1929.

Register, Denver, Colo.

Sir: Section 7 of the act of February 9, 1929 (45 Stat. 1156), provides as follows:

> That no qualified homestead entryman who, prior to November 1, 1928, made bona fide entry upon lands of the United States in Moffat, Rio Blanco, and Routt Counties, Colorado, under the provisions of the homestead laws of the United States, and who established residence in good faith upon the lands entered by him, shall be subject to contest for failure to maintain residence or make improvements upon his land subsequent to the incursion of swarms of crickets or grasshoppers upon said land, or in the vicinity; but such entryman shall, within ninety days after issuance of notice by the Secretary of the Interior that the emergency occasioned by such insect invasion has terminated, file in the office of the register of the local land office an affidavit that he has reestablished his residence on the land, with the intention of maintaining the same for a period sufficient to enable him to make final proof: Provided, That any entry heretofore canceled within said counties may, subject to intervening adverse rights, be reinstated on a proper showing by the entryman that a leave of absence under this act would have been warranted: Provided further, That no such entryman shall be entitled to have counted as a part of the required period of residence any period of time during which he was not actually upon said land prior to the date of the notice aforesaid.

The time that the homesteader is absent under the provisions of this act does not count as constructive residence upon the lands in his entry. In due course the date of termination of the emergency will be fixed and given due publicity at which time each entryman affected should notify the district office of his return to the land in his entry as provided by the act.

All homesteaders absent under the conditions mentioned in the act should keep the district land office advised as to their present address.

You will give all possible publicity to this act without expense to the Government.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

Approved March 22, 1929.

Assistant Secretary.

WITNESSES' JURAT ON FORMS 4-003 AND 4-003a TO BE MODIFIED

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, June 22, 1929.

Registers United States Land Offices:

Gentlemen: My attention has been called to a defect in the witnesses' jurat on Forms 4-003 and 4-003a, applications for original and additional entry under the enlarged homestead laws, in that it does not show that the witnesses were sworn by the official before whom they appeared.

The witnesses as well as the principals must subscribe and be sworn to their affidavits by the officer before whom they are appearing, in connection with all such applications, and therefore it will be necessary to insert the words " and sworn " between the fourth and fifth words of line 5 of the witnesses' jurat on Form 4-003 and on Form 4-003a, until the supply on hand is exhausted.

You will notify all officers in your district qualified to act on such applications to make necessary modifications on said forms.

Very respectfully,

INDIAN ALLOTMENTS AND POSSESSIONS

[See 3 L. D. 371]

LANDS IN THE POSSESSION OF INDIAN OCCUPANTS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., December 23, 1903.

To Registers and Receivers and United States Surveyors General.

GENTLEMEN: Your attention is called to the circular of this department of May 31, 1884, relative to lands occupied by Indian inhabitants (3 L. D. 371), viz:

> DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
> GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
> Washington, D. C., May 31, 1884.
>
> Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.
> GENTLEMEN: Information having been received from the War Department of attempts of white men to dispossess nonreservation Indians along the Columbia River and other places within the military department of the Columbia of the land they have for years occupied and cultivated, and similar information having been received from other sources in reference to other localities where land is occupied by Indians who are making efforts to support themselves by their own labor, you are hereby instructed to peremptorily refuse all entries and filings attempted to be made by others than the Indian occupants upon lands in the possession of Indians who have made improvements of any value whatever thereon.
> In order that the homes and improvements of such Indians may be protected, as intended by these instructions, you are directed to ascertain, by whatever means may be at your command, whether any lands in your districts are occupied by Indian inhabitants, and the locality of their possessions and improvements as near as may be, and to allow no entries or filings upon any such lands. When the fact of Indian occupancy is denied or doubtful, the proper investigation will be ordered prior to the allowance of adverse claims. Where lands are unsurveyed no appropriation will be allowed within the region of Indian settlements until the surveys have been made and the land occupied by Indians ascertained and defined.
>
> Very respectfully,
>
> N. C. MCFARLAND, Commissioner.
> Approved May 31, 1884.
> H. M. TELLER, Secretary.

The foregoing instructions apply to every land district and to all lands occupied by Indian inhabitants in any part of the public-land States and Territories of the United States.

It has been officially represented that these instructions are disregarded, and that public-land entries have been allowed upon lands on which Indian inhabitants have their homes and improvements, and in some cases where the Indians have so resided for a number of years, cultivating the soil and making the land their permanent homes.

The allowance of such entries is a violation of the instructions of this department, an act of inhumanity to defenseless people, and provocative of violence and disturbance.

You are enjoined and commanded to strictly obey and follow the instructions of the above circular and to permit no entries upon lands in the possession, occupation, and use of Indian inhabitants, or covered by their homes and improvements, and you will exercise every care and precaution to prevent the inadvertent allowance of any such entries. It is presumed that you know or can ascertain the localities of Indian possession and occupancy in your respective districts, and you will make it your duty to do so and will avail yourselves of all information furnished you by officers of the Indian Service.

Surveyors general will instruct their deputies to carefully and fully note all Indian occupations in their returns of surveys hereafter made or reported, and the same must be expressed upon the plats of survey.

Very respectfully,

W. A. Richards, Commissioner.

Office of the Secretary,

EXCHANGE OF ALLOTMENTS—CEDED LANDS—ACT OF MARCH 3, 1909

Regulations

Department of the Interior,
Office of Indian Affairs,
Washington, D. C., May 28, 1909.

To Agents, Superintendents, and Special Allotting Agent:

The act of March 3, 1909 (35 Stat. 781, 784), reads in part as follows:

> That if any Indian of a tribe whose surplus lands have been or shall be ceded or opened to disposal has received or shall receive an allotment embracing lands unsuitable for allotment purposes, such allotment may be canceled and other unappropriated, unoccupied, and unreserved land of equal area, within the ceded portions of the reservation upon which such Indian belongs, allotted to him upon the same terms and with the same restrictions as the original allotment, and lands described in any such canceled allotment shall be disposed of as other ceded lands of such reservation. This provision shall not apply to the lands formerly comprising Indian Territory. The Secretary of the Interior is authorized to prescribe rules and regulations to carry this law into effect.

The following rules governing changes in allotments have been approved by the department:

1. Under this law any Indian of a tribe whose surplus lands have been or shall be ceded or opened to disposal who has received or shall receive an allotment embracing lands unsuitable for allotment purposes will be allowed to relinquish such allotment and select in lieu thereof unappropriated, unoccupied, and unreserved land of equal area and like character, within the ceded part of the reservation on which such Indian belongs, on the same terms and with the same restrictions as the original allotment.

2. Each request for a change shall be made the subject of a separate report, in duplicate, accompanied by the papers and facts on which you base your recommendation for a change of allotment.

3. Departmental regulations of May 3, 1909 (37 L. D. 665), in the form of instructions to the register and receiver of the local land office at Cass Lake, Minn., governing the exchange of Indian allotments on Chippewa lands, under the act of May 23, 1908 (35 Stat. 268), shall apply, wherever practicable, to changes under the provision of the act of March 3, 1909, supra, as to all Chippewa lands.

4. In order that the lieu selections may be promptly noted in the tract books of the local land office, the register of the land office having jurisdiction over the lands selected for allotment must be notified of all selections of lieu allotments on the same day as submitted to the superintendent.

5. Indorse on the trust patent, where such has issued to the allottee, a relinquishment of all the right, title, and interest in and to the allotment described therein, together with a description of the lieu lands wanted.

6. The relinquishment must be signed by the allottee, and acknowledged before you or some other officer authorized to take acknowledgments. All signatures by those who can not write should be by thumb print and witnessed.

7. Where the allottee has died the relinquishment must be signed by the heirs of the decedent and must be accompanied by an affidavit showing specifically that the persons who signed the relinquishment are the lawful heirs. The interests of living minors, whether in their own allotments or those inherited, must be relinquished by their natural guardians, as such.

8. Where the original trust patent has been lost or destroyed the relinquishment and application for reallotment may be submitted in the form of a letter, but the letter must be accompanied by an affidavit showing such loss or destruction of the original trust patent. If no patent has been issued, that fact should be set out in the letter.

The following is the approved form of relinquishment, to be altered to suit the circumstances of each particular case:

STATE OF ——— } County of ——— } ss:

I hereby relinquish all my right, title, and interest in and to the allotment described in the within trust patent, for and in consideration that I be allotted, in lieu thereof, the lands described as follows: ———.

——— ———.

Witness.

——— ———.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this —— day of ———.

——— ———.

While the Indians are entitled to change their allotments under this act, where they have received worthless lands, it should be thoroughly understood that no application should be submitted to the office which is based on other than the most substantial reasons.

Very respectfully,

R. G. VALENTINE,
Acting Commissioner.

Approved May 28, 1909.

FRANK PIERCE,
First Assistant Secretary.

EXCHANGE OF ALLOTMENTS—CEDED LANDS—ACT OF MARCH 3, 1909

INSTRUCTIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., June 14, 1909.[1]

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: It is provided by the act of March 3, 1909 (35 Stat. 781, 784), that:

> If any Indian of a tribe whose surplus lands have been or shall be ceded or opened to disposal has received or shall receive an allotment embracing lands unsuitable for allotment purposes, such allotment may be cancelled and other unappropriated, unoccupied, and unreserved land of equal area, within the ceded portions of the reservation upon which such Indian belongs, allotted to him upon the same terms and with the same restrictions as the original allotment, and lands described in any such canceled allotment shall be disposed of as other ceded lands of such reservation. This provision shall not apply to the lands formerly comprising Indian Territory. The Secretary of the Interior is authorized to prescribe rules and regulations to carry this law into effect.

On May 28, 1909, the Secretary of the Interior approved instructions to agents, superintendents, and special allotting agents, prepared by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, under this act. A copy of the same is inclosed.

Section 4 thereof provides that the officer of the Indian Service having charge of the proposed change in an allotment shall promptly advise the register of the appropriate land office of such proposed change.

You will accordingly, on receipt of such notice, make proper notation thereof on your plats and tract books, in the regular order of its receipt in your office, in relation to other applications for lands, noting the exact time of such filing on said notice, and keep the same and thereafter allow no appropriation of the lands affected, until advised of the final disposition of the application for change.

As this notice is intended merely to serve the purpose of caveat to prevent your subsequent disposition of the lieu land, you will give the same no serial number and make no report to this office thereof.

Very respectfully,

S. V. PROUDFIT,
Assistant Commissioner.

EXCHANGE OF ALLOTMENTS—CEDED LANDS—ACT OF MARCH 3, 1909

INSTRUCTIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., June 14, 1909.

Registers and Receivers, Cass Lake, Crookston, and Duluth, Minn.

SIRS: It is provided by the act of March 3, 1909 (35 Stat. 781, 784), that:

> If any Indian of a tribe whose surplus lands have been or shall be ceded or opened to disposal has received or shall receive an allotment embracing lands unsuitable for allotment purposes, such allotment may be canceled and other unappropriated, unoccupied, and unreserved land of equal area, within the ceded portions of the reservation upon which such Indian belongs, allotted to him upon the same terms and with the same restrictions as the original allotment, and lands described in any such canceled allotment shall be disposed of as other ceded lands of such reservation. This provision shall not apply to the lands formerly comprising Indian Territory. The Secretary of the Interior is authorized to prescribe rules and regulations to carry this law into effect.

On May 28, 1909, the Secretary of the Interior approved instructions to agents, superintendents, and special allotting agents, prepared by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, under this act. A copy of the same is inclosed.

Section 4 thereof provides that the officer of the Indian Service having charge of the proposed change in an allotment shall promptly advise the register of the appropriate land office of such proposed change.

You will accordingly, on receipt of such notice, make proper notation thereof on your plats and tract books in the regular order of its receipt in your office, in relation to other applications for lands, noting the exact time of such filing on said notice, and keep the same until advised of the final disposition of the application for change.

As this notice is intended merely to serve the purpose of a caveat to prevent your subsequent disposition of the lieu land, you will give the same no serial number and make no report to this office thereof.

Section 3 provides that the instructions of May 3, 1909, to the local officers at Cass Lake, governing the exchange of allotments within the Chippewa National Forest (act of May 23, 1908, 35 Stat. 268) shall apply, wherever practicable, to exchanges under the act of March 3, 1909, as to all Chippewa lands. A copy of said instructions is inclosed. (See 37 L. D. 665.)

As the act of May 23, 1908, was designed to encourage Indians having allotments in the national forest to exchange the same for lands in the Chippewa Reservation, outside of such forest, they were allowed to take allotments on the Chippewa Reservation having pine thereon of equal value with that surrendered.

The act of March 3, 1909, provides for the taking of the lieu allotment on the unappropriated, unoccupied, and unreserved land within the ceded portions of the reservation upon which the Indian applying belongs. As this act is of a general nature, applying to all reservations, and as allotments have not been allowed of "pine lands" in the ceded portions of the Chippewa Reservations, appraised for sale at a certain rate, for the benefit of the tribe, the privilege of taking pine lands of equal value with those surrendered is not granted by the act, and so the provisions of section one of the instructions of May 3, 1909, do not apply, except when the allotment desired to be changed is partly within the national forest, in which case the provisions of section one will be extended to all the tracts in the surrendered allotment.

Sections 2 and 3 are applicable and will be followed.

It is intended that applications for changes under this act, with the evidence submitted in support of the same, should be filed with the proper officer of the Indian Service; consequently you will, where such applications are filed in your office, place the proper caveat on your records and forward the papers to such officer.

Fred Dennett, Commissioner.

Circular No. 141

INSTRUCTIONS AS TO RELINQUISHMENTS BY INDIANS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, July 15, 1912.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: The Commissioner of Indian Affairs in his letter of July 1, 1912, requests that the local officers be instructed to require Indians, in the execution of relinquishments, of allotment applications, or homestead entries under the act of July 4, 1884, to make a statement on the back of the relinquishments submitted of the reasons governing them in making such relinquishments.

The Commissioner of Indian Affairs states that this would, in many cases, eliminate the necessity of obtaining from the officials in the field a special report as to the propriety of accepting the relinquishment.

You will, therefore, in case of a relinquishment, filed by an Indian, of an allotment application, or of a homestead entry, under the act of July 4, 1884, require the party to write at the foot of the regular form provided for relinquishments, or upon the back thereof, a clear statement of his reasons for desiring to make such relinquishment.

Very respectfully,

S. V. Proudfit,
Assistant Commissioner.

CIRCULAR NO. 432

APPLICATIONS FOR LANDS COVERED BY ALLOTMENT APPLICATIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, August 20, 1915.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

SIRS: By Circular No. 337, dated July 16, 1914,[a] you were directed to allow no allotment applications under the act of February 8, 1887 (24 Stat. 388), as amended, unless the applicant presented with the same a certificate from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs that the party named therein was entitled to allotment on the public domain.

It is presumed that no such applications have been allowed by you since the receipt of the circular in your office unless accompanied by the required certificate.

When other applications for lands embraced in an Indian allotment application are filed in your office you will reject the same, subject to appeal, if the allotment application was filed subsequent to the receipt of the said circular in your office.

If other applications are filed for lands included in an Indian allotment application which has been suspended by you, in order that opportunity may be afforded the applicant to secure the required certificate from the Indian Office or for other sufficient reason, you will suspend such other applications, noting on each the exact time and sequence of filing, and if the allotment application is finally rejected you will allow the suspended application first filed to which no other objection is found. If the allotment application is ultimately allowed you will reject, subject to appeal, all suspended applications for the land embraced in the same.

Where other applications are filed for lands embraced in an allotment application filed before you received the said circular of July 16, 1914, you will inquire of this office, if notice has not been received, whether the Commissioner of Indian Affairs has certified to the right of the applicant to receive an allotment from the public domain. If reply is received that such certification has been made, you will reject the other applications so filed, with right of appeal; but if informed that the Indian Office has found adversely to the Indian applicant, or that no report has been made, you will suspend such applications, noting on each the order of filing, as directed above, awaiting final determination of the Indian's right.

Very respectfully,

CLAY TALLMAN, Commissioner.

AMENDMENT OF CIRCULAR—CHANGES IN ALLOTMENTS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
January 17, 1916.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: Under date of December 27, 1915, the department approved an amendment to the last paragraph of instructions of June 14, 1909 (38 L. D. 41), relative to the exchange of allotments. As amended, this paragraph reads as follows:

> As this notice is intended merely to serve the purpose of a caveat to prevent the subsequent disposition of the lieu lands, you will give the same no serial number but will report to this office by special letter the contents of said notice.

Very respectfully,

Clay Tallman, Commissioner.

[Reported, 52 L. D. 383]

REGULATIONS GOVERNING INDIAN ALLOTMENTS ON THE PUBLIC DOMAIN UNDER SECTION 4 OF THE ACT OF FEBRUARY 8, 1887 (24 STAT. 388), AS AMENDED BY THE ACT OF FEBRUARY 28, 1891 (26 STAT. 794), AND AS FURTHER AMENDED BY THE ACT OF JUNE 25, 1910 (36 STAT. 855)

(Approved April 15, 1918. Revised February 1, 1928)

Department of the Interior,
Washington, February 1, 1928.

The fourth section of the general allotment act of February 8, 1887 (24 Stat. 388), amended by the act of February 28, 1891 (26 Stat. 794), was further amended by section 17 of the act of June 25, 1910 (36 Stat. 855, 859), to read as follows:

> That where any Indian entitled to allotment under existing laws shall make settlement upon any surveyed or unsurveyed lands of the United States not otherwise appropriated, he or she shall be entitled, upon application to the local land office for the district in which the lands are located, to have the same allotted to him or her and to his or her children in manner as provided by law for allotments to Indians residing upon reservations, and such allotments to Indians on the public domain as herein provided shall be made in such areas as the President may deem proper, not to exceed, however, forty acres of irrigable land or eighty acres of nonirrigable agricultural land or one hundred and sixty acres of nonirrigable grazing land to any one Indian; and when such settlement is made upon unsurveyed lands the grant to such Indians shall be adjusted upon the survey of the lands so as to conform thereto, and patent shall be issued to them for such lands in the manner and with the restrictions provided in the act of which this is amendatory. And the fees to which the officers of such local land office would have been entitled had such lands been entered under the general laws for the disposition of the public lands shall be paid to them from any moneys in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, upon a statement of an account in their behalf for such fees by the Commissioner of the General Land Office and a certification of such account to the Secretary of the Treasury by the Secretary of the Interior.

CERTIFICATES

Any person desiring to file application for an allotment of land on the public domain under this act must first obtain from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs a certificate in accordance with regulations approved September 23, 1913, showing that he or she is an Indian and entitled to such allotment, which certificate must be attached to the allotment application, blanks for which will be furnished. Application for the certificate must be made on a regular form, blanks for which will also be furnished, and must contain information as to the applicant's identity, such as thumb print, age, sex, height, approximate weight, married or single, name of the Indian tribe in which membership is claimed, etc., sufficient to establish his or her identity with that of the applicant for allotment. Each certificate must bear a serial number, record thereof to be kept in the Indian Office.

TRIBAL MEMBERSHIP

An applicant for allotment under the fourth section is required to show that he is a recognized member of an Indian tribe or is entitled to be so recognized. Such qualifications may be shown by the laws and usages of the tribe. The mere fact, however, that an Indian is a descendant of one whose name was at one time borne upon the rolls and who was recognized as a member of the tribe does not of itself make such Indian a member of the tribe. The possession of Indian blood, not accompanied by tribal affiliation or relationship, does not entitle a person to an allotment on the public domain. Tribal membership, even though once existing and recognized, may be abandoned in respect to the benefits of the fourth section.

ALLOTMENT APPLICATIONS

The applicant, upon receipt of the required certificate, will fill out the blank form of allotment application and present the same, properly executed, to the register of the land office for the district in which the land is situated. The affidavits attached to the applications for certificate and allotment may be executed before the register or the acting register of the district land office, or any inspector or agent of the Indian Service, or a United States commissioner, or a notary public, or before a judge or clerk or prothonotary of a court or record, or the deputy of such clerk or prothonotary, or before a magistrate authorized by the laws of the State, district, or Territory of the United States to administer oaths, in the county, parish, or land district in which the land lies, or before any officer of the classes mentioned who resides nearer or more accessible to the land, although he may reside outside of the county and land district in which the land is situated.

United States commissioners and notaries public must attach their seal, and justices of the peace must attach to each application at least one certificate by the clerk of the proper court that they are duly authorized to administer oaths.

In case an allotment application is presented without the required certificate, the register will suspend the same for a period of 90 days from notice to enable the applicant to obtain and file such certificate, and that officer will advise the applicant and the Commissioner of Indian Affairs by duplicate notice that unless such certificate is furnished within that time the allotment application will be finally rejected; unless prior to the expiration of the 90-day period the Commissioner of Indian Affairs shall ask for additional time within which to determine the applicant's Indian status.

The filing of an application for allotment on public lands does not secure to an Indian a vested right.

DUTY OF OFFICERS TO ASSIST APPLICANTS

The district land officers, the Indian school superintendents, or other field officers of the Indian Bureau, will afford every facility to Indians desiring to take fourth-section allotments, and will assist them whenever practicable, by advice or otherwise, in the proper steps to be taken, as well as assist them in the preparation of their applications and the required proofs.

Forest rangers and supervisors, and district foresters, will perform similar services, where the allotment applications are made under section 31, act of June 25, 1910 (36 Stat. 855, 863).

Blank forms for application may be had from the Office of Indian Affairs, and district land office, or district forester's office.

HEIRS OF INDIAN SETTLERS AND APPLICANTS

Allotments are allowable only to living persons or those in being at the date of application. Where an Indian dies after settlement and filing of application, but prior to approval, the allotment will upon final approval be confirmed to the heirs of the deceased allottee.

In disposing of pending applications in which the death of the applicant has been reported, the heirs of an applicant who was otherwise qualified at the date of application should be notified that they will be allowed 90 days from receipt of notice within which to submit proof that the applicant personally settled on the land applied for during his or her lifetime, and while the land was open to settlement, and upon failure to submit such proof within the time allowed the application will be finally rejected.

When it is sufficiently shown that an applicant was at the time of death occupying in good faith the land settled on, patent will be issued to his or her heirs without further use or occupancy on the part of such heirs being shown.

CERTIFICATE OF ALLOTMENT AND FIELD EXAMINATION

When the register accepts an application under the fourth section he will issue to the applicant a "certificate of allotment," on a prescribed form, showing the name in full of the applicant, post-office address, name of the tribe in which membership is claimed, serial number of the certificate issued by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, and a description of the land applied for.

A copy of the "certificate of allotment" will be mailed by the register to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs and a copy to the division inspector.

If the division inspector deems it necessary, he will make an investigation, and will report as to the character of the land applied for, whether irrigable, nonirrigable agricultural, or nonirrigable grazing, and as to timber, mineral, coal, phosphate, oil, power site, reservoir, and watering place possibilities; also as to the proper marking of the claim, if unsurveyed.

Where the application under investigation is that of a single person over 21 years of age, or of the head of a family, report will also be made as to the character of the applicant's settlement and improvements. A similar report will be made on applications filed in behalf of minor children as to the character of the settlement and improvements made by the parent, or the person standing in loco parentis, on his or her own allotment under the fourth section. In case the division inspector has no information in his office showing the necessity of an examination or investigation in the field, he will report the fact promptly to the district land officer.

SETTLEMENT

The nature, character, and extent of the settlement, as well as the manner in which performed, must be fully set forth in the allotment application. In examining the acts of settlement and determining the intention and good faith of an Indian applicant, due and reasonable consideration should be given to the habits, customs, and nomadic instincts of the race, as well as to the character of the land taken in allotment.

While the act contains no specific requirements as to what shall constitute settlement, it is evident that the Indian must definitely assert a claim to the land based upon the reasonable use or occupation thereof consistent with his mode of life and the character of the land and climate.

To enable an Indian allottee to demonstrate his good faith and intention, the issuance of trust patent will be suspended for a period of two years from date of settlement; but in those cases where that period has already elapsed at the time of adjudicating the allotment application, and when the evidence, either by the record or upon further investigation in the field, shows the allottee's good faith and intention in the matter of his settlement, trust patents will issue in regular course. Trust patents in the suspended class, when issued, will run from the date of suspension. Each case will be determined and adjudicated upon its own facts and merits.

In the matter of fourth-section applications filed prior to these regulations, where, by the record or upon further investigation in the field, it appears that such settlement has not been made as is contemplated by these regulations, such applications will not be immediately rejected, but the applicant will be informed that two years will be allowed within which to perfect his settlement and to furnish proof thereof, whereupon his application will be adjudicated as in other cases.

CHARACTER OF LAND AND AREA SUBJECT TO ALLOTMENT

The law provides that allotments may include not to exceed 40 acres of irrigable land, 80 acres of nonirrigable agricultural land, or 160 acres of nonirrigable grazing land.

Irrigable lands are those susceptible of successful irrigation at a reasonable cost from any known source of water supply; nonirrigable agricultural lands are those upon which agricultural crops can be profitably raised without irrigation; grazing lands are those which can not be profitably devoted to any agricultural use other than grazing.

Where an Indian makes settlement in good faith upon lands not reserved therefrom, an allotment therefor can not be denied on the ground that the lands are too poor in quality. Also, where settlement was made in good faith, the presence of valuable timber does not warrant the rejection of the allotment.

An allotment may be allowed for coal and oil and gas lands, with reservation of the mineral contents to the United States.

For regulations governing coal laws, see General Land Office Circular No. 557. For regulations governing oil and gas and other minerals, see General Land Office Circular No. 672.

SEGREGATIVE EFFECT OF APPLICATION

An allotment application under the fourth section filed prior to the regulations of September 23, 1913, does not, in the absence of a certificate from the Indian Office showing that the applicant is an Indian entitled to allotment, segregate the land, and subsequent applications for the same land may be received and suspended to await final action on the allotment application.

Where an allotment application under the fourth section, filed subsequent to the regulations of September 23, 1913, is not accompanied by the requisite certificate from the Indian Office showing the applicant to be entitled to allotment, and the applicant is given time to furnish such certificate, the application does not segregate the land, and other applications therefor may be received and held to await final action on the allotment application.

Where an allotment application under the fourth section, accompanied by a certificate from the Indian Office showing that the applicant is an Indian and entitled to allotment, as required by the regulations of September 23, 1913, is found to be in all respects complete and is accepted by the district land officer, it operates as a segregation of the land, and subsequent applications for the same land will be rejected.

APPLICATION FOR UNSURVEYED LANDS

An allotment application under the fourth section for unsurveyed lands must conform to the following rules along the lines of those found in departmental circular of November 3, 1909. (38 L. D. 287.)

It must contain a description of the land by metes and bounds, with courses, distances, and references to monuments by which the location of the tract on the ground can be readily and accurately ascertained. The monuments may be of iron or stone, or of substantial posts well planted in the ground, or of trees or natural objects of a permanent nature, and all monuments shall be surrounded with mounds of stone, or earth when stones are not accessible, and must be plainly marked to indicate with certainty the claim to the tract located. The land must be taken in rectangular form, if practicable, and the lines thereof follow the cardinal points of the compass, unless one or more of the boundaries be a stream or other fixed object. In the latter event only the approximate course and distance along such stream or objects need be given, but the other boundaries must be definitely stated; and the designation of narrow strips of land along streams, watercourses, or other natural objects will not be permitted.

An allotment to a minor child need not be contiguous to that made by the head of a family; but it is required that each allotment made to an individual, whether the head of a family, a single adult, or a minor child, when such allotment embraces more than one legal subdivision, must be composed of contiguous tracts, as in ordinary disposition of the public domain under a settlement law. An additional allotment must be governed by the same rule.

The approximate description of the land, by section, township, and range, as it will appear when surveyed must be furnished, or if this can not be done, an affidavit must be filed setting forth a valid reason therefor.

The address of the claimant must be given, and it shall be the duty of the register, upon the filing of the township plat in the district land office, to notify him thereof, by registered letter, at such address, and to require the adjustment of the claim to the public survey within 90 days. In default of action by the party notified, the register will promptly adjust the claim to the public land survey, if possible, and report his action to the General Land Office.

Notice of the application describing the land as above directed must be posted in a conspicuous place upon the land, and a copy of such notice and proof of posting thereof filed with the application.

MINORS

An Indian settler on public lands under the fourth section is also entitled upon application to have allotments made thereunder to his minor children, stepchildren, or other children to whom he stands in loco parentis, provided the natural children are in being at the date of the parent's application, or the other relationships referred to exist at such date. The law only permits one entitled himself under the fourth section to take allotments thereunder on behalf of his minor children or of those to whom he stands in loco parentis. Orphan children (those who have lost both parents) are not entitled to allotments on the public domain unless they come within the last-mentioned class. No actual settlement is required in case of allotments to minor children under the fourth section, but the actual settlement of the parent or of a person standing in loco parentis on his own public-land allotment will be regarded as the settlement of the minor children.

INDIAN WIVES

Where an Indian woman is married to a white man or other person not entitled to an allotment under the fourth section, and not a settler or entryman under the general homestead law, her right, and that of the minor children born of such marriage, to allotments on the public domain will be determined without reference to the quantum of Indian blood possessed by such woman and her children but solely with reference as to whether they are recognized members of an Indian tribe or are entitled to such membership.

An Indian woman married to an Indian man who has himself received an allotment on the public domain or is entitled to one, or has earned the equitable right to patent on any form of homestead or small holding claim, is not thereby deprived of the right to file an application for herself, provided she is otherwise entitled, and also for her minor children where her husband is for any reason disqualified.

An Indian woman who is separated from her husband who has not received an allotment under the fourth section will be regarded as the head of a family and may file applications for herself and for the minor children under her care.

In every case where an Indian woman files applications for her minor children it must appear that she has not only applied for herself under the fourth section but has used the land in her own application in some beneficial manner.

CHARGES AND PROTESTS AGAINST INDIAN ALLOTMENTS

The act of April 23, 1904 (33 Stat. 297), limits the jurisdiction of the Secretary of the Interior to cancel first or trust patents issued on Indian allotments to specific instances, without authority from Congress. In view of the fact that information respecting the classes defined in said act is obtainable from the department's records, no charges preferred as to those classes will be entertained. Third parties are never invited to attack Indian allotments with the hope or expectation of securing any advantage by reason of such attack. Such parties must assume and pay the expense of a hearing, but at the same time they acquire no preference right to enter the land in the event of the cancellation of the allotment, and this whether first or trust patent has issued or not. Section 2 of the act of May 14, 1880 (21 Stat. 140), does not apply to proceedings of this character.

However, where a party claims equitable rights to lands covered by an Indian allotment for which trust patent has been issued, on account of prior settlement and improvements, a hearing may be ordered on direction of the department with the view of recommending to Congress that such patent be canceled, if the showing made at the hearing justifies such action. In this class of cases, and in cases of charges preferred against allotments on which trust patents have not issued, the following rules will be observed:

The charges must be filed in the proper district land office in the form of a duly corroborated affidavit, clearly setting forth the specific grounds for such charges. The register will forward the papers to the General Land Office, which will give the Indian Office full information thereof.

Where it is charged that the lands applied for are not of the character subject to allotment, that the required settlement has not been made, that the contestant has a prior and better claim, and that the applicant for allotment is not seeking to obtain the land in good faith but is acting in the interest of another person not entitled thereto, the General Land Office will cause a preliminary investigation to be made by an inspector in the field as to the truth and merits of the charges, if such action is deemed necessary. The charges will be dismissed unless they appear to be probably true.

If sufficient showing is made, a hearing will be had before the proper district land officer after due notice to all parties. The taking of testimony and other proceedings in such hearings will be in accordance with the rules of practice governing proceedings before the district land officer.

Nothing in the foregoing will prevent the department from accepting an Indian's relinquishment of an unpatented allotment and directing its cancellation if, after the charges are filed, it is shown that the allotment ought to be canceled.

Third parties are not privileged to intervene in proceedings to determine whether lands applied for are of the character subject to allotment or as to the right of the Indian to an allotment as this is a matter resting solely in the judgment of the department.

ALLOTMENTS WITHIN NATIONAL FORESTS

By the terms of section 31 of the act of June 25, 1910 (36 Stat. 855, 863), allotments under the fourth section of the act of February 8, 1887, as amended, may be made within national forests. See Appendix No. 3 for copy of the act.

An Indian who desires to apply for an allotment within a national forest under this act must submit the application to the supervisor of the particular forest affected, by whom it will be forwarded with appropriate report, through the district forester and forester to the Secretary of Agriculture, in order that he may determine whether the land applied for is more valuable for agriculture or grazing than for the timber found thereon.

Should the Secretary of Agriculture decide that the land applied for, or any part of it, is chiefly valuable for the timber found thereon, he will transmit the application to the Secretary of the Interior and inform him of his decision in the matter. The Secretary of the Interior will cause the applicant to be informed of the action of the Secretary of Agriculture.

In case the land is found to be chiefly valuable for agriculture or grazing, the Secretary of Agriculture will note that fact on the application and forward it to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

The application must be filed with the register, district land office in which the land applied for is located. The register will record the application in the books in that office and will certify whether there is any prior valid claim against the land. He will then forward the case to the General Land Office, where it will be properly noted and if found satisfactory it will then be transmitted to the Office of Indian Affairs for consideration and submission to the Secretary of the Interior. If the Secretary approves the application, he will transmit it to the General Land Office for issuance of a trust patent.

The provisions of said section are not limited to Indians occupying, living on, or having improvements on lands within a national forest at the date of the passage of the act, but apply also to Indians whose settlement, occupation, or improvements occurred subsequent to the passage of the act.

The listing and opening to entry of lands under the provisions of the forest homestead act of June 11, 1906 (34 Stat. 233), do not preclude their being taken as an allotment under section 31.

An allotment under this section may be made for lands containing coal and oil and gas with reservation of the mineral contents to the United States, but not for lands valuable for metalliferous minerals.

The rules given in this circular for the conduct of fourth-section applications apply equally to applications under said section 31.

SALE, HEIRSHIP, WILLS, ETC.

The existing laws and regulations relating to the sale of allotted Indian lands, the determination of heirs, the issuance of patents in fee, the disposal of trust allotments by will, and the extension of the trust period, applicable to reservation allotments under the provisions of the act of February 8, 1887, as amended, are equally applicable to allotments made under the fourth section of said act.

ALLOTMENTS—RESERVATION

No general regulations governing the class and area of land to be given allottees on all reservations can be promulgated, as this is controlled in part by special acts of Congress applying to particular reservations. Special instructions applicable to particular reservations, are, at times, issued under the act of February 8, 1887 (24 Stat. 388), for allotments on reservations, for the allotment of which no special act has been provided.

RELINQUISHMENTS

Relinquishments of Indian allotments, if filed in a district land office, will not be noted on the records of that office, but will be forwarded to the General Land Office without action, and will be transmitted by the Commissioner of the General Land Office to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs for consideration and recommendation. Where the application has not been approved, the Commissioner of Indian Affairs has authority to accept or reject the relinquishment, as he may deem proper. Where the allotment application has been approved, departmental approval of the recommendation of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs must be had before the relinquishment can be accepted. On the acceptance of a relinquishment, the General Land Office will be notified of the fact. The land affected will not become subject to entry until after the district land officer has noted the fact of the relinquishment and cancellation on his records.

NOTICE OF ACTION

Notice to Indian allottees, or to their parents, of minors, of any action adverse to their interests must be given by registered letter to the proper Indian superintendent, as well as to the party in interest.

Registers will keep informed of the names and addresses of the Indian superintendents charged with the interests of the Indians in their districts, but if no such officer is known to them, notice will be sent to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs of this city, by the registers.

CITIZENSHIP

Under section 6 of the act of February 8, 1887 (24 Stat. 388), every Indian born within the territorial limits of the United States, to whom allotments were made under that act, and every Indian who voluntarily takes up his residence separate and apart from any tribe of Indians and adopts the habits of civilized life is declared to be a citizen of the United States.

The act of May 8, 1906 (34 Stat. 182), section 6, changed the time when an Indian became a citizen by virtue of the allotment made to him to the time when patent in fee should be issued on such an allotment.

The act of June 2, 1924 (43 Stat. 253), conferred citizenship on all noncitizen Indians born within the territorial limits of the United States, but expressly reserved to them all rights to tribal or other property. These rights include that of allotment on the public land if qualified. (51 L. D. 379.)

INDIAN HOMESTEADS

These regulations do not apply to homestead entries by Indians under either the act of March 3, 1875 (18 Stat. 420), or July 4, 1884 (23 Stat. 96), as the rules and regulations governing regular citizen homestead entries are applicable to this class of entries by Indians. The act of July 4, 1884, expressly states that no fees or commissions shall be charged on account of Indian homestead entries, and a patent different in character from the citizen homestead patent is issued on entries made under either of said acts. The acts in question are printed in the appendix to these regulations as matter of information.

INDIAN OCCUPANCY

Registers will ascertain by any means in their power whether any public lands in their districts are occupied by Indians and the location of their improvements, and will suspend and transmit to the General Land Office all applications made by others than the Indian occupants, upon lands in the possession of Indians who have made improvements of any value whatever thereon.

ALLOTMENTS IN ALASKA

The rules and regulations relating to allotments in Alaska are given in the general instructions relating to the acquisition of title to public lands in the Territory of Alaska, Circular 491.

Acting Commissioner, General Land Office.
Chas. H. Burke,
Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

INDIAN LANDS[1]

REGULATIONS GOVERNING USE OF VACANT CEDED INDIAN LANDS

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, D. C., July 25, 1912.

To Officers in Charge of Indian Reservations and Registers and Receivers of United States Land Offices.

GENTLEMEN: Regarding the question of jurisdiction over Indian lands after they have been opened for settlement and entry, under date of November 27, 1911, the First Assistant Secretary of the Interior addressed the Commissioner of Indian Affairs as follows:

JURISDICTION OVER RELINQUISHED INDIAN LANDS

NOVEMBER 27, 1911.

The COMMISSIONER OF INDIAN AFFAIRS.

SIR: You have submitted the question of jurisdiction over lands within Indian reservations after they have been opened to settlement and entry.

The question is perhaps not one so much of jurisdiction as one involving the rights of the Indians to the use and benefit of the lands after provision has been made extinguishing the Indian claim and making disposition of the lands. You note that such lands may be divided generally into two classes: (1) Those which the United States has purchased from the Indians and paid for, the Indian claim thereto being thus completely extinguished; and (2) those which the United States agrees to dispose of for the benefit of the Indians, without, however, becoming bound to purchase the lands, whereby the claim of the Indians remains unextinguished until the lands are finally sold.

The department agrees with you that as to the first class the Indians have no further concern and that after the cession such lands are properly under the jurisdiction of the General Land Office.

The department also agrees with you that the Indians are rightfully entitled to the use and benefit of the lands coming within the second class until they shall have been finally disposed of, with the condition, however, that the use thereof shall in nowise interfere with the speedy sale or other disposition provided by law. There should be no difficulty in properly handling such cases through joint cooperation between your office and the General Land Office. There can be no objection to permitting the use of such lands by the Indians or for grazing purposes for the benefit of the Indians, provided always that such use is so controlled as to not interfere with the settlement or sale of the lands. You will in all such cases confer with the General Land Office, with a view of adopting such rules and regulations as may be necessary to secure to the Indians any income that may be properly derived from the lands and at the same time to secure their early sale or settlement, as the law may direct.

In respect to the Round Valley Indian Reservation in California, specifically referred to by you, the act of October 1, 1890 (26 Stat. 658), provides for the survey and allotment of the agricultural lands to the Indians in severalty, for the reservation of a reasonable amount of grazing and timber lands, and for the survey of the remainder of grazing and timber lands into tracts of 640 acres, and the sale of the same, the proceeds thereof, after paying the expenses, to be placed in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the Indians.

[1] There have been printed under this title the regulations of the greatest importance at the present time relating to lands in former Indian reservations.

The act of February 8, 1905 (33 Stat. 706), directed that all the lands relinquished from the Round Valley Indian Reservation under the act of October 1, 1890, supra, should be surveyed, reappraised, and thereafter be subject to settlement and entry under the provisions of the homestead laws of the United States, and that all the lands thus opened to settlement remaining undisposed of at the expiration of five years from the taking effect of the act might be sold and disposed of for cash, the proceeds to be disposed of as provided in the act of 1890.

Under these provisions of law this reservation clearly falls within the second class, and the Indians are entitled to possession of the lands until the same shall have been settled upon, entered, or sold. You will immediately confer with the General Land Office, with a view to entering into an arrangement along the lines suggested herein.

A copy of this letter will be sent to the Commissioner of the General Land Office for his information and guidance.

Very respectfully,

SAMUEL ADAMS, First Assistant Secretary.

To put into effect the foregoing rulings of the department and to provide for concurrent supervision over the lands involved, wherever situated, for the protection and benefit of the Indian owners and protection of prospective settlers, the following instructions are issued:

1. Up to date of entry, sale, or settlement, the lands in class 2 shall be under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Indian Affairs and under the immediate supervision of the officer in charge of the Indian reservation where the lands are situate.

2. The officer in charge of the Indian reservation will prepare permits for grazing purposes in favor of responsible persons on the form approved by the department September 1, 1911 (5–175a), to which shall be added the following:

> It is understood and agreed by the permittee that he will place no improvements upon the lands covered by this permit without first securing the written consent of the officer in charge of the reservation, and all fences and other improvements which he shall place upon the lands shall remain thereon at the expiration of the permit and become the absolute property of the equitable owner of the soil.
> It is also understood and agreed by the permittee that from and after the date of any bona fide settlement, sale, or entry of the lands covered by this permit, or any part thereof, this permit becomes void as to the lands so affected, and the permittee agrees and hereby stipulates that he will not interfere with or in any manner attempt to prevent any person from making settlement, filing, or entry upon any of the lands included in this permit.
> The penalty for violating the foregoing conditions and stipulations will be the summary revocation of the permit.

3. No permit shall be issued for a longer period than one year, and all permits shall be subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Interior.

4. Before executing a permit in favor of any person the officer in charge of the reservation will first ascertain from the land office of the district in which the lands are situated if said lands are applied for or are included in any entry of record. And thereafter, upon the execution of a permit, he will furnish the said land office with a description of the lands, the name of the permittee, and length of term, the same to be posted in the land office for the information of the public.

Any and all permits executed under these instructions shall be subject and subordinate to any valid settlement made or maintained under the public-land laws.

5. The officer in charge of the reservation is charged with the duty of preventing all trespassing on lands in class 2, the collection of trespass fees, and the prosecution of trespassers as provided by law.

6. After date of entry, sale, or settlement the lands in class 2 shall be under the jurisdiction of the General Land Office, and any permit in effect at such date shall cease and determine, and if occupied by any Indian such Indian's right of occupancy shall cease.

7. It shall be the duty of the local land officers to furnish the officer in charge of all Indian reservations within their jurisdiction monthly lists of all applications for entry or purchase, as well as all relinquishments filed, embracing lands in class 2, and to furnish also information when requested as to particularly described tracts.

Circular No. 547

DISPOSITION OF SURPLUS COAL LANDS RESTORED FROM INDIAN RESERVATIONS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, April 16, 1917.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices.

Sirs: Attention is directed to the act of Congress approved February 27, 1917 (39 Stat. 944), entitled "An act to authorize agricultural entries on surplus coal lands in Indian reservations," copy of which is appended hereto.

With the exception of the lands of the Five Civilized Tribes, the act applies to all Indian reservations that have been or which may be hereafter restored where the surplus lands are or may be divided into mineral and nonmineral classes.

It recognizes that such surplus coal lands have two distinct values, coal and nonmineral or agricultural. It provides for the disposition of the two estates therein created, the coal deposits and the nonmineral, and directs that the proceeds derived from both be placed to the credit of the Indians in the manner provided for other surplus lands. But while the estates may be so separated, no sale of the coal deposits only may be made in advance of the disposition of the nonmineral estate. It does not extend the coal-land laws to areas not otherwise subject thereto, except to permit of the purchase of the coal deposits where the lands have been disposed of under the act with a reservation of such deposits, and then only where the coal-land laws shall have been extended to such areas at the time of such coal purchase. It does not repeal or modify the coal-land laws where otherwise applicable, nor prevent the acquisition of both estates thereunder, but in providing for the disposition of the two estates and in directing the payment to the Indians of the proceeds arising from each, it necessarily contemplates that if the coal-land purchaser precede the agricultural applicant and thus secure title to both estates, he must pay for each at the prices fixed for the respective estates.

Where the law providing for the separation of the lands into mineral and nonmineral classes placed a flat price on the nonmineral lands or authorized the disposal of such lands at a general price which has been so fixed, this act does not require a specific tract appraisal of the coal lands to be disposed of thereunder with a reservation of the coal deposits and in all such cases the nonmineral or agricultural estate may be disposed of at the prices so fixed for the nonmineral lands. Where the law requires that the nonmineral lands shall be separated into further classes and appraised either by tracts or by such groups, no disposition of the coal lands in such reservation may be made either under this act or under the coal-land laws until such surplus lands have been separated into classes and appraised as to their value exclusive of the coal deposits in the manner provided for nonmineral lands, and in such cases the act has the effect of withdrawing from entry under the coal-land laws the coal lands in such reservations until such coal lands shall have been appraised without reference to the coal deposits in the manner provided for the nonmineral lands.

If the nonmineral lands and the coal lands with the reservation of the coal deposits be withdrawn from other disposition for the purpose of sale, no entry under the coal-land laws may be allowed therefor until such lands shall have been sold with the reservation of such deposits or restored. The coal deposits in lands sold or otherwise disposed of with a reservation of the coal, if otherwise subject to disposition, may be purchased under the coal-land laws at prices fixed thereunder, and if any of the coal lands so withdrawn for sale shall be restored unsold, both estates may be purchased under the coal-land laws upon the payment of the nonmineral and coal prices.

If, under the law authorizing the disposal of the nonmineral lands, a proclamation of the President or order of the Secretary is required before the restoration can take effect, the coal lands with the reservation of the coal deposits will not become subject to disposal under the provisions of this act until so restored.

Very respectfully,

C. M. Bruce,
Acting Commissioner.

First Assistant Secretary.

CHEYENNE RIVER AND STANDING ROCK INDIAN LANDS—TIME OF PAYMENTS EXTENDED

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., May 4, 1912.

Registers and Receivers, United States Land Offices, Lemmon and Timber Lake, S. Dak.

SIRS: Your attention is directed to the act of Congress approved April 13, 1912 (37 Stat. 84), which reads as follows:

> That any person who has heretofore made a homestead entry for land which was formerly a part of the Cheyenne River Indian Reservation, in the State of South Dakota, or the Standing Rock Indian Reservation, in the States of South Dakota and North Dakota, authorized by the act approved May twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and eight, may apply to the register and receiver of the land office in the district or districts in which the land is located for an extension of time in which to make payment of any amount that is about to become due, and upon the payment of interest for one year in advance, at five per centum per annum upon the amount due, such payment will be extended for a period of one year, and any payment so extended may annually thereafter be extended for a period of one year in the same manner: Provided, That the last payment and all other payments must be made within a period not exceeding one year after the last payment becomes due by the terms of the act under which the entry was made; that all moneys paid for interest as herein provided shall be deposited in the Treasury to the credit of the Indians as a part of the proceeds received for the land: And provided further, That any entryman who has resided upon and cultivated the land embraced in his entry for the period of time required by law in order to make commutation proof, may make proof, and if the same is approved, further residence and cultivation will not be required: Provided, That any and all payments must be made when due unless the entryman applies for an extension and pays interest at five per centum per annum in advance upon the amount due as herein provided, and patent shall be withheld until full and final payment of the purchase price is made in accordance with the provisions hereof.
> That failure to make any payment that may be due, unless the same be extended, or to make any extended payment at or before the time to which such payment has been extended as herein provided, will forfeit the entry and the same shall be canceled, and any and all payments theretofore made shall be forfeited.
> That nothing herein contained shall affect any valid adverse claim initiated prior to the passage of this act.

No special form of application for extension of time to make payment will be required. The payment by the entryman of interest for one year in advance on any amount about to become due at the rate of 5 per cent per annum will be sufficient, and the receiver will note upon receipts and abstracts of collections the nature and purpose of the payment.

Under the second proviso of the act, any entryman who has resided upon and cultivated the land embraced in his entry for the period of time required by law in order to make commutation proof, may make proof, and if the same is approved, further residence and cultivation will not be required, and the entryman may complete his payments in the annual installments, and subject to the same conditions as to extensions of time as though such proof had not been made. If such proof is found satisfactory by you, you will so notify the entryman, and that your approval thereof is subject to review by this office; the register will not issue final certificate, but forward the proof to this office with the returns for the current month, attaching thereto a brief report as to its status. Upon final payment being made final certificate may issue, in the absence of other objection, without instructions from this office.

WITHDRAWAL OF CHEYENNE RIVER AND STANDING ROCK INDIAN LANDS

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, May 23, 1919.

Registers and Receivers, Lemmon and Timber Lake, S. Dak.

Sirs: The act of Congress approved May 29, 1908 (35 Stat. 460), providing for the disposal of a portion of the surplus and unallotted lands in the former Cheyenne River and Standing Rock Indian Reservations, North and South Dakota, provides in section 4:

> That all lands remaining undisposed of at the expiration of four years from the opening of said lands to entry may, in the discretion of the Secretary of Interior, be reappraised in the manner provided for in this Act. And it is further provided that any lands remaining unsold after said lands have been open to entry for seven years may be sold to the highest bidder for cash without regard to the prescribed price thereof fixed under the provisions of this Act, under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe.

In order that the necessary preparations may be made so that the remaining lands may be offered for sale at such time as may hereafter be determined, it is directed that, except as hereinafter provided, all of such lands be withdrawn from settlement, entry, or other disposition, under the public land laws on and after May 27, 1919. The offering, when held, will include all lands not otherwise withdrawn or reserved and free from adverse claim at the date of sale, which had been opened to homestead entry seven years prior to May 27, 1919.

This withdrawal will not prevent the allowance of entries on or after May 27, 1919, under the said act of May 29, 1908 (35 Stat. 460), in the following cases:

(1) Lands not opened to entry seven years prior to May 27, 1919, will continue subject to disposal until otherwise directed.

(2) Lands which on May 26, 1919, are embraced in existing entries may be reentered if such existing entries are thereafter canceled on contest, relinquished or otherwise.

(3) Any application to enter these lands or any application for amendment presented prior to May 27, 1919, may, if sufficient, be allowed on or after that date.

(4) A settler on the land on May 26, 1919, may make entry after that date provided he does so within the three months allowed for that purpose.

(5) Lands which on May 26, 1919, are embraced in a prior withdrawal may be entered after that date if such withdrawal is revoked.

Department of the Interior,

Sirs: The act of March 4, 1921 (41 Stat. 1446), provides:

> That the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized, in his discretion, to extend for a period of one year the time for the payment of any annual installment due, or hereafter to become due, of the purchase price for lands sold under the act of Congress approved February 14, 1913 (Thirty-seventh Statutes, page 675), entitled "An act to authorize the sale and disposition of surplus or unallotted lands of the Standing Rock Indian Reservation in the States of North and South Dakota, and for other purposes," and any payment so extended may annually thereafter be extended for a period of one year in the same manner: Provided, That the last payment and all other payments must be made within a period not exceeding one year after the last payment becomes due by the terms of the act under which the entry was made: Provided further, That any and all payments must be made when due unless the entryman applies for an extension and pays interest for one year in advance at 5 per centum per annum upon the amount due, as herein provided, and patent shall be withheld until full and final payment of the purchase price is made in accordance with the provisions hereof: And provided further, That any entryman who has resided upon and cultivated the land embraced in his entry for the period of time required by law in order to make commutation proof may make proof, and if the same is approved further residence and cultivation will not be required: And provided further, That failure to make any payment that may be due, unless the same be extended, or to make any extended payment at or before the time to which such payment has been extended, as herein provided, shall forfeit the entry and the same shall be canceled and any and all payments theretofore made shall be forfeited.
> Sec. 2. That the Secretary of the Interior is also hereby authorized, in his discretion, to extend for a period of one year, the time for the payment of any annual installment hereafter to become due of the purchase price of lands in the Cheyenne River Indian Reservation in South Dakota and the Standing

Rock Indian Reservation in the States of North Dakota and South Dakota, sold at public sale under the act of Congress approved May 29, 1908 (Thirty-fifth Statutes, page 460), under the same terms and on the same conditions as provided in section 1 of this act.

(1) Lands involved and entries and sales affected.—Section 1 of the said act of March 4, 1921, applies to homestead entries made either before or after the passage of the act in the part of the Standing Rock Indian Reservation, North and South Dakota, opened under the act of Congress approved February 14, 1913 (37 Stat. 675). Section 2 of the said act of March 4, 1921, applies to sales made either before or after the passage of the act in the part of the Cheyenne River and Standing Rock Indian Reservations, North and South Dakota, opened under the act of May 29, 1908 (35 Stat. 460).

(2) Granting of extensions of time for payments.—The right to grant extensions of time for payments is made discretionary with the Secretary of the Interior. Extensions will be granted in all cases where applied for, provided interest is paid in advance at the rate of 5 per cent per annum on the amounts involved, as required by the said act of March 4, 1921.

(3) Original requirements in the matter of payments in connection with homestead entries.—The terms of payment prescribed by the act of February 14, 1913, above cited, in connection with homestead entries of Standing Rock lands made thereunder, are as follows:

> One-fifth of the purchase price to be paid in cash at the time of entry, and the balance in five equal installments, the first within 2 years and the remainder annually in 3, 4, 5, and 6 years, respectively, from and after the date of entry.

(4) Original requirements in the matter of payments in connection with sales.—The only sales heretofore authorized under the act of May 29, 1908, above cited, were authorized by departmental regulations of February 27, 1920. The terms of payment prescribed by said regulations for such sales are as follows:

> Purchasers may pay all cash for the lands at the time of purchase or one-third down and the balance in two equal annual installments due 1 and 2 years from the date of purchase, interest to be paid on the deferred installment at the rate of 5 per cent per annum.

(5) The said act of March 4, 1921, modifies the above requirements in these respects:

(a) The time for the payment of any annual installment which is due and payable may be extended for a period of one year provided interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum is paid on the amount in question as a prerequisite to the granting of such extension. Any payment so extended may annually thereafter be extended for a period of one year in the same manner, but the last payment and all other payments must be made within a period not exceeding one year after the last payment becomes due by the terms of the act under which the entry was made. The utmost time allowed for the completion of payments under homestead entries made under the said act of February 14, 1913, is seven years from the date of entry. The utmost time allowed for the completion of payments under sales made under the said regulations of February 27, 1920, and the said act of May 29, 1908, is three years from the date of sale.

(b) Under the proviso in the said act of March 4, 1921—

> That any entryman who has resided upon and cultivated the land embraced in his entry for the period of time required by law in order to make commutation proof, may make proof, and if the same is approved, further residence and cultivation will not be required—any entryman may submit commutation proof and thereafter complete the payments of purchase money, the same as may be done where 3-year proof is submitted. This construction of the said proviso is the construction given to a similar proviso found in the act of April 13, 1912 (37 Stat. 84), under which instructions were approved by the department May 4, 1912 (41 L. D. 12).

(6) Entrymen in default in the matter of payments.—You will promptly serve notice on each entryman who is in arrears in the matter of payments that he must by June 30, 1921, make payment of sums of principal due, without interest, or he must, by the date stated, obtain an extension of time for the payment of such sums. You will in the notice to each entryman hold his entry for cancellation because of his default in the matter stated, and provide that if payment, either of principal or of interest, is not made by June 30, 1921, you will report his entry to this office for cancellation. The interest required as a prerequisite to the granting of an extension of time for the payment of any installment which is in arrears should be calculated in the following manner: Where the installment is one year or less in arrears, interest must be paid thereon for one year; where the installment is more than one year and two years or less in arrears, interest must be paid thereon for two years; where the installment is more than two years and three years or less in arrears, interest must be paid thereon for three years, etc.

(7) Payments which hereafter become due.—Hereafter entrymen must make the required payments at the time such payments become due. If any entryman fails to make any required payment of principal when such payment becomes due, you will, by notice to him, hold his entry for cancellation because of the default and advise him that in the event of his failure to make the payment, or to apply for and secure an extension of time for that purpose by making proper payment of interest within 30 days from receipt of the notice, you will report his entry to this office for cancellation.

(8) Entrymen entitled to credit for military or naval service.—The instructions given herein should be read in connection with departmental instructions of June 9, 1919, circular No. 647 (47 L. D. 191), as to installment payments required in connection with homestead entries after a period of military or naval service.

Very respectfully,

William Spry, Commissioner.

REAPPRAISEMENT OF CHEYENNE RIVER, STANDING ROCK, COEUR D'ALENE, FLATHEAD, AND SPOKANE INDIAN LANDS[a]

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Washington, August 11, 1927.

THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

SIR:

* * * * * * *

Considering the long period of time that has elapsed since the original appraisements were made and the continued filing of applications for reappraisement, it is the opinion of this office that action should be taken to bring the matter definitey to an end. It is believed that ample authority is vested in the Secretary of the Interior under the act of June 6, 1912, supra, to set a definite date after which no further application for appraisement will be considered. It is therefore recommended that no further applications for reappraisement involving lands of the following Indian reservations opened to entry, be considered unless filed in the local land office on or before September 30, 1927: Cheyenne River Reservation, S. Dak.; Standing Rock Reservation, N. Dak.; Coeur d'Alene Reservation, Idaho; Flathead Reservation, Mont.; Spokane Reservation, Wash.

It is also recommended that in those cases where action has once been taken on an application for reappraisement that no appeal or supplemental application for reappraisement be considered.

[a] See instructions of Aug. 29, 1927, p. 724.

If these recommendations are approved a copy of this letter will be furnished each of the respective superintendents with instructions to give the matter all possible publicity among the residents of the reservation. A copy will also be furnished the Commissioner of the General Land Office with request that the proper local land office be notified to give the matter publicity through the local press as a matter of news and without expense to the Government.

Very respectfully,
